MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH ST. CATHARINES GIRL

WHALE OF A CATCH

This is probably the largest fish Andrew Fougere of Shediac, N.B., will ever find in his nets. Checking his catch this week Fougere found this 18-foot whale, weighing a ton and a half, trapped in the strands. Looping a rope around the tail of the whale Fougere and his crew fought an hour and a half to drown the mammal before finally bringing it to shore.—(CP Photo).

U.K. Authority Convinced Attack Not Deliberate

Singapore, May 2 (AP)—A high British naval authority said today he is convinced the Chinese Communist attack on the Royal Navy sloop Amethyst April 27 was not deliberate.

He believed it was caused by lack of discipline among Chinese Communist forces lining the bank of the Yangtze River or by excitement among the troops.

The attack on the Amethyst and subsequent engagements with three other British warships involved in the incident cost 42 British lives.

He reported that messengers, apparently from local Communist forces, escorted the Amethyst safely in her present location but said it would be dangerous at the present time to move toward Shanghai.

British subjects still in the former Nationalist capital, now in Communist hands, have supplies sufficient for two weeks and thereafter may be able to get some supplies by road or rail, he said.

Freighter Crew Freed From Jail At Brisbane

Sydney, Australia, May 2 (CP)—Thirty former crew members of the 10,000-ton Canadian freighter Triberg were released from Boggo Road jail at Brisbane.

The men had been jailed for 14 days by Magistrate J. A. Murray for having disobeyed their captain's command to take the ship to sea.

As soon as the men were released they went to the Brisbane Trades Hall to prepare a petition to carry to the May Day procession to be held in Queensland today.

"We just want our former position is," said union delegate Robert Jones. Le Comte when asked whether they would seek employment while awaiting repatriation to Canada.

Le Comte told reporters the word "Communist" should never have been associated with the dispute and it was purely an industrial quarrel between the Canadian shipping companies and the Seamen's Union.

Incredible Tale of Cruelty To Horses in North Probed

Thessalon, May 2 (C)—Charges that more than 100 horses were worked day and night until they dropped dead or were killed in the bush are being investigated by Ontario Humane Society officials and police in this lumbering community about 50 miles southeast of Sault Ste. Marie.

Humane Society officials said the death rate among 275 horses used by a logging company in the Rocky Lake area, 80 miles north of here, was the highest of any lumbering operation in Canada.

Rosario Tessier, a Sudbury horse dealer who rented horses to the company estimated that 125 horses were killed by overwork in three weeks of hauling logs to lakes and streams.

Harold Allard, district inspector of the Humane Society, said two senior officials of the society were coming from the society's head office at St. Catharines to help him.

Mr. Tessier, who has brought a suit for damages against the company, said 30 of the 70 horses he rented to the company were killed and then 20 of the others were condemned by Dr. Thomas Young, Sudbury veterinarian.

Alternate Drivers Used

"It is almost incredible the way the horses were handled," Tessier said. "They were worked by alternate drivers day and night. They were driven until they dropped and died or, unable to rise, they were shot."

After the haul was over he said, 55 of the surviving horses were herded through the bush 80 miles out with "only three bales of hay to Thessalon. The drivers had set and three bags of oats for feed."

"They should have had 10 bales of hay and six bags of oats," he said.

When a truck carrying the feed broke down the horses went without feed until the following afternoon.

"Some of them wandered into the bush looking for food and they are still there."

Horses dropped out of the herd. Five were drowned crossing a river because they didn't have the strength to get out themselves, Tessier said.

Dr. Young said he had been summoned to Thessalon from Sudbury to examine the horses.

"Four horses were lying on the ground completely finished. The rest were in poor condition. In addition I have seen horses in all my veterinary years, some with sores on their sides where whips made of hay wire had been used."

Pope Fixes Dates For Canonization Of Five Women

Vatican City, May 2 (AP)—At a semi-public consistory today the dates were fixed by Pope Pius for the canonization of two French and three Italian women.

Two of the solemn and colorful ceremonies by which the Roman Catholic Church raises its heroes and heroines to the highest honors will take place this month and in June.

The other three were fixed for the feasts of the pentecost and assumption. The first will occur begin Christmas Eve, this year, and runs to Christmas Eve, 1950.

The process for the sanctification of Jeanne De Valois has been on the church docket more than 300 years, since 1644.

Jeanne De Lestonnac, a rich and noble woman of Bordeaux who died in 1640 after founding her comfortable life and founding the Order of the Daughters of Our Blessed Virgin Mary, for the Care of the Poor. She will be raised to sainthood May 15.

Giuseppa Rossello, Italian, founder of the Institutes of the Lady of Mercy. She died in 1880, and will be canonized June 19.

Bartolomea Capitanio and Vincenza Gerosa, Italian women of the last century, who founded the Sisters of Charity. They will be raised together to sainthood on Ascension Thursday of the Holy Year.

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—An estimated $100,000 in stolen jewelry was found Saturday in a cottage outbuilding at Wasaga Beach, the seven-year-old Toronto boy, police reported today. The cache was identified as loot taken several weeks ago from Eaton Hall.

Police said they believed Gordon Barrett, who already faces charges of stealing stolen property, is linked with the latest find.

Last week a $25,000 cache of stolen goods was found in Wasaga Beach lodge owned by Barrett.

The jewelry, found in a suitcase in a small shed by seven-year-old Keith Tersalyson of Toronto, was identified by Mrs. Ann Ridgway, a Collingwood jeweler, as loot taken from the home of Lady Eaton. The cache was made up of jades, gold watches, loose and platinum pieces and exotic stones, Many of the pieces had the Eaton crest and initial.

The jewelry was found on the property of J. Tordoff, Keith's uncle. The lad said he saw the suitcase and some clothes stuffed in a corner of the small building and called his uncle who advised provincial police constable Frank Hurlbut, on guard in the neighborhood.

Three truck loads of stolen goods found in the Barrett cottage have already been taken to nearby Collingwood for identification and police are keeping guard over the remainder of the loot, which includes large quantities of electrical appliances, stoves, furniture, furnishing fixtures and guns.

Police said they believe Barrett hid the jewelry on Tordoff's property shortly before his arrest last week.

COMMONS' LIFE ENDS QUIETLY. CAMPAIGN OPENS

Members Leave Behind Turbulent Session

Ottawa, May 2 — (CP)—Parliament's life is ended, but the echoes of a turbulent session stretched today into the general election campaign and voting Monday, June 27.

Commons members leave behind them one of the most boisterous sessions in Canadian parliamentary records, marked by the toughest jockeying in many years for position in the electoral race, and at the same time historic in many respects.

It had seen Louis St. Laurent and Gedrge Drew both take seats for the first time as prime minister and leader of the opposition. It had heard them duel brilliantly, at times roughly.

It was a session at which neither government nor opposition gave nor asked quarter.

But for all their differences, the legislators could bury the political hatchet in the cause of national unity. They had shown did this to achieve unanimity in passing the Newfoundland Act last week. The protective alliance went through on standing votes of 250 members, with not a dissenting voice.

House-to-House Check Being Made To Trace Man

FOUND DROWNED

Body of Joyce Patterson, 20, of St. Catharines, was recovered from the old Welland Canal on Saturday. She had been missing since Thursday night. Her bike and flashlight were found on Friday near the scene of the tragedy.—Central Press Canadian.

St. Catharines, May 2 (CP)—No inquest will be held into death of Joyce Patterson, 20-year-old Grantham township girl whose body was found in the waters of the old Welland Canal Sunday afternoon. She had been missing since late Thursday night.

Authorities announced this afternoon that they were satisfied that the girls' death could be termed a suicide.

Acting Inspector James Anderson of St. Catharines, who has been investigating the case, said he and Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster had thoroughly investigated all aspects of the case before coming to their decision.

St. Catharines, May 2 (CP)—Police Sunday were conducting a house-to-house check here in an effort to trace a young man alleged to have been keeping company with Joyce Patterson, 20, whose fully clothed body was recovered Sunday from the old Welland Canal.

Information that Joyce had been having dates recently with a young man was given to police Sunday, although she had previously been said to have no interest in boys.

The dead girl's sister told police Joyce had been out with a boy on several occasions, although she did not know who he was.

Police said they could find no reason why the girl would have committed suicide because she was cheerful Thursday night and was looking forward to a trip to New York. It was presumed that the girl died from drowning.

Police said there were no outward marks of violence on the body of the 20-year-old girl, who disappeared about midnight Thursday while riding homeward on her bicycle after visiting a girl friend.

Police found, she still wore her gloves. Her wrist watch had stopped at 11:05, which police said probably indicated the time she entered the water. It was learned after an autopsy that pathologists found water in the girl's lungs.

Joyce's father, Arthur Vernon, the girl's brother-in-law, and Aaron Peers found the body after the canal had been partly drained to about 200 yards from the spot where the girl's bicycle and flashlight were discovered shortly after disappearance.

The attractive, brown-haired girl factory worker left home Thursday evening with her chum, Gerda Hadlow. Miss Hadlow said Haldow's flashlight and then set out alone for the 15-minute bicycle ride home. Her friend met Joyce Lock Two on what is known as the Merritton Road, just outside the city limits.

Found Nothing Unusual

Just before midnight, Mrs. Arthur Bliott, who lives a short distance from the Patterson home, heard a girl scream: "Help! Help! Help!" Mrs. Bliott's son, William, also heard the cries and the Bliott dog barked and whined. Arthur Bliott, the woman's husband, investigated but found nothing unusual.

Girl Perches on Support 40 Feet Above Street, Removed by Firemen

Toronto, May 2 — (CP) — A 22-year-old girl, who perched on a metal support 40 feet above the sidewalk on the downtown Muirhead building, today defied fire-fighters for more than an hour before she was carried to safety down a ladder.

Thousands of persons jammed the downtown intersection of Bay and Wellington streets as the girl, identified by police as Zofia Witnik, 22, refused to heed warnings and shouts to crawl back inside the building. Police said she remained immovable "like a pigeon on a perch" until firemen put a ladder to her by her clothes.

When firemen reached her, she screamed, hysterically and fought to escape their grasp. It took two firemen to hold her and carry her down. She then was again tussled with her rescuers and fought to escape.

Police said the girl came to Toronto from Poland in December and had spent several years in a Nazi concentration camp during the Second World War. Employment service officials said Miss Witnik had been employed as a domestic but had not been satisfied with her work.

The girl, who ran from the employment office in the building and crawled along a three-inch pole to the metal support, was taken to city hall until a bed could be prepared in the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital.

Over $20,000 In Furs Stolen At Wallaceburg

Chatham, May 2 (CP)—Thieves early today broke into the Gower fur store in Wallaceburg and stole fur coats reportedly valued at between $20,000 and $30,000.

The thieves gained access by prying open the front door of the store. It is believed they made the haul in a stolen car owned by Ernest C. Waldeck who lives a short distance from the store.

Harold Denham, manager of the store, declined to give a statement on the loss, but Chief Collins said the place was cleaned out with the exception of a small neck piece. It was reported between 90 and 100 coats were taken.

No statement on the robbery could be obtained from H. F. Gower, proprietor, at the main store in Sarnia.

Money Market Crashes, Prices Tumbling Outlawed on Threat of Death

Shanghai, May 2 (Censored) — (AP)—Traffic today was reported suspended on the last railway escape from Communist-menaced, Shanghai to South China.

Inside the city, the chaotic money market crashed at midnight after garrison headquarters outlawed free trading in pre-war silver dollars on threat of death—obviously a measure of great desperation.

The Communist radio last night said eight Chinese government cruisers were "wiped out" and parts of four other armies "routed" in the Nanking-Shanghai-Hangzhow area, a Chinese area.

Each one of the dogs was floating on the water with its head resting on it. In the litter were two terriers, a young cocker-spaniel, a boxer and a small collie dog. They had apparently fallen through the ice during the winter and the residents of Belleville and district who have lost a dog in the past few months may find it washed up on a distant shore some day. The spaniel and one of the terriers were seen about 200 yards south of Victoria Park.

Christian Youth Fellowship Marks Close of Season

The activities of the Christian Youth Fellowship for the current season closed auspiciously on Saturday night in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church where a large congregation enjoyed splendid music and a stirring Gospel message.

Captain Robert Marks of the Salvation Army, Toronto, gave an interesting dissertation on the fifth chapter of Second Kings, which tells how Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was cured of his leprosy through Elisha, the man of God.

Naaman was a great man and a mighty man of valour, but he was a leper, pointed out Captain Marks, and all his power and greatness could not save him. But a little maid of Israel who willingly served Naaman's wife and trusted God had confidence that the prophet could heal her.

So Naaman with his horses and chariot came to the door of the prophet. Naaman thought that Elisha would come out and call on the name of the Lord and miraculously strike the leprous spot. Instead, the prophet sent out his servant to tell Naaman to wash seven times in the Jordan. Naaman's stream not to be compared with the nicer rivers near the Syrian's home.

The great man was angry and turned away, but his servants persuaded him to dip in the Jordan. Thus Naaman stepped from the place of power to the place of submission and was healed.

This is a message that cuts across the theories of today," stated Captain Marks, "a message that teaches men and women how they might be saved. Salvation is outside of the government, preaching, or the labor organizations. You are not saved by what you do, but when anyone else thinks. Many people are thinking themselves in God's sight, but only one must know in whom they believe and that is none other than Jesus, the Son of God, whose blood cleanses every sin and every stain. Any man, when he is willing to believe and obey, knew there was only one true God, who could heal his leprosy."

Sang Three Numbers

The C.Y.F. chorus, under the leadership of Stan Leach, with Dorothy Mitchell at the piano, sang three numbers, "He Lives," "Jesus I Have Promised" and "More Like the Master." A male quartet comprising Ross Grey, Robt. Brown, Russ Perkins and Gordon Brown, sang "I Want My Life to Tell the Jesus", accompanied by Margaret Alyea. Mrs. Lois Delaney sang two beautiful solos, "I Will Pilot Thee" and "I Know Who He Is Divine," accompanied by Mrs. Tom Delaney. Instrumental numbers were "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" played on the banjo by Mrs. D. Houston, a violin solo "Work Thru Every Hour" by Kenny Graham and "Blessed Assurance" by Gordon Brown, violinist.

Scriptures was read by Mrs. Groves. The opening prayer was given by Rev. R. Hussey and the benediction by Rev. H. G. Eastman. Dorland Houston presided at the organ console.

Sales and Ad Club

Success of Advertising Messages Depends on Proper Word Choice

"The magic of words lies in the power they possess, when properly arranged, to transfer ideas and to impel action. Is it not then important to groom each word before it is harnessed for its long journey?"

These were the thoughts conveyed to the members of the Sales and Ad Club of Belleville when Mr. Alec Phare of Toronto, spoke to them at their monthly meeting at the Hotel Quinte Friday night.

"In one case," said Mr. Phare, "it may mean little, jolting one-syllable words, packed on paper as neatly as olives in a bottle for a given effect. In another case it may mean words tumbled pell mell in a passionate torrent of phrases. Words, with a definitely different end in view. It may mean earthy, sweaty words arranged to drive home an idea on muscle-bound minds that are slow to respond. Or it may mean airy words floated like little soap bubbles to break against sensitive brain cells in silent and soft explosion.

"There are no natural born copy-writers in the sense of being able to dash off impromptu copy which is inspired and dewy fresh. Most good copy has been shaped up and fondly but critically reviewed, revised, re-revised and then finally released. But there are signs and symbols all along the way, which the master copy-writer has an apprentice to profit by."

"Words are so full of beautiful things," continued Mr. Phare, "and yet advertising is so full of commonplace ones; overworked words which once meant something, but have lost their saltiness; words like extraordinary, wonderful, remarkable, exceptional and amazing. Try to use them in new ways. Little words have power. Lucid little words are like candy. When a sweet pleases, one reaches for another. Little words, little groups of words, ideas said simply ring true. They are believed. An advertisement must be believed or it is money down the drain.

"Every adjective is used, try to use a verb instead. Verbs are powerful. They move mountains. Verbs stand alone. Adjectives lean on nouns. Use the infinite verb of "action words" available.

If copy does not arouse an emotion, it will not sell. An example of copy which does not arouse emotion is "Established 1884, 65 years old." The bible has brought the salvation of comfort to millions few of whom were scholars."

Mr. Hutchinson, in a few words, said, "today as yesterday, and tomorrow as today, the world has goods to be created, goods to be sold; goods to feed, clothe and shelter people; goods to make the world more beautiful, more comfortable, more humane; goods to make jobs and bring happiness. Creative executives, to ease toil, soften skins, enlighten minds, heal diseases, provoke laughter, strengthen bodies; goods and ideas as well for the intangible, spiritual purposes. They are there to be sold. It is for us to sell them. And the magic of their selling is in the words.

Being the final meeting of the 1951-52 season an election of officers was held and the results are as follows: Mr. Ken Griffiths of Northern Electric re-elected as president, Frank Murray of CJBQ as vice-president, Kent Atwell, secretary-treasurer; board of directors, Jack Scott, John Thornbury, Bill Slovin, Charles Lundy, Ross David, Frank Murray and Ken Griffiths.

POLICE BLOTTER

An early Sunday morning report from a Bridge Street resident stating that a girl had been heard screaming in the Bridge and Albert streets area, sent the police cruiser in a hurry to that district.

Police thoroughly searched the area but failed to find anything of a suspicious nature.

What is said to have been an altercation between a Dundas Street, East, husband and wife, had rather bloody results over the weekend. With her face covered with blood the woman ran into a Dundas Street business establishment. It was later reported the couple's quarrel was over liquor.

Several instances of petty theft were reported. In one case two cheques containing cheques were stolen from the front seat of a car parked near the local Arcouria, while a Moira Street resident reported a set of seal beam headlights stolen from his car while parked near the C.N.R. station. The lights were recovered by C.N.R. police.

The superintendent of the Hastings County Home reported a young raccoon loose on the lobby way. He secured the pony on the County Home property.

Boy Hit by Car Crossing Road Dies in Hospital

Suffering fatal injuries when struck by a car as he crossed the highway after alighting from a bus, Reginald Genereaux, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Genereaux, five miles west of Belleville, died in Belleville General Hospital Monday morning.

The accident occurred late Saturday afternoon as the young lad with his brother had returned home from Belleville after attending a show. The two boys had alighted from the bus and attempted to cross the highway. The one brother got across the highway but Reginald was struck by an east-bound car driven by Derek Broadbent of Frankford.

The young lad was rushed to hospital where it was discovered he had suffered severe cuts of both legs as well as head injuries. Dr. K. G. Kennedy attended the injured lad.

A coroner's inquest has been ordered to look into the accident. The preliminary will be held this afternoon with Coroner Dr. Richard Potter in charge.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 2 — (CP) Slight firming tendencies were evident on the Toronto Stock Exchange here today as a handful of key industrial issues rose fractions. Golds also tightened in the dull action and Pacific Petroleum was ahead in a quiet western oil list. Base metals tended slightly easier on small changes with Sherritt Gordon featuring the activity.

Volume for the first three hours was 320,000 shares, about 54,000 shares less than Friday's similar period.

Changes were held in a narrow path on the Industrial groupings with a slight demand lifting refining oils.

Sherritt - Gordon featured the base metals list, trading heavily for a loss of four cents at $1.55. Senitters slipped a fraction while International Nickel and Waite Amulet firmed.

New Lighting System Makes Streets Brighter

Front Street took on an aspect similar to Broadway Saturday evening as the new lighting system was cut in by F. R. Wotten, chairman of the P. U. C., and by Alderman Bruce Lattimer, chairman of lights.

The lights, a new refractory type which project over the street, are twice as numerous as the old lights and are more efficient. It was estimated that three times as much light was thrown on the pavement as with the old type.

Augmented by shop lights and by automobiles, the new lights lit up the street to a degree which contrasted sharply to the previous system. Persons walking on the sidewalk are visible for several blocks. There were no shadows.

The new lights have been on order for several years with workmen of the P. U. C. completing the installation only last week.

The new type lights are now installed on Front Street, on Bridge Street, West, on Dundas Street, and on Campbell and Victoria Ave. between Front and Pinnacle Street. Capital cost of the light installation was paid out of utility surpluses, it was stated by Mr. O. H. Scott, utilities manager.

Motorists Block Bay Bridge Road Watching Fire

In fact the resultant traffic jam had to be ironed out by policemen before the traffic to and from Prince Edward County was being disrupted by the stationary autos. No damage resulted from the blaze which was brought under control by firemen.

A stack of soft drink bottles pyres piled outside the Bell Beverages on Gordon Street in some manner got afire over the week-end and required the assistance of firemen to extinguish. There was no damage except to the wooden bottle cases.

58 Enumerators Start Next Week Taking Names

Commencing Monday, May 9th, a total of 58 enumerators will canvas every residence in the city taking names for the voters' list for the forthcoming federal election on June 27th. Returning officer for the Hastings South electoral district is M. C. Burgess, Clerk Charles Street.

The enumerators will receive their supplies and instructions that week from Mr. Burgess, then next Monday morning they will start their rounds to enumerate every person eligible to vote in the federal election. They must have their job completed by Saturday, May 14th.

Mr. Burgess reported there would be no general meeting of enumerators to enable them to receive their instructions. Enumerators will be asked to call at the home of Mr. Burgess after ten o'clock Wednesday morning when they will receive supplies and instructions for their job.

Ideal Weather Greets Residents Over Weekend

Ideal weather with warm breezes and sunshine gave winter-weary residents of the city and district their first taste of Spring on Sunday.

High temperatures drew people out of house and apartment to enjoy the mild atmosphere on highway, pavement, cottage and stream.

The family jalopies had a field day. Main highways were filled with automobiles practically all day while the roads leading to the north also had a heavy quota of traffic as motorists sought the fresh air of the countryside.

Many summer cottages had "opening day" over the weekend as the trout season opened.

Fishing on the whole was a distinct disappointment, according to the fish stories told this week-ended at lake and stream in various trout haunts of the northern part of the county. Bags were very small and very few, if any, got their quota. Everything was perfect but the fishing. The weather was ideal, roads were good — but Mr. and Mrs. Trout showed no great inclination to grace frying pans.

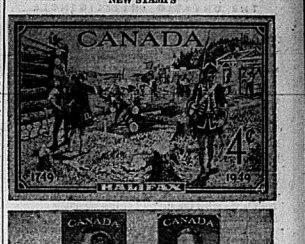
The lower stretches of the Moira River and the harbor provided nautical respite for a number of people. Canoes, rpw boats and outboards skimmed over the smooth surface of the water all day.

Golfers lost no time in chasing the little white ball over the courses at the Bay of Quinte, Picton and Trenton golf and country clubs. The greens and fairways were busy all day Saturday while Sunday's ideal golfing weather induced large numbers to the different courses.

Front Street and other main thoroughfares provided splashes of fashion color as Spring-garbed young people and oldsters too, celebrated a belated Easter parade. Spring "has come".

New-Born Babe Found in Car, Dies Later

A new-born infant found wrapped in a piece of cloth in the back of a provincial police car late Sunday evening, died three hours later in Belleville General Hospital, it was reported today.



The baby, believed to be several weeks premature, was found in the provincial police car which had been parked at the curb along Pinnacle Street. The infant was rushed to hospital but died about three hours after being admitted.

NOT EMPTY BOTTLE BROKEN

Cornwall, May 2 — (CP) — Not a single bottle was broken when a transport loaded with a full cargo of empty beer bottles jackknifed and turned over on No. 2 highway east of Morrisburg Saturday night.

Driver Lorne McDonald, Cobourg, was uninjured and damage amounted to only $75.

INDIA IN THE COMMONWEALTH

India has made a momentous decision. She has become an independent republic and yet remains by her own choice a full member of the Commonwealth of Nations. Such is the proof the strength of this voluntary organization of nations.

The problem facing the recent conference of Prime Ministers of the Commonwealth was a most important one. The British system allows for growth and development, such as this decision means. Here was a republic fitting itself easily into the Commonwealth framework of the free intercourse of member nations, whose head is the King. So India "accepts the King as the symbol of the free association of its independent member nations and as such the head of the Commonwealth."

Flexibility and adaptation to the growing and true needs of the nations are the very spirit of the British Constitution, which can well be termed the finest achievement of world history. This development of the Commonwealth is not only proven possible in India's case but it may be taken as offering an immense opportunity for expansion in a world that seeks peace and security. Organizations of states can take as a working model of international co-operation what has been achieved in the Commonwealth.

It was in 1940 that Great Britain offered to give France what seemed a startling thing at that time — full and complete union with the British Empire. In the face of the conditions of that day of grave danger she caught the vision of the meaning of the Commonwealth in all its greatness.

REBUILDING OF BRITISH COMMONS

The rebuilding of the United Kingdom House of Commons, destroyed by German bombs on May 10th., 1941, proceeds steadily throughout session and recess and is so well forward that Commons members of the new Parliament in the autumn of next year will be able to meet in the completed Chamber. This is the opinion of Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, architect of the new Commons.

A start on the interior of the Chamber will probably be made next month. The woodcarving is well ahead, says Sir Giles, and in other respects the work is up to schedule. The contract for the shell of the building is due for completion next March.

From many corners of the Commonwealth has been sent, or is being sent, some valued product to be moulded into the new Chamber's fabric or furnishing.

Britain herself supplies the stone — fine yellow limestone from Clipsham Hollywell in Rutland, her smallest county, and Portland stone from Dorset. As raw material 116,000 cubic feet of Clipsham stone will be used for the main fabric and 50,000 cubic feet of Portland stone for the rebuilding of the cloisters.

The dressing and carving of the stone is in the hands of skilled masons, two of whom, in their late seventies, have given a lifetime to their craft. The archway from the Chamber to the Lobby — named "The Churchill Arch" in honor of the wartime leader of Parliament — is built partly of new stone and partly of stone from the bombed Commons.

From the wooded English counties of Shropshire, Hereford, Worcester and Stafford have come fine oak logs for the interior of the Commons. Trees two and a half centuries old have been felled and seasoned for the purpose. For economy reasons, however, the oak panelling in certain rooms will be omitted; the saving will be $548,000.

Wood has come from North Queensland, Australia — 17 crates of black bean timber to make Mr. Speaker's Chair. An exact copy of the Speaker's Chair is used in the Canadian Parliament. From the same state has come 30,000 square feet of walnut for the flooring of the Commons.

Timber has come for from Canada, which has given a table in white oak. From the Knysa forests of South Africa has come stinkwood for chairs for the Clerk of the Ways and Means Committee and for two Clerks of the House. Four tables and chairs in the division lobbies are being made from specially chosen Nigerian timber.

The Colonial Secretary will dip his pen into a massive inkpot made from 50 ounces of silver sent by Fiji in far Oceania. British Guiana has sent cigarette boxes and ashtrays made of bauxite, oxydized in an old gold color. This has added Commonwealth significance in that British Guiana exports much bauxite to Canada for the aluminium industry.

"Almost a replica of the old" is how Sir Giles describes the rising Chamber. A useful difference, however, will be the enlarged galleries at the north and south ends.

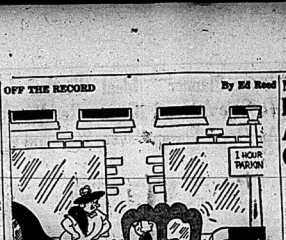
TYRANNY

The tyrant says to all:
"Obey!
Who dares to teach a better way
Or would my least command defy,
Before the morning sun shall die?"



By force and fear the tyrant rules;
At doors of churches and of schools
Sets brutal guards lest growing Truth
Be led to God and search for truth.

How strange that man can dare with might
The lives of those he rules to blight,
And do with such a fearful pride
What God refused to do to man!

To find and shape his destiny,
And in His boundless love declined
To shackle either heart or mind.

Mackenzie's Column:
Indian Princes And Republic Of India

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

India is happy over the historic agreement which permits her to become a Republic and still remain a member of the Commonwealth of Nations without acknowledging allegiance to the King.

That the articulate portions of India's 300,000,000 population as a whole are pleased, however, there are a few elements which are bound to be regretful. Outstanding among them are the hundreds of Princes who have lost their thrones since India was granted independence nearly two years ago, and now see the severing of the last tie with the Crown.

Even the Nizam of Hyderabad, reputed the richest man on God's green earth and sovereign of the greatest State in India, has had to bow to the new era.

Life And Death

The story of the Princes forms one of the striking pages of history. The sumptuousness of the setting surrounding them had to be seen to be believed. They had much, as it all one time or another, for I was a guest in the palaces of some of the great Maharajahs, and attended one vice-regal function in New Delhi which, I think, dazzled the millions of dollars worth of gems worn by all the guests.

Many of the rulers had the power of life and death over their subjects, and the damage to one lay one person—the King.

This difficulty the Crown helped the government mightily in handling the frequently temperamental Princes. There was a striking illustration of this during the investiture Durbar in the old New Delhi in 1911 for George IV and Queen Mary.

Came a Cropper

This coronation went the limit in display and splendor. King George V and the Queen occupied thrones on the dais and there received the humble obeisances of the Princes. Each of these had to mount a long flight of steps and, having dutifully done the latter, back away from the imperial presence. Backing from royalty apparently is never the form is no cinch.

Well, one of the great Princes came a cropper. That was the late Gaekwar of Baroda, His Highness, it was said, made his obeisance but withdrew correctly. He turned his back on the Majesties far too soon.

The Kaekwar later said he was overcome by nervousness. However, the Viceroy had him in the dog-house, so to speak, for several days after the incident. He also denied cherished prerogatives by the Viceroy.

COMMONS' LIFE

Dissolution Quiet

Not the least of the historic aspects of the dissolution proclamation that it witnessed the valedictory of Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, Prime Minister for more than 21 years.

The dissolution came quietly at about 1 p. m. EDT after a harried week in the closing days of parliament to meet the electoral deadline for a June 27 election.

Just before that, the government obtained passage of Bill 7, "to confer on the administration of justice in the new province of Alberta certain powers" and passage of five bills to set up companies to deal in the products of the Alberta fields.

As the House dissolved, there remained no indication of the date when parliament would next convene, although a fall session was certain.

Meet in Fall

However, as only enough interim funds had been voted for six months, it appeared probable — though not a necessity — that the new parliament would be summoned before Oct. 1.

Dissolution in the Commons undoubtedly will be changed from the make-up at dissolution, when the Liberals held 125 seats, the Progressive Conservatives 66, the CCF 32 and the Social Credit party 12. There were six others and one vacancy.

In addition to shifts in party affiliations, there will be more members than ever, as against 245 heretofore.

Among the commoners, most of the newcomers to the House will be contesting their old seats. All of the Cabinet Ministers, with the exception of Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister without portfolio, and Hon. Lionel Chevrier, minister of resources minister, who is resigning because of poor health, are seeking re-election.

John Bracken was the Progressive Conservative leader at dissolution. He will be running again in Brandon as a private member's seat, having resigned and succeeded him after his resignation last autumn.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, will be going into the third national leader, while Solon Low, Social Credit leader, will be in his second.

Three of the four parties — all except the Social Credit — have announced that they will be actively fighting for more members in the seven new Commons ridings of Newfoundland, whose admission to Confederation was one of the major actions of the last parliamentary session.

BODY RECOVERED

Donald Hampson, 17, told police during the weekend that a few minutes before midnight he saw the lad whom he knew by sight, riding her bicycle near the canal. Hampson said that as she passed him he called to her:

"How are you doing?"

He said she replied:

"Fine."

Police announced that they were looking for William Hendry, 24, formerly of Allanburg but now working on a farm near the girl's home, on a charge of giving false information. Acting Inspector Alanzo Anderson of the St. Catharines city police said Hendry had given what was considered a conflicting story of his movements Thursday night.

Friends and acquaintances of the dead girl described her as quiet, steady and dependable. They said she had been in excellent spirits and apparently had no worries.

Miss Hadlow said Joyce had no steady boy friend. She said Joyce "very rarely" went out with boys.

REFERRED TO DEPARTMENT

Napanee, May 2 — (CP)—The question of the assessment roll in Lennox and Addington county will be referred to the Department of Municipal Affairs, the county council has decided. The council has debated since March a request by Earnestown township for a reduction of $48,000 in assessment.

BERLIN LAD MAKES FOR WESTERN SECTOR

This youngster is typical of the many children living in the Soviet zone of Berlin, who, realizing "they never had it so bad," decided to make for the western sector where life is reputed to be more worth while living. Carrying with him all of his worldly belongings, he is pictured along a deserted railroad track towards the British sector, in the hope of finding his aunt's apartment which had had come from the Kopenick area of the Soviet sector of Berlin and said he had walked for six miles. When asked what he intended to do when he reached his aunt's, he replied that he "hadn't made any plans as yet."—Central Press Canadian.

QUININE FOR NOCTURNAL CRAMPS

In the pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains, copy of which you may have on written request to the writer, enclosing a stamped envelope bearing your address, calcium (lime) feeding, of course with vitamin D which is necessary for utilization of calcium in the body, is described. From the reports I have received from readers who have followed the suggestions in the pamphlet I have the temerity to adopt old John J. Coincidence aside for once and say that I believe this is at least worthy of a fair trial in any case of recurring or persistent leg or foot cramps or hand cramps in one of mature age or so-called "growing pains" in a child.

By a fair trial I mean supplementation of the diet with 1000 calcium and vitamin D should be continued for not less than six weeks, even if relief seems to come within a day or two. If relief is a trial, please bear in mind, remember, knuckleheads, that calcium (lime) feeding, of course with vitamin D which is necessary for utilization of calcium in the body, is described. WEDDINGS

KOSOBUCKI—HINDS

Rawdon—A very pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized on Thursday afternoon, April 26th, in Wellman's United Church on the Rawdon circuit, when Lucille Maude Hinds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinds, of Wellman's, was united in marriage to Walentyn W. Kosobucki, son of Mrs. M. Kosobucki, and the late Mr. Kosobucki, of Ostrand, Poland.

The church was artistically decorated by the members of the bride's Wide-awake Sunday School class with beautiful potted plants, which made a charming setting for the ceremony. The Reverend H. C. Vaclavik, pastor of Rawdon circuit officiated.

Mrs. H. C. Vecavik rendered the wedding music.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was a radiant figure in a gown, of sheer nylon georgette with sweetheart neckline, and bracelet sleeves. Her flowing veil was of sheer nylon taught with a halo of roses. She wore a gold bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a corsage bouquet of deep red, velvety roses and hyacinth.

Miss Norma Hinds, sister of the bride, of Wellman's, was bridesmaid, and wire a Victorian gown of lace-dotted taffeta with a halo of roses, and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mr. Alec. Grabowski, of Bonarlaw, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Gerald Clancy and James Pollock, of Wellman's.

At the close of the ceremony, the pastor at the church, the Reverend H. C. Vaclavik presented the bride with a white Bible, a gift from the church congregation, as this was the first wedding in the church since its erection nearly eighty years ago.

Following the ceremony, a reception for the immediate relatives was held at the home of the bride. Those who served the dainty wedding repast were, Miss Patsy Pollock, Miss Mary Heagle, Miss Hazel Pauley, and Miss June Heagle.

The wedding occurred on the anniversary of her mother's birthday, and also of her aunt, Miss Carroll Sharpe, of Hoard's, and in honor of these two birthdays, a birthday cake shared honors with the wedding cake, and the bride's cake, at a part of the reception.

For travelling, the bride chose a powder blue, wool crepe suit with matching accessories. After visiting Toronto, and points west, they will reside in Wellman's community.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was an engraved silver compact, to the pianist and soloist, sterling silver earrings.

The bridegroom's gift to his groomsman was a gold tie holder, and to the ushers, engraved tie clips.

Centennial Display Of Canadian Crafts

Toronto (CP)— A collection of beautiful silverware furniture and weaving, all the work of Canadian artists and craftsmen of 100 years ago, is drawing crowds to the Royal Ontario Museum here.

The display commemorates the centennial of the Royal Canadian Institute this month.

The furniture, simple, plain and dignified, is of the pre-Victorian period and made of the finest Ontario hardwoods — curly maple, birdseye maple, black walnut and cherry. The collection of silverware, by French-Canadian artisans is marked by the absence of knives, since to the gentlemen of the period carried their own and their ladies.'

The display of weaving and quilting is the result of a long term museum project in which forming parties searched through Ontario districts for specimens of the needlework of pioneer settlers.

By FLORENCE MILLS

Paris (AP)—Christian Dior, the man who put "oomph" into women's clothes in 1947, has become king of French dressmakers because he changed his mind 30 years ago.

The chubby 40-year-old man who gave women back their curves and enticed them into long skirts with his new look dresses is enjoying a success which outstrips his wildest dreams.

He has expanded his fashion house at a rate unparalleled in the long history of French fashion.

Right now he is responsible for roughly 75 per cent of all model purchases by foreign buyers.

Dior's success story started just two years ago — in the bitterly cold February of 1947. He opened a small fashion house with three partners, five workers and a little bit of brand new ideas. He hit the jackpot right away with his first collection when he introduced his new look. It caused a revolution in the fashion business. Buyers of all nationalities flooded him with orders.

Perfumed Building

Besides his exclusive salon, Dior has four subsidiary departments for hats, furs, readymades and knicknacks. He designs for them all. Dior's name has his own perfume which pervades the whole six-storey building. He calls it "Miss Dior" and sells it at $15 an ounce.

It's only because he changed his mind when he was 20 years old that Dior isn't busy trying to put some "oomph" into French politics instead of dresses. He was intent then on a diplomatic career and had spent much time travelling in Spain, Italy, Germany and Scandinavia when he suddenly changed his mind. He opened an art gallery instead. Finally, in 1938, he became assistant to designed Robert Piguet.

In 1939 he joined the army as a private and when the armistice came in 1940 he worked on his father's farm in the south of France. A year later he returned to Nazi-occupied Paris and joined Lucien Lelong as a designer.

Urges Long-Term Cancer Research

London, (CP)—By the year 2030 doctors may have learned at least one secret of cancer of the rectum, Dr. R. E. Atkins, director of surgery at Guy's Hospital, London.

In a letter to the British Medical Journal, he said he was eager to see very long term investigation into this matter in the human subject.

It was aready known that for cancer of the rectum to develop in mice "it is necessary that suckling should have taken place from a mother who was capable of transmitting a virus-like material between the milk factor. If mice are not so suckled cancer of the rectum does not develop."

Therefore, Dr. Atkins continued he wanted to collect names and addresses of "female children or adults of whom it is known that they have been suckled at a human breast." He proposed to keep in touch with such persons after the first one's a year.

After explaining to each that it is believed she is less likely to suffer from serious breast disease than other women, she will be asked to reply year by year as to whether she is free from any trouble in the breast.

He could see "no other way in which this matter—vital to the human race—can be settled. It is ... important that we should start now, and be sure of answering at least one fundamental question about human breast cancer by the year 2030."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Oil your eyelashes! See them grow!

Your, silken, up-lifted eye-tilted eyelashes are an entrancing addition to any face. There is a mysterious appeal and allure to eyes that carry these lovely curtains. If they are short and skimpy, a stronger, more luxuriant growth can be cultivated. It has been done, time and again, under the supervision of capable beauticians.

First, the eyes and lids must be in a healthy condition. Beautiful lashes are never seen on weak eyes or diseased lids. Sties may even destroy the papillaes from which the shafts emerge, in which event no little undersight will appear to carry on. If there are tiny scales along the edges of the lids, applications of a solution should be warm and gauze compresses pressed close to the flesh. Moist heat will cause the sties to come to a head and drain.

Long, silken eyelashes are an entrancing addition to any face

If the lids are normal, you can coax along a heavier longer growth of fringe by bathing the eyes night and morning, first in hot water, then in cold. Dry gently with a soft towel and apply mineral oil along the roots of the little winkers. Massage lightly. Never rub your eyes.

After the oil is applied, use the eyebrow brush, sweeping upward to give the lashes a pretty tilt. It is important that the brush be kept scrupulously clean.

Unlike, the hairs upon one's head, that hang on for seven years or more, the lashes are short-lived. They are constantly in a state of decay and renewal, like the skin scales. It is surprising how quickly they respond to the right kind of attention.

Once again, teacher would caution the members of the beauty class against the habit of rubbing their eyes. It is possible, by that practice to flatten the eyeball and to interfere with normal vision. At least, that is what an eye specialist tells your reporter, and he ought to know. The optic mechanism is extremely delicate, should not be abused.

Mascara that has an oily base can be used with safety for darkening the lashes. Light colored lashes do not form a flattering frame for the eyes. They appear to better advantage if the lashes are touched with a darkening agent.

Bending the lashes is not to be considered. All right for the loveliest of the stage and silver screen who knows the ropes. It is too artificial for other young ladies. That reminds us. If anything happens to delete the lashes, demountable ones can carry on.

Swirling Pale Blue

ENCHANTING frock for a Spring or Summer gala, this pale blue chiffon, swirling with just enough fluffiness to keep it out of the baby-blue innocuous class, and swathed both softly and sensibly with satin to match, about the bodice.

The effect is more than a little Ballinese, and the valley lily ruffure wreath is also "East"—, although not fashioned of marigolds or ginger flowers.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Seating arrangements for one table, bride's and parents'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At our wedding I am going to have my own table with seated service, combining the bride's table and the groom's, with my mother and father, hostess and host; are groom's mother and father, the clergyman and his wife; maid of honor and best man; four bridesmaids; four ushers. Please outline for me the correct seating-arrangement.

Judith C.

Your mother, hostess, at the head of the table. Your father, host, opposite her. At your father's right, the bridegroom's mother, woman guest of honor. At your father's left, the clergyman's wife.

At your mother's right, the bridegroom's father, man guest of honor. At your mother's left, the clergyman. At the centre of one side of the table, the bride at the bridegroom, the bride at the bridegroom's right. The bridal cake is placed in front of them. At the bride's right, the best man. At the bridegroom's left, the maid of honor. Then bridesmaids and ushers alternately in the other places at table.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct thing to do . . . for me to take off my engagement ring just before the groom puts the wedding ring on my finger, or is the wedding ring put on above the engagement ring?

Sally B.

It is definitely incorrect ever to have the wedding ring put on above the engagement ring . . . there should be no ring on "the" finger when the groom places the wedding ring on your finger. Although you may leave your engagement ring at home during the ceremony, customarily she wears her ring on wears her engagement ring on her right hand until after the ceremony, then, usually in the car going to the reception, slips the engagement ring on her finger over the wedding ring.

Name-forms correct for letter to new daughter-in-law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son, who lives several states away from here recently married a widow (he was divorced several years ago). He wrote me that his firm suddenly decided to send him on an extended business trip, and so the marriage was quickly planned. Enclosed with his letter was a letter from his new wife, a charming and warm letter telling me the news, their future plans, and so forth. Her letter began "Dear Mrs. Robinson", and she signed it "Lovingly, Margaret". Since I have not yet met her, how should I begin my letters to her, and how sign them?

Mother

Begin your first letter "Dear Margaret", and sign it "Lovingly, Katherine Robinson". Undoubtedly when you meet and get to know each other, or even perhaps after a longer-continued correspondence, you and she will hit upon some form of name for you more informal and personal than "Mrs. Brown". I advise you to ask your son for a name-suggestion, or perhaps there is a lovecalled by other members of your family, a name you would like to have your new daughter-in-law also use for you.

Groom's mother's dress may be navy blue

Dear Mrs. Beeckman;

My son's wedding is to be in church, very simple, although the bride is wearing a bridal gown and veil; and there is to be no reception. Would it be proper for me to wear a navy-blue dress, or must I wear a lighter color? I have practically no use for light-color or dressy clothes, and therefore would much rather buy something practical.

L. N.

Indeed it would be proper for you to wear a navy-blue dress . . . this rich shade of blue, often chosen by the groom's mother, has several excellent advantages: (1) it is a shade almost always becoming to a woman; (2) it generally combines very harmoniously with any shade chosen by the bride's mother for her costume; (3) it is a shade you wish it to be, practical for your future use; and (4) it is very and simple to choose accessories and a corsage that effectively "go with" this shade.

Not letters of college degree on cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, will you please answer this question: Is it correct to have the letters of a college degree . . . for example, A.B. or A.M., or even Ph.D. . . . engraved after a name on a personal visiting-cards?

C. H.

No.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A curiously complicated situation

Some people's troubles seem to be fairly simple even though they may be very distressing.

Others seem to have strange complications.

One of these curiously and tragically-involved sets of circumstances is described in a letter from a woman who signs herself "A."

She writes that she has been "mixed up" for seven years with a man who has lived with herself and her family. She is separated from her husband but whether this occurred before, or after, the man in the case became a member of the household, she does not make clear. In any event, the man wishes to marry her and she wishes to be rid of him. But his position in the household is such that she feels it is impossible to get him out of it, as she and her children are largely dependent on the money he gives over to her. Apparently she is in such a state of emotional upheaval that it has affected her health, as she has several times in her letter that she is ill and afraid to go out alone.

Some of it is physical, but most of it is mental," she says, and it is her fervent hope that she recognizes her condition for what it undoubtedly is.

There is one sentence in her letter that seems to boil the whole thing down:

"I can't see being married to this man," she says, "but I can't go on alone."

As she sees it, she is caught in a trap from which she doesn't know how to extricate herself.

This woman says that she knows there are places she can go for advice but she cannot go out alone. As I think what she most needs is to be able to talk her problem over in person with someone competent to help her, I think she should get in touch with some social agency in her city and ask if anyone could come to see her. If she is really ill, this could probably be arranged.

Until she has the initiative to make some sort of effort of this kind to get help, it is certain that she will not even begin to solve her problem.

Kaleri and Birom are Prized Articles in Curious Hobby

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

London (CP)—The World's strangest collection of musical instruments belongs to Mrs. Mercedes MacKay back in England after 13 years in West Africa.

Mrs. MacKay's unusual hobby cost her much hard bargaining in addition to the miscellaneous spells and curses she inherited with some of the instruments.

"It wasn't so bad in the towns" she said "but in the wilds the native regards his musical instrument as a living something personal to himself with which he must not part. It is those instruments I prize most."

A grubby looking cook's horn cost her a day's trek through unknown country—with a packet of trouble at the finish. In search of a kaleri, as the horn is called she visited the tribe of 200 located in the heart of the Nigerian jungle.

"I was probably the first white woman they had ever seen and there was a terrible roar as one of them blew through a cow's horn with the end covered with splints of membrance.

"My boys arranged to purchase the horn, but when I blew through it the natives almost turned pale with horror and demanded it back. They said if their womenfolk saw me take it away they would come to a violent end. I got it on condition I kept it out of sight till I was clear of the colony."

Cacius Instrument

Elsewhere Mrs. Mackay acquired a birom—a long hollow knobbey brown stick with notches cut in it. Notes similar to those of a xylophone are produced by running a drumstick over the notches. The birom is made from a cactus plant and the stem, dried in tropical sun, is hard as iron.

Also in her collection is a harp of the type played at the court of King Nebuchadnezzar.

"In Biblical times," she said "it probably crossed the deserts and jungles of Africa until the idea reached Nigeria. The frame appears to be of hard cherry wood while the base is of cowskin.

"When you get 20 native musicians playing these simultaneously and singing as well there is plenty of sound."

Mrs. MacKay's curious hobby started when she first visited West Africa with her husband, a geologist. She was impressed by the unusual variety of native instruments, attributing this to the fact that a different instrument is used for every occasion, including births, weddings and funerals.

New Confidence Obvious Among Conservatives

London, May 2 (AP)—The Labor Party and the Conservatives send down-to-earth campaigning techniques today in preparation for another major test of voting strength.

The test comes May 12 in more than 400 English and Welsh borough elections. Approximately 32,000,000 voters are eligible to participate.

They will elect borough councils, which control schools, health, housing and other municipal services. Some councils also run transport and water-supply systems.

Political strategists on both sides will study the outcome of the borough balloting to determine trends for next year's general parliamentary election, when the fate of Britain's Socialist evolution will be decided.

Both parties have urged their local agents to concentrate on door-to-door campaigning in the borough elections.

A new confidence was obvious among the Conservatives. Labor party leaders, on the other hand, have been surprised and concerned by the Conservative strength shown in county-council voting early in April.

In those elections the Labor party lost 600 seats in all to Conservatives. Labor showed strength in the industrial districts of Wales but was surprisingly weak in the Midland industrial area and in London.

Partly Due to Budget

Labor's loss of county council seats was attributed in part to the government's budget in April 50, issued during the week voting was in progress. That budget kept most taxes at their current high levels and increased the prices of such hard foods by reduction of state subsidies.

However, a careful analysis of the April balloting turned up still another factor. While Labor polled about as much strength as usual in local elections, the Conservative party got out a particularly heavy vote.

In the 1945 general election the Labor party was thoroughly organized and won a landslide. It also surged ahead strongly in local elections shortly afterward. But since then the party machine has seemed to be running down.

Labor still has not got back in by-elections, lost 79 till vacancies in the House of Commons. But in the last previous borough elections —in November, 1947—the Labor party's strength began to show signs of ebbing.

Labor lost control of 24 borough councils and elected only 1,500 candidates compared with 1,269 elected by the Conservatives, 160 by the Liberals and 1,082 by Independents. The Labor party now controls 96 of the 332 borough councils outside London and 22 of the 28 in the metropolis.

Canada Never Held Treasures, McNaughton

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, permanent delegate to the United Nations, above, who rejected as "false" Poland's statement in the U. N. that the Dominion agreed to take custody of disputed Polish art treasures. He was replying to an attack made on the Dominion by Polish delegate Julius Katschuchy. The art treasures sent to Canada in 1940 to escape Nazi seizure were never in possession of the Canadian government, Gen. McNaughton explained. Valued at several million dollars, most of the art treasures are held in the Quebec provincial museum under orders of Premier Maurice Duplessis. Four chests of Polish silver found in Egypt Eight are missing. Central Press Canadian.

Weather Ideal But Trout Were Not Biting

Toronto, May 2 (CP)—Ontario's trout season got under way during the week-end but it appears the fresh water delicacy was shyed off too, for most part as expected.

Water conditions were ideal in Northern and Grey areas but a record influx of anglers tried their luck. Although hatcheries at a record 12 million fingerlings, 16 per cent of Owen Sound offered little more. One of the biggest fish caught in the district was a six-pound, two-ounce rainbow trout taken by Murray McDonald of Owen Sound at nearby Bothwell's Creek.

Anglers in the Kramosa, Puslinch, Guelph districts reported poor catches. Marion Hagar, 16, of Kenmore caught two medium-sized trout while a few others hooked rainbow trout.

Mist was medium high in the northern section of the province, with worms being the favorite bait. Bill Ripley of Copper Cliff on Isaac's mineral on opening day in 50 years, returned this season with an empty creel.

In the Algoma district, considered one of the best fishing grounds in the country, new source of United States fishermen turn out. Results were fair.

For catching rainbow trout out of season and using artificial lights for fishing, four men were each fined $150 and costs at Sault Ste. Marie. Fined were James Sanko, Anthony Silondecki, Edward Smillelis and Alex Similum.

Two Holes-in-One Made on Same Day By Same Player

Pittsburgh, May 2 (AP)—Elliott C. Stauffer, 50-year-old barber, can tell his customers an almost unbelievable story. He made two holes-in-one playing golf Sunday.

"Not only that, but Stauffer — a 10-handicap man—got his aces on the same hole, the 155-yard, No. 16 of the Churchill Valley Country Club. His first hole-in-one came on the morning round and he canned his second on the afternoon round.

"I've always wanted to make a hole-in-one," Stauffer laughed. "Now, I've made two of them on the same day and on the same hole and with the same iron, my old No. 6."

Prime Minister Stalin Reviews May Day Parade

Moscow, May 2 (CP) —Prime Minister Stalin reviewed a magnificent May Day parade which put the accent on new jet planes overhead rather than the troops marching across Red Square.

For several hours Stalin stood atop the Lenin Mausoleum as more than 1,000,000 Russians celebrated the traditional socialist holiday.

The "greetings to Stalin," said Capt. Lawson H. Randall, Canadian Air Attache, He said the demonstration was "impressive."

Brig. Gen. Russell E. Randall, United States Air Attache, commented that the parade "showed evidence of the continued technical progress of the Soviet Air Force.

(No details of new weapons or jet plane types were mentioned in reports from Air Attaches from Moscow. All dispatches pass through Soviet censorship. One of Randall's men on the parade by Eddy Gilmore of The Associated Press did not report to New York.

There of this year's May Day demonstration was the fact that the military power be used aggressively.

For an hour and 20 minutes, picked detachments of the three services paraded. Then as a finale civilian demonstration swept across Red Square.

In an address to the participants, Marshal Alexander Vasilievsky, minister of the armed forces, declared that United States "reactionaries are trying to unleash a new world war," and that Russia's armed forces must be ever alert to defend faithfully the Russian motherland and the "peaceful work of the Soviet people."

Western diplomats said Stalin seemed to be in good health as he stood on Lenin's tomb with members of the politburo and communist leaders.

Commies Hold Indoor Rallies At Many Points

(By The Canadian Press)

Communists celebrated May Day with indoor rallies in eight Canadian cities. But there were no parades or other public demonstrations.

The Toronto group staged a peace week with music and speeches in downtown Massey Hall. Similar observances were held elsewhere in Canada in Windsor, Hamilton, Timmins, Sudbury and Port Arthur.

Another rally was in Downtown Winnipeg theatre.

A parade was scheduled in Vancouver but rain forced its postponement until next Sunday.

Roman Catholics staged anti-Communist May Day demonstrations in Cornwall and Windsor. In each city, more than 10,000 Catholics took part in parades and rallies.

Most Rev. John C. Cody, v.-adjutor Bishop of the London diocese, told the Windsor marchers that Communism "can do little harm in a country where the people are good."

Transport Minister Chevrier, speaking at Cornwall, called Communism a doctrine "which seeks to destroy the individual and instill in the hearts of the people the love of the state with no regards for spiritual needs."

U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, above, is shown "as he went before Congress in Washington to open his fight for ratification of the North Atlantic defence pact. He urged the U. S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee to consider the treaty and the European rearmament program separately. — Central Press Canadian.

First Provincial Elections in Nfld. Two-Way Contest

St. John's, May 3 (CP)— Newfoundland's first provincial election in 17 years will be a two-way contest between Liberals and Progressive Conservatives for the province's 28 seats, representing 25 districts.

Liberal candidates have been nominated for all but one of the 28 seats. Six Progressive Conservatives standard-bearers have been named and a rally here tonight is expected to bring others.

The C.C.F. does not plan to enter the May 27 provincial election. But the party will make its advent into Newfoundland politics by entering a few candidates in the June 27 federal election.

Some 700 delegates closed the three day convention of the Newfoundland Liberal Party Saturday naming acting Premier Joseph Smallwood, the only man who has led the fight for the island's confederation, as provincial leader.

F. Gordon Bradley, Newfoundland's representative in the Dominion cabinet as Secretary of State, was named federal leader.

Progressive Conservatives announced they would not hold a province-wide convention because of travel difficulties at this time of year. But they have a regional director, A. Buhl, with a staff of four.

Last Government in 1923

Newfoundland elected its last provincial government in 1923 shortly before losing responsible government. Then the Conservatives won 22 out of 24 seats. Labrador is the new seat, created as a separate district under similar terms, and election there will be deferred because of spring breakup.

The Liberal convention approved a 15-point platform calling for a four-year, $2,000,000 industrial program to develop the island's natural resources.

Ten of the 11-man interim cabinet will run on the Liberal ticket. The exception is Finance Minister Gordon A. Winter who has not yet declared his party allegiance.

Health Minister E. W. Quinton and Social Welfare Minister Dr. Herbert L. Pottle, two members of the commission government that ruled Newfoundland until confederation a month ago, will be Liberal candidates.

Oil Borings In Germany Show Promise

Hamburg, May 2 (Reuters) — Borings made in recent months in the Georgsdorf section of the Emsland oil field have given rise "to hopes that it will eventually become the most important of Germany's oil centres.

So far, between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 tons of oil have been found in this area, compared with reserves in the Schoenebeck-Egelsbleben section of the field estimated at 3,500,000 tons.

The Emsland oil field was discovered by German oil experts during the war. Since then, borings in three different districts have shown that it is far the richest of German districts.

Total proved reserves in the three sections of the oilfield —the Schoenebeck-Emlichheim area, which runs across the Netherlands frontier; the Georgsdorf area, about 10 miles east of the border; and two smaller fields, Lingen-Dalum and Adorf in the same area—are estimated at about 9,000,000 tons.

The importance of this Emsland oilfield to the German economy is the more because owing to vigorous exploitation during the war. Present reserves in the traditional German oil areas around Hanover and Hamburg and in Schleswig-Holstein are estimated at more than 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 tons.

It is hoped this year to increase German oil production to 750,000 tons and to increase it in a few years to 1,000,000 tons a year. It must, however, be stressed that the Emsland oilfield is still in a state of development and until more borings have been made the full extent of its reserves cannot be estimated.

Frost Spends Quiet Weekend At His Home

Lindsay, May 2 — (CP)—Leslie Frost, Ontario premier-designate, spent a quiet weekend in and near his hometown, resting after the convention which last week chose him leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

He filled the goldfish pond behind his Lindsay home Saturday and then went with his wife to his log cabin at Pleasant Point on Sturgeon Lake. There, while Mrs. Frost baked butter tarts, he checked over his fishing tackle in preparation for a long-awaited hopes to take soon.

He dropped in Sunday at Cambridge Street United Church for a few minutes' chat with Rev. Harold B. Neal, an old friend.

Mr. Frost probably will be sworn in as premier in Toronto Wednesday. He will then return to Lindsay for a civic reception.

DEVELOP GOLDFIELDS

Bloemfontein, South Africa — (CP) — Development of Orange Free State goldfields is proceeding rapidly. At present 14 shafts are being sunk in an area of about 150 square miles.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, disclosed in Ottawa that the North Atlantic pact was not of one aggression. "We hope it will keep war from our shores and from any other shore," he said. — Central Press Canadian.

Police, May-Day Demonstrators Clash in London

London, May 2 — (CP)—Police and May-day demonstrators clashed Sunday in London in battle lastings two hours as communists and their supporters tried to force possession of the flame of an official ban on political marches.

A crowd of about 8,000 watched demonstrators, including many girls and women, engaged in hand-to-hand scuffles as mounted and foot police seized and destroyed banners.

Eight men and a girl were arrested by police.

Nine young communist demonstrators chained and padlocked themselves Sunday night to the railing around the United States Embassy on Grosvenor Square in the west end.

Police said the demonstrators shouted anti-American slogans and distributed communist leaflets to passengers for almost a half hour. A crowd of several hundred watched police use hacksaws to cut through the chains. The demonstrators were taken to a police station and charged with inciting disturbing words and behavior. One also was accused of assaulting police.

Breathing Spell Given Fighters By Weekend Rain

Winnipeg, May 2 (CP) — The threat from forest and grass fires remained grave today throughout Manitoba despite weekend rain that gave anxious fire-fighters a breathing spell.

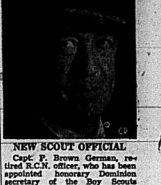
Provincial Forester James G. Somers said Sunday night that all fires had been brought under control with the help of the rain but he admitted that the situation "still can be serious.

Four major fires had been burning "completely out of control." The Porcupine forest reserve, 200 miles northwest of Winnipeg near the Saskatchewan border, and home of several large spruce logging operations, was dotted with a dozen separate fires. Some 200 men battled the flames and, before the rain, it was feared that all the fires might join into one huge holocaust.

Two of the other major spots were northeast of Flin Flon in the timber limits of the Manitoba Pulp Company, 70 miles northeast of Winnipeg. The other big fire burned in the Sandilands forest reserve, about 70 miles southeast of Winnipeg.

One fire at Vgand Rapids, near The Pas, has been burning on a six-mile front.

Mr. Somers said more than 700 men have been engaged in fighting the fires in different parts of the province. At Pine Falls workmen in the pulp and paper mill were called upon, to battle the flames.



TWO CHARGES OF CAR THEFT

Kincardine, May 2 — (CP) — Charles Silkstone, 18, was arrested early Sunday on two charges of car theft after a brief chase by police through city streets and back yards. Other charges, reported seen with Silkstone, escaped.

Berlin Ad Sheet Exchange Medium for Bargainers

By TOM REEDY

These fascinating items and many more "no numerous to mention" are available in Berlin. Buy a copy of the Amsiegner Post for 20 pfennig (six cents) and see for yourself. It is one of the most interesting papers in town.

The Berliner, scraping the bottom of his barrel, has discovered that almost any item he possesses has a potential value to somebody who has another odd piece that might come in handy.

For instance, a Berliner offers a half acre of ground with half of a house in exchange for a truck with possibly third. Half of a house is normal here. Some people would think there was a key if the bombs had left them that much.

Another has a bicycle—a pretty valuable item these days—and wants an swap it for a mine. He doesn't say what he wants to glue but a good bike ought to bring a powerful mess of glue so he must have a pretty big project on hand.

Bearing Blockade

A Berliner has a piano in Wiesbaden, would like to trade it for a piano in Berlin. That's one way to beat the blockade.

Most of the items for straight sale are diamonds, other jewels, oriental rugs and furniture. The "wanted" column is sprinkled mostly with ads for cameras, tires and typewriters.

The marriage ads paint an odd picture of domestic life in these times. An "academica" which means a person with an intellectual education, says he wants a "many sided wife." One hopeful describing herself as a 34-year-old pretty blonde, deaf, owner of home, mother of 11-year-old son, "wants to exchange letters with deaf gentleman with marriage in view."

A missionary and writer, age 69, has a pretty garden home and wants a "peaceful, quiet wife—not without money."

A widow with a "warm heart" would like a husband. She says she doesn't smoke.

An elderly man living on a "good pension" offers his hand in marriage and a home and garden "although both are in the Russian zone."

In most cases, the marriage ads involve men who are looking for a home and frankly say so. The women are largely widows who have homes and want their children to have a steading influence of a man around the house.

The ads seem to work. One sees mighty few repetitions from week to week.

Claim Blockade Will be Lifted Within 3 Days

Berlin, May 2 — (Reuters) — German sources in Berlin tonight with the Soviet military administration repulsed today that Col. Sergei Tulpanov, head of the Soviet information division here, has forecast that the British blockade will be lifted within three days.

These sources said Tulpanov made his prediction at a conference with the chief editors of Soviet-licensed newspapers.

Meantime, Russian authorities notified the British military government that they would release by mid-afternoon three British policemen seized last night on the Soviet sector border.

Domestic Animals Now Being Insured

Vancouver — (CP) — Canadians may now buy insurance against dogs which bite and horses which kick.

These are among benefits available in an insurance plan offered for $25 a year by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Secretary-Manager David Hutchinson said.

The insurance provides coverage to the limit of $10,000 against legal liability for any damage done by a domestic animal if the animal is at fault. The insurance company, Mr. Hutchinson said, does not consider crocodiles or alligators as domestic animals, whether kept as pets or not.

Nor may a dogbite victim receive damages if he provoked the dog with a walking cane before he was bitten.

Ricardo expects the insurance to be a boon when cows break fences, horses trample gardens and for similar anti-social acts committed by animals.

GOOD ORCHARD CROP FORECAST AT OWEN SOUND

Owen Sound, May 2 (CP) — A good orchard crop in this Georgian Bay district is expected by local fruit growers, G. H. Mitchell of nearby Thornbury said prospects look good and that recent heavy frosts have not hurt trees in this area.

ECA Takes Steps To Avert Domestic Pork Surplus

Washington, May 2. (CP) — The economic co-operation administration yesterday took steps to avert a domestic pork surplus in the United States as it gives the American lumber industry more Marshall-plan purchases.

Both actions affect Canada. The decision to buy more pork in the United States may head off potential complication of Britain's contract to buy Canadian bacon, observers here said.

The ruling to buy more Marshall-plan lumber may reduce the Dominion's lumber exports.

Here is what happened:

1. E.C.A. earmarked $21,000,000 for foreign purchase of fresh pork in the United States. Simultaneously the United States agriculture department approved export of 73,000000 pounds during the three-month period ending June 30.

2. Howard Bruce, assistant E.C.A. administrator, announces a new policy which, in effect, gives United States lumbermen first chance at Marshall-plan lumber and plywood authorizations.

Yesterday's action presumably leaves the way open for E.C.A. to recommend use of Marshall-plan money for Britain's bacon needs. Britain has not export fresh pork. However, the Dominion's bacon exports are an integral part of the Canadian economy.

Yesterday's action on pork was seen by British officials here as paving the way for continued authorizations for British to buy Canadian bacon.

The lumber announcement followed protests that European countries using E.C.A. dollars to buy lumber and plywood largely in Canada. Last year the Dominion shipped some $30,000,000 worth of lumber to Marshall-plan countries.

In regards to the new policy on lumber, Bruce said that E.C.A. now will request all participating countries who want lumber or plywood products to give United States industry an opportunity to bid for the contracts.

Movie Film Censorship Lacks General Agreement in Western Zone

By JOHN PEET

Berlin (Reuters)—Film Censorship, always a touchy problem, is reaching a new peak in Berlin where the four Allied occupation forces each have their own ideas of what is suitable while the German authorities are considering setting up a fifth censorship authority.

Differences of opinion between the western Allies and the Soviet authorities on questions of film taste are not odd.

More surprising is that films which are shown freely in one of the three western sectors are often banned in another.

The United States film "Maltese Falcon" for instance is banned in the American sector by the United States authorities who consider that it gives an erroneous picture of American life.

Inhabitants of the American sector who want to see the picture have to make a trip into the British sector where it is allowed.

More comment has been aroused, however by the British action in banning in their sector the new French film "Les Maudits."

"This is not considered a suitable picture for exhibition to a German audience," an official of the film branch of the British Information Services Division stated.

The French and American authorities have no such qualms. They have licensed the film for showing in their sectors.

British and German critics who have seen the film are puzzled by the British action—and even more so by the British explanation. The film critics of Berlin newspapers almost unanimously acclaimed the film as the best anti-Nazi film ever shown here, and could suggest no reason for the British ban.

"Les Maudits" shows what might have happened in April, 1945, aboard a submarine which was carrying a load of Nazi generals, gauleiters and collaborators to carry on the fight in South America.

As the news of Hitler's death and the collapse of the Nazi state trickles in, the fanatics of "final victory" react each in their own way, until the gaoleiter takes them with him in a final holocaust.

With a light but sure touch, the director of the picture shows the decay which lay just below the smooth surface of the Nazi machine.

The action of the British Censorship Board in banning the picture appears even more surprising in the light of the fact that it has passed at least one new German film made in the British zone, which most British critics described as "new-Nazi."

The film in question, "The Sons of Herr Gasparke," portrays the widow of a Nazi general, and her son, a fine Nordic lieutenant in the German air force.

At one point in the film, the Luftwaffe lieutenant, in a postwar argument with an American officer, says: "Of course we were just fighting to defend our country." The American makes no attempt to contradict him.

Tough Treatment Given Bearings

Montreal, (CP)—Nylon bearings have been accepted as standard equipment for baby carriages.

But they were subjected to rigorous tests before they replaced the customary steel bearings in junior's buggy.

Nylon bearings neither squeak nor creak and require no oiling. Their durability was proved by a series of stiff trials.

During another test, the wheel box was packed in sand. One wheel was turned the equivalent of 363 miles again the axle was worn slightly but the bearings showed no effects.

In final tests a carriage was loaded with 100 pounds of steel rivets and rammed head-on into a brick wall. Another carriage was dropped from the second storey to a concrete floor. In both cases the wheels were wrecked, but the nylon bearings were undamaged

Just before payday you've probably looked at what's left of your wages or housekeeping money and said: "Where does the money go?" A company man asks himself the same question, and each year provides the answer in its annual report.

The dollars we received last year—for gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil and other products—went this way:

Crude Oil and other raw materials we needed to make the products took the first big slice. Depending on where you live your oil may have come from Arabia, from South America, or from deep in the United States. In Canada only Alberta produced crude in quantity.

Manufacturing and packaging came next—complex and intricate refining operations are needed to make the hundreds of oil products which find thousands of uses in our homes and industries, on our highways, in the air and on the sea.

Transportation was the next big bite—products must move over wide areas to serve all communities in Canada.

Marketing was fourth. Marketing provides the products you need wherever you are—never, last and always for factory, farm and home. Marketing supplies that local businessman, the dealer, and if you're a fuel oil user, keeps oil in your tank!

Taxes to provincial and federal governments absorbed 7.06 cents. And this does not include gasoline tax, which—depending on where you live—takes from 22 to 35 cents out of every dollar you spend for standard grade gasoline.

Profit was 4.9 cents out of each sales dollar. From this we paid three cents to shareholders as dividends. The rest was used —together with a lot more money we borrowed and still more obtained by sales of investments—to help meet your increasing needs for oil!

Futile Phillies Become Fightin' Phillies After Three Straight Wins Over Dodgers

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

They laughed when the Philadelphia front office announced in dead seriousness this spring that the once futile, forlorn Phillies hereafter would be known as the "fighting" Phillies.

They laughed all the harder when the Quaker City's chronic second-division outfit proceeded to belie their new nickname by dropping six of their first nine starts. That was four days ago.

They're not laughing any more. The rival National League clubs simply fail to see anything funny about a team that just got through knocking off the highly-rated Brooklyn Dodgers three times in a row.

The Phils' 4-2 Sunday victory boosted them out of the league basement into a tie for fourth place, a percentage points above Chicago Cubs. They now are only a game out of the first division.

The Phils collected 10 hits, scoring all their runs on loser Preacher Roe. Home runs by Andy Seminick and Del Ennis gave Ryne Meyer a 4-0 cushion to work on. A home run by Ralph Snider with one man on base accounted for all Brooklyn's runs.

Boston braves moved into undisputed possession of first place, winning both ends of a doubleheader from New York Giants 6-4 and 4-2. Bobby Sleft's ninth-inning single with the bases loaded drove in the tying and winning runs.

19-Year-Old Wins

Johnny Antonelli, Boston's 19-year-old bonus southpaw, won his first big-league start in his first start in the nightcap. He allowed six hits, walked nine before he was rescued by Nelson Potter in the ninth.

Harry (the Cat) Brecheen add Stan Musial teamed up to give St. Louis Cardinals an 8-3 victory over Chicago Cubs. Brecheen spread out on the hill for his second victory. Musial led the hitting attack on five Cub hurlers - with three hits and two walks.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati divided a doubleheader, the Pirates winning the opener, 10-4, and the Reds taking the second game 5-2. Danny Murtaugh helped Bob Chesnes gain his first victory of the season in the opener, tripling out three hits and driving in four runs.

Boston Red Sox blasted Allie Reynolds and Frank Shea for 14 hits and an 8-2 triumph. Johnny Pesky, Vern Stephens and Ted Williams walloped home runs for the winners. Mel Parnell doled out six hits for his third straight triumph.

Lemon in Two-Hitter

Bob Lemon pitched a two-hitter for Cleveland, but bowed to Detroit's Hal Newhouser 3-2 on Dick Wakefield's three-run homer in the first inning. Lemon walked two men before Wakefield crashed his homer. Newhouser registered his third victory against one defeat.

Philadelphia Athletics smashed out two more victories over the hapless Washington Senators 15-9 and 7-3 with the second game halted after seven innings because of the Pennsylvania curfew law. Outfielder Elmer Valo paced the first game attack with a pair of triples, each coming with the bases loaded. In all he drove in seven runs.

Chicago White Sox whipped the Browns twice in St. Louis, 7-6 and 14-11 to make it seven in a row over the Browns this season.

Brandon Evens Series Beating Montreal Royals

Brandon, Man., May 2 (CP)—Brandon Wheat Kings came up on even terms with Montreal Royals Saturday night in their bid to house the Memorial Cup for the 1948-49 season.

Wheat Kings edged Royals 3-2 to tie their best-of-seven game Dominion junior hockey final at one game apiece. The Eastern champions won the opener 5-2 at Winnipeg last Thursday, and the teams will play the third contest here Tuesday night.

The victory kept intact Brandon's season record of not losing two successive games, and in turn halted Royals' winning streak at 14 games.

As in the opening contest, the game was not decided until the third period. Tied 1-1 at the end of the first 2-2 in the second, the outcome was in doubt until the final whistle, with Brandon clinging to a one-goal margin after Jack McKenzie's marker at 10:50 in the third frame.

McKenzie, with two, and Frank King accounted for Brandon's goals, while Matt Benoit and Roland Rousseau tallied for Montreal. However, it was to the two goalkeepers—Ray Frederick and Bobby Bleau—that most of the glory fell.

Frederick Brilliant

The two netminders time and again halted goalmouth rushes, kicking and diving in spectacular fashion to save what seemed certain tallies, with Frederick of Brandon particularly brilliant in the last 10 minutes of the final period.

Royals pulled away to an early lead in the first period when Benoit converted Gordie Knuckey's rebound. What Kings were fortunate to tie the count before the period ended. They were handed a gift goal by Vic Fildes, Royal defenceman, who tipped the rubber into his own net. Frank King, nearest the play, was credited with the score.

A Glen Sonmor-to-McKenzie goal put Brandon out in front for the first time in the series. McKenzie cut in front of the Royal net, drew out Bleau and drilled the puck home.

Better Golf
By Sam Snead

The chances are that your swing isn't exactly the same any two times in a row but the two your signatures are exactly the same.

So your first job in making yourself a better golfer is that of learning what your own special style is, the way that the most successful pro golf institutions make their money and then make their pupils good golfers is by learning what style gives the pupil the best results. When they see what style is most effective then they tell the pupil what he should do to be guaranteed to provide that style.

If you can practice your swing in front of a full length mirror you can see for yourself a lot of things that are plainly waste and awkward movements. When you see your swing in the mirror you will learn to keep your head still and that is one of the most important things. Don't move your head, keeping your eye on the ball, but do make sure that your head doesn't move.

Jersey Giants In First Place Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

"Winning pitcher Bailey," an international star in last season's Jersey City box scores, is becoming quite common in Giant games this International league season.

Dee Bailey, lanky 26-year-old righthander pitched the Giants into first place Sunday, as he blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0 in a game halted at the end of five innings because of rain. The second game was postponed.

The victory was Bailey's fourth of the season against no defeats. Bailey stopped the Royals on four hits.

Al Widmar, hard-working right hander of Baltimore Orioles also posted his fourth victory of the year as he beat Rochester Red Wings 10-1 in the second game of a double header. The Wings captured the opener 6-3.

Widmar, working with two days rest, blanked the Wings on four hits. The Orioles clinched the decision with an eight run, second inning rally that included a three run homer by Bingo Binks.

Rookie right hander Pete Polsky scattered nine hits in turning in his first complete victory in relief for the Wings in the opener. Dick Burgett homered for the Wings in the game.

Toronto Maple Leafs knocked Syracuse Chiefs out of first place into second by dividing a double header with the Chiefs. The Leafs grabbed the opener 10-6 and the Chiefs the finale 7-2.

Trailing 6-2 going into the eighth inning, the Leafs blasted rookie Art Harties and two successors for eight runs to sew up the first game. Big blow of the rally was recruit catcher Jim Heyman's three run homer. Bob Usher, Sam Meeks and Frankie Drews homered for the Chiefs.

Usher paced the Chiefs to victory in the nightcap by banging out four hits including his second homer of the day. Usher socked out seven hits in nine trips in the two games, clouting three doubles in addition to his homers. Meeks also hit for the Chiefs in the windup.

Newark Bears and Buffalo Bisons battled to a 5-5 tie with the Bears deadlocking the issue with a two-run rally in the sixth inning before rain halted play. The scheduler second game was postponed.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting—Elmer Valo, Athletics. Valo slammed two base-loaded triples and two singles to drive in seven runs in Philadelphia's 15-9 first game victory over Washington.

Pitching—Mel Parnell, Red Sox. Parnell turned in his third straight victory pitching the Sox to a 11-2, hix-hit decision over New York.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

All was quiet in the news room the other day, The "baby" had gone to bed, and it was the "children's hour" in the place.

We were awakened from the usual three o'clock nap by a gentle voice murmuring "Howdy, Bub" in the best Silas Hocky style. Smiling down on the quiet scene of the sports Jay was a grey shadowed "Ty" Tyson, well known Oshawa baseball impresario and a catching star in his own right in the days when the "Indian" was moving 'em down! At Hockman was the Christy Mathewson of the Police and Jos. Dainty was twisting hooks around all and sundry outside of Oshawa.

With the honorable Mr. Tyson was M'sieu Cecil Bent, who also gets his mail in the mushball metropolis, and who is business manager of the Oshawa entry in the current CORIL football greetings over, the health of all and sundry inquired for, "Ty" started to "give with one of famous loquacious interviews.

"So you've got a pretty fair baseball team up there in Oshawa this year, Ty?"

"H'mmmm."

"Got any new faces?"

"H'mmmm."

"How will the Oshawa entry stack up against those of Batawa, Kingston, Peterborough and so forth?"

"H'mmmm, dunno."

"Are you going to play yourself, Ty?"

"H'mmmm."

"Ty" paused and gulped a beaker of aqua pura from the ice-water cooler. He turned and faced his inquisitor. Inhaling a long breath, he awaited the next quiz.

"Who will be the Oshawa ace hurler on the hurlers this year?"

"Ty" exhaled a huge blast of air. He swallowed hard.

"H'mmmm, maybe the long-distance reply.

"Are you going to play yourself this year?"

"Harrumph."

"What do you think of Oshawa's chance of winning the senior title this year?"

"Harye gone, snatch, bub!"

We took another tack.

"Are you going to play yourself this year?"

"H'mmmm."

The editorial of the man was out of this world.

"Do you think the calibre of baseball in the COBL will equal that of the past few years?"

"Ty" cocked a quizzical eye at a school of smelt steaming up the Moira. He opened his mouth. "This" we thought "should produce something." It did.

"H'mmmm" yawned the former Oshawa receiver.

"Are you going to play yourself this year?"

That did it. Finally the man broke down. His resistance was gone. He let go a blast of words that echoed in the City Hall Square, a street. His arms threshed the air. M'Sieu Bent looked at him with concern. Finally "Ty" landed back on his feet and his voice returned.

His voice thundered through the new quiet cloisters of the editorial rooms. The linotypes in the composing room rattled and shook with the force of impact. "Ty" smashed to his feet and bellowed.

"Listen, bub" he roared. "That's the ninth time you've asked me that question since I left the Dear Penny Mills out of retirement and get him in shape to play—and I'll be out there."

And "Ty" a mere shadow of his former self after the harrowing experience, slouched out of the room, holding the sympathetic arm of M'sieu Bent.

Ottawa Scientists Too Powerful For Regina Team

Ottawa, May 2 (CP)—Regina Capitals may have to do some high stepping if they hoped to stop the powerful Ottawa Senators' "speed delivery" line and get back into Allan Cup competition.

The tricky trio of Nils Tremblay, Ed Dartnell and Bill Robinson played a major offensive part again Saturday night as Senators defeated Regina 3-1 to take a two-game lead in the best-of-seven series for the Canadian Senior Hockey Championship. Third game will be played here tonight.

The smooth-passing forward line, which seems to be most dangerous when least expected, has consistently sparked Ottawa throughout the final.

They have accounted for six of the nine goals scored by Senators in the first two series games.

Dartnell, 27-year-old Winnipeg-born, rightwinger, scored three goals, and fellow Winnipeger Bill Robinson scored one from the other wing as Senators won 6-4 in the first game.

The big Ottawa line has outshone the highly-touted work of Sweeney Schriner, Chuck McCullough and Mel Hill which has three Regina goals to its credit thus far.

8,039 on Hand

A crowd of 8,039 fans Saturday night saw Senators take a 1-0 first-period lead on a goal by Tremblay with defenseman Jack Irvine and Dartnell assisting.

Check and Emile Dagenais assisting.

Regina had a first-period edge in play despite Senators' lead and managed to keep on level terms during the second. But after knotting the score, the Caps faded quickly and Ottawa had a big edge from there on.

Buddy Hellyer then put the game on ice with his second goal of the series, with linemates Ludo

"Blimey, This Austrylian is a Dinkum Champ;' Atkins Takes Mike Sharpe in Title Bout

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Tawny-locked Mike Sharpe, the answer to the feminine wrestling fans' prayer, pulled all the tricks out of his well - stocked bag at Memorial Arena on Saturday night, but the powerful Jim Miguel failed to remove the mythical bauble of the British Empire wrestling championship from the well-thatched noggin of one Fred Atkins.

Atkins who is a real dinkum wrestler from Australia was tested to the limit and as a matter of fact had to resort to a few unorthodox tactics before he made the handsome hunk's map from Hamilton say "uncle" in the third fall after the two had split the honors in the first two clashes.

Atkins and Sharpe are perhaps the two handsomest rasslers in captivity at the moment, speaking from a physical viewpoint, that is. Both favor the spdedy but rugged style of mat calisthenics and the result was a fast-moving bout that saw a large crowd of fans hilfting the roof with applause, the greater majority of them rooting for the Golden Boy from Hamilton.

Miguel, a magnificent physical specimen who has acquired a golden tan from somewhere used his elbow smashes to near perfection at times, and he had the rocky Austrylian down for a near count on not a few occasions when his forearm, the size of an ox's hind quarter smashed into the Atkins jawbones with contacts that made me rink rafters shudder.

Didn't Fool Atkins

But 'Andsome Freddie was not to be denied. He had not gotten that Empah Crown buckle from the sleek locks of former champion Whipper Watson through the medium of a raffle. He won it fair and square, 'tis reported, and he has no intentions of slipping off his handsome beam onto that of any young upstart who thinks he can wrestle.

He leaped into solid action from the start of the first fall that unlike the usual hero of the piece, did not hesitate to use the ropes and a neat piece of eye-rubbing with a stout piece of bandage that encased his left elbow. It took just twelve minutes of battling and grimacing for Atkins to pin the handsome Mike in the first set-to of embraces.

Mike Applies Stretcher

And he came back from the second fall fully intending to end the matter there and then. But he did not reckon with the Golden Boy. Three he did the best of one time after he had hurled the husky Mike out of the ring, to keep him outside, and did a fair job of it. The Sharpe mentality did not re-act favorably to this form of hog-tie-ing, so that after fifteen minutes of toe-fluffy milling, Mike applied his favorite "Sharpe Stretcher" and that was that. A gaudy hold transformed the handsome champion into a wrestling version of "Waltzing Matilda" for the nonce.

The crowd went wild. It howled of its glee. By this time it was clearly a Sharpian thring that sat in the pews. It surged around the tanned giant as he strode in victory to the dressing room. And it cheered itself hoarse as he appeared for the third fall.

But alas and alack. The very ferocity of the Australian attack swept the good-looking Miguel literally and figuratively off his feet in that fateful third fall. And by the time the crowd had recovered from the first smashing tactics of Atkins to cheer its favorite son, the Australian had applied a crushing body hold, and the fall and match was over with the champion still wearing the crown.

Prelim was Good

Over 600 pounds of pachyderm-ic beef entered into the preliminal of the show. In a dull bout the Cardiff Giant (330) and Big Ben Hunt (300) of the ring and scowls augmented by the raven hirsute appendages rolled with a grand flourish out of the ring and started playing ring-around-a-rosie on Manager Walt Geroux's new plastic floor. Referee Cliff Fox tired of the pantomime after a while and counted both gladiators out.

Art. Brady, a newcomer to Belleville, hailing from Colorado, made a distinct hit with the crowd in his bout with Ben Sharpe, brother of the illustrious Mike. The boys put on a spirited preliminary and went to a well-deserved draw after a half-hour of outstanding action. The powers-that-be can rematch this pair anytime. Bert Maxwell, Toronto, was the third man in the ring in the main bout.

Coaltown Easy Winner in Stake At Jamaica

(By The Canadian Press)

Coaltown, unbeaten this year, Saturday ran up his seventh consecutive victory for 1949 by exploding to an easy seven - length triumph over Volcanic Forge in the $50,000 added Gallant Fox Handicap at the Jamaica track in New York. Three Rings was third.

The Calumet star was timed in 1:50 1/5, a second off the track record, for the 1 3/16-mile run. He took things easy under a 130-pound impost, biggest load he's ever carried. Steve Brooks was the jockey.

Coaltown paid $2.50 and $2.20. There was no show betting.

The victory was worth $38,650 and boosted Coaltown's earnings to $231,800.

At Toronto, Percy West of Woodstock, won the Canadian Bowling Association open tournament championship Saturday with a record 1,128 score. The former mark was 1,108.

Tommy Sutcliffe of Toronto, with 2,589, won the men's high aggregate. Harry Moggach and Al Orshaug of Montreal captured top honors in the men's doubles with 1,800. Jean Bruce and Len Ostan of Ingersoll, Ont. triumphed in the mixed doubles with a score of 1,045.

Dick Fowler of Toronto, star right-hander for the Philadelphia Athletics, will become a United States citizen today. Fowler, although a native of Toronto, has been living for some time at Oneonta, N.Y.

The 27-year-old is one of the three Canadians on the A's club. The others are pitcher Phil Marchildon and Hank Biasatti; reserve first baseman.

Residence rules requiring players to play with their hometown teams or the nearest team were endorsed Sunday at the opening meeting in Hamilton of the Provincial Women's Softball Union of Ontario. The union presented eight life membership pins. Recipients include past presidents Ann Spalding of Preston, Mae Brown of Galt, Gladys Mortimer of Peterborough and Jean House of Simcoe.

At Toronto, K. B. McKellar of the Toronto Boulevard Club was elected president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council at the annual meeting here Saturday. The council announced that a team of 10 lawn bowlers probably will be sent to New Zealand to compete in the British Empire Games in February, 1950. Plans for a Canadian tour of Australia and New Zealand this summer were abandoned when it was found impossible to obtain shipping accommodation.

At Lisbon, Great Britain completed its rout of Portugal's Davis Cup team Sunday by capturing the final two singles matches for a 5-0 victory in the first round of Europe's zone Davis Cup competition. The Britons will meet Czechoslovakia's crack zone-defending champions in the second round. Czechoslovakia eliminated Monaco, 5-0.

Assumption Will Compete for Dominion Title

Winnipeg, May 2 (CP)—All the pieces appear to be back in order in the Canadian junior and senior basketball play-off "jigsaw" but many fans are adopting a "wait and see" attitude.

Announcements Sunday night by Canadian Amateur Basketball Association officials in Vancouver and Winnipeg indicated that the senior championship would be contested at Vancouver and the junior title series at Toronto.

Ebbie Bowering, Association president, said he had been informed from Montreal that Windsor Assumption College could start the senior finals against Vancouver Clover Leafs at the west coast city May 21. It would be a best-of-five affair and other possible dates were May 23, 24, 25 and 26.

Dr. Harold Mitchell, Manitoba Rugby Union and C.A.B.A. president, announced Winnipeg Light Infantry and Toronto T.M.C.A. would meet in a best-of-three junior east-west final May 5, 6 and 7 at Toronto.

But after more than a week of confusion in which both junior and senior finals were on one day and called off the next, some fans are wondering whether the jigsaw puzzle will stay together long enough for the teams to get to their respective courts.

C.A.B.A. officials originally ruled out an east-west final for the first official junior championship due to schools not deciding an eastern winner and alleged disinterest by eastern teams in an all-Canadian final.

Windsor Assumption College last-week said it is dropping out of the senior final because basketball does not fit-in with examinations. Then Windsor announced it could start the final May 21.

16-GAME SCHEDULE

Brampton, Ont., May 2 (CP)—A 36-game schedule, six more than last season, will be played by the seven teams in the senior loop of the Ontario Lacrosse Association. A meeting here yesterday of the O.L.A. executive said the schedule will start in about two weeks. The meeting turned down a request by Art Holden of Toronto to enter a team in the senior league.

Toronto, May 2 — (CP)—There are men in every sport who stand out because they love the game they play. They are stamped with individuality lacking in the more business - like practitioner.

Hockey has had many of them. One, known for his salient wit and ever-ready ability to smile, visited Toronto recently.

"Walter Pratt, 'the man who was born 20 years too late,' is in shockingly good state of health," writes Jim (Globe and Mail) Coleman. "Mr. Pratt, or Babe, or Basil, as he is known among his playmates has just completed his 14th season in professional hockey under circumstances which brought him a good deal of pleasure. He played 62 games for the New Westminster Royals of the Pacific Coast League and he amassed 68 points, which isn't too bad for a 32-year-old defenceman."

Coleman says Pratt's only trouble was that he should have been playing in the '20s when individualism flourished in the National Hockey League. Pratt would have been right at home with Howie Morenz, Red Dutton and Ching Johnson.

"It was inevitable that the N. H. L. would prove to be too confining for Pratt," Coleman writes. "He made the mistake of betting on his own team one night and that was the beginning of the end for him in Toronto. He skidded into the American Hockey League and he skidded out of that league, too."

Pratt joined New Westminster where he says he had "a million laughs."

Coleman says Pratt told him about a certain incident when a Vancouver amateur rode him a bit too far. Pratt picked up the puck to stop play and skated over to the fan.

"Look, young man," said Pratt. "Why don't you leave an old guy like me alone when I'm out here working nights. After all—in the daytime—I don't crawl into your sewer and bother you!"

Too True

Ralph (Cyclone Taylor) Allen adds another and statement about the conditions of lacrosse in Canada:

"Gave you a curious feeling, in a slightly melancholy way, to pick up a paper in Baltimore the other day and note that the two top-played stories on the first sports page and the top story on the day's national game is in May-second sports page were all on lacrosse . . . from the standpoint of interest, the capital of Canada."

When it comes to bicycles the name that means most to youngsters and oldsters alike is "C·C·M." And naturally so, for C.C.M. has been the favorite for over fifty years. This is proven by the fact that there are over a million C.C.M.'s on the road today.

This Spring "Everybody's Bicycle"—the C.C.M.—offers in a full range of men's and ladies' models, a new all-time high in standard and optional features.

The many new features of design and structure in all 1949 C.C.M. Bicycles combine to produce the strongest, most resilient, comfortable and easy-riding bicycle of all time. What's more, there is enough of them, this year, to go 'round.

There's a C.C.M. bicycle that fits your needs and fancies. Go over the standard and optional features outlined. Any of the 3,000 loyal C.C.M. dealers in Canada, are ready and willing to supply the particular C.C.M. you want and to provide check-up service, parts and accessories, as long as you ride.

NEW STANDARD FEATURES

NEW FRAME of top grade tubing, brazed by a new low-temperature method that makes the frame a stronger, lighter, livelier C.C.M. Bicycle.

NEW FRAME ANGLES AND SIZES that make for better riding position and more comfortable and easier pedalling.

FRONT FORK DESIGN with a new taper, curve and caster that give improved steering and an extra-comfortable cushioned ride with noticeable lightness and strength.

REAR STAY DESIGN embodying a new "brazed-up" assembly of strong, lightweight material that imparts great strength with resiliency to the whole bicycle.

NEW OPTIONAL FEATURES

3-SPEED REAR HUB is optional equipment on all models except the "Tourist" model on which it is standard equipment.

This hub, which also has a hub brake, enables you to ride up steep grades in "low", then shift to "second", by a convenient lever on the crossbar, and then to "high" for speed on the level.

THE FRONT HUB embodies a built-in generator for producing the necessary electricity for the head-light and tail-light.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 2 (AP)—For most of her life, people have been telling Judy Garland she will lose her voice if she doesn't stop singing so loudly. Today she is still going strong — and as loud as ever.

In one of her rare moments of talking about herself for print, Judy reflected on her voice:

"When I was a kid in vaudeville, people would say I'd lose my voice before I got much older. That alarmed my mother, so she sent me to a vocal coach.

"The first lesson had me trying to blow off a piece of paper pasted on my forehead. "Breath control," she said. Next she had me singing with a pencil in my teeth. 'Poor diction' she said. I told her I didn't usually sing with a pencil in my teeth."

When Judy revolted against such methods, the teacher said, "You don't want to sing like Kate Smith, do you?"

"If I'm lucky, yes," 12-year-old Judy replied.

She hasn't had a lesson since. She can't even read music today. Her new songs are played or sung to her and she catches on that way.

And though she has danced with Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly on the screen, she has never had a dancing lesson.

"I think a lot of young talent is dried up by too many lessons," she said in an interview on the "Annie Get Your Gun" set. "If you've got it, it usually comes out anyway."

To use the words of one of the Annie" songs, Judy Gene Kelly her way by doin' what comes naturally. It has done well by her, too; she is one of the screen's highest-paid stars.

The song had to remember about Judy is the fact that she has been in show business continually since she was three.

She has had fears and has insecurities, but Judy the knows bad things are often printed which she has learned to disregard them. She knows that musicals are her strong suit, and has no to be a dramatic actress. Her one non-musical, "The Clock," didn't fare too well.

She'll probably be singing just as long and as loudly as people will let her.

ROBBED OFF$1,327

Chatham, May 2 (CP)—Two Toronto men, Louis Singer and David Shain, were fined $25 and costs by police magistrate Ivor Wood after they had been robbed of $1,327 in an unlocked room at the Wilson Hotel here early on the April 30 early Saturday.

The money was taken while they were sleeping.

Singer had $1,200 in his wallet in his trousers beside his bed while Shain had $25. Two dollars placed on the dresser by Shain was also missing.

FALLS INTO CHUTES

Mount Washington, N.H., May 2 (AP)—Rescue workers today searched for a skier who slipped and fell into a 100-foot crevice. The skier, identified as Dr. Paul H. Schiller, 40, was believed killed in a fall down a crack formed by melting snow. Dr. Schiller, former head of the psychology department at the University of Budapest, came to the United States two years ago.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 2 (AP) — Bill Missilin, sports editor of the Bismarck, N.D., Tribune, has an answer to the question recently raised in this corner about what has become of the "hungry young kids" in professional golf. . . One of them is 29-year-old Paul O'Leary from (you guessed it) Bismarck . . . Paul, Bill says, could negotiate the hilly nine-hole local course in the low 40s when he was only nine years old. He won his first city title at 13 and the State amateur championship in 1946, 47 and 48. Then he decided to turn pro and give the others a chance . . . North Dakota fans staged dances, exhibitions and the like and raised $4,200 to start Paul on the winter circuit. . . He finished in the money only once in six tournaments. Then laid off for two months. . . He still had $2,400 when he set out in a 1937 Jalopy to make the summer tour. . . the first stop was Washington, D.C., where Paul shot a 64 the first day and dang near won the pennant. .

Monday Malaise

John Roxborough, who gave Joe Louis his start, admits he wasn't sure that Louis was going places until Joe flattened Charley Massera in his 11th pro fight. . . Bobby Locke's assistant, Berry Nieuwenhuge, plans to hit a summer golf circuit along with his pet swift current of Holstein River. A life-saving crew failed to recover the body.

Students Recovers From Smoke Effects

London, Ont., May 2 — (CP) — Geoffrey Caldwell, 21-year-old University of Western Ontario student, was released from hospital overnight after recovering from effects of smoke suffered while fighting a fire in a dwelling early Sunday.

Caldwell is the son of a Preston, Ont., industrialist and on several occasions has been the escort of skating star Barbara Ann Scott.

With two other students, Caldwell successfully fought a blaze that swept a clothes closet in their rooming house.

TWO KILLED

La Paz, Bolivia, May 2 (AP)— Election day shootings here yesterday resulted in the death of two persons and wounding of 18 others. Two of the wounded were reported in serious condition. Bolivian voters chose 63 members of parliament, nine Senators and 56 Deputies. Results of the balloting are expected to be known later today.

Kingsport, Tenn., May 2 (AP) —A baptism turned into tragedy yesterday when the baptized drowned. A life-saving crew failed to recover the body.

Board Forgives Tommy Thomas, Orioles' Manager

Baltimore May 2 (AP)— The Board of Directors of Baltimore Orioles voted Sunday night to forgive manager Tommy Thomas for telling one of his ball players to "get get" a heckler.

After a lengthy session the directors of the International League club said they had "unanimously given Thomas a vote of confidence."

Thomas Sunday completed a five day suspension ordered by League president Frank Shaughnessy as a result of the incident last Tuesday night when the Orioles were playing Toronto.

A fan was riding infielder Elis Clay and was allegedly getting his goat. Thomas pointed the heckler out to Clary and told him to "go get him."

Clary and two other Orioles players climbed into the stands. Police blocked the way, however and the unidentified heckler was shuttled out of Babe Ruth Stadium.

TO INSURE ATHLETES

Kingston, May 2 — (CP) — A policy for accident insurance of high school athletes is planned by the Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools Association. The decision was made Saturday at the end of a two-day meeting of 120 students from points between Ottawa and Peterborough.

Ottawa delegates said their schools had elected a satisfactory scheme of insurance. The Ottawa representatives also invited the third annual meeting of the Association to be held in Ottawa next April.

DIES AT 102

Scranton, Pa., May 2 (AP) — Florence E. Dolph, who celebrated her last two birthdays by sliding down the bannister in her home, died yesterday 18 days before her 102nd birthday. The bannister slides last year in 1946 were, Miss Dolph said, to demonstrate her good health and agility. Her health continued good until recently.

Chandler May Not be Hard on Leo Durocher

New York May 2 (AP)—Things brightened for Leo Durocher today as the "suspended" manager of New York Giants prepared to leave for Cincinnati and a session with Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

The trigger tempered Giant boss is scheduled to appear before the commissioner tomorrow morning and explain what happened after that game at the Polo Grounds last Thursday.

A vociferous Brooklyn fan 22-year-old Frank Pellow—contends Leo came up behind him, poked him and knocked him down. Leo says he did no such thing.

Durocher's chances for continuous baseball employment took on a brighter hue when a stroke close to Chandler said Sunday that the commissioner was just being cautious when he slapped an indefinite suspension on "The Lip."

This spokesman, who didn't want his name used, said the commissioner feared some sort of vandalism might break out in the Harlem district near the Polo Grounds if he didn't do something quickly.

This would indicate that Chandler has not already judged the case, as some had supposed, and will weigh the evidence before rendering a verdict.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK — by R. J. SCOTT

Little Ben's Note Book

Last night Ma and Mrs. Hews went to the High School bilding to see about joining the upholstery class and learning how to make slip covers, and this morning at breakfast she said to pop, Really, William, I mean really, you wouldn't beleeve what a big percentage of the cost of living goes to pay for labor.

Yes, I understand it's quite an item, pop said, and ma said, Now a slip covers for instance. Maud Hews and I found that if we learn how to make slip covers we can do our living room completely over just for the cost of the materials, in other werds about 20 dollers, but if we let an upholsterer do the job it would cost us fifty dollers. Do you realize that's more than a hundred percent difference, William? she said.

I think I can figure it out, pop said, and ma said, Imagine, 30 dollers out of 50 just for unskilled labor. If things keep on like that, William, the pendulum will swing backwards again and people will do all their own manual labor just like in the days of spinning wheels and oaken buckets, she said.

By golles that's a shawt, pop said. I think I'll buy me a gadget to sharpen razor blades. I'll pay for it out of the 50 dollers we save on the slip covers. But say, by the way, aren't the slip covers in the living room fairly new? he said, and ma said, Yes, and so are the ones in Maud's living room. That's where the predicament comes in. That's what makes us hesitate, she said.

Yee goda, in a case like this, she who hesitates is saved, pop said.

Meening he was against the idea.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"Say knows him," said Gregg. "You know him, Gay!" Marc's eyes sparkled. "You know him and you let him go?"

Gay asked steadily, "Do you know the name of his play?"

"We'll Meet Again," said Margo.

She danced with Fred and Jimmy that night on deck and tried to talk about "old times". She danced with France's devoted Swedish count who told her how madly he loved the dashing Frances who could not make up her fickle mind as to whether she would or would not marry him. She danced with Gregg and nodded and smiled at the things he said, but above the music was a stronger, deeper song. "We'll Meet Again."

She thought, "Chris, what did you mean when you wrote that?" Her eyes wandered along the moonlit deck where girls in evening dresses and men in dinner clothes sat in deck chairs and drank and smoked. "Chris, you don't know that I'm hearing it for the first time the night I'm dancing on the deck of the Firdells with the man I'm going to marry?"

It was a pleasant weekend in the sunshine. The girls made pretty pictures in brilliantly colored pajamas, slacks and shorts.

Gay tried to feel the warmth and sincerity of their friendship, but again she felt as if she were an outsider, looking in at smart worldly people whose talk was clever repartee and who made crude remarks about the people who weren't there.

"Barbara married terribly beneath herself," Frances said. "We won't be seeing much of her any more."

When the launch brought them ashore Monday morning, Gay was glad that the weekend was over. After saying good-bye to her guests, smiling a little wearily at them, she rode back to the penthouse with Gregg. Thinking that her life when she was married would be an endless series of such weekends, entertaining people whose sole purpose in life was to be entertained, smoothing lovers' quarrels and watching wives flirt with other women's husbands.

Millicent said, "My maid is packing and has made dozens of reservations to Florida. I do hope the house is nice, Gay. You can't keep open house in season and have the most amusing people to entertain you, you'll never be bored."

She was bored now, she was thinking, bored and tired. She wanted to see Penny, and that and talk with Penny, who had no malice in her for anyone and who was amusing without effort.

Gregg put his arm around her. "Mother wants you to be a glorified hostess to the world. You should be darling, but put people at ease and listen beautiful-ly. When Mother retires, I'm going to run for office, take a look at the Fidelis again."

"He's in town with that boat," said Millicent.

Gay said, smiling, "Please don't love the boat too much, Gregg."

"Will you be lonely here without me?" Millicent asked.

"I'll miss you."

But she would go to see Penny and Mac and talk about Chris' play and feel as if her whole world were shut in with the opposite Penny in the small shabby room of love, and talk about Penny's baby who would have a mother to instill in it values and ideals and not a series of efficient nurses and governesses.

Millicent and Gregg left together. Gay got out of the rumpled sport clothes and put on a dark dress and hat.

Her thoughts were crowded and confused in the penthouse where the personalities of Millicent and Gregg were so alive. She went out, walked down the avenue and thought of Chris as he had walked beside her in the long ago that was last winter. Chris . . . his voice, his deep laughter, his remarks . . .

At hazy blue twilight, people hurrying toward home failed to notice a tall girl with bright hair standing before a billboard. Nor did they notice the tears on her lashes as she read, "We'll Meet Again," by Chris Mallory. She was saying to his name, "I love you, but I'll never have you flow. I'm going to be hostess to the world, my dearest, and my husband will gradually love the shining white yacht more than he loves me. I shall always be surrounded by people and I shall always be lonely."

"We'll Meet Again," he had written. He had shouted it to the world through his play. Was it a challenge?

En route to the theatre the night the play opened, Gregg said, "Mother likes the house in Miami, but there are certain legal entanglements she wants me to see about and she wired for me to come down." He smiled at her. "It occurred to me today that perhaps we might be married in Florida and avoid a lot of publicity."

"Millicent wants us to have a large wedding."

"I'm not keen about it. We could wire your mother to come to Florida and we could be married in the new house. I could have the yacht sent down. We're going to be married only once, my dear, and I think a wedding is a rather private affair. I'll get a plane tomorrow and you can come down when you think you have all the dresses you need."

"As you wish, Gregg."

"Margo is having a party after the play. We'll drop in and see how it is."

"Did you get good seats?"

He laughed at her. "You are concerned about this play, aren't you? I got good seats so that everybody can see the girl I'm going to marry."

"I'm afraid I can't share your love of critics," said Gay.

He lit a cigarette and said again, "I never believed in boasting. I want you to wear all the jewels I give you and never wear the same dress twice."

When the car stopped at the theatre and they slightled, news photographers snapped their pictures. People on the sidewalks, hungry for glimpses of theatrical and social celebrities, cried, "There's Gay Van Avery!"

She was on the street again, she thought, as they walked into the theatre and people nodded and smiled at them. On the crest, but her heart and mind for days had been with Chris. Again, less violently, "You'll have to decide which life you want. Life with me will be inconspicuous but it will be free. Not a penthouse in New York and a villa in France. It will be a flat in New York when we are there, a room with a balcony in Nassau and a small room at Capri where we can look at the sea."

Once she smothered a sob and bit deeply into her lip. She could not see for tears and her heart ached with responses she could not make. "Chris, you were not there the night of the charity ball . . . when the way was black ahead. Gregg was there! He is sweet and kind. No, I don't want to be mistress of a dozen houses and hostess to endless, pleasure-seeking people. I want to be like you, Penny!"

At intermission Gay smoked a cigaret. The voices of people in the lobby were low and unintelligible.

Gregg said, "It's going over big. I thought I was going to catch up on my sleep during your friend's play, Gay! But I was mistaken. It's not a great play but there's no denying that it speaks about truth and sometimes people like to hear the truth."

In the last scene the audience did not know whether the distraught heroine would marry the rich young man or the poor young man, who was Chris. But when the girl walked off the stage as the curtains met, they remembered, "We'll Meet Again."

There was a storm of applause and seven curtain calls. "Not a great play," the critics would probably say, "but a good one that should have a long run."

Gay, drawing the satin coat over her bare shoulders, thought, "They like it because it makes old people remember and young people hope. It's decided! I've made my choice!"

She went to Margo Stevens' party where cocktails were plentiful and where scores of people came and went without down. She could not sleep when she got home, remembering words that Chris had shouted across land and sea to her.

Gregg left Miami to the airport with Gregg.

"It's rather a shame to deny our friends a big show," he said. "I'll speak to Mother about a quiet wedding in Florida and wire you when to come down. Cherio, darling."

From the airport she went to see Penny.

"Have you seen the natives about the play?" Penny cried. "They're marvellous! Oh, this means so much to us, Gay! Mac and I will take a little house in the country and Chris will be able to travel as he's always wanted to." She frowned. "I—it really wasn't a play at all, you know. He was just talking to you."

"I know."

Penny walked to the table and handed Gay a newspaper picture of Chris and a pretty girl dressed in white.

"That's Evelyn Ewing," said Penny. "She's awfully attractive, isn't she?" She put her hand on Gay's shoulder. "Chris loves you. Do you want to spend your life looking and searching for the other half of you that's with him in Nassau isn't far away. You love him. I've known it a long time. I'm not very bright or very smart," Penny said solemnly, "but Chris is the kind of man a woman could follow to the end of the earth, asking for nothing except just to be with him. Love," said Penny, "is enough."

Gay said, "Please, please don't say any more. It's all true. But I'm going to Florida and you are to marry Gregg. He loves me, too."

"As much as her capable nature is capable of loving. But love is only a side issue to Gregg."

It was Diana and not the maid who set apart the silk curtains to let the morning sunlight into Gay's charming bedroom.

"Wake up, child," Diana said, sitting on the bed, "and look at your mother." She kissed Gay's cool forehead and pushed back a stray red curl. "What elegant surroundings you live in, darling. You look splendid but a little tired."

"It's so good to see you, Mother. You look . . ."

"Like the country woman I am, sunburned from working in a flower garden and quite muscular from driving an enormous touring car over dirt roads. A cold shower is what you need and then we'll talk at breakfast."

Breakfast was served on the patio beneath a wide umbrella. Gay, in a lace negligee, looked across the little table at her mother. How well and strong and happy she looked!

"I had to buy some new clothes," Diana said. "Some sturdy linens and a new riding habit so I can gallop across country with Jerry. He's a darling, Gay. I don't try to mother him. I'm his friend and we talk and laugh together, Gordon comes down on weekends. He stays at the inn and has the time of his life. We have an enormous black cook, a lazy gardener, and Jerry does the drops things. How can you endure the city? You can't breathe here and the streets are . . ." She paused and smiled. "How I do ramble! I've found peace and contentment. What about you, dear?"

"I'm glad to came because—because I'm going to Florida to be married."

"You are like a child with an expensive toy who isn't happy with it," Diana said gravely. "This is all lovely, my dear, living so luxuriously, and you are lovelier in a setting like this."

"I don't want peace and contentment," said Gay stubbornly. "When I'm older, yes, but not now. I want to be wildly, madly happy. I want . . ." She looked away and added, "But I'm going to marry Gregg, Mother."

"Out of gratitude. You owe him a great deal but you don't owe him your life in payment. That's too great a price. If you marry him, loving some one else, you'll be one of those bored, restless, rich women who are more to be pitied than any other women in the world."

Diana looked at her with calm understanding. Some instinct had prompted her to come. It was as if an inner voice had urged, "You must go to her and tell her gently that she must not marry a man for whom she feels only a mild affection. You must not let the love she can give some man go wasting. Since the first night he came to dinner in the studio, Gay has loved Chris Mallory. Her splendid love would not be wasted on him."

During the days that followed mother and daughter were inseparable. They shopped and stopped in at cool places for afternoon tea. But invariably in their talks they went back to the days when Diana was reading tea leaves in the basement tea room and Gay was modelling dresses for Marshand.

"I shall probably marry Gordon one of these days," Diana said, smiling. "It won't be out of gratitude. It will be because, next to your father, he's the finest man I've ever known. Jerry keeps saying, 'Why don't you and Father get married?' You won't mind, dear?"

"Mind, Gordon," said Gay.

People, discovering Diana was in town, phoned her to come to their parties. Gay's mail brought an invitation to one of her "at homes".

Diana laughed. "Let's not go. Stella Baring is really a very tiresome woman. Let's go to see Penny and Mac. Those two happy children delight me. And tonight I'm going to take me to see Chris' play."

Gay lived in a state of expectancy, knowing that soon Gregg's telegram would come. Often she walked into the room where her trousseau was displayed and, touching the lovely garments, thought, These are only things that hang on you. Chris never notices what you wear. He looks into your face. I know now that money and social position are nothing when I've got to spend the rest of my life loving a man I'll never see again. What do all these things matter when my body will be in one place and my heart in another?"

It was raining the morning Gregg's telegram came. "Mother agreeable to our plans stop having yacht sent down stop You'll have little trouble arranging what you will arrive love"

She stood by the table in the drawing room and read it again and again. Quietly she said, "I'd better get the maid to pack. I—I'm going to have a lot of baggage."

"I'd suggest that you go by boat," said Diana. "It isn't good flying weather and the trip will be so tiresome. An ocean trip will do you good."

"But I take several days."

"The sun and air will be good for you," Diana insisted. "You don't want to be a pale bride, darling."

"Aren't you coming with me?"

"No. Forgive me for not coming but — but mothers cry at weddings. I'll see you when you get back. I don't want to go all the way to Florida to cry. That would be silly."

Gay said, "Perhaps I shouldn't say this but Gregg wouldn't like it. But I feel that when I'm mar-

Diana was silent for a moment. "You'd better see about your packing dear. I'll call the steamship company and make reservations for you."

Diana thought, "What can I say to her? I don't want my lovely daughter to be a symbol of a man's wealth. I want to see her radiant and happy and married to a man she can't bear to be separated from a single minute."

When Gay was dressed in traveling clothes, she called Penny.

"Don't forget us," Penny said soberly. "You'll still be the same Gay to us when you're Gregg's wife. Come to see us in the little house we're going to take in the country."

Mac came to the phone, "So long," he said.

Colville, Wash.—It took Sandra first one hour to find a missing two-pound pet dog. Her 100-pound man search party failed to locate the child.

The boy, Daryle Wesley, wandered away from his home about 4 p.m. Saturday. Neighbors and police combed the woods and in the area until midnight but apparently missed in vain.

At 3 a.m. Sunday police placed a call to Ted D. Burger in Spokane, a K-9 corps trainer during the war. Burger, who now operates dog kennels, picked out Sandra for the rescue attempt.

An hour after Sandra started into the woods, the boy was found. He was nearly made, cold and wet but apparently suffered only scratches.

Although the weekly allowance is only two ounces, a slice of bacon is sometimes found between the leaves of returned books, says Principal Librarian Stanley Hardcastle.

Harrocks says public libraries outdo Scotland Yard in their fingerprint collections. Prints are on the pages of returned books, impressed in a rich mixture of ink, butter, fruit, dust and perspiration.

ESCAPE BY RAIL

is usually 20,000 men.) The Communist broadcast's claim of a "great victory" was not confirmed by government sources.

The semi-official Chinese Central News Agency said rail service had been suspended between Shanghai and Nanchang. Hangchow is a seaport, reason it city and communications centre 100 air miles southwest of Shanghai. Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi Province, is about 280 miles farther southwest—almost midway between Shanghai and Canton, provisional Nationalist capital in the south coast.

(Central News, however, did not say what caused suspension of rail traffic between Hangchow and Nanchang or where Red troops—if any—were operating along the line.)

The Shanghai garrison's new money market decree prohibited trading in silver dollars except at the official rate of 4,000,000 yuan to one silver dollar. The previous open rate had soared as high as 9,000,000.

Value Crashes

As word of the order spread through the city, the value of silver coins crashed. With it the values of foreign currencies crashed even harder. The United States dollar, which brought 3,500,000 yuan in bank vouchers at 10 a.m., fell to 2,500,000 in 10 minutes.

The official government Central Bank had moved its headquarters to Canton.

A Shanghai garrison communique said Nationalist forces still were holding Kunshan, 23 miles west of Shanghai, despite heavy Communist artillery bombardment at the outskirts of the town.

A small Red force which reached the vicinity of Taichang, a mile or so northeast of Kunshan, was eliminated by Nationalist troops, the garrison announced.

These Reds might have been flank defenders of the Communist force which attacked Kunshan. The garrison said their strength was only 200 and was "totally wiped out."

There was no news here of the fighting south of Lake Tai 30 miles or so southwest of Shanghai where the Communists seemed to be throwing more important strength into Hangchow.

A traveller from Hangchow said today that city had been occupied by Nationalist militia.

In Shanghai there was no undue amount of military activity and no sign of any impending Communist attack. Hundreds of Chinese soldiers, however, boarded Chinese naval vessels which steamed down the Whangpoo river toward the sea.

Seaman's Union Of British Guiana Breaks With CSU

By The Canadian Press

The British Guiana Federated Seamen's Union has severed relations with the Canadian Seamen's Union (CTLC), it was learned here today. The striking C.S.U. failed to "keep us informed of the true state of affairs but rather gave us false information."

Announcement of the British Guiana Union action was made in Georgetown after a meeting at which it also was decided to withdraw support of the C.S.U., said to be Communist-led, in its battle with the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) for control of shipping jobs.

The British Guiana Trades Union Council previously had withdrawn its support from the C.S.U. in its dispute with Canadian shipowners in east coast ports whose announcement that they had signed an agreement with the S.I.U. precipitated the strike March 31.

In Bristol, England, the strikebound Montreal freighter Guildside, due to sail Sunday for Canada with a substitute crew flown there Saturday, was held up when tugboat men refused to move the vessel. Longshoremen also refused to help with sailing preparations after members of the Transport and General Workers Union decided to support the vessels 28 C.S.U.-member crew.

The Guildside's S.I.U. crew was flown to Bristol secretly and it was planned for them to sail the ship without the knowledge of the original crew, the ship police chief said. But the strikers learned of the move and successfully enlisted the T.G.W.U. support. There were no disturbances.

In Montreal, about 35 seamen aboard the freighter Tricape joined the general strike on the ship's arrival in the inland port Saturday from New York. The Tricape arrived Saturday evening demanding that the shipping companies come to terms with the C.S.U.

SLIPPED OFF BANK

Sudbury, May 2 (CP)—First May fatality in the Sudbury district occurred Sunday when John Marleau, an employee of the International Nickel Company's Levack Mine, was drowned at Onaping, 30 miles northwest of here.

Believed to have slipped off a steep embankment while out for a walk, Marleau's body was found face down in a creek by INCO police late Sunday.

Marleau has been employed underground at the Levack Mine for the past seven months.

He is survived by a wife and three children at Niagara Falls, Ont.

Politics Move Out into Country During Weekend

Ottawa, May 1 — (CP)—Federal politics moved out into the country during the weekend.

The 20th Parliament was over. Its members sped quickly, homeward, to their ridings and last to hurt the country into a battle-field. 2,500 miles wide.

From Saturday until mid-day in the federal general election June 27, the issues will be fought out

In ridings from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island, probably more than 1,000 men and a few women will put forward their claims for the 262 seats in the Commons of the 21st parliament. They will represent at least a half-dozen parties, with indications that the main struggle will be a renewal of the traditional clash between the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives.

From their numbers the people will pick the men to handle their affairs for another four or five years which will move the country into the second half of the 20th Century and into the problems that stem from a tough international situation and its effects on trade.

Among the hopefuls on the hustings will stalk the big leaders. Prime Minister St. Laurent of the Liberals, George Drew of the Progressive Conservatives, M. J. Coldwell of the C. C. F., and Solon Low of Social Credit.

The prime minister said Saturday he hasn't made any definite plans but he wants to see as many people in as many parts of the country as possible. His party will contest every riding but one — Comox - Alberni in British Columbia — whose independent member generally supports the government.

Mr. Drew also plans to have a party candidate in nearly every riding. He is expected to head into the west after his nomination convention in Carleton May 7 and will spend six weeks in campaign.

Mr. Coldwell plans to tour Canada from end to end to back up the 200 candidates for his Socialist party.

Mr. Low, like the others, is drafting his campaign plans.

Date of Lifting Berlin Blockade Soon to be Set

New York, May 2 (AP) — A date for lifting of the Russian blockade of Berlin may be set this week.

Present prospects are that a meeting this weekend may reach agreement on ending the Russian blockade and the Allies counter-blockade and set a date for a meeting of the big-four Foreign Ministers on the German questions.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup, United States Ambassador at Large, said after his last meeting with Jakob Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, the talks were "proceeding satisfactorily."

The London Daily Herald, organ of Britain's ruling Labor party, said that Malik suggested to Jessup at Friday's meeting that the blockade be lifted at the end of the first week in June.

One of the apparent reasons for the length of the negotiations is a reported desire by United States officials to be absolutely certain the Russian offer to lift the blockade has no strings attached other than those made public by Tass.

That offer was to lift the blockade if the western powers would give up their counter-blockade and set a date acceptable to the Soviet for a fig-four meeting on Germany.

The western powers want to be sure the Russians haven't something up their sleeves with which they might try to prevent formation of a western German State.

If a big-four meeting is arranged it probably will be held in Paris sometime after 1st of June.

There is no indication, meanwhile, when Britain and France may be expected to join the New York talks. Jessup has been keeping representatives of both countries informed on his conversations with Malik.

1821 COIN

Fort Erie, April 30 — (CP) — A United States 10-cent piece minted in 1821 is owned by Mrs. Edith Graf, local resident. She told reporters about the coin after reading that C. Dion had unearthed a 10-cent U. S. coin dated 1940. Mrs. Graf got the coin four years ago in change.

Russians at UN More Friendly On Informal Level

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, May 2 (CP)—Western delegates to the United Nations said today they noted a change in their social relations with Russian-bloc representatives. Recently there had been several indications that Russian and eastern European delegates had adopted a freer and friendlier attitude toward the west—but only on the informal, cocktail-time level.

The western delegates linked what appeared to be warmer, after-work cordiality with Russia's proposals to lift the Berlin blockade.

Some said if the blockade were lifted "everything will be rosy" — the neighborliness would spread out from the house parties to the assembly hall.

Western diplomats said they were skeptical, however, of the motives behind the unaccustomed companionability. They were inclined to doubt there was any change in basic Soviet policy. The new familiarity might be merely a manoeuvre—but the west, they said, could not afford to reject any overtures of friendliness which might prove sincere.

For example, Andrei A. Gromyko, top Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, seldom smiles but often surprises bystanders with witty remarks which indicate he has a broad knowledge of western ways.

On the other hand, Jakob A. Malik, Russia's permanent delegate to the U.N., is reflabo to the point of back-slapping. Nevertheless, he has refused at time to pose for pictures with western delegates.

Despite the obvious personal variations, western delegates said there have been tentative signs that the Soviet bloc representatives are taking a heartier interest in the social life of the U.N.

Misunderstanding Causes Delay

Due to an unfortunate misunderstanding there was a sudden lull in the Optimist Club "Scotch-life-saber" campaign last Saturday. A large number of children were turned away from the Belleville Armories by a well-meaning but misguided gentleman who had been informing all comers that the campaign was over.

The members of the club sincerely offer their apologies and gave their assurance that next Saturday will definitely be Scotchlite Safety Day at the Armouries. They will have a full staff of workers, a large supply of Scotchlite and a representative on hand to reassure the early arrivals that work starts at two o'clock sharp.

A large number of motorists have spoken highly of this campaign and unanimously agree that it is as effective as a reflector. There have been close to 1,000 bicycles that have had this safety device applied to them and it should not be very long before nearly every bicycle in the city will be equipped with it.

Glasgow — (CP) — Kosciuszko, 15,000-ton liner Kenya has been laid at Clydeside for the British India Company. The ship will carry 275 passengers on the run between Britain and East Africa, and will be ready for service next year.

THREE NATIONS' NAVAL CRAFT LEAVE SHANGHAI

Suspension Lifted On Leo Durocher By Commissioner

Charge of Assault Laid Friday by Brooklyn Fan

By GAYLE TALBOT

Cincinnati, May 3 — (AP) — Leo Durocher, manager of the New York Giants, today was reinstated.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler said he heard no evidence sufficient to support a charge by Fred Boysen, a Brooklyn baseball fan, that Durocher had assaulted him.

In his findings, Chandler, who suspended Durocher last Friday after Boysen said he was knocked down and kicked at the Polo Grounds, said in part:

"Durocher's suspension by the Commissioner was a preventive, rather than a punitive action. Prominent representatives of the colored race in baseball had made representations to the commissioner, which indicated the possibility of further incidents . . .

"The evidence is contradictory. Manager Durocher was involved in an incident with Fred Boysen, a Negro baseball fan, separately came in physical contact with Boysen. The evidence, however, is not sufficient to warrant the belief that Durocher deliberately assaulted Boysen.

"Under the circumstances, the suspension against Durocher is lifted immediately and Durocher may rejoin his team on Wednesday.

"There is ample evidence that the Polo Grounds was not properly policed on the afternoon of April 28.

"People who go to the games have an obligation to conduct themselves with decency. Public play demands that vicious name calling, by fan, in the direction of players, be not indulged in."

Durocher, charged with striking and kicking a fan last week, was fined by the commissioner for nearly two hours.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, was a surprise witness.

CANADA EXPORTS DOWN FOR FIRST THREE MONTHS

However, Value of Goods Sent to U.K. Increased by 10.5 Per Cent

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Canadian exports for the first three months of this year are down from a year ago.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Monday that value of exports to all countries for the first quarter was $658,800,000, as compared with $672,000,000 in 1948.

However, value of goods sent to the United States increased during that period by 10.5 per cent, $345,150,000 compared with $312,333,000 a year ago.

The overall decline was the result of a lower volume of goods sent to the United Kingdom and Europe during January, February and March.

Canada's total domestic exports during March were valued at $215,800,000, compared with $232,400,000 in the same month a year before. This month's decline followed a small increase during January and a slightly larger increase during February.

Exports of animals and animal products were almost double during March compared with a year ago and there were similar increases in dried and textiles, vegetable products, non-ferrous metals and chemical groups were moderately higher.

Exports to the United States during the month were to the value of $122,418,000 compared with $112,519,000 in March, 1948, representing an increase of 8.8 per cent for the month.

March exports to the United Kingdom were $39,498,000—down one third from last year when $59,182,000 in goods were sent. First quarter total was $139,200,000 compared with $175,700,000 in the comparative period of 1948.

There was also a decrease in European countries with March exports down to $9,204,000 from $19,949,000 a year ago. Germany provided the only exception among the eight countries reported and exports rose there from $435,000 in March a year ago to $1,958,000.

Will Use House To Raise Turkeys

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Charles Hannah, his wife and seven children are living today in a small tent in a field at nearby Dixie, only a stone's throw from the house from which they were evicted Monday because owner Tony Iovanni it to raise turkeys.

The family spent Monday night in the tent with their belongings and furniture piled in the field. A deputy sheriff from Brampton, Ont., had directed Mr. Hannah's two brothers to help him in loading the household furniture into trucks and evict the Hannah family.

"If something isn't done I'm going over to the Bramalea town house and leave all the children there," Mrs. Hannah said. "They've moved us out of a six-room house to make room for a lot of turkeys."

SIX WARSHIPS TAKEN BY REDS SUNK BY PLANES

Peiping Radio Says Kwangteh Captured

Shanghai, May 3 (AP)—Kwangteh, important city midway between Wuhan and Nanchang, has been captured by Red troops, the Peiping Communist radio said today.

The radio claimed victory for the Communists in a battle on the borders of Kiangsu-Anhwei and Chekiang provinces. The radio said 2,400 Nationalists were captured.

The report has not been confirmed by other sources.

Efforts to telephone Hangchow, 121 miles southwest of here, brought the reply the lines were out of order.

The Communist radio said also that Taihung, 136 miles west of Shanghai, had been taken. The city, last Nationalist bastion north of the Yangtze except surrounded Tsilingtao, on the coast, surrendered on May 1, the radio said.

A Nationalist garrison communique earlier said that six Chinese warships captured at Nanking by the Communists had been sunk by government planes.

The statement came a few hours after the rumble of artillery was heard in the northwest of Shanghai. There was no sign of approaching Communists, but chaos in the financial market grew during the day.

The communique said the National Air Force in 10 days of bombing and strafing attacks had damaged two more of the 12 ships which had been left to guard Nanking when the rest fled to the Communists. In addition the government claimed the air force destroyed 10,000 Communist troops, 60 trucks, 500 river boats and 300 horse-drawn carts.

Figures Exaggerated Claim

The Nationalist radio report added announced a column of Communists was reached Sunday, 200 miles southwest of Shanghai. Guerrillas had been operating there, the radio said.

The sound of artillery fire here came from Nationalist warships' gunners were firing at river craft spotted by observers. The guns sounded as if they were 20 miles away.

During the day the press officer of Vice-Admiral Oscar C. Badger, United States Navy chief returned to Shanghai and announced the Navy was "still doing business at the same old stand."

American and British ships last week left the Whangpoo anchorage at Shanghai to avoid shells from Yangtze estuary. The press officer said Badger, aboard his flagship U.S.S. Rochester, had returned to Tsingtao, North China port used before the war by the United States western Pacific fleet.

Rail service still is operating between here and Hangchow but no service was reported south of Hangchow. That would indicate the Communists in force were south of that point only. Hangchow is 121 miles south of here.

Carrot Root Slices Grow 80 Times Original Size if Fed Cocoanut Milk

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

Rochester, N.Y., May 3 (AP)—Cocoanut milk, fed to little slices of living carrot root, makes them grow to 80 times their original sizes in three weeks.

This is something new in growth. It is much more growth than comes from any other nutritional stuff. It is something to speed growth is as yet unidentified.

The discovery was described in a paper today at the University of Rochester Department of Botany, where it was made by Dr. F. C. Steward and Dr. M. O. Mapli. They are using it to try to learn more about the mysterious nature of growth.

These pieces of carrot do not grow in soil, but in small glass tubes—one tube, about three inches long, for each slice. Hundreds of tubes are crowded in a dark laboratory, under brilliant electric lights which substitute for sunshine.

The tubes are fixed near the rims of tubular holes in racks underneath in banks like a multiple-tier bottle. In each tube there is the cocoanut milk and other nutrients. Each turn drenches the carrot cells in the tube there in the rate of once a minute.

The amazing size of growth is not the only unusual effect. The carrot cells are mature, the kind which normally have finished their growth.

One aid has been found toward solving the mystery. This is corn steep liquor, a by-product of cornelic. Corn milk is as effective as cocoanut in stimulating growth of carrot and artichoke tissue.

OPP Open Shop at Collingwood To Exhibit $300,000 Loot, Robbery Victims Will 'Shop'

Collingwood, May 3 (CP) — Ontario Provincial Police have taken over a former shoe store here to display tons of loot recovered recently at the nearby Georgian Bay summer resort of Wasaga Beach.

Robbery victims from all over Ontario will be invited to the "shop" for their stolen articles. The store, however, is not big enough to hold all of the $300,000 loot which includes jewels, a walk-in refrigerator, steel beams, and plumbing fixtures. Lady Eaton has identified the jewelry as articles stolen from her home at King, Ont. They were found Monday by a seven-year-old boy in an outhouse at the beach.

Gordon Barrett who owns a 14-room lodge at the beach was charged with receiving stolen goods, following the discovery of another cache last Tuesday. Police said the goods represented hauls made as long ago as 1947.

30 Seamen Fined $1,000 By Court in Australia

By The Canadian Press

From Australia, came claims by 30 Canadian seamen today that their refusal to sail the Australian vessel Tribalia from Brisbane resulted in a total fine by the owners against the men of $1,000.

The Tribalia sailed from the Canadian Seamen's Union, (T.L.C.), served 14 days in jail for their refusal to take their ship to sea. Their action was part of the strike called by the C.S.U. against east-coast Canadian shipowners after the latter signed an agreement with the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.).

Meanwhile, workers of Avonmouth, Eng., who stopped work in support of 30 striking crew members of the Canadian ship Gulfside, decided to return to work.

In Montreal, Clem Alman, general manager of the Sydney, N.S., plant of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, set at rest fears that the Gulf-area shipping strike might affect the Sydney steel industry.

"We have adequate supplies of ore to keep us going for some time," he said.

Three or four freighters that normally carry ore from mines at Bell Island, Nfld., to Sydney, left same strike-bound in Halifax on their normal trips after ore repairs. In Halifax it was reported the Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.) were preparing to man the freighters.

These were the other developments Monday:

Ottawa—A statement received from headquarters in London, England, said the International Transport Workers Federation decided a call for sympathetic support "in the strike.

Bristol, Eng.—About a dozen members of the British steamship Argunet left the ship in sympathy with striking crew members of the Canadian freighter Gulfside.

Saint John, N.B. — Eighteen C.S.U. strikers were fined $25 and costs each on conviction of creating a disturbance. The men were arrested last Thursday after a scuffle with the shipping federation of Canada. Joseph Ryan, I.L.A. president in New York warned last week, that the local might have the charter if it continued to support the C.S.U.

Vancouver—Thirty-four C.S.U. men were fined by the city police court Monday on charges of intimidating members of an unionist crew. The men were arrested April 8 when former crew members of the S.S. Riverspray boarded the ship and prevented a S.I.U. crew from taking over.

Freda Linton Freed on Charges Of Conspiracy

Montreal, May 3 — (CP) — Freda Linton was liberated — the Crown stressed this was not acquittal — today on charges of conspiracy to violate Canada's Official Secrets Act.

Philippe Brais, K.C., special Crown prosecutor, told the court that police investigation showed Miss Linton's association with others connected with the Soviet espionage ring-do Canada "did not link her in an overt act."

Therefore, he said, the Crown was obliged to withdraw charges against Miss Linton "for the present."

However, the Crown prosecutor added, if in the future evidence should be uncovered to show that Miss Linton actually committed an offence against the Official Secrets Act, "charges will be brought against her."

Bail Returned

Miss Linton's bail of $2,500 on which she had been free after her arrest April 13 was returned, leading to police and ending a hide-and-seek chase that, for three years, was returned to her and she was formally released.

Speaking to newspaper men afterwards, Miss Linton said:

"I am very glad that the government has at last decided to follow the British judicial course in my case by dropping all the charges against me.

"I always believe that the statements made about me in the Royal Commission's espionage report were entirely unfounded."

Dr. Brais said the Crown decided to withdraw the charges following study of the decisions of the Ontario Court of Appeal in the cases of James Scotland Benning and Dr. Henry Harris of Toronto who were acquitted on appeal of their convictions of violating the Official Secrets Act.

Husband Keeps Iron Lung Working Until Repaired

Chicago, May 3 — (AP)—Mrs. Shirley Palmer is alive today because her husband, Bob, is a deft hand with a beer-can opener.

Mrs. Palmer, 27, a pretty strawberry blonde, is in an "iron lung" in a Pullman bedroom here and smiled at her 31-year-old husband told the story. Bob is a veteran of 30 months of infantile paralysis eight months ago.

She is en route from Los Angeles to the Biggs Memorial Hospital, Ithaca, N. Y., for treatment.

As the train sped eastward Sunday from Laramie, Wyo., the armature of the electric motor which operated the "iron lung" air pump began to make noise. Nurse Margaret Aylward switched the lung from the train's power circuit to that of a two-hour battery supply.

The train conductor wired ahead to Cheyenne, Wyd., where several electricians boarded the train. Then Palmer began what was to be a marathon of more than 10 hours working the lung pump by hand.

He disconnected the electric motor on which operates the pump bellows, slipped a handle over a short shaft, and began pumping beside the apparatus, worked the pump up and down. Nurse Aylward counted "inspiration-four, one-two-three-four" in a monotonous chant to guide his timing.

"The electricians found that the armature was burned out," Palmer said. "They wired ahead to North Platte, Neb., for a new armature or a new power and pump unit. Meanwhile I sat there and pumped until the handle bent. I found a beer can and bent the handle back into shape with a can opener."

ABBOTT BUDGET NOT LAW SO CUTS ARE NOT OFFICIAL

Session After Election Likely to be Held

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP) — Parliament quit work to head for the hustings the other day without passing the budget that was the basis for the tax cuts that just caught up with pay cheques.

So a strange situation has come to pass, one that could land itself being booted around as what they sometimes call a political football in the impending election campaign.

The lower weekly or monthly deductions at source, now generally in force, are not official because the Cabinet made them law by regulation. The same goes for the removal of the automobile taxes which brought back five- and soft drinks and slimmed corporation taxes and other changes.

But the so-called Abbott Back Claus budget is not law — and conceivably might not become law if there was that budget that prompted the cuts.

Explanation Given

A Revenue Department official explained that the effect of deductions at source are merely "provisional" and that the final will come due in a little less than a year from that time no budget is approved by parliament then the taxes due April 30, 1950, will be the same as those at present. Before Mr. Abbott brought in his budget April 14 New York proved income-tax payer would owe the treasury money because the deductions were too small.

As Finance Department official took it up from there. If, he said, the Liberal party is returned to power June 27 it would probably call a fall session of the new parliament and reintroduce the same budget resolutions Finance Minister Abbott brought in the session which ended Saturday.

If another party comes in it will be able to make up its own mind about what it wants to do. It could let the Abbott budget or it might not.

No Reason to Lose Sleep

That's where the electioneering angle comes in. Conceivably any party can promise to improve the budget proposals within a few months if it comes to power.

For the tax-paying public there is at least no reason to lose any particular reason to lose sleep.

The Conservatives, generally speaking, gave no indication in the budget debate that they thought Mr. Abbott had gone too far. On the contrary their attacks mainly were designed to prove that he didn't go far enough.

Mr. Abbott has told them Mr. Abbott knocked off the income tax "temporary" surtaxes in ignorance that he would have to wait until there is a new budget before the taxpayers get any rebates on the money they have had deducted since Jan. 1.

ONE-MAN'S ATTEMPT TO RUN BLOCKADE BLOCKED BY SMILING RUSSIAN CORPORAL

By JOHN PEET

Berlin, May 3 (Reuters) — A one-man attempt to run the soviet blockade out of Berlin ended ignominously on the outskirts of the city today when a smiling Russian corporal looked at my British papers, shook his head, and said: "No Russian stamp, no good."

Armed with the papers which I had obtained from the British Occupation road to the west before the soviet blockade began, I reached a commission travel orders and a document "propusk" (movement order) printed in Russian and marked with a large Union Jack. I set out hopefully this morning for the west.

At the British checkpoint of the outskirts of the city, a British corporal, acting as if he had never heard of the Russians, registered my name in a book and issued me with a large number for me to hand in at the British control point at Helmstedt at the other end of the Russian zone.

Two hundred yards farther on the Soviet barrier stopped me. A Russian corporal ducked under the barrier and climbed up to the car.

He thumbed through my passport and looked at my movement order. He went away and in a few minutes returned with another corporal.

The second man looked at the passport with more system. After every page he shrugged.

"Why no Russian stamp?" he asked in broken German. It was my turn to shrug.

"No Russian stamp, no good — back to Berlin," he said. "Come again tomorrow. Russian stamp, good, go to Helmstedt."

He smiled.

I returned to Berlin to wait until the negotiations in New York secure that I may leave the city without a Russian stamp.

Communists Plot To Block Passage To Sea Reported

Planned to Scuttle Ship In Harbor Says Spokesman.

Shanghai, May 3 — (AP) — British, United States and French naval craft left the Shanghai waterfront because of a reported Communist plot to block their passage to the sea, a United States Navy spokesman said today.

The spokesman, from the staff of United States Vice-Admiral Oscar C. Badger, said "reliable sources" told the United States Navy that Communists planned to scuttle a ship near Woosung, the Chinese Nationalist garrison, that would have blocked the large ships from the sea.

Nipped in Bud

The spokesman evidently disclosed this "plot" to offset accusations that the United States Navy had "run out" on communist-threatened Shanghai.

Badger, U.S.N., told the Economic Club of Detroit, there must be "closer integration in trade with your country."

Canada was the best customer of the United States, importing nearly as much as 30 Latin American countries combined, but "only too often our growing manufacturing industries find themselves excluded from American markets. And yet it is our own industrialization that makes Canada your best customer."

He cited three ways in which "greater mutual benefit between your countries were being standardized:

1. Canada was turning from the traditional 303 calibre rifle for the army to the American .30 calibre rifle.

2. Canada will start production of the F86, speedy American jet fighter, and other "last military-al arrangements along similar lines will be possible."

3. Canadian forces have switched from British to U.S. "communication systems, battle procedures and battle orders."

The Dominion discovered during the Second World War that "the great and great weapons were caused through our having to make weapons and equipment British designs but according to North American industrial techniques, procedures and even universal integration in trade . . . American tariffs are much lower than British tariffs . . . American tariffs are much lower than British tariffs . . . Canadian goods than our tariffs are in excluding yours. Only by expanding our economy can this country can we maintain Canadian-American trade to present levels. And to do this, some lowering of trade barriers and I would be the first to admit, our tariffs should be worked out."

DEFENCE PLANS WILL BE CLOSER STATES CLAXTON

Defence Minister Says Canada Best Customer of United States

Detroit, May 3 (CP)— Canada is going to tie its defence plans more closely with those of the United States, Canada's Defence Minister, Brooke Claxton said Monday.

Detroit, 11, he told the Economic Club of Detroit, there must be "closer integration in trade with your country."

Canada was the best customer of the United States, importing nearly as much as 30 Latin American countries combined, but "only too often our growing manufacturing industries find themselves excluded from American markets. And yet it is our own industrialization that makes Canada your best customer."

Battery Assoc. Wants Col. Cousins Appointed

Editor's note: The letter which follows was sent to the chairman of the Board of Trustees by the 34th Battery Assoc., (active).

Miss Josephine Tickell,
Chairman,
Board of Education, City.

Dear Miss Tickell:—

It has come to our attention that one of our citizens Lt.-Col. J. M. Cousins has been overlooked in the appointment of principals for the city public schools. Lieutenant-Colonel Cousins has 18 years experience teaching in Belleville schools. The majority of this experience has been in the senior and served with Col. Cousins overseas and feel that his experience overseas has improved him as a teacher. We most of his men was teaching the boys in this organization how to be soldiers. We feel that Colonel Cousins has been done to Col. Cousins.

Words 'Coward,' 'Traitor' Hurled Against Tito

Moscow, May 3 — (Reuters) — "Coward" and "traitor" were some of the epithets thrown at the Yugoslav Marshal Tito in an article in the official communist party organ.

Gheorghe Gheorghiu - Dej, Romanian vice - premier and author of the article, accused Tito, leader of the party of "betraying proletarian internationalism, in the interests of aggressive and trading transactions with American, British and German capitalists."

He also called Tito "lackey of the Anglo - American imperialists" "enemy of the Soviet Union and the new democracies" and "betrayer of mankind" in the service of the war-mongers."

CHILDREN'S PICTURES

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—A resolution to ask theatre managers in York township to furnish more suitable pictures for children's matinees was passed by the township council Monday. Chief objection was that the type of picture shown to adults during the week was re-run at Saturday matinees in place of "child entertainment" pictures.

P.U.C. Approves Thurlow Adding 13,114 Ft. Water Mains For Residents in Suburban Area

Approval for the Township of Thurlow to construct an additional 13,114 feet of water mains in the municipality to provide water services for township residents in the suburban area, was granted by members of the Belleville Public Utilities at their regular meeting Monday afternoon.

In approving of the construction of the new water mains in the township area, the Utilities Commission agrees to provide the water for the new suburban customers and for water hydrants to afford fire protection in the area.

Terms of the agreement for the utilities to supply the water will be the same as the existing contract which calls for the township to pay the utilities a rate of 10 cents per 1,000 gallons of water used. An additional rate will be charged for each fire hydrant.

Township areas in which the new mains are to be laid will be made included Maclou Road north of the city, certain streets in the D.V.A. small holdings area north of Dundas Street and on the Maclou Road, and in the Herchimer Ave. district both north and south of the 2 Highway.

May Enlarge Plant

In agreeing to provide the extra water needed to supply the additional customers in the township area, members of the Utilities Commission, also agreed, at some length the fact that recent growth in the area and provision for rural services meant additional plant equipment for the filtration plant.

Mr. O. H. Scott stated that Good & Steele, engineers, had recommended that provision be made for a population of 25,000 which would call for a pumping capacity of eight million gallons in ten hours.

Limit Not Reached

Mr. Scott pointed out that while it was profitable for the utilities to supply the suburban areas there was a limit beyond which the customers could not be pulled, however, had not yet been reached in Belleville, and Mr. Scott said the supply of water and electrical services to the rural area would keep ahead at the lowest possible level.

At the present time there is approximately 180 miles of water users being supplied from the city filtration plant. The rural hydro area serviced by the local commission is much more extensive with 2,019 such users being serviced at the end of March of this year.

There was a brief discussion on the new lights in the downtown section of the city, Mr. Scott explaining that while the particular type of lamps installed the illumination intensity would be increased at the time the lamp had been in use.

This was in contrast to the previous type which gradually lost a percentage of illumination.

Difference of Opinion

There was a slight difference of opinion as to the value of the colored Christmas lights strung across Front Street as result of the installation of the new lights. It was felt by Chairman Russell Wotten that the efficiency of the colored lights would be lessened by the new lights being considerably brighter.

Commission member Frank Pollwell considered that the colored lights should be retained. It was explained the colored lights were owned by the city.

Contracts for new pumping equipment, installation at the filtration plant were signed, while approval of the Public Utilities Commission was granted for salaries of local commissioners, hers to be increased $100 per year, from $300 to $400 for members and from $400 to $500 for the commission chairman.

Call for Tenders On Extension Of Filter Plant

Tenders for extensions to the Belleville water purification plant to provide for increased pumping capacity of four million gallons daily, were called for by the Belleville Public Utilities Commission.

Plans call for a 26 ft. by 77 ft. extension to the present filter building and completion of two new filters which would bring the filtering capacity of the plant up to six million gallons.

To the north of the present filter plant will be constructed, this to ultimately house new high lift Diesel auxiliary pumping units. Two of these pumping units will be installed at the present time.

Over the pumping room section will be constructed a new chlorination room.

Estimated cost of the above work is approximately $91,000, with tenders to close on May 12th.

It was explained that the increased pumping capacity at the local filtration plant was necessary to take care of additional consumption requirements resulting from recent city expansion and extension of the water service to outlying suburban areas in Thurlow and Sidney townships.

CLAIMS COMEDIAN WAS HIS FATHER

A Los Angeles, Calif, newspaper reports that the claim of 31-year-old airline executive, William R. Morris, of Dallas, Texas, to a son's share of the $800,000 estate of the late comedian, W. C. Local Employment Picture Has Improved With Spring

With the opening of spring the employment picture in Belleville and district is considerably better than it was during the winter months. It was stated today by H. T. Reed, manager of the local employment service office.

Take Names of "Claim"

During the past four weeks approximately 250 men and women have taken out their "claim" at the Belleville office. At the present time there are approximately 400 men and women in Belleville and in Hastings who are out of work and receiving unemployment benefits.

The number of women "on claim" at the present time is about 90, it was stated.

Approximately 50 per cent of the total number of unemployed at Belleville are in the "unskilled" category. There are quite a number of semi-skilled carpenters who could be put into jobs as soon as residential or other construction gets underway.

There is a steady demand for bricklayers, pipe fitters and plumbers, it was stated.

There is no critical shortage of farm labor at the moment with an additional 15 per cent of persons to arrive within the next two weeks expected to take care of most of the immediate requirements.

Farm Workers for West

The employment service again this season expects to bring to Ontario a number of farm workers from Western Canada to assist in the harvest. Farmers in Belleville district wishing to secure such help are asked to have their application in to the employment office by June 15th as the number of workers brought East will be based on the applications as of that date.

Shingle Roof Takes Fire From Sparks

Sparks falling onto a shingle roof of a building on Sandford Street caused firemen a brief run to that district Monday afternoon as the roof took afire.

The alarm appeared at 1.30 p.m. and firemen Corbin Lock and firemen were mis-directed as to the address in the run. But it all turned out right in the end as employees of a concrete block plant on a hose on the burning shingles and the blaze was practically extinguished before firemen arrived. But very little damage was reported as result of the blaze.

Monday evening at 7 seven truck firemen were called to the city hall where sparks were seen rolling from the city hall chimney. The call turned out to be in the nature of a false alarm as the sparks were apparently caused by the city hall janitor who was cleaning out the chimney.

POLICE COURT

Again traffic cases, composed of charges against motorists for speeding, violating "stop" street regulations and for operating a vehicle without driver's license, composed a major portion of the morning police court docket. All traffic cases were settled out of court.

A number of L.C.A. cases were heard, while other cases were entered charges under the Indian Act, preferred by the R.C.M.P. All traffic cases and L.C.A. case case under the Deserted Wives' Act, completed the morning docket which was heard before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

British Officer Plunges to Death From Building

Manila, May 3 — (AP) — John Herbert Dickinson, British chargé d'affaires here, plunged to his death today from the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank building.

Police said he took his own life.

Police said they found three suicide notes in the diplomat's cost pocket.

One note was addressed to Dickinson's wife, Gwendolyn, of Toronto, and another to Ronald Finlay, British Consul.

The third letter, addressed to police, revealed that Dickinson was suffering severe depression.

Friends of Dickinson said he had not fully recovered from two serious injuries, including a fracture of the skull, received while he was serving with the British embassy in Poland.

These friends said Dickinson was waylaid and beaten by Russian uniformed soldiers in 1947.

The so-called instrument of ratification was deposited with the United States government at 12:15 p.m., EDT, by the Canadian Ambassador, Hume Wrong. The treaty will formally come into force when the majority of the other 11 nations do likewise.

The document was approved without dissent by both Chambers of the Canadian parliament shortly before Canada's last week. The Commons' vote was 168-0 and the Senate took no formal count.

Prime Minister St. Laurent signed the instrument of ratification Saturday just about the time parliament dissolved.

Report Pope Pius Will Receive Princess

The Princess and her party drove on to the Vittoria Hotel overlooking the Gulf of Naples, and prepared for an excursion to Capri.

The Princess, on a month's holiday in Italy, will leave Sorrento Thursday for Rome.

Before she left Britain, two Protestant organizations asked the King to see that his 18-year-old daughter did not have an audience with the Pope.

"The long historical struggle against papal influence in the reigning House" of Britain was broken when Protestant bodies won the Protestant Truth Society of Britain, and the National Union of Protestants, said in London, Ireland.

There has been no official comment from Buckingham Palace.

Christians Must Not Compromise With Atheism

—Bishop Brougall

Hamilton, May 3 (CP)—Christians could not compromise with Communism, the Right Rev. Ralph Brougall, Bishop of the Diocese of Niagara, told the clergy and delegates to the Synod of the Niagara, meeting here today.

"There is no compromise with the church while discussing the implications of the report of the Lambeth Conference."

The appointment of the Rt. Rev. William G. White, D.D., as Honorary Assistant Bishop was also announced.

Taking his place as President of the Synod, Bishop Brougall said that he was conscious of nearing an anniversary of great significance to himself. "If God spares me until June 11 next, I shall have completed 50 years in the sacred ministry of the church, of which 44 have been spent in the Diocese of Niagara and over 16 as Bishop of the Diocese."

On communism the Bishop said: "Christians whose first loyalty is to Christ can go along with all those good in the social justice, but cannot compromise with a social philosophy that is Atheistic and denies the sovereignty of God in Christ."

Calling the word primarily connoted an ideal of brotherhood and social justice, today it had a sinister meaning. This was because the extreme proponents regard the idea of God as essential to their scheme of totalitarianism, and the means of achieving its ends was by way of revolution and the disregard of the rights of the individual to freedom of conscience and moral decency.

The Christian holds Atheism to be unjust — any social system built upon it is bound, not only to be disastrous for man's welfare, but contrary to the will of God.

New Government Will be Formed For Trans-Jordan

Amman, Trans-Jordan, May 3 (AP)—Premier Tewfik El Huda Pasha's government resigned today. King Abdullah ordered him to form a new government for Trans-Jordan which will include three refugees from Arab Palestine.

(This move was interpreted by some sources abroad as a step by Abdullah to annex at least a part of non-Israeli Palestine.)

The Premier, his cabinet carrying out the King's instructions, began meetings at once on the formation of the new government.

King Abdullah has been asked by some Palestinian Arabs to extend his Kingdom across the Jordan to include the Arab part of Palestine.

Informants in Lebanon say the new cabinet will include one representative each from north, central and south Palestine. These informants said two Moslems and one Christian have agreed to represent Arab Palestine in a new government.

SEND OUTFIDDLER

Philadelphia, May 3 — (AP)— Philadelphia Phillies today sent outfielder Johnny Blatnik to Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, subject to 24-hour recall.

The 28-year-old player, drafted a year ago from Wilkes-Barre in the Eastern League, was an early spring selection for the Phils in 1948. He fell off later on and wound up with a .260 batting average.

It's the limit, caught by Murdo Curran, Brantford. Eight speckled trout taken with a fly north of Peterborough represent the legal limit of 20 pounds.—Chandler.

Childless Women in Canada Seek to Adopt British Children

London, May 3 (CP)—A Canadian woman whose parents emigrated from Scotland to Ontario more than 30 years ago is returning to Britain this month in the hope of adopting a baby girl.

She is one of many childless women in Canada, Australia and other parts of the Commonwealth who are seeking to adopt British children now living as possible.

Many of these requests come to Cyril Bavin, Migration Secretary of the Overseas League in London. Next week people in the large Dominions seek British youngsters," Bavin said. "A few months ago a two-year-old London boy was adopted by a couple in Bermuda.

Bavin said many well-intentioned people in the Dominions and Colonies 'are keen to give new opportunities to children from the Mother Country, particularly those from homes affected by the war."

"The difficulty is finding children whose parents are willing to part with them. Most parents — even those in poor circumstances — are quite naturally anxious to follow the children if they go Abroad.

"In some cases, fortunately, people overseas are willing to act as guardians to the children until their parents can join them."

A woman in Australia applied directly to an exa- end London family desiring to adopt their youngest daughter, whose photograph she had seen at a friend's house.

"Australia needs good British stock," she wrote. "I am of English descent but unfortunately I have no children of my own."

The child's parents are considering the offer—but find it hard to come to a decision.

A party of 30 children will sail for New Zealand soon under auspices of the Dominion government. All have foster-parents or guardians waiting for them.

Dock Workers Return to Jobs

Avonmouth, Gloucestershire, England, May 3 (Reuters)—Avonmouth dockers, who stopped work in support of the 28 striking crew members of the 1,100-ton Canadian ship Gulfside, decided today to return to work at once, leaving the union leaders to negotiate for withdrawal of the ship's new crew.

The dockers walked out after giving the Andros Shipping Company until 8 a.m. BST Monday to call off a substitute crew flown from Canada.

Late Monday night the crew was still aboard.

After a meeting at the dock gate early today, the dockers resumed work in response to appeals by their union leaders. They stipulated that their union should make representations that the substitute crew should be withdrawn immediately.

A union official said after the meeting action was taken by the men:

"We have agreed to make representations to the authorities and to use every endeavor to bring about the withdrawal of the

B.C.I. Cadets and Cadettes Give Colorful Display on Campus at Annual Inspection

The campus of Belleville Collegiate Institute was the scene of colorful action today as the boys and girls cadet corps of the school underwent the annual inspection.

Brilliant sunshine streamed down from a cloudless sky on one of the most colorful action spectacles the school has produced in years. A large crowd of spectators fringed the campus long before the stirring music of the Collegiate Band under Lieut. Harry Friel opened the activities.

Nearly four hundred cadets, trim in their natty khaki uniforms with shoulder patches of red swung into formation on the campus and lined up to receive order. Under the command of Cadet Lieut.-Col. D. Dudley, the corps showed up to excellent advantage in the training given by Regimental Sergeant Major Augus Duffy, and P.E. Regiment and his assistant instructors of the administration and training staffs of the local reserve army units, executed the manoeuvres like veterans.

Inspecting Unit

Air Cadet Officer Captain A. C. Grayes, Kingston inspected the corps, while the guests were Brigadier J. E. Genet, Major Max Porritt, M.C., Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; Hon. Major Arthur Smith, Chaplain; Major Frederick Oliver, 9th Anti-Tank Regiment; Captain Wesmer, A. and T. Staff, 9th Anti-Tank Regiment; George Cox, M.B.E. and Mr. George Wishart representing the Board of Education.

The inspection completed the corps swung back into marching formations. In a smart efficient manner the corps paraded in close column of platoons past the reviewing stand where Brigadier Genet again took the salute.

Girls Natilly Attired

Equally as smart as the boy's corps were the natilly garbed corps of girl cadettes in their white blouses, blue skirts, some of them the distinct "New Look" style, and blue wedge caps, the three hundred girls made an attractive picture as they swung up and down the campus in the various manoeuvres under the "General Salute." They too marched in close column of platoons past the reviewing stand where Brigadier Genet again took the salute.

Senior officers of the boys' corps are Lieut.-Col. Dudley commanding officer; Major R. McMillan, second-in-command, Adjutant Captain, Rev. Frank, and company commanders, Majors A. Bob Wesmer, Hon. Ross Gleed, Jas. Hepburn and Jock McBride. The Regimental Sergeant Major is Ken Moore.

Lieut.-Col. Meribeth Miller commands the girls' cadette corps. Second in command is Major Sheila Keen, the Adjutant Captain Helen Buchanan. Company commanders are Majors Bertha Thompson, Merylla Payne and Merylin Seldon.

The Stadacona Band, emblematic of the best cadet company and the A.L.C. Regiment Trophy, was awarded annually to the winning company in the girls' corps were presented to the winning companies. The announcement of award was not made in time for publication today.

Colorful Display

Colorful displays formed a fitting background to the general inspection picture.

A mass display of physical training was given by the entire boys' corps while a selected company of girl cadettes garbed in white presented an attractive picture with their display of physical training.

Following a special physical training display, the crack band of the school under Conductor Lieut. Croll swung up and down the campus in musical manoeuvres. The band gave full evidence of its careful training given them by Bandmaster Alfred Cooper. It received a the ovation from the crowd at the end of its display.

Military Vehicles

A huge tank chassis upon which was mounted a seventeen pounder artillery piece headed a formation of military vehicles manned by members of the local reserve army units, each of the staffs and cadets. Included were military trucks, a jeep, scout car and a jeep hauling a six-pounder anti-tank gun.

The campus became a hive of activity as various displays and demonstrations got under way. A smart section of the Belleville Sea Cadet Corps marched into action with rifles at the slope, likewise a small arms training squad of boy cadets. Signal, the first aid squads gave their demonstrations, while a mortar crew also demonstrated their skill. On the corner of the campus a map reading section was busy while the sea cadets gave demonstration of knots and lashes.

Campus Policed

So well was the "policed" the campus during the inspections and demonstrations keeping the large crowd well off the scene of activity, Cadet Instructor Captain Les Shiels aided by other members of the school teaching staff saw to it that everything was kept off in a smooth manner.

At the conclusion of the programme, the Governor General Plaque placed this year, was unveiled in a brief but impressive ceremony by Hon. Major the Rev. Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas Church, on behalf of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Prizes were presented to the best cadet in each platoon, and the best. The winners were No. 1 Platoon, Brock Stackhouse; No. 2, Bob Wesmer; No. 3, Ron Gleed; No. 4, D. Carter; No. 5, P. Annis; No. 6, Bruce Smith; No. 7, Rod Wesley; No. 8 Harold McMechan; No. 9, Ron Maxwell; No. 10, Sid Hepburn; No. 11, Bob Wesmer and John Francis, the band, Glen Cornell.

PARTNERSHIP OF NATIONS

Chambers of Commerce of Canada and the United States are fraternizing at this time. Canadian Chamber members are represented at the United States Chamber meeting in Washington.

This co-operation and fraternizing of the membership of two national bodies, according to Canadian President Henry O. Birks who spoke at the Washington meeting today, mean that "our two national chambers have shown the way in our Canadian-United States Joint Committee which for some fifteen years has been working steadily to further mutual economic interests of our two nations."

This community of interest between the two nations' national organizations has as its underlying principle of co-operation — the two principles on which the future peace of the world rests. He told the American Chamber today that "it is in the achievement of an understanding and co-operative spirit amongst all the great democratic nations of the world that we must place our hopes for international peace."

He pointed to the signing of the North Atlantic Pact as one of the finest exhibitions of co-operation, the treaty linking two nations in the New World with the nations of the Old World who have signed the treaty. This alliance he sees a powerful force to help maintain the peace of the globe.

But he warned the gathering that alliance means nothing unless citizens of these great democracies which sign the treaty back up the pact and unless the spirit which exists between the signatory states embraces the same friendly understanding as is existing between the two nations in North America.

Canada's link with the nations of the Old World in the Commonwealth and her two languages place her in a peculiarly favorable position in influencing world movements.

His opinion is that if the United States and Canada show the proper leadership, "North Atlantic nations can and will with the wholehearted support of the United States, Great Britain and Canada hold the next century in partnership."

MERRY MONTH OF MAY

Away from April with its chill and yet not too warm as to rival heat of the summer days comes the merry month of May, merry because it delights the heart of man with beauty in the fields, the woodlands, with the green grass everywhere growing its green mantle upon the earth's surface and because it is so suggestive of the weeks ahead with beauty crowning the labor of nature in so many forms of flowers and leaves. May is the model month of the year for the spring has not yet reached its meridian nor has the heat climbed to the heights it reaches in July and August. It is a symbol of the young year in which all its growth and beauty.

The hearts of children, boys and girls, men and women are tuned to nature's music at this time. May is the month of flowers

"Who from her green lap throws
The yellow cowslip and the pale primrose."

Milton hails the month as "bounteous May that doth inspire

Mirth, and youth and young deedire:
Woods and groves are of thy dressing,
Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing,
Thus we salute thee with our early song
And welcome thee and wish thee long."

VIRUS X

Long years ago, as I recall,
When I was but a youngster small,
Whene'er a cold took hold of me
The mother gave me flaxseed tea.
Her remedies for colds were few
The simple cures all women knew
But this she trusted as the best:
A mustard plaster on the chest.

To her a cold was "Just a cold."
But now 'tis Virus X, I'm told.
The corpuscles, both red and white,
Must counsel be by day and night,
And there are special pills to take
If legs and arms and muscles ache,
That done, the nurse must find a spot
To give a penicillin shot.

Though not recorded on the chart
That's just another game of art
The patient as the target aim
Is but a bull's eye gets the nurse a prize!
To cure a cold, the doctors say,
This is the very latest way
Achieving in a day or
What mustard plasters used to take.

Consumers of gas in this city will soon have the finest "make" that it is possible to procure; the new plant, decided upon three years ago by the city council will be ready to put into operation by July 1st. In all the plant will cost $100,000 and when completed the price of gas should be materially decreased and the debentures, which will be issued, should be fully retired in due course. The manager of the plant is William Harder. Yesterday afternoon several members of the Chamber of Commerce inspected the plant and were favorably impressed.

The G.T.R. baseball team pulled a great surprise last night at the Y.M.C.A. in a game with the G.T.R. Shopmen for the championship of group 3 in the city basketball league. The score at the end of the first period was 11 to 6 in favor of the G.T.R. team, but the beginning of the second period St. Michael's men did a good work and tied the score. Holland shooting for the G.T. R. S. was exceptionally good and the G.T.R. soon had the lead again and held it till the end of the game. Mr. Harvey of the G.T.R. is to be congratulated upon the work of his team. Hurley was not at his best last night owing to a crippled leg, which was unfortunate for St. Michael's as he is the best man they have. The following composed the team: St. Michael's: Slaughter, O'Neil, H. Hurley, Wims and Young, Subs, Barlow and Fraveyer. G.T.R.: Barber, Holland, Joss, Miles and Schreiber, Subs, Miles and Follwell.

At the YMCA the St. Andrew's Presbyterian basketball team met the YMCA team, the score being 46 to 28. The team was composed the teams: St. Andrew's Armstrong, Cooper, Fieldhouse and Kelly; Y.M.C.A. Hitchon, Barlow, Marshall and Woodley.

CONCERNING MIRACLES

Spring is a time of promise. One looks on the miracle of nature unconscious that God, through nature, is about to enact again the age-long drama of Easter and rebirth. The landscape has appeared dead now for months but down at the centre of every living thing his been a force which needed only the beckoning of sunshine and the warm winds of spring breezes to call it into life. The sap begins to flow, the landscape is made vivid with a riotous color of blossoms. Then come the leaves which will do their part in work, for trees and men in the coming months. The grain springs up, the wild flowers, and the cultivated living world is again being revived.

Has the thought ever occurred to you that the way people do not believe in miracles is because are so common? The human race is literally inundated. Every time you raise your arm, transmit a thought into physical action, a miracle as great as that of the resurrection takes place. Raising the arm is not as significant a miracle as the resurrection, but is as surely a miracle as the resurrection. The flowering world, the rising of the sap, the sun, the mysterious currents in the great oceans, the planets, the stars at night, the rustling of the breeze — behind all this is the Power, and where that Power is, there is God.

Between Powers May be Coming

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The east-west negotiations over raising the Berlin blockade have made sufficient progress to warrant the statement that we may be approaching a period of better relations.

That expressing "cautious optimism" strikes me as particularly appropriate, with emphasis on the "cautious." Any agreement which may grow out of the present conferences naturally will be a matter of gratification — but it must be regarded in the light of history.

The new relationship will rumble and grind before it begins to spell, but sooner or later it will erase 1948 and the present revolution which the Bolsheviks launched a generation ago after the overthrow of the Czarist throne will never halt until either it succeeds or it stops proper.

Having divested ourselves of wishful thinking we are justified in entertaining the hope that there may be improvement in relations between Russia and the Western blocs.

The problem of Europe now is the disposition of Germany, long the economic keystone and driving motive of the continent.

Great Prize

Control of a United Germany undoubtedly is the great prize which Russia seeks and Many observers believe that's the real reason why the Soviet Union has been so unyielding about the raise the blockade of Berlin and reopen the land routes to the rest of the whole German question.

If the powers could reach some agreement regarding the final disposition of the German problem it would seem as a long step toward elimination of the cold war in Europe.

We might see the Soviet bloc and the Western bloc settle down on their side by side in an armed truce.

Overseas Buyers Entertained by London's Mayor

London, May 3 (CP)—Overseas buyers were entertained Monday night by the Lord Mayor of London and applauded a statement by Hon. C. D. Howe that Canada hopes to buy more from the United States and buy more from Britain."

"The address by Canada's Trade Minister was received with enthusiasm," the Times said.

Howe said it would be painful for Canada if trade with Britain or the United States "to the exclusions of the other."

"Canada," he said, "we must do all in our power to bring out the best in both our two particular customers into a better balance — a balance which can be accomplished by expansion of trade rather than by contraction."

The Canadian exhibit part of a huge contingent of buyers here for the British Industries Fair—an occasion for manufacturers to display their wares to foreign buyers.

Importers flocked to the two Canadian hotel receptions of Norris Dingham.

Canadian importers found special interest in displays of textiles, leather goods, chinaware and pottery. W. F. Crouch, Canadian trade commissioner to Australia, turned out, Ont., expressed interest in a Canadian firm's composing sawdust and wooden chips into board.

Must Buy More

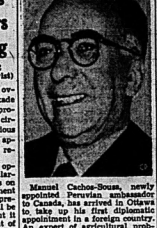
Buyers at the Lori Mayor's dinner included Harold Wilson, President of the Board of Trade, reply to the Canadian Trade Minister.

Wilson said: "I can't believe there was a full realization in Canada that if we are to have more, Canada must be prepared to buy more."

"This in turn places on British Industry the obligation of doing everything in its power to supply Canada the goods Canada wants at prices which compare, quality for quality, with those asked by any other nation."

Wilson said he was looking towards his coast-to-coast tour of Canada later this month in which "I shall see for myself what the prospects are for increasing our exports to Canada—and what we ther steps we need to take."

The Mayor, who returns to Canada Saturday, told The Canadian Press he found the function "very successful."



"I have no particular concessions in mind regarding British exports to Canada," he generally makes such concessions as they arise.

"All the same, I am anxious to do everything possible that will assist Anglo-Canadian trade."

Regina, May 3 — (CP) — Saskatchewan's 125,000 farmers, after 10 years of good crops and prices, seem faced with their severest test since the drought-ridden '30s when many left the Prairies in droves.

The biggest grasshopper plague in 10 years has been forecast. The Agricultural Department Monday reported the first grasshoppers of the type which caused crop damage were found hatched at Lemberg near the Alberta border.

Dust storms, as have swept the southern part of the province with a severity unexperienced since the 1930s, were in the Swift Current district, in the southwest corner of the province, are filled with valuable top soil and farmers in the area were waiting for rain before they seed crops.

An unidentified farmer of the Allan district, 30 miles southeast of Saskatoon, said dust storms had blown away his top soil, exposing millions of grasshopper eggs securely anchored to the hard earth. The farmer said he had decided to quit farming and had begun to sell his equipment.

Agriculture Minister J. C. Nollet said: "The greater menace at present overshadows the possibility of a drought year. Eight hundred carloads of poison bait are available for distribution."

In its first crop report this year, the Provincial Agriculture Department said 30 per cent of Saskatchewan's anticipated 19,800,000-acre spring wheat crop and 10 per cent of the coarse grains already seeded.

The wheat seeding was about three weeks earlier than a year ago. Sub-soil moisture was generally "poor to fair."

An agricultural official said the crop picture was "vulnerable but not greatly hopeless." Its said April in Saskatchewan seldom is free from dry conditions between poor and bumper crops depends upon early summer rains.

IMPROVED NUTRITION WILL SAVE YOUR (CHILDREN'S) TEETH

Ammoniated dentrifices will be very helpful, said the head of the Dental Therapeutics department, University of Illinois, but we can't be sure they will prevent dental decay.

The question is now under investigation in Peoria and Aurora schools where 1700 6th grade children are half-way through a two year experiment. Twice a day, under supervision of their teachers, the 1700 children clean their teeth, half of them using ammoniated dentrifice, the other half using ordinary dentifices. When the $50,000 experiment is concluded the State Health Department will examine the teeth of the 1700 children and report the results.

But I hereby thrust my neck out to say that the results will not be worth 50 pennies, for any difference in the number of cavities or the extent of decay in the final examination may prevail will be insignificant.

The theory that decay of the teeth is caused by acids produced by fermentation of sugar in the mouth by the action of bacteria acidophilus and other bacteria usually found in the mouth, is still only a theory although some dentists proceed on the assumption that it is the established fact.

Probably no dentist would regard the conductor of this column as an authority—and I hope no one of my readers should take what I say here for what it may be worth as my opinion of a student of hygiene and nutrition of an old doctor. Robert M. Stephen, D.D.S., who said in a symposium on dental defects in children before the section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dec. 28, '47:

"While as a rule the consumption of relatively large amounts of sugar is apparently conducive to a much higher caries" (dental decay) "rates in humans, certain groups there is evidence that in some individuals other factors may confer a natural resistance to dental caries."

Dr. Stephen suggested that when there natural resistance factors are better understood and knowledge of them more widely applied people might consume the large amounts of sugar they now consume without the production of caries.

I venture to suggest that good nutrition is the chief natural resistance factor, and good nutrition begins at least a year before the baby is born and continues through infancy, childhood and early adult life.

Good nutrition is something few of us enjoy. It is practically impossible to maintain good nutrition even in childhood if the child's calories are derived principally from sugar and starch — as is usually the case.

It is practically impossible for a growing child to enjoy the physical benefits of good nutrition unless the child consumes not less than 1¼ pints — three large glasses — of fresh milk daily—or the equivalent in the form of cheese, cream, skim milk, powdered milk, buttermilk, unsweetened condensed milk, powdered whole milk, powdered skim milk or other items consisting mainly of milk.

Remember, all of the materials for building good teeth — "milk" teeth as well as "permanent" teeth — is supplied in milk. Remember, it is not the best material for building and keeping the permanent teeth sound is supplied in milk.

The heighth of absurdity is the attempt to supply milk in the unfortunate children can buy pop, candy, cake and other forms of sugar, instead of rich, fluid such as milk, cheese, meat sandwiches and the like. Many school cafeteria is the place where milk should be found but this first principles of nutrition in a practical way.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Your readers who purchase any amount of plain wheat from Ardern's will find it a satisfactory store. I mix one cupful wheat, 1 teaspoonful salt dissolved in ½ cup amount of water, 1 tablespoonful of butter in frying pan, and when hot pour mixture in to toast just enough to dry salt on surface. Very tasteful of popcorn. (Mrs. J. DeM.)

Answer Thank you. Why every one should keep a supply of plain wheat on hand and use it in the every day family life, and how to use it in various good recipes is described in the pamphlet "Wheat" which I will be glad to bring and inclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

CONTENTMENT

Contentment is no modern idea. It is something for which men have striven since mankind ever since man was created. The Latin poet and philosopher Horace (65-8 B.C.) had this to say: "Whatever hour God gives for your day take it with grateful hand nor put off joys from year to year; so that whatever place you have been you may say that you have lived happily."

We gain the greatest measure of contentment by taking things as they come, handling and mastering them as they come, and not worrying about the results. The results will take care of themselves. Great material success (or possessions) gives no assurance of contentment. People with the least of material possessions are often far happier than those with many.

Contentment is a thing of the mind and heart. Paul, in writing to the Philippians, said: "I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content." But this doesn't mean that we should be something that one earns. We cannot satisfied with our lot, stand still, and remain static. Contentment is not gain contentment by having someone else earn it for us.

Day by day, year by year, we may keep getting a clearer idea of the meaning of contentment. We may put little and little into the attempts to gain contentment. Little efforts will bring satisfaction. Contentment is something which we must discover. It's a "state," as the Apostle Paul suggested.

We cannot become contented ourselves, however, for so long as there is no contentment about us, or in the world, at large. We are bound, then, to help others to this. What contentment we have should be shared with others. by example.

You may have heard the old story of the King who sent his agents out to search for a contented man. They found a man contented him, to bring his shirt back that he might wear it. They found that man, singing by the roadside, but when they asked him for his shirt he replied that he had none!

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A man I know—though this is the twentieth century—always removes his right shoe, right sock, right glove first, for luck.

It is no trivial matter with him. For thirty years he has followed with a dedication almost religious, the same routine in both dressing and undressing. Right sock, right shoe first. Right leg into his pants, first. He tells the mild boy in the barber shop in the middle of cutting his finger nails. He always starts with the little finger on the right hand. In being farthest right when his hands are held together. He always shaves the right side of his face first. He always gives the right the precedence. He credits to this right formula the fact that he is alive, that he has some money, that his life is not altogether a failure. He believes, so he says, a sense of order, of decent and orderly procedure. If he failed in his superstition, he feels his life would fall apart in indescribable confusion and disorder.

The fact of the matter is, the vast majority of us unconsciously do the same thing. We do all these small processes of our daily lives in the same order. The members of my family the past two or three days. When they sit down at the table, they always slide onto the chair from the same side, and with the identical movements. They even shake loose their table napkins in the same side, every meal — some from the right, others from the left, and others with a sort of shuffling motion on the lap. Every night, when I enter their bedrooms, after they have retired, I find them in the right arrangement of the bedclothes. Last night, on retiring, I determined to keep watch on my family's habits. I did so, without thing unconsciously, in a natural manner. The result was startling. It was terrible. Nothing looked right. I ended up by hanging all my clothes in the clothes closet, seat as they are. I don't put into words I felt miserably unsettled that I had got into it from the wrong order and I hardly slept all night.

Construction in Toronto May be Tied up by Strike

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Possibility of a tie-up of all building construction in Toronto arose today from a dispute over the union shop.

The Construction Laborers' Union (A.F.L.) Monday pulled its members off two big construction jobs, the new Hospital for Sick Children on University Avenue and the new Bank of Montreal building at Bay and King Streets. Workers in other trades refused to pass picket lines at these jobs.

The union said pickets would be placed around all other local construction jobs if no agreement is reached in its dispute with the Toronto Builders Exchange, representing the contractors.

The union demands a modified union shop which would compel all laborers now employed by member firms of the Builders Exchange to join the A.F.L. union as a condition of employment.

The Builders Exchange said that its member contractors have refused to sign an agreement because the A.F.L. union does not represent the majority of their employees.

The union Monday night rejected a proposal by which the Builders Exchange promised to hire union members where additions to the laborers' staff are required. The Exchange reserved the right to hire non-A.F.L. members if the union could not supply men.

Union organizer Mike Nicols said the union is insisting that all laborers at present employed should become members of the union within 30 days.

The Builders Exchange in a statement said it had agreed on a wage scale calling for 95 cents an hour starting rate, with time-and-a-half for all work over nine hours in any day, or over 48 hours in any week. The offer of the employers also included double time for Saturdays and holidays, and vacations with pay.

Britain, France To Join Talks Of U.S. and Russia

New York, May 2 (CP)— Britain and France will be brought into the secret conference being held between the United States and Russia on lifting of the Berlin blockade, a United States spokesman said Monday.

Delegates of the three western countries are expected to meet later this week with Jakob A. Malik, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister.

A spokesman for the United States delegation said the three western powers will meet today to decide on a common procedure in the negotiations. The main question would be setting a date for lifting the blockade and calling a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers as proposed by Russia.

The British representative at Monday's meeting with Jessup was Sir Alexander Cadogan. Jean Chauvel will talk for France. Both are United Nations delegates.

Negotiations so far between Jessup and Malik have been carried on amid strictest secrecy.

C.C.F. Launches 5-Point Program For Campaign

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)— Confident of emerging from the June 27 election with at least enough seats to form the official opposition, the C.C.F., has launched a five point campaign program, David Lewis, national secretary, said Monday.

Mr. Lewis told a press conference the C.C.F. would go to the people on a program covering housing, socialization, social security, international trade and health insurance.

The socialization program, he said, was designed to alleviate a feeling of insecurity among Canadians deeper than at any time since the Second World War. The C.C.F. would institute national planning with socialization to include basic industries like steel along with the banks, the Canadian Pacific Railway, packing plants, farm implement companies and fertilization plants.

If elected the CCF would go ahead with a contributory national health insurance plan, subsidized housing and would introduce policies designed to bring trade "a bit nearer Mr. Lewis described as its proper position—to be carried on at an inter governmental level.

Mr. Lewis described Canada's housing situation as a "disgrace" and said the government plans had been a "complete flop."

The CCF he said, will have 200 candidates in the field with a full slate in all constituencies west from Ontario and partial representation in other districts. There are 262 seats of which the CCF currently holds 22.

A campaign fund of $250,000 was the party objective and would sponsor trips across the Dominion by national leader M. J. Coldwell; CCF premier of Saskatchewan, along with shorter speaking tours by other CCF members of parliament.

Mr. Lewis referred to the recent decision by the provincial party convention in British Columbia which voted 54 to 46 in opposition to the North Atlantic Security Pact. He said this in no way affected national policy which was in support of the pact.

He explained that the vote had been taken in the final hour of the convention and that if the other 34 delegates had still been in attendance the count would have been reversed.

Publicity Given As Reason for Not Holding Vote

Dresden, Ont., May 3 (CP) — Mayor Walter S. Wesse told town council Monday night that newspaper publicity was the reason council had indefinitely postponed a proposed referendum on a by-law to license restaurants to serve Negroes.

At its last meeting, council of this western Ontario town had voted to place before the voters a referendum on municipal legislation licensing the town's restaurants, after it was claimed that three of the five Dresden restaurants would not serve meals to Negroes. The vote had been slated for April 19.

A deputation of Negroes appeared before council Monday night to get what one member of the delegation said was "first hand information on a rumor that the referendum is on."

"A vote now would not be in the interests of your race," Mayor Wesse said. "Newspaper publicity has reached the point where a vote would do your cause injustice."

Mayor Wesse turned to reporters and said: "I want the papers to get this straight. The relationships between the two groups have always been pleasant until this came up."

He added that he had received a number of communications from other points, including a letter from the secretary of the Communist party in Canada which described the Dresden situation as shocking. "You know they won't do your cause any good," the mayor told the deputation.

WEDDINGS

McCORMICK—DONOVAN

The church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a very lovely wedding on Saturday, April 30th, at 10 o'clock, when Marilyn Theresa, daughter of Mrs. Louella Donovan and the late Michael Donovan, Belleville, was united in marriage to Eugene Joseph McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Mc-Cormick, Belleville. The Reverend Monsignor J. P. Nicholson officiated, before an altar banked with Spring flowers, tulips, and daffodils.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Betty Grenis, Mrs. Ted Cuvelier, soloist, Mrs. Gerald Clapp, sang before the ceremony, "Ave Maria," and "Panis Angelicus," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Raymond Donovan, was charming in her bridal full-length gown of white satin, long light sleeves pointed at the wrists, net yoke, the skirt of which was bouped at the sides with a large satin bow at the waistline back. Her veil was of finger-tip length and she carried a bouquet of calla lilies and forget-me-nots.

X-Ray and Radium Saving 40 to 50 P.C. of Women Treated for Cancer of Cervix

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 3 (AP) X-rays and radium now are saving 40 to 50 per cent of women treated here for cancer of the cervix.

This is exactly twice as many as were cured a dozen years ago. By cured is meant five-year cures—that the women still are living five years after their cancers were found and treated.

This solid new gain in cheating cancer is being reported by Dr. Isadore Lampe, radiation therapist at the university hospital, University of Michigan.

The 100-per-cent boost in five-year cures was achieved not with new drugs or magic, but with two of the oldest and only sure treatments for cancer. They are X-rays and radium.

The saving in lives came through better knowledge and improvements in the use of radiation treatments, Dr. Lampe said. The work was done by Dr. Brooks, of Belleville. Visiting brothers from Belleville, Stirling, Springbrook and Tweed lodges, were in attendance.

The records are kept until the person dies, whether from cancer, old age, accident, or any cause.

This system has three main benefits, Dr. Lampe said. The hospital now knows exactly how many persons it has treated, how they were treated, and how they are living. Information is almost entirely complete for everyone treated.

Dr. Lampe studied cancer of the cervix through this method. In 1932-36, he said, only 20 to 25 per cent of women treated by radiation were surviving for five years. Now the number is 40 to 50 per cent.

"This has been accomplished even though we aren't finding the cancer any earlier," he said. "The earlier cancer is caught, the better the chance for survival. Seventy-five to 100 per cent of women can be saved if cancer of the cervix is detected very early.

"In treating cancer, we can't wait until some sure-cure is found. A sure-cure for one kind of cancer, or seven cure for all kinds, may not be found for years, or ever. We must learn how to do the best job we can with the tools we now have. The statistics that we are giving give us a way of measuring accurately whether we are using them better, and the effect of improvements that are developed."

Cost-of-Living Index Will be Given Wednesday

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—An indication of the trend of Canadian prices will be given Wednesday by the official cost-of-living index, issued monthly by the Bureau of Statistics.

Tomorrow's report, to cover the March period, will indicate whether the prices of those things which the Bureau considers essential to living went up or down. The main components are foods, rentals, clothing, fuel and light and home-furnishings and services.

February's report showed a dip of three-tenths of a point in the main index, carrying it down to 152.2, with lower food prices propelling most of the impetus.

That was the second month in a row the index pointed downward from the one-tenth of a point in January—and the first time a two-month decline had occurred since 1945.

The February decline continued a trend started in November when the index plunged seven-tenths of a point from the all-time peak of 158.6 last October. It went up seven-tenths again in December, partly on seasonal price increases.

Tomorrow's report is expected to include an adjustment based on changes made during March of the rentals picture. This may boost the rentals sub-index but its effect on the main index reading for the month is not known.

In February the food sub-index slipped from 200.4 to 199.1, largely on price reductions in shortening products, meats, butter and eggs. There were moderate seasonal increases in a few vegetable prices.

The clothing index moved ahead, climbing nine-tenths of a point to 182.7, while fuel and light furnishings and services index advanced from 167.8 to 167.9 and fuel and light inches up from 130.8 to 131.0. The miscellaneous group was unchanged at 128.1.

The rentals index also was unchanged, at 121.7, pending the March rentals survey.

The survey in January and February followed a down-trend which started last fall in the United States.

New York, May 3 —(AP) — A correspondent relays this cue about Bob Quinn, now director of Baseball's Hall of Fame: Seems that Bob, after a varied minor-league career which included a stop at Pittsville, Md., and a little playing for Otterbein College in Ohio - - - . The Pottsville stop is recalled because Quinn used to slide down the banisters to reach the basement dressing room before the fans run out . . . At Otterbein a rival coach became suspicious of the team that athletic director E. S. Barnard, later president of the American League, had assembled . . . Before the game he asked Quinn to give the college yell . . . Bob solemnly complied: "I've been so busy with my studies I haven't had time to learn it," he said.

Shorts and Shells

Al Sherman, who was tabbed as the outstanding minor - league pro football coach because of his work with Paterson, N. J., Panthers last season, gets his big league chance this fall as Tformation specialist for New York Giants . . . Coach Brarer Tommy Holmes maintains that his teammate, Al Dark, has the best mitt in modern baseball. He also claims Al is the greatest all - round athlete in the country — or close to it. He must have challenged Dark to a golf match . . . Local hockey fans who have been blasting the Rangers for not buying some star hockey players may find solace in the fact that the Rangers' Pentti Lund and not Stanley finished one-two in the balloting for the Calder Trophy as the most valuable rookie.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"THIS ONE GOT AWAY"

It happened in the cool clear water of Nobes Lake, somewhere in the northern hinterland of Hastings County. Brilliant sunshine beamed down from a cloudless sky. Fishermen were scouring the stream-slashed country for the elusive trout. In the quiet coolness of this lake two speckled trout were making Spring talk in the shadiness of a partially submerged log.

"Human beings are funny fish," remarked one of the trout. "They are always getting out of... stick us in hatcheries till we are big enough to grubstake ourselves, bring us back here to fatten, so to speak, then on a certain date make a mad rush for us with hook and line in an effort to get a free meal —as well as what they call a lot of sport."

"Yeah" stilled his pal. "They're funny duck-ures, all right, Fivinstance look at that bird up there trying to work out his own salvation. Struggling like one of them city-slickers from Belleville to me. And look at that fancy rod he's toting. Musta cost at least forty fish, bucks, that is."

Came a resounding splash. The trout flipped fins rapidly and took refuge under a rock. Nearby, the fisherman was floundering around in 14 feet of water, rod clutched tightly in one hand, eyes staring in fright, and arms and legs threshing like a windmill. Heavy hip rubber boots exuded air bubbles as the unfortunate human tried to "tread water."

He had fallen off the log when it twisted under his feet and went pirouetting to the bottom of the lake. Lower clothing, rubber boots hampered his frantic attempts to reach the surface but finally he broke water, rod still clutched tightly in his hand. He managed to clamber out of the cold water, spouting geysers of it like a wounded whale.

Later the birds and bees, the squirrels and chipmunks of that particular area saw a strange sight. Close to a blazing fire was a red-faced man, shivering and shaking as he war danced around the friendly flames. Nearby laid out to dry were articles of clothing, watches, wallet, and other personal articles, however were more or less ruined, but our hero didn't mind that. He was glad to get off the fish-hook lightly against a tree. "That's what I wanted to save, most of all," he grinned through trembling lips.

Down in the cool depths of the lake, two trout grinned at each other. "Fivinstance landed that one," said one, "but he was a trifle on the skinny side. He might have gone 155 pounds dressed, but we won't do take the settlement when he wouldn't even look good stuffed and mounted. I suppose we coulda used him for bait, but I dunno. Didn't figure fish would go for that kind of free feeding. Oh, well, lets go, bub, and get ourselves a couple slugs of trout juice. We can tell the gang in the back room about the little one that got away."

"THAT MAN'S HERE AGAIN"

He's back again. Wrestledom's master of unorthodox strategy, plus a barful of tricks, a headful of cunning ideas showman albeit of the villain type, par excellence, and generally hated by the faithful, will be here on Friday gloaming to parade his grandstand grimacing and his villainous methods before the pew populace. Yep, you guess it. John Katan.

And he is matched with one whom he has always wanted to pin—but for keeps. Handsome Whipper Billy Watson. Many a bitter mat battle has been staged here and elsewhere by these two notables of the ring—and Friday night's clash should go down in the local archives as the bitterest of them all. John Katan is one of the better members of the College of Applied Pachydermy. He plays rough—and likes it. He does not hesitate to use any method he feels is right to subdue the opposition. And especially when the opposition is none other than Whipper Billy Pride of East Yegk. Katan has waited a long while for the opportunity to spread the classic features of Whipper over a Belleville ring—and he feels there is no time like the present. It should be a mat battle of the first water with no quarter asked nor given.

That huge wrestling "Leaning Tower of Pisa" Sandy O'Donnell will make his first appearance in a Belleville ring in years when he meets popular Ray Villmer in the semi-finals. And of course back again is the popular Jim Flanagan, who at least does have a wrestling physique, and who will not lose those everything he performs here, and who will battle the likable French-Canadian mat artist, Frank Valois, in the curtain raiser.

One-Mile Trial Before the Derby Will be Raced

Louisville, Ky., May 3 —This Kentucky Derby business really began to warm up today with eight candidates for Saturday's $100,000 Jamboree squaring off in a race worth $90,000 less—the derby trial.

Several of the "leading men" in the most famous classic were slated for action in the one mile trial, final test before Saturday's colorful show at Churchill Downs.

The three big horses in this afternoon's race appeared to be Fred W. Hooper's powerful combination of Olympia and Ocean Drive, and Greentree stable's ever dangerous Capot.

There there was the Calumet Farm pair of Be Luzo and Ponder. If they belonged to other mercially on a large scale.

than Calumet and trainer Ben Jones, they probably wouldn't rate much consideration. But when Ben gets a horse ready for the derby, you just have to look twice, because of Calumet's great record in the last eight years.

The rest of them in the trial, Mrs. H. J. Dumont's Roundelier, Arthur P. Cotter's Petty Cotter, and Adena Spring's Jet Jr. Town, seemed in there just for the ride.

"I'm going to find out today. If one of them runs a creditable race, he'll be in the derby. If not, then we'll just have to try and get ready for next year."

Ottawa Senators Three Games up On Regina Team

Ottawa, May 3 (CP)—Ottawa Senators will have an opportunity Wednesday night to win the Allan Cup in four straight games. But if they turn the trick, hometown fans won't see them do it because next game of the best-of-seven series with Regina Capitals will be in Toronto.

The shift after three games in Ottawa was made official Monday night after 7,115 fans saw Senators display superiority in every department to shut out Caps 7-0 for their third straight victory in the Canadian senior hockey finals. Ottawa took the first game 6-4 and the second 3-1. Further games, if necessary, will be in Ottawa with the fifth Saturday night.

Star of the one-sided game as veteran goalie Bill (Legs) Fraser who turned in a superb performance in the Ottawa nets to register his well-earned shutout.

As has been the case all through the series, the high-scoring line of Ed Dardenti, Bill Robinson and Nils Tremblay spearheaded the Ottawa attack. The nifty trio accounted for four goals to bring their total to 10 of the 16 by Ottawa in the series.

Robinson, who like Dartonell and goalie Fraser is from Windsor, led the way with two. His linemates had one apiece.

Scored Four in Second

Then, although outshot 9-8, the Senators added four more in the middle frame. Dagenais got one with Smart helping; Dartinell did it on a three-way passing play with Robinson and Tremblay; Emberg got his first goal of the series with George Greene assisting and Robinson scored his second with three seconds to go with the aid of defenceman Bobby Copp.

The third period saw Greene get his second assist, retting the stage for Tremblay's goal and then Heiyer wound it up on a pass from Dagenais.

Fraser was called on for 24 stops in the Ottawa goal and brought the fans to their feet a number of times with spectacular saves. Goalie Ray Bentley of Regina was tested 27 times and had to make some tough stops to keep the score from mounting even higher.

The question of where the next game would be held wasn't answered after the game when W. B. George, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Vice-president, finally cleared up the confusion by announcing that it would be in Toronto.

The change from what was to have been an all-Ontario series was made on request of the Caps who have complained that playing games on the ice here would leave them at a disadvantage.

TODAY WE LIVE IN A GREATER CANADA

The stores of Canada tell the story:

Smart new fronts and clean, bright interiors; up-to-the-minute facilities for faster, easier, more convenient shopping; modern displays and smartly packaged products; all are the visible symbols of Canada's modern merchandising progress.

Canadian distribution methods are more effective, more efficient than ever. Recent advances in marketing have been as remarkable as those in this country's record-breaking production and the development of natural resources.

The whole vast field of merchandising today presents new and greater opportunities for successful Canadian careers.

"Imagination in business knows no geographical boundaries."

In this young and vigorous nation originality, based on sound thinking, pays off. To the young Canadian who is willing to raise his sights above the conventional, and work hard to make his vision come true, today offers greater opportunities for success than our story.

Spotlight on Cincinnati, Yanks As Majors Begin First Set of Intersectional Baseball Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The baseball spotlight today will be focused on New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds as the first intersectional set of clashes in the majors got under way.

Having demonstrated their ability to cope with their associates in the eastern half of the American League, the surprising Yankees now face their big test in the west, meeting St. Louis today in the first of several important series.

Although they received rough treatment by Boston in their 11-2 defeat by the Red Sox Sunday, Casey Stengel's team took 10 out of 13 games from the east, and seven out of eight in their home stadium.

That showing gave them a two-game bulge on the best of the field. More important, however, is the 3½ - game lead they have over Cleveland and Boston, the teams generally figured to battle for the flag.

The big surprise in the National League has been furnished by Bucky Walters' Reds. A last - place choice by nearly every expert in the preseason poll, the Reds have caused a lot of red faces by winning seven of their first 12 games. That put them in second place, only a game behind the leading Boston Braves.

Start in Brooklyn

The Reds, with their pitching ace, Jiwell Blackwell, still on the sidelines, have established good pitching and tymely hitting to win a majority of their games.

However, the next 10 days should show whether the Reds are better than anyone thinks they are, or are merely playing over their heads. They inaugurate a three-game series in Brooklyn today for the start of their eastern swing of the circuit.

In addition to the showing of the Yankees and Reds, the biggest surprises of the infant season have been the poor start of Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Red Sox, and the fast getaway of Chicago White Sox.

The Dodgers won only six of their first 13 games, and the Red Sox split their first 12. On the other hand, the Chisox, doomed to the American League's basement by a majority of the scribes, have won eight and lost five to take over the runner - up honors to the Yankees.

Today's schedule in the American League has the Yankees in St. Louis, Washington in Chicago and Boston in Kansas City. Cleveland and Philadelphia are idle. In the National, every club with the exception of Cincinnati and Brooklyn engage in night games. The Reds are host to Chicago, Pittsburgh plays in New York and St. Louis in Philadelphia.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Your backswing is on the same principle as the baseball pitcher's windup. Most good teaching pros believe that it is 90 to 1 that if a backswing is good the ball will be hit well.

The idea is to windup on the backswing of the club, get yourself set firmly at the top of the backswing and then a) w i t h swing that club with both arms at the ball and accelerate as you go.

You are almost certain to have a good followthrough if you do that . . . and tighten up your left side as you swing down. The clubhead will have much a pull that it will make your arms go straight after the ball, and finish nicely.

Some fellows and girls are quick swingers and others take almost like they are doing it in slow motion. So I can't tell you anything about the speed of your backswing or your downswing. But I can say that the downswing must pick up speed evenly instead of being jerky in any spot. You want the clubhead to have the highest speed as it hits the ball.

Another Sell-out Crowd Will See Juniors Tangle

Brandon, Man., May 3 — (CP) — Another sell - out crowd of approximately 4,800 fans will cram into Brandon Arena tonight for the third game of the Dominion junior hockey final between Brandon Wheat Kings and Montreal Royals.

Tied at one game apiece in their best-of-seven series for the Memorial Cup, the two clubs have done little heavy practising since Saturday night when Brandon won 3-2; Royals won the opener by the same score at Winnipeg last Thursday.

"We're getting acclimatized and from there on in we should get better," said Coach Tex Miller of Royals at Winnipeg last night. "And you couldn't think we're going to bang any more pucks into our own net."

The latter remark was a reference to the fact that in the second game, while the Wheat Kings won, one of the goals credited to the Brandon outfit actually was hit into the nets by defenseman Vic Fildes of Royals.

The Montreal team, which has stayed in Winnipeg, 50 miles away, was scheduled to arrive in Brandon before game - time tonight.

Most cheerful news — from Brandon's viewpoint — was the announcement that centreman Reggie Abbott, injured in the opener, may be fit for tonight's battle. The flashy playmaker, replaced by Mike Durban in the second game, took a few turns around the ice Monday and is said his injured knee felt fine.

However, Coach Bill Mackenzie probably will leave the final decision up to trainer Pop Ramsden as to whether Abbott is ready for action. The veteran muscle-soother said he would know definitely late today whether the knee had responded properly to treatment.

Halifax, May 3 (CP)—Through the years Nova Scotia has produced a number of capable contenders in the distance running field and the current one is Dick Carmichael of neighboring Dartmouth.

Dick's latest effort was a fifth place in the Paul Revere 5 1-2-mile race at Lexington, Mass. Last year he took first place in a similar use than his time this year.

"Naturally one would deduce from these figures that the boy has slipped a bit. As a matter of fact he has, but there are reasons. Some months ago he had an operation. Since then he's been holding himself back."

"Still very young, Carmichael shows promise of developing into an outstanding distance runner and about 1963, when the next Olympic games will be held, he should hit his peak.

"In the meantime, some of the local track experts think Carmichael should shorten his distances. They feel a change in routine would enable him to develop his legs. In another year he could go back to the distance he likes—five and 10 miles.

"Nova Scotia has developed many great runners over the years. Johnny Miles was the king of the marathoners; MacAulay, Irwin and Oliver the best of the 10-milers.

"If properly trained, Carmichael should take over as the star of the Canadian contingent. Nothing would help running more in these parts than to have an Olympic contender. And Carmichael stands out right now as the best prospect."

McFater Wins Close One From Ronnie Lacelle

The 18-year-old Toronto battler took a close five-round decision in the thrill-packed main event of a 6-bout boxing-wrestling card. This was the third time the two boys had met with the previous two bouts being fought in Ottawa. McFater took the first by a close decision and Lacelle came back to win the second. Monday night McFater wiped the slate clean with his powerful left hand.

The third frame was about even as Lacelle seemed to find some hidden energy. He hit McFater with looping rights but the Toronto scrapper came back with his left hook.

Tiring fast, Lacelle came out for the fourth best at finishing the match. He pushed McFater around the ring with short rights and late in the round caught him with a left to the side of the head.

The two boys staggered through a close fifth session. McFater found the range with rights to the body but Ronnie countered with long punches from both hands.

In a 140 pound preliminary bout Bud Piper of Oshawa, pounded Remo Odorico, Toronto, for a fourth round technical knockout. Referee Bobby Laurence stopped the fight.

At 135 pounds, Frank Gentile of Toronto won a three round decision over Ronnie Gilmore of Oshawa and Stan Rice of Toronto took a five round decision over Bud Henry of Oshawa.

Chile Needs Only One Victory To Win Round

London, May 3 (AP)— Chile needed only one victory in singles over Ireland today to gain the second round of the European zone tennis eliminations for the Davis Cup.

The South Americans took a two to one edge in the best of five series Monday with a straight set triumph in doubles. Marcello Fernandez and Ricardo Balbiers downed Cyril Kemp and Guy Speer, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4, Sunday.

The Ireland Chile series is the only one remaining in the first round. South Africa completed its route of The Netherlands at Scheveningen Monday, winning the series 5-0. France shut out Switzerland, 5-0 on the losers' courts and Denmark trounced Israel 5-0 at Copenhagen.

In the other ties, Mexico and the Irish-Chilean winner will play Egypt. Other pairings are: Czechoslovakia vs. Great Britain; France vs. Denmark; South Africa vs. Italy; Sweden vs. Norway; Hungary vs. Belgium; Switzerland vs. Greece and Austria vs. Yugoslavia.

The British team Monday asked Fred Perry, once their greatest tennis player, to return home to teach their squad the fine points of the game. Perry now is a United States citizen.

U.S. Army Post Stores Set-up Will be Probed

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The House of Representatives armed services committee wants to know why soldiers and sailors can buy girls' nighties, expensive jewelry and television sets tax-free and at almost wholesale prices.

It ordered the start of an investigation today. Plans are to make a top-to-bottom study of the more than $500,000,000 business of army post exchanges and navy ship stores.

The probe was ordered after civilian retailers, and some business associations, complained that the military services are competing unfairly with them. The services do not pay Federal excise taxes on luxury items, and some of their stores' expenses are met from government funds appropriated by congress.

Dr. Lacelle Has Support Against Charge

Cincinnati, May 3 (AP)— Leo Durocher was to march back in on baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler's carpet again today.

This time, the fiery Leo planned to go before Chandler loaded with statements and support in his fight to prove he is not at fault in an alleged assault on a fan at the Polo Grounds last Thursday.

In most of Leo's other mix-ups in baseball there had been a lot of evidence presented against him.

Fred Boysen, the fan, filed a charge of simple assault against Durocher, claiming the New York Giants' manager hit and kicked him. But the Giants' official family came here for the hearing armed with affidavits that Leo was not the guilty party. One of those affidavits was signed by a fan who said he thought he accidentally kicked Boysen when the latter fell.

Durocher now is under an indefinite suspension which Chandler slapped on him the day after the incident in the Polo Grounds.

The commissioner said yesterday he was "of an open mind" but his desk was piled high with letters and telegrams asking for leniency for the Giant pilot.

A source close to Chandler has said the suspension was imposed immediately as a precautionary measure. That source said Chandler feared there would be acts of vandalism from the Negro section of New York if Durocher remained in uniform.

Durocher, president Horace Stoneham of the Giants, Garry Schumacher, assistant to Stoneham, and club secretary Eddie Brannick, were scheduled to go before Chandler at 10.30 a.m. EST. Boysen, who said Monday he "hopes Durocher is reinstated" will not be represented.

Candler Monday told reporters "I hope I can give you a quick decision as soon as the facts are over." He refused to be quoted further.

London Boxing Fans Keyed up Over Big Fight

London, May 3 (AP)—Boxing in Britain is in the doldrums as the fans wait for the top scrap June 2 at London's White City stadium between Bruce Woodcock and slugging Freddie Mills.

Bruce, the pride of Yorkshire, will lay his crown on the line his British, Empire and European heavyweight titles. Freddie, who is world, British, European and Empire light heavyweight king, will be the great "titled" fighter in the business if he wins. Mills' own titles will not be at stake.

But that's not the real incentive behind this fight. The winner will be in line for a fight against Lee Savold of the United States, who is under contract to British boxing czar Jack Solomons.

British and European fight authorities believe Woodcock still recognize a Woodcock or Mills fight against Savold as being for the world crown.

Former champion Joe Louis has signed Jimmy the Walnut and Enzard Charles for a fight in Chicago, June 28, with the United States National Boxing Association promising title recognition to the winner.

Solomons, as the biggest promoter in Britain, naturally will then dicker with Americans for a share in a promotion that will decide the undisputed — heavyweight champion of the world.

Woodcock and Mills have met once before. On June 4, 1946, at Harringay arena. Bruce won a points decision in a grim 15-round bout.

Since then he has been battered by Joe Baksi of the United States, who also lambasted Mills to a six-round defeat.

Violence Flares On Picket Lines At Orillia

Orillia, May 3 (CP)—Violence flared briefly Monday in the picket line surrounding the Heywood-Wakefield Company plant here when non-striking employees crossed the picket line in cars.

Police said one of the strikers opened the door of one of the cars and swung at the driver but was pulled away by police. No arrest was reported.

The picket line was opened by police to allow office workers and management and a handful of non-striking workers, mainly maintenance men, to enter, at noon and leave at the end of the day. The company manufactures baby carriages.

The union, the recently-organized Orillia General Workers' Union (CCL), claims members. All of 70 out of a staff of about 110 employees at the plant. The strike was called Sunday following the layoff of 18 men at the factory.

Only Recorded Kiss in Commons

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP) — Probably the only kiss ever recorded in Canada's parliamentary history was exchanged on the floor of the Commons Friday night.

On an obvious lark and before a heavily-packed chamber and thronged public galleries, George Cruickshank (L — Fraser Valley) strode down the floor with a bouquet of flowers, handed them to Mrs. Gladys Strum (CCF — Qu'Appelle) and then bent over and soundly kissed her on the cheek.

She accepted the flowers, jumped up quickly and dashed out of the Chamber, waving kisses to her fellow-members.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Any bridge subject starts an argument these days. Why? Too many experts announce rules based upon opinion. They will not be correct until they can furnish proof founded on mathematics.

Take the case of no-trump bids. The best trick-takers at no-trump are the highest cards. It stands to reason they are. Only a fool could possibly think of disputing such an obvious fact.

Twelve of the highest cards in a pack are the four aces, four kings, four queens. Therefore, no-trump bidding should be based on the number of these highest cards held by a pair.

Times are hard. tricks are taken at no-trump with cards that are smaller than a queen. But most certainly not as often as the higher cards do. Jacks or tens or aces exceptions and not rule countless.

An opening one bidder says he has better than average. So, on his hand is promised at least four of the big cards. From this stems the showing of so-many cards or by a pair.

South opens this hand with a heart:

♠A 7
♥K Q J 6
♣10 5 3 2

He admits having no less than four high cards. That is, he says he has four no-trump tricks among other things. If he has more than four high cards he will reveal them later, if necessary.

How can he show this additional high cards. By making a voluntary no-trump bid in a later round of bidding. In fact, each free no-trump bid by him thereafter will admit another high card.

Suppose north responds with a bid of one no-trump. Such a reply is not a forcing bid. It does not force south to bid again. Any bid by south is a voluntary bid in such a spot.

But south can here make a free bid of two no-trump. The fact that it was a voluntary no-trump bid says he has another high card. It shows his fifth high card. Any argument?

Hollywood, May 3 (AP)—Ann Sothern finds herself being discovered again.

The blonde actress has had a career of being discovered in pictures. First it was as Harriet Lake in R.K.O. musicals, then as a comedienne in "Trade Winds," then as Maisie and Panama Smith. Her latest spurt is due to the hit "Letter to Three Wives."

Ann is proving variety with her current film schedule. Now playing a murderess in "Death in the Doll House," she goes into "Nancy Goes to Rio," a musical in which she plays Jane Powell's mother. Following that comes a romantic comedy with Robert Ryan.

Notes And Stuff

Producer Arthur Freed laughed at printed reports he is making "Annie Get Your Gun" for $1,500,000. "How can we make it for that when we are paying $700,000 for the music alone?" he asked.

Twentieth-Fox, which is playing "I Don't Care," based on the life of Ina Ray Hutton, may be interested to know that Judy Garland sings the song in "The Good Old Summertime."

John Agar and his wife—can't think of her name right now—will be separated on the screen for after 50 years on the stage. His ambition is to sing in musical comedies, but he claims he's not good enough yet. Asked if his father gives him any pointer, he replies, "He's a still taking lessons himself."

HIGH OCTANE GAL DESTROYED

Alexandria, Va May 3 (AP) — About 300,000 gallons of high-octane gasoline were destroyed here Monday night by a two-hour fire believed set off by lightning. The gasoline was in isolated storage tanks on a cleared hilltop, part of the United States Army Engineer Corps reservation near Fort Belvoir.

There were no injuries.

Wartime Air Novel And Broadway Hit Win Pulitzer Prize

New York, May 3 (AP)—Pulitzer prizes have been awarded to "Death of a Salesman," the smash Broadway hit, and to "Guard of Honor," a novel about a wartime United States air force general.

The writers were named Monday by the trustees of Columbia University—45-year-old James Gould Cozzens as the outstanding novelist of 1948 and Arthur Miller, 33, as the outstanding dramatist.

The Pulitzer Committee decided that the Nebraska State Journal of Lincoln, Neb., rendered the "most disinterested and meritorious service" among American newspapers. Its editorial was honored for its work during the Nebraska centennial celebration.

The New York Sun's series by Malcolm Johnson on waterfront crime was adjudged the year's outstanding example of local reporting by a newspaper man.

These awards, and others for outstanding work in the fields of journalism, letters and music, were made by the Columbia University trustees on recommendation of the advisory board of the graduate school of journalism.

Established in 1917

The awards given for the 32nd year, were established in 1917 through a gift of $2,500,000 made to Columbia University by the late Joseph Pulitzer, former publisher of the New York World and the St. Louis Dispatch.

A cash award of $500 is given each individual winner, and a $500 gold plaque to the winning newspaper. The drama award covers the period April 1, 1948, to April 1, 1949, and all other awards are for the calendar year 1948.

Sherwood was the only previous Pulitzer winner on this year's list. He received prizes in the field of drama in 1936, 1939 and 1941.

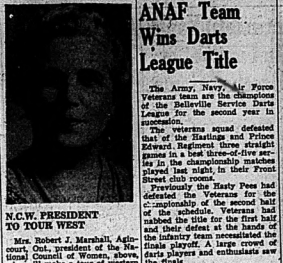
Lute Pease, 80-year-old cartoonist and the oldest man ever to win a Pulitzer Prize in that field, was honored for a cartoon in the Newark (N.J.) Evening News. The cartoon showed a tracked vehicle labelled "Coal Strike" with a lower line saying "U.S. Economy." A judge was shown pointing a finger at the United Mine Workers leader, John L. Lewis, who was asking: "Who, me?"



Over 1,000 Ships Queried in Search For Dog's Master

New York, May 3 — (CP)— Short-wave radio messages crackled across the seven seas Monday as the American Radio Association (AFL) valiantly sought the master of Brownie, a shaggy mongrel dog. More than 1,000 ships at sea have been messaged without success, the Union reported.

Brownie missed his ship when the Norwegian tanker Sagafjord sailed from here a year ago. Agents for the Thorunn have said Brownie's owner never returned for the dog because he had transferred to another ship.

Sources Believe Soviet Wants to Shelve Cold War

Berlin, May 3 — (AP)—Authoritative United States sources expressed the belief Monday night the Soviet Union wants to shelve the cold war with the aim of creating east-west economic barriers as well as ending the Berlin blockade. They say the Russians hope to do this without sacrificing long-range communist political objectives.

These sources said that besides ending the Berlin blockade, Russia probably would make the following concessions:

1. Agree not virtually any proposal the west makes on German trade in order to gain entry to the west and get a central German government which they might be able to control.

2. Open Eastern Europe to western trade, lifting at least the economic iron curtain.

A top American source ex-pressed it this way:

"Russia has lost the battle for Berlin. She has asked for a truce. This truce is needed to regroup her forces and launch a new attack with new methods. Her aims have not changed but her tactics have.

Methods Have Failed

"The iron curtain—and threat methods have failed in the cold war. She is blocked everywhere in Europe and losing ground. A change in methods is needed and I believe it will be complete. Russia will enter a new period of co-operation with the west.

"To gain a foothold in Western Europe again she needs to make concessions. It seems to us here she will make these concessions and the west may be embarrassed by them.

"In Germany she probably will agree to the western occupation statute and other proposals in order to set up a central German government in which she will have a voice. At worst Russia will have created a German buffer state. At best she has a chance to influence the German government and swing it into her camp. It is up to the west to see that she does not."

It is not expected here that the Soviet Union will make all concessions at once but try to sell each point it can for the highest price at the coming foreign ministers' conference.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking to himself in his private chair, and she sighed a big sigh to herself, saying, Oh well, time marches on and people grow older.

Not me, pop said, and ma said, You're the very one I was thinking about. You used to be such a bewitful dancer, William, she said.

I still am, probably, pop said, and ma said, Probably is a long word, but it doesn't speak as loud as atdone. I cant remember when you last set foot on a dance floor, and yet there was a day when no dance was complete without you, and you didn't seem complete without you were dancing. My, William. I remember when other dancers used to stop still to admire your graceful steps, she said.

I guess I was pretty good, pop said. In fact I even remember my own partner begging me to let her sit down so she could watch me dance, he said, and ma said, My, how you loved it. You were always inwardly the first one up on the floor and the last to regretfully leave, she said.

It's a fact, pop said. Every time an orkestra played Good Nite Ladies, I felt the world was coming to an end, he said, and ma said, All the other girls envied me for having you for a steady partner.

They were rite, pop said, and ma said, Oh well, time martches on.

Not dance time, pop said. Ey gollies I could get up tomorrow and be as good as ever, he said, and ma said, Tomorrow or Saturday, what's the difference? mean next Saturday is the evening the Parents Teechers Association is giving a get together dance, so you can have your wish, William, she said.

Trapped, foiled, bitfiled, pop said.

Not saying he would actually go, but meaning he probably couldn't get out of it.

Few Adjustments Needed to Stop Threatened Strike

Detroit, May 3 (AP)— The United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) said today only "a few adjustments" in production rates are necessary to forestall a threatened strike of 90,000 Ford employees.

Ford has slowed down its Rouge plant production and removed its chief cause of a speed-up dispute, the union said.

The company, which has denied union charges of a speed-up, had no comment.

Another meeting of union and company officials is scheduled for morrow. At that time Ford is expected to answer a union request for a written agreement covering production rates.

The parties met Monday after a union investigating committee had checked operations at the big Rouge plant where U.A.W. Local 600 charged a speed-up.

The Local's request for strike authorization was set aside last Thursday by the Union's international executive board pending the inquiry.

Emil Mazey, head of the union investigating committee, said the dispute could be settled if production were continued, "with a few adjustments" on the basis of the company's operations Monday.

A settlement at Rouge, some sources said, might help to head off a walkout Thursday of 5,000 workers at Ford's Lincoln-Mercury plant. A strike there has been approved by the U. A. W. boards.

Meanwhile, 4,000 Hudson Motor Car Company workers faced a layoff today due to a shortage of brakes in the Bendix strike. The company said it hoped to resume production early next week.

At one time prior to today's scheduled Hudson layoff, there had been a total of 27,000 idle in the industry attributed to the Bendix strike.

Seven Trapped And Perish in Fire

Hinton, W. Va., May 3 (AP) — Seven persons perished today when fire swept through a two family frame house.

Fire Captain John Lively said it burned so quickly all seven of the sleeping occupants were trapped without a chance of escape.

The bodies recovered were identified as those of:

Mrs. Anna Jane Deeds, 24-year-old divorcee, and her two children, Drema Kay, four, and Hazel Joyce Deeds, six; Mr. and Mrs. Farmer Ellison and their three-month-old daughter, Diana Frances, and Homer Tincher, about 30, a visitor.

Picton Artillery School Soldiers Will Take Part

Ottawa, May 3 — (CP)—Chalk River's claim to pilot plant for the country's choicest military targets, will come under air attack this week, but it will be much ado about nothing.

Soldiers from the anti-aircraft artillery school at Picton, Ont., will be moving up the highway to the big army base at Chalk River, Ont., when, theoretically, the enemy pounces and they train their guns.

Equipped with four radar sets and "fairly heavy and light guns they were in the midst of an eight-day training exercise that has taken them to Petawawa for shooting practice on its ranges.

The mock attack on Chalk River is woven into the movement of the troops from Picton to Petawawa.

The officers in charge will consider the soldiers as representing two full anti-aircraft regiments operating with an infantry division in defence of Chalk River. At the same time, it will be considered that two other choice targets — the nickel mine at Sudbury and the coast at Smith Sie. — are under attack, too, only in this case it will be even more theoretical.

Both their attackers and defenders will be mythical.

Ontario Leads In Promoting Safety Measures

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Ontario is taking the lead in educating the public to drive and walk carefully, Highways Minister Doucett said today. He was commenting on National Tourist Week-end, May 7-9, designed to focus national attention on the importance of visitor industry.

Mr. Doucett said a reputation for safe highways and streets would be a strong factor in attracting visitors to Canada this year.

"The tourist business is Canada's second greatest source of needed American dollars. We from other countries know that we want them to have a safe visit."

SEARCH FOR TRAPPERS' BODIES

Kapuskasing, Ont., May 3 (CP) —Search operations are still being carried on today for the bodies of trappers apparently drowned when their canoe overturned in the Groundhog River near here last week. Both men, Joseph Gauthier, 68, and Jean Mattie, 25, live at Fauquier, about 23 miles east of Kapuskasing.

Their canoe was found Wednesday wedged between two rocks.

Provincial police said that probably no trace would be discovered, until the water level in the stream goes down.

CAR FOUND ABANDONED

Windsor, May 3 — (CP) — A search by, combined forces of Windsor and provincial police is underway today for thieves who looted a fur store at Wallaceburg, Ont., of $10,000 worth of fur coats early yesterday.

The stolen automobile used in the robbery was found abandoned on a suburban street late last night. Police believe the thieves, possibly with their loot, are still in the vicinity.

Suburban Areas Urged to Unite With Toronto

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — Amalgamation of Toronto with its 13 suburban municipalities is recommended by the Bureau of Municipal Research as a solution to the city's housing problem.

"Certainly some metropolitan structure to deal with housing, transportation, education and other questions is urgent and essential," bureau director Eric Hardy said in his annual report.

"The metropolitan system has worked out well in Windsor," the report said. "Windsor has progressed financially, have good public services and today the people who once opposed the metropolitan system there seem to be happy about the situation."

National Council Of Jewish Women Report Aids, Awards

Toronto, May 3 (CP)— Aid to over Canadians, awards to Canadian students and material assistance to displaced and homeless Europeans were the major accomplishments of the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada during 1938, Mrs. Harold Lorie, national president said today.

Delegates from Montreal, Vancouver, Welland, Kingston, Fort William, Ottawa and Hamilton attending the two day gathering here heard Mrs. Lorie announce the council had awarded $4,400 in scholarships. Working with the American Council the organization helped bring 37 European students to North America.

More than 4,000 new Canadians were assisted by the 16 national sections and about 14,000 pounds of food and clothing were sent overseas.

Clawed by Tiger In Circus Performance

Windsor, May 3 (CP)— Windsor air must be tough on circus and side carnival performers.

Monday night Capt. Roman Proske, operator of one of the world's only tiger farms, was clawed by one of his trained tigers during a circus performance. He required medical treatment.

A week ago a snake handler with a carnival had to go to hospital for treatment for a bite from a python and last week-end another carnival employee died of a heart attack just after the show had closed.

CLEARING R. R. WRECKAGE

Ingersoll, May 3 (CP)—The eastbound C.N.R. main line at nearby Beachville was expected to be cleared tonight from wreckage resulting in Monday's freight train accident when a 50-car freight train crashed into a string of standing box cars.

The westbound line was clearer, Monday night. Today, single track traffic was operating between Ingersoll and Beachville.

Three crew members of the moving freight, eastbound from Sarnia, leaped from the locomotive cab just before the impact. They were uninjured.

Incubator Baby "Holding His Own"

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — John Lee Griffiths, incubator baby rushed to a Toronto hospital from Barrie last Wednesday was reported by hospital officials today to be "holding his own."

Police Undecided As to How Girl Met Her Death

St. Catharines, May 3 — (CP)— Investigation into the death of 20-year-old Joyce Hamilton, whose body was found in the old Welland Canal, has failed to establish whether she died as a result of an accident, foul play, or suicide, Acting Police Inspector James Anderson said Monday.

Police found the body Sunday after an intensive search since Thursday night when the young rug-factory worker disappeared en route home from visiting a nearby friend.

The bicycle on which the girl travelled the two-mile road home was found on the path near the canal. Subsequent reports of several youths seen in the vicinity late that night led police at first to suspect foul play.

Police said Monday they could find no cause for suicide. Joyce was cheerful Thursday night when she left her friend — 21-year-old Grace Hadley — and was looking forward to a trip to New York.

An autopsy revealed water in her lungs. There were no marks of violence on her body. No inquest will be held, police said.

Eight Reported Dead in Flood Area of Morocco

Casablanca, French Morocco, May 3 — (AP) — Film star Tyrone Power, Orson Welles and Linda Christian, were safe today in flood-ravaged Morocco.

But Cecile Aubry, 17-year-old French film actress, was missing and at least eight persons were reported dead in the flood area, which includes Algeria.

(In Paris, the newspaper France Soir said Miss Aubry was safe after being marooned for three days in a mountain lage. The paper quoted French Army authorities in Marrakech.)

Miss Aubry was touring with Power and Welles in a motion picture, "Suez," when struck by a flash-seeing tour Friday.

French soldiers helped police in the search today as the skies cleared after three days of heavy rain.

Power and his wife, Linda Christian, were safe at Youffali, 25 miles from Ouarzazate. They are guests of a Moroccan aristocrat there.

Welles flew to Casablanca from Marrakech this morning.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Diana said, "Let me look at you, darling."

"I remember what you told me the day she was married."

"I like Gregg. He'll be a faithful and devoted husband."

She did not say what she was thinking, "But he and Millicent are Sandolyn, lovely, will own your body and soul and I'll never be close to you again. Darling, I'm ashamed, as Patti is, of a mother who is a housekeeper."

She stayed in the cabin with Gay as long as she could. She supposed she ought to be happy for her. Gay could be admired and respected and loved after, but somehow Diana liked to think of her with Chris, looking at him with eyes of adoration, she could never feel for Gregg, radiant and wildly happy with Chris, as she had been.

There were no tears when they said good-bye. Diana vowed to herself not to leave the same again with them, for Gay would come to Chris. But you won't. Your conscience won't let you. You're going to be free, all of you, and think they want and all your love will be lavished on them.

The crowded skylike receded through the veil of rain. Passengers formed in groups, talking, laughing. The fog horn had a melancholy note. A voice announcing dinner, broke Gay's reverie. "I feel," she thought, "as if I've come to the end of my life. There is no madness in this, only futility and weariness."

New York talked about "We'll Meet Again". They went to see Chris' play and were deeply moved by the honesty of a man's love. There was even a song, "We'll Meet Again", a beautiful waltz. It was being played everywhere.

And while people talked about it and musicians over bows across their violins to the melody of it, the girl to whom it had been written stood on a white dock on a rainy night, knowing that the boat that was taking her closer to Chris Mallory was in reality estranging her from him forever.

Her love for him would never be broken but Chris had written a play to her out of his love, a play that people would always remember. And that song, "We'll Meet Again", whenever it was played, would remind her that because of gratitude and duty she escaped he had flung all her across land and sea would never be answered.

Gay was grateful for the friendliness of people who travel by boat. One day you did not have they existed when you were by them were temporary good friends. But the trip, though it rested her and gave her leisure to contemplate her future and resign herself to it, was unrestful. On deck in the sunshine, her face and hands became tanned and her hair seemed brighter than ever.

At night, wearing a great tweed coat and sitting on deck, she thought, "I'm going to be married. I'm going to marry Gregg." When the words, said again and again, forced themselves into her mind, they frightened her. She felt that she could live years and Gregg and never know him as she had known Chris during the brief span of their acquaintance.

When the boat docked in Miami, Millicent and Gregg, both tanned, came aboard.

Gregg's greeting was casual. "But why did you come by boat, darling? Gregg's been in hospitals and you'll get enough of boats sailing around the world on the yacht."

Gay looked up from the brim of her white hat. "Am I going around the world on my honeymoon?"

"For years and years," he said.

"I did want you to have a big wedding and a beautiful one," Gay said Millicent, "but I know an endless round of festivities is a strain. Whenever you want to be married is agreeable to me. I missed not having the car and decided to quarrel with, so Gregg bought a new one yesterday just to keep in practice."

Gregg asked, "Don't you want to see the house, Gay?"

"My house?" She smiled. "Of course I do."

He drove through town and stopped the car before a low rambling Spanish house with a red tile roof built upon the canal. Flowers grew in profusion and the tall palm trees waved in the breeze. A vine, vivid with pink blossoms, covered one side of the house.

Gregg asked, "Can't you say anything?"

And Gay laughed. "Is it mine? Am I really going to live here?"

He pointed to the yacht. "And there's the Fidella."

With Gregg beside her, she walked through the house, upstairs and down, upon the tiled floors. The furniture had either been imported or was hand-made. There were draperies and plaques from Spain and on the patio were tables and chairs and divans beneath wide umbrellas. Dressing for dinner, she looked at the wide colorful room thinking that in years to come she would remember the first day she saw it. It looked strange now and a little unfriendly, but in time it would probably be the most familiar room in the house to her.

As the days went on and she saw provisions being taken aboard the Fidella, she thought again of how possessive Millicent and Gregg were toward her. They were not intentionally so, though they made her plans for her and even suggested what clothes she should wear. But the days were so full she had little time to think, and it was only at night when she was alone that she thought, "I'm not far away from you, Chris. You would never tell me what I must or must not do as if I were an incorrigible child. You said I'd always be free with you."

They were going to be married on Monday. The ceremony was to be a simple one with only Millicent and the clergyman's wife as witnesses. Gay would wear the long cream colored lace dress and a large hat. After the ceremony they would have lunch and go aboard the yacht.

Gay wrote to her mother and Penny. It was odd and sad, she thought, how conventional she felt from them and from life in New York. Life had become a matter of pleasing Gregg and Millicent, being charming for them, and doing what they want-ed her to do.

Millicent came and sat on her bed one morning.

"The wife of a very rich man has had a son born to him. Gay. She's always being called upon to serve on committees, and Cherylbud and I are deeply fond. I will have a great deal of responsibility and a certain position to live up to. You'll have to entertain people who will bore you frightfully and the people you know when you were poor will have to . . ."

"You mean Penny and Mac, don't you?"

"Yes, I'm sorry, dear, but they are a little crude and you'd find them quite out of place at one of your parties. That's what I meant when I said that being a leader isn't simple." She kissed Gay's forehead, "But I know I'm going to be very proud of you and that you will carry on our good name splendidly. Gregg is on the patio, waiting for you to have breakfast with him."

They went for a swim after breakfast. Gay, in a white silk suit, lay on the sand with her face to the sun.

"Gregg, are you just going to play all the time? It seems to me you'd want something more serious to occupy your mind."

He laughed at her. "Darling, please don't be a nagging wife because I'm a leader."

"I worked. I didn't particularly like my job, but I could see then what a great satisfaction in doing something."

"You tell anyone," he said. "Color being a clothes model belonging in the dark past like a garden in the city. Coming in for a swim?"

"Not now. I'll join you."

They were together all day, swimming, lunching beside the pool, and cocktails at the bar. Their conversation was disconnected and shallow. Gay found herself going back to Chris' again, thinking of their talks in which there had not been a dull moment. She had listened, lost in him.

They went to a hotel for dinner. A string orchestra serenaded each lady with her favorite song. Gay tried to talk but a feeling that this was Friday and on Monday she would be Gregg's wife and be a part of a world she did not like or want swept over her like a hot wave. It was a feeling of being stifled and smothered and lost! For days the feeling had been growing, and now it began to turn to terror. She run away from stifling luxury and people who possessed her.

It was that song inspired by Chris' play, "We'll Meet Again", that made her cry. Gregg asked the violin that made her say: "Gregg. Let's go," and up and up on the elevator the astonished Gregg to follow her.

"Are you ill, Gay?"

"No, I'm all right."

But when she got back to the room, the nonsilent was right. The feeling that had prompted her to leave so rudely had not passed. It was as if a thousand violins were playing that song! It was as if the world were playing maddening beauty of it and the urgent plea in it!!

Going directly upstairs to her room, she did not turn on the light. The moonlight coming across the balcony fell upon her face and she white dress.

In loneliness, she had told Gregg she would marry him. In loneliness, Gregg had told Gay that called her, she knew she could not marry him—without love. Love of Chris were married to Evelyn Ewing, she could not marry Gregg and lose all kind of life. Even if she never saw Chris again, she would not marry she was being faithful to the values and ideals that Chris Mallory had taught her. To go into marriage without love was a sacrilege to love and gratitude is selling oneself at a price!

She got slowly and went downstairs. The uncertainty and the strain that had been on her face for days was gone. She had never looked lovelier than now in a white silk dress and tall heeled white sandals.

Gregg was smoking. He looked at her, seeing that the struggle he had sensed in her was gone.

Gay walked toward him, hearing "We'll Meet Again" calling to her, beckoning to her . . . Her hands were steady now. The panic was gone. Except for the fatigue, the way was clear and bright to Nassau. And her face and figure had the look of one who has been ill and convalesced, who is now well and in the sun again.

"Feeling better?" he asked.

She smiled. It was a radiant smile. "Gregg, come out to the patio and smoke. It is a beautiful night, isn't it? There is something I must say to you."

And the night seemed to be filled and throbbing with that song . . .

They stood close to each other. Gay lifted eyes that were clear and wise and beautiful.

"Gregg, I can't marry you. It isn't really you I'm turning down. Oh, you must understand! It's the life we'd have together . . . your life you can't escape from because you were born to it . . . and as your wife, I'd want to be the woman you want and need. Her voice was low and clear. There is a man who showed me the kind of life I do want, Gregg. Unconsciously, he taught me. He didn't bring me down to a common level. He lifted me higher than I've ever been. Loving him has nothing to do with people or circumstances. I think we could turn our backs on the whole world and find happiness together."

He inhaled deeply on his cigaret. "I see," he said.

Russian Troops Seize, Occupy Teltow Canal Shipyards Situated in Two Berlin Sectors

Berlin, May 4 (Reuters)—Russian troops today occupied the Teltow Canal shipyards which are partly in the American and partly in the Soviet sector of Berlin.

"Russian tommy-gunners, helped by an officer, came into the American side of the yards, closed all entrances and refused to allow anyone to enter or leave.

"They stopped all work going on.

"We do not know what the reason for this is yesterday four jet-controlled German police accompanied by east-zone economic officials came and claimed that the entire shipyard was affiliated to Russia's occupied territory, and therefore subject to Russian control."

An American official spokesman said the dispute at the yards appeared to centre around certain personnel employed there whom the Russians wanted dismissed.

"United States officials are now in conference with the Russians and are trying to straighten the matter out," he added.

Labor Party Roughly Treated By Electors

Glasgow, May 4 (AP) — The Labor party got some rough treatment from the voters in yesterday's municipal elections in Scotland.

The returns, viewed as another possible barometer of what may happen in the general elections next year, showed Labor with a net loss of 43 seats to the Progressives, Moderates and some other local parties. No Communists were elected.

Nearly complete returns showed Labor lost 72 seats while winning 29 and the Progressives won reverse was in Edinburgh, where Labor's council representation was cut from 27 to 23 seats. It also was lost in 25 years—while the Progressive party's vote from 41 seats to 52.

May be Change In King's Title Says Officer

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—There may be a change in the King's title.

This was indicated by a high External Affairs Department official yesterday as a direct outcome of the recent Commonwealth conference of Prime Ministers in London.

As a result of the London conference there may be many changes in the Commonwealth's status.

For one thing, its former name of "British Commonwealth" is being changed.

There was some confusion as to whether Canada and other members of the Commonwealth of Nations—the official communique didn't make the clear and, said the officer, "I don't know just what we are."

He did know that the title of the King would have to be changed and that change would be reflected on new Canadian coins to be issued in the future.

India's decision to continue as a member of the Commonwealth opened the way for changes of status of other areas within the group, another official explained said. A colony could become either a Republic or a Dominion, but the change would have no effect on admission of outside countries.

Spring Breakup Hampers Probe Into Cruelty to Horses

Orrell St. Marie-Ont., May 4—(CP)—Miss R. Doherty, secretary of the Sault Ste. Marie Humane Society, said today the spring breakup in the bush is hampering investigation of reports of illtreatment of horses on a logging operation 80 miles north of Thessalon.

Miss Doherty said that a statement will be issued on completion of the investigation, which began two weeks ago.

The Sault Society, she said, has jurisdiction over the Thessalon area, 50 miles east of the Sault. But she denied that any official of the Sault organization made a statement attributed to Humane Society officials in a Thessalon dispatch Monday that the death rate among 375 horses on the logging operation in question was the highest in Canada.

At Guelph today, Frank H. Cooke, President of the Ontario Humane Society, said the charge was not the first he'd come to his attention.

"We sent a man up north a year ago," he said, "...there was trouble in the same district. Every now and then we run into a bad situation in the north. At the same time we realize that there are always two sides to a story."

Soldier, Who Started One-Man War Against Russia, in Clink With Headache

Vienna, May 4 (AP)—A fighting American soldier who started a one-man war against Russia had a headache today. So did the United States army.

And eight Russian officers had sore jaws.

There was an unhappy feeling that the man who worked overtime to create diplomatic protest would have writer's cramp before long, too.

Pte. Edward J. Touhey, six feet three inches, 220 pounds and the alleged cause of it all, was under observation in a locked room at a Vienna army hospital.

Touhey, according to Col. Willard K. Liebel, Provost Marshal, had been drinking "but not enough to cause all this disturbance."

Liebel didn't specify how much alcohol he thought it should have required yesterday to cause a man Austrians attended the festivities. In which there was theft.

MOSCOW CLAIMS RUSSIANS TAKEN TO U.S. TO WORK

Says 1,500 Transported From Germany in '45

London, May 4 — (Reuters) — Moscow radio today charged the United States military command in Germany with transporting 1,500 Russian citizens from Germany in 1945 to "work for private persons in the United States."

The radio also attacked the British and French military commands in Germany and Austria for "deliberately breaking the repatriation agreement" signed at the Big-Four foreign ministers conference in Moscow in April, 1947.

Only Russia had carried out the agreement, the broadcast declared, adding that Britain, France and the United States were responsible for 400,000 Soviet citizens "languishing in foreign lands suffering from hunger, destitution and arbitrary rule."

The radio also reported that a Soviet displaced person to Canada from Europe, Ivan Kovalenko, is complaining that he was living in "cardboard barracks" with 30 people in each, sleeping in bunks in two tiers."

The refugee had added:

"We are working in the forest as navvies and live 30 to 40 km. nearest inhabited place is 20 miles away."

Russia Likely To Lift Blockade Within a Week

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)— Russia quite probably will lift the blockade of Berlin within a week or 10 days, a high external affairs department official said Tuesday, but that wouldn't necessarily mean an end to the cold war.

Allied-Russian conferences on Berlin "are coming to a head," he said, and it should be clear within less than two weeks whether the blockade ends or whether represent a genuine Soviet desire to effect a German settlement or just another tactical move designed to curb allied plans for a separate Western Germany.

In the meantime, the Allied world's experts are "keeping their fingers crossed."

It is possible the official said, that the elimination of the blockade could be the prelude to a revival of the Big Four—the United States, Britain, Russia and France —conferences on a German peace. They were suspended nine months ago when the East-West crisis came to a head.

The Canadian feeling ' about German peace, one way or another, there will eventually be a single German government whether the occupying powers decree it or not. Mainly for that reason, the official said he could see big powers agreeing on a peace treaty.

Student Forces Romanian Plane To Land in Greece

Athens, May 4 (Reuters) — A Romanian student and a spoke of fleer from that country, who refused to return to Bucharest after the student had forced a Romanian passenger plane to land in Greece, were flown to Athens yesterday. They will be questioned by the United Nations Special Balkans Commission. The student declared himself an anti-Communist and said a spoke of fleer he feared to return because he would be held responsible for letting the student succeed in his escape plot.

Leslie Blackwell Leaves Cabinet Says New Premier

Toronto, May 4 — (CP) — Hon. Leslie Frost today announced changes in the Ontario Cabinet, shortly before he was to be sworn in as the province's new premier. Hon. Leslie Blackwell, attorney-general, is returning to his private law practice. One new man enters the government, Welland S. Gemmell, member for Sudbury, as minister of mines.

Mr. Frost made the announcement at a press conference about an hour before the swearing-in ceremonies were scheduled.

He succeeds Hon. T. L. Kennedy as premier as the result of his election as Ontario Progressive-Conservative leader last week. Mr. Kennedy remains in the government as Minister of Agriculture, his old portfolio.

Mr. Frost retains the portfolio of Provincial Treasurer which he has held since 1943 but is turned over the mines ministry to Mr. Gemmell, who represents the rich nickel-mining area around Sudbury.

The new premier issued an exchange of correspondence with Mr. Blackwell, one of the unsuccessful candidates for the party leadership, in which Mr. Blackwell any cabinet post he wished, including that of Attorney-General. However, the Toronto lawyer — who submitted his resignation as MPP when George Drew was premier and then withdrew — said he wanted to go back to his private law work.

Another leadership candidate, Hon. Dana Porter, was appointed Attorney - General. He also will hold temporarily his former post as Minister of Education. Another temporary appointment is Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Reform Institutions. Mr. Dunbar also is Minister of Municipal Affairs, a permanent appointment.

Protests Action Of School Board

Editor's note:

Following is a letter addressed to the Belleville Board of Education from the local Branch of the Canadian Legion with respect to appointments for school principals made by the board.

May 2nd, 1949.

Board of Education,
Belleville, Ontario.
Members:-

On behalf of Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion, I am forwarding this letter protesting the appointments of the Board of Education in your choice of applicants for the position of principals for Belleville schools.

Across Canada, business, industry, municipal, provincial and Dominion governments are respecting preference to ex-servicemen in appointments for their offering their lives for their country, but we find in the City of Belleville, the preference as far as the Board is concerned, has been forgotten.

Two Belleville boys who grew up in our community and who have given satisfactory service as teachers for approximately fifteen years, are apparently forgotten in the choice of applicants and yet both have given the best part of their years of their lives to fight for the protection of the children in their own schools.

Proof of their efficiency as teachers is evident from the fact that they have been retained as teachers as long as in our city. Leadership qualities have been proven by the rapid advancement in the ranks of both while in the Armed Services.

Therefore as a result of a resolution passed by the members of Branch 99, Canadian Legion, I am forwarding this letter and requesting that the Board again review the applicants with a further consideration of ex-service preference to promotion.

Thanking you for co-operation and courtesy.

Yours truly,
Max Matthews,
President, Branch 99.

Video Will be Available in City In Short Time

As was anticipated by local television enthusiasts, Belleville "video" set owners will be able to tune in on the new Rochester television station which is expected to go officially on the air within the next few weeks.

This week for the first time the WHAM Rochester Television station commenced broadcasting programs which have been received with considerable satisfaction in the city and district.

Thus far set owners in the city are confined to radio repairmen hobbyists who have built their own sets in anticipation of being able to receive the Rochester station.

George Frulick, Trent Road, Monday and Tuesday was receiving the Rochester signal, the station test picture pattern which is being broadcast coming in quite plainly. It is stated when the "bugs" are ironed out and the station goes on the air officially, reception from the Rochester station will be as good, if not better, than other points in Toronto from the Buffalo station.

The Brothers Brothers, of Booth Radio, Front Street, have also built their own television set and have erected a special antenna atop the Warren building.

MAY APPEAL FOR AID

Hong Kong, May 4 (Reuters)—An appeal may be made to the United Nations to prevent Shanghai becoming a battleground in the Chinese civil war, according to reports reaching here today.

Some of the city's most influential business men, including representatives of large British and other foreign interests, are reported to be discussing ways to make an approach on humanitarian grounds.

The United Nations or some diplomatic might ask the Chinese Nationalist government, in Canton to withdraw the Chinese garrison, the reports suggested.

Optimists Hear Inspector Page

Drawing upon many years of police experience, District Inspector W. A. Page, of the Ontario Provincial Police, addressed the Optimist Club on the prevention and cure of juvenile delinquency.

Enlivening his talk with vivid word pictures and sound practical philosophy, the speaker explained the workings of the district police force, with its staff of twenty-six men. Five cars are used to patrol the highways, some four-hours a day. In a recent month, the cars have traveled 10,000 miles. He told of the provincewide police-radio network developed to combat organized gangs who make use of every modern contrivance in their schemes.

In the field of juvenile delinquency, Inspector Page drew a parallel between a good police officer and a good school teacher, both warned of the embittering effect of overly harsh treatment of the first offender. He stressed the importance of careful instruction in good driving and highway safety rules for pre-driving age children.

In conclusion, he pledged the fullest co-operation of the police and himself and all service-club youth welfare work. The Optimist appreciation of the fine address was expressed by Optimist Ian Cross, Belleville, who moved a vote of thanks to Inspector Page and Optimist Chairman Roy Robinson reported on the progress of the current safety campaign, and recommended that a drive be made to have bicycles registered. Bicycles on the coming Saturday afternoon, he stated, are called in to join the assembly lines at the Armouries, from two o'clock until four.

Sergeant-at-Arms Jack Devine conducted a public speaking contest in which he took a prominent part. He was awarded second prize.

Closer Scrutiny Of Alleged Red Activity Pledged

Montreal, May 4 (CP)—Closer investigation of alleged Communist activity in the Trades and Labor Congress was promised Tuesday by President Charles J. MacGowan of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers Union (A.F.L.) meeting in its 18th convention.

President MacGowan told the 800 delegates from all parts of Canada and the U.S. meeting in Canada for the first time, that "the evidence collected disclosed a shocking picture of the influence wielded by the Communists in Canada in the affairs of the T.L.C."

Replying to an announcement from the floor of the convention threatening the president and his union with impending lawsuit for linking with the T.L.C. with Canadian Communist organizations, the Union head said the T.L.C. will receive further consideration. A committee has been appointed to investigate Communist activity in the T.L.C., he said.

The missing man's companions managed to swim to shore but Terletski couldn't make it. An immediate search failed to find his body but dragging operations have been started.

TRAIL OF FERE MARQUETTE AND LA SALLE

Four young men from the vicinity of Paris, France, are planning to repeat the travels of Marquette and La Salle, the dauntless explorers. The youths embarked more than two weeks ago and arriving at Three Rivers, they set out on the St. Lawrence in two canoes. Their course will take them to the head of the St. Lawrence, then across the Great Lakes, Ontario, Erie, Huron and part of Superior. Then entering the Mississippi near its source, they will follow it all the way to New Orleans.

Their aim is not only to achieve a sporting feat but to advertise and make France better known in the New World. They will deliver addresses and publish articles in the local press in places where they stop. On their itinerary they will come in contact with many people. To the cities of Quebec, Detroit, Chicago and Marquette, they will deliver some plaques which are gifts from the city of Leon, birthplace of the indomitable Jesuit missionary Pere Marquette.

Such journeys by these students will bring together in closer ties France and the New World in which French explorers played a noble part in discovery and in foundation of a Christian civilization.

DON'T INVITE CAR THIEVING

Those who leave keys in their car ignition are doing little less than offering an invitation to a criminal who happens by and to thoughtless youths to take rides in their cars without their consent and without putting up anything for the pleasure and exhilaration of a spin.

Down in New York City they are discussing the question of making an enactment terming it an offence for drivers leaving their cars without stopping the engines or removing the ignition keys.

There are enough cases of cars taken from the place where their owners left them for the time, expecting on their return to find their car ready for the continuance of the journey without adding the duty of tracing them to the duties of policemen.

In an age in which motoring is such a fashion and when it would be rather difficult to find a person who does not know how to drive or want to drive, to leave a car unprotected is folly and practically an invitation to thoughtless or irresponsible youth and others to climb into them and use them as far as the gasoline in the tanks will carry them.

Police in cities and towns and the Provincial Police do a good service to the public in search for and recovery of lost or stolen cars, but the owner should see that the responsibility for the "care of car theft is his (the owner's) duty in the first instance even if for nothing less than avoiding the worry and anxiety of having to try to recover a stolen car.

SERVICE OF MODERN ENTERPRISE

How often is the question asked by everyone, producer as well as consumer, "where does the money go?" A company asks that question naturally too. The other day a breakdown of the financial results of operations of Imperial Oil Limited for the year 1948 was published showing how the money went which took care of the corporation in that period. Crude oil and other raw materials used up 59.46 cents of every dollar taken in. That was nearly three fifths of the entire amount. Now manufacturing and packing took another big bite, namely 10.70 cents on the dollar. Transportation which guarantees to the entire country to satisfy everyone's needs used 2.82 cents. Marketing cost 8.06 cents of the dollar earned. Taxes, no small item, collected by federal and provincial governments without counting gasoline tax, took 7.06 cents of the dollar. So there remained 4.9 cents on the dollar. Shareholders received 3 cents in dividends. What little remained, 1.9 cents on the dollar, went along with more money, secured by borrowing and by sale of investments, to satisfy the public's need and the demand for that necessary commodity in this age — oil.

This is evidence of what enterprise is doing for the good of individual and public and the nation by building up service for the public and by developing the national economy.

Industrial progress of this kind is helping to make Canada what she is and will be, a nation able to secure her own people and those of other lands. Without such spirit and enterprise far fewer would be the blessings this country and other lands possess.

He who wishes to secure the good of others, already has secured his own.—Confucius.

BOY IN THE BASEMENT

The man who'll run the business ten or fifteen years hence
Is some youngster in the basement doing simple tasks today.
When a manager is needed in the future they'll employ
The one who's now succeeding in the basement, as a boy.

The lad who fails the lesser, seldom gets the greater part.
But the man they'll choose tomorrow for the better post and pay
Is some youngster in the basement who is doing well today.

What time and chance may offer none is wise enough to see
But a boy's the sign and promise of the man that is to be.
And that youngster in the basement at his desk does the best he can,

The opening of the Prince Edward County Hospital was a unique event in the history of Picton and the county. The large building, with its many windows, is situated in a quiet part of the town and affords a pleasant view of the harbor and lake. The operating room, waiting room and bath room, furnished by the ladies of Wellington, Cherry Valley Women's Institute and the Red Cross Auxiliary of Picton Women's Institute respectively, together with the cots furnished and maintained by the different branches of the Women's Institute reflect much credit on the ladies throughout Prince Edward County.

Judge and Mrs. Deroche have returned home from California.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Hepburn have sold their property on Dundas Street and have moved to Toronto.

40 YEARS AGO

MAY 4th, 1909

Mr. Daniel Green left today to spend some time in the Province of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Fred J. Kyle is spending a few days here with relatives prior to leaving for Melville, Sask., where he will act as agent for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

At last it looks and feels that summer is about to chase winter from the lap of spring.

After many years of "serious consideration" it looks as though a general sewerage system for the city is on the way at last. The scheme has been before the ratepayers for some time and approval seems to be general.

50 YEARS AGO

MAY 4th, 1899

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRIUMPH OF THE FAITHFUL

Truly religious people are wise and it invariably happens that when a man experiences religious conversion, it sets him on the intelligence to new heights. Dwight L. Hill was such a dull boy that he was refused membership in church, the first time he applied. But his conversion changed him into a man of remarkable intellectual power.

Many years ago a British private soldier was converted at a meeting held by certain Christian missionaries in the native Hindoo. The conversion resulted in an awakening of his whole being. He became a fine soldier. With grim determination to get an education, he walked eight miles a day for a lesson in language. He was told that he would not be allowed to take examinations as this was a privilege reserved only for officers. But he took them, continued his education, became a fellow in Madras University, president of a college, and later of two Hindoo states. He could have been called to rule over twenty-five million people.

At the time of his conversion, the rough British soldier had been given a verse which was his lamp throughout all the years. That verse was the verse: "Behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it" (Rev. 3:8).

Anyone who believes that and goes ahead can do anything.

Newsmen Honor Public Relations Chief of C.N.R.

Toronto, May 4 — (CP)—Walter Thompson, new public relations chief of the Canadian National Railways, has completed 35 years of service for the line. This was celebrated informally Thursday when newsmen met with the native of Moncton, N.B., at a luncheon at which Mr. Thompson was a guest.

F. L. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, termed Mr. Thompson "one of the greatest railroaders on this continent, not only a public relations man but an economist," whose watchword has always been courtesy and efficiency.

Mr. Thompson said his years as a newspaper man and railroader had all been "a magnificent piece of fun."

He left the news desk of the Montreal Herald in 1914 to set up a press bureau for the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways.

REMOVE GRAVES, REMAINS FOR CHURCH ADDITION

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Some 12 graves and the remains they hold will be removed to another part of the churchyard to make way for a new addition to Don Mills Road United Church. Relatives of persons buried in the churchyard have been advised of the plans. Church officials have yet to decide when construction will begin.

HELICOPTER SERVICE, LONDON TO PARIS

A helicopter took off from the roof of a London, Eng., building for a flight to Paris recently. This new service is designed to speed up U.K.-Continental passenger and terminal transportation problems which occur on normal flights. Passengers travelling by the helicopter service will be able to drive almost up to the roof of the building, enter the aircraft, and two-and-a-half hours later find themselves in the heart of the French capital. Here crowds watch the helicopter as it leaves on its London-to-Paris hop.—Central Press Canadian.

Mackenzie's Column: Soviet Proposal To End Blockade Quite Complicated

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Soviet proposal for ending the Berlin blockade sounds on the surface like a simple way of settling a complicated study of wheels within wheels.

The latest slant on the problem is Moscow's readiness to shelve the cold war for the purpose of easing the economic barriers between eastern and western Europe, besides ending the Berlin blockade. Why? Well, an authoritative American source in Berlin puts it like this:

The Western Europe is starved for manufactured goods which Russia cannot supply. Having made concessions in Germany the next step (for Russia) is to make others relieve the plight of her satellites."

In support of this thesis we see little Czechoslovakia send a delegation to Washington to ask for aid from the capitalists from whom communists damn so heartily.

Early Crisis

Edward R. Bomar, one of the American Friends of Russian Democracy in Washington, reports that the request for aid from the communistic Czech regime "could be a crisis destined for a final, flat one."

That's strong mustard for the United States to have to hand a Communist.

Czechoslovakia has tumbled from power governed by the present tough position. Early this year the communist government of Czechoslovakia set the full nationalization program under which all foreign trade is controlled by the state.

Chaotic Condition

A chaotic condition developed, and Dr. Hugo Sloata, a member of the Czech delegation to Washington, told the Overseas Writers Club in Washington that the government's foreign exchange resources have dropped from about $400,000,000 to some $28,000,000.

So the Moscow-controlled Prague government sends its envoys to Washington to ask for help. The significance of the situation is clear enough. The United States has no intention of "weakening her position," or that of her allies, by strengthening a communist bloc which is making war on all communist countries.

Senator Davies Again Chairman Of Press Union

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Senator W. Rupert Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard, was re-elected chairman of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Press Union, at its annual meeting here Tuesday night. Victor Sifton, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press, was elected to the vice-chairman's office of vice-chairman.

J. W. McConnell, publisher of the Montreal Star, was elected honorary chairman, W. A. Craick of Industrial Canada, Toronto, was re-elected honorary secretary-treasurer and T. F. Drumm, publisher of the Saint John Telegraph-Journal continues as honorary auditor.

Members of the executive committee are H. T. Hunter, president of the Hacyesn-Hunter Publishing Company, Toronto; F. I. Hatch, Manufacturer; Senator Jacob Nicol, Sherbrooke Le Tribune; J. Ray Sayles, Fredericton Mercury; and Roy H. Thomson, president of the Thomson Publishing Co., Ltd.

Elected as Canadian representatives on the council of the Empire Press Union were: Senator Davies; Senator W. A. Buchanan, publisher of the Lethbridge Herald; J. R. Bowen, Edmonton Canadian; Philip S. Fisher, president of the Southam Co., Ltd., Montreal; Eric Malpas, Montreal Le Presse; Mr. Sifton; Gillis Purcell, general manager, Toronto Canadian Press; and F. R. Curran, managing director, the British Press Union.

The meeting discussed plans for the forthcoming Empire Conference, to be held in Ottawa in June, 1950.

King Leopold Wants to Return To His Throne

Brussels, Belgium, May 4 (AP) — Exiled King Leopold III said today he still wants to return to the throne of Belgium.

In a letter to his brother, Prince Charles, Belgian Regent, the King said:

"I am convinced you are sharing my views that the time has come for a return to constitutional normalcy."

This would mean an end of the Regency.

The insistence of the King that the present situation be settled indicates he wants to wind up the Regency. This could be done only by parliament, where a small majority still is opposed to Leopold's return. Socialists have vowed to continue to be held by the end of June may change the balance in favor of the king.

Leopold surrendered the Belgian throne to the Germans early in the Second World War and became a prisoner-of-war. His return to power has been critically by many Belgians. The King lives in a luxury villa in exile in Switzerland.

INDIAN JUTE EXPORTS

NEW TEETH SO WEAR WITHOUT WAITING

In an article about Immediate Dentures in this column early in 1943 I said:

"Competent dentists install plates, not temporary plates, but the plates the patient will wear permanently, immediately after extraction of the teeth, before the patient leaves the office."

I did not say that all plates or other dentures so installed would require no further attention by the dentist.

One dentist who had made more than 1500 immediate dentures, to the great satisfaction of his patients, told me at the time that he found the best time of dentist afraid to tackle the job, but his experience had convinced him that if a dentist will make up his mind to do the service it can be done just let him make a few immediate extractions and the whole family swamp him with such work within a year.

The old practice of extracting the teeth and telling the patient to "go into seclusion and come back next fall for dentures" is all but obsolete. Today the patient has an appointment with the dentist and in many instances he or she is fitted with new teeth within an hour or so with new teeth in place and the job is done after. I quote this from an article in the Jan. 1, '47 Journal of the American Dental Association by Frank C. Hughes, D.D.S.

As Leo Aikman of Ohio writes:

"Six years ago when I was sixteen I was necessary for me to have all my teeth removed. Impressions were made in advance, so when clipped and the plates installed before I regained much consciousness. The plates acted as a bandage, so there was little bleeding and very little pain or soreness, except when the dentist had them adjusting or cleaning the first couple of times. A few months after-prescription when the dentist told me that I would never need to have another tooth pulled. I can recommend this system. The dentist told me at the time that he had never tried it before. It may not be good for everybody, but six years ago it seemed wonderful to me. My plates have always been comfortable, and I receive many compliments for my beautiful, perfect smile."

A dentist whose letterhead bears my address says he has been making such immediate restorations for nearly twenty years and the work has been instrumental in creating new personalities for many patients. He expressed the hope that my occasional comments on the subject will gain more and more converts among dentists.

Aside from the preservation of the patient's personality so well illustrated by the case of the 16-year-old girl, and the preservation of vim—well informed persons know the first of the seven keys to vite—one of the advantages of an immediate denture is that it maintains the vertical dimension of the face, the distance between eye level and point of chin—nose and chin steadily approach each other when the individual goes much or all the time without teeth which are functionally efficient.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Neuralgic Nibbler

Stopped smoking three years ago. Started smoking cigarettes excessively for thirty years. Since back at his pre-war regular work bling on peppermint candies, always has one by his desk and never with it packages a day. (T. A. R.)

Answer—No great harm in it, but it would be better for his health if he would go in for plain wheat and chewed some of it when he feels the desire.

Druggist Rebuked

I am only a retail druggist with a small store employing four persons, including myself, a pharmacist. I have always had a high opinion of your column and I do not feel that you owed druggists an apology for your understandable lack of knowledge of the drug regulations. I dare say most druggists still strongly object to the after-prescription when the circumstances seem all right. (Mrs. H. C. Nr.)

Answer—Thank you, but the fact remains that I was wrong and that the letter and attending circumstances are not enough.

DIGGING FOR GOLD

Miners dig long and deep for the precious thing that we call gold. Only in a few instances has this gold been discovered upon the surface of the earth. It is found below the surface of the earth.

Digging for knowledge is an understanding is the same. You have to go deep into the heart of a man to find the gold of character and truth. And in the great Guardian Public Library I have had to dig, as well, for the gold of character and truth. I delighted there. Often a great book has to be read and re-read before its significance is revealed.

Here is a sentence from the "Autobiography" of Charles M. Doughty's "Arabia Deserta" which is the second volume's leaves remain uncut. The former volume, his most famous, required as many a miner has, and left off digging! I do not intend to.

Nothing comes to any of us without great labor. Emerson says so somewhere. If we want the gold out of life we must dig deep for it. But we must want it first!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The signs on the highway stated boldly every few miles that the speed limit was 50 miles an hour. Holding the speedometer at 50, I was passed by car after car that passed me in five minutes. It was an orderly parade. In the twenty-five seven cars and trucks passed me.

Some were doing exactly 50, crawling slowly past. Others clipped by at a speed of 60 and more. The rest, an estimated 70. One beautiful, costly convertible must have been travelling well over 80.

In the same five minutes, I passed four vehicles that were doing less than 50.

The driver's purpose and what is the meaning of laws such as these speed limits? From one point of view, it might be said that they help to bring all laws into disrepute. Every driver or sport are thus brought into daily contact with the law. Most are okay, so long as the referee doesn't see you.

So a government official suggested to me that the purpose of the 50 mile an hour speed limit was to bring careless or reckless drivers within reach of the law whenever constables wished to take action against them. He said that an experienced policeman can detect careless driving at once. An experienced livestock buyer can tell a good horse from a poor one. To follow such drivers for miles and time them would be an act of carelessness would be uneconomical. Besides, it is an act of carelessness would be uneconomical. Besides, it is an act of carelessness would be uneconomical. Besides, it is

Picton Artillery Unit to 'Defend' Chalk River

Army authorities expect an air "attack" on Chalk River, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie this week but it's nothing of the residents of these Ontario centres to become alarmed about.

Navy a bomb will fall on them and the only shots to be fired during the "battle" will whistle harmlessly over the artillery ranges at Petawawa.

The expected "attack" has been planned as part of a nine-day training exercise to be carried out May 2-10 by personnel of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (Anti-Aircraft) at Picton, Ont. All members of the Active Force, troops participating will journey from Picton to Petawawa by way of Belleville, Madoc, Perth, Carleton Place, Renfrew and Pembroke, in convoy and towing both heavy and light anti-aircraft guns. Four complete radar sets will accompany the convoy.

A number of well-known eastern Canada infantry battalions and artillery regiments also are involved theoretically. They will be there in name only and will not actually take part in the "battle."

Lt.-Col. R. J. Fisher, of Montreal and Picton, commandant of the school, will be in charge of the manoeuvres and of the actual firing at Petawaw..

Hastings Resort Operators Hear Hon. Louis Cecil Speak On Tourist Industry

"The benefits of the tourist business to any community depend on the work of every individual and the resort operators must keep their accommodation up to a high standard because the tourist industry has become highly competitive," stated Hon. Louis Cecile, Minister of Travel and Publicity for the Ontario cabinet, speaking to a representative group at Bancroft on Tuesday evening.

The meeting was arranged by a combined committee of the Lions Club of Bancroft, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the committee of Tourist and Publicity for the County of Hastings and Belleville city council. The banquet was held in the Bancroft Hotel and McLean Haig presided as chairman. More than 100 sat down to a splendid repast prepared by the hotel personnel. Many resort operators from different sections of the county, Deputy-Reeves members of the committee and those interested in the furtherance of the tourist industry were present at the function.

Warden S. A. McCamey, Clerk Eric Denyes, Treasurer Ross Bailey represented the county. Present were Reeve Jack Trudeau and McLean Haig, the Chamber of Commerce and Aldermen Griffin Lloyd and Claude D. Tice the city council, while Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc and Ben Bleecker, Reeve of Sidney, represented the committee of the county council.

Steering Committee Formed

For many years it has been the desire of the publicity departments of the city and county to have the resort operators organized into an association for their own welfare. This was accomplished last evening when a steering committee of Art Tompsett, Don Tanner, Nicholls Hall, Harry Stapley Stephens, C. Mullet, K. H. Thomas and Roy Easton was formed to guide the operators in their immediate district and to hold a meeting to elect their officers and to join the parent association for Ontario of which C. F. Cockburn is the representative. The meeting was a most enthusiastic one and it is believed that through the formation of the association conditions with respect to facilities and accommodation the operators will be better able to handle their clientele.

The varied program was given with Frank Hockaday and "Willie McCann" supplying the humor. Stanley Haynes of Madoc presided at the piano for the community singing and Jack Kincaid and Jud McGowan of Madoc acting as song leaders.

In opening the meeting the chairman explained that the Chamber of Commerce in Belleville and the publicity committee believed that the tourist industry could be improved in this district through the formation of resort associations in each section and in which the county as a whole would benefit. He thanked the Lions Club of Bancroft for their interest in the details of the banquet and the committee who had promoted and brought to fruition this splendid meeting.

Reeve Welcomes Guests

Reeve Theodore Tryon of Bancroft welcomed the guests and urged a unity of purpose throughout the county. "We are in a war of existence and it is not handed to us, we must fight for it," said the speaker. He thanked the committee for choosing Bancroft as the scene for the meeting and he was sure that the good fellowship exhibited would result in better co-operation of all resort operators of the county and immediate vicinity. Cecil McAlpine, manager of the hotel, and a member of the Lions Club also welcomed the guests and hoped that the meeting would accomplish the purpose for which it was called. Jack Kincaid, chairman of the committee for arrangements, thanked the Chamber of Commerce for their foresight in calling the meeting and the tourist operators for their support. "We must understand and realize we must get out and sell ourselves if we wish to make a success of this venture," said the speaker.

Elmer Sandercock, member for West Hastings, introduced the guest speaker, the Minister of Travel and Publicity, Honorable Louis Cecile. He explained that the Government were willing to assist and regulate resort owners in but their business could be improved. "Co-operation from every public utility in the tourist industry is the key to success," said the speaker, Mr. Cecile stated that there was more to visited district activities of the province the more he was surprised that everyone must be proud of his own area.

Proud of Industry

"From what I can gather and observe," said Mr. Cecile, "you are living in the most promising region in Ontario. Whatever you have done, the department expects more. We are proud of our tourist industry but we expect more and we want you to come into co-operation with the rest."

He stated that this week would be observed as "Tourist Service Week" and in the interest of government can one meet a better class of citizens than those who operate the tourist resorts of this Province. He stated that Ontario had the best tourist season last year with 20 million border crossings, four and one-half million cars from the United States and $181,000,000 spent in the Province and that 500,000 went to the tourist operators. "Our surplus last year was nearly $28,000,000 and the tourist business paid the tax burden to a large extent."

Better Relationship

The speaker stated he was trying to bring in Quebec residents this year and he hoped that it would accomplish a better understanding between two races of people. Mr. Cecile listed the several departments of the Travel and Publicity department stating there was a development branch, information branch, publicity branch and Wright promotion branch and each is run on the principle of business, limited and fair play.

"We are facing intensive competition from the United States," said the speaker, "and we must carry on, insure to the highest standards. You must have strong organizations, co-operation, historical and the operators can assist by having an exchange of ideas, meals and accommodation, because American tourists are shopping to get the best value for their dollars. In conclusion the Minister said that the department was for the operators' convenience and hoped it would be used to a great extent.

Jack Trudeau, Warden S. A. McCamey and C. O. Phillips all spoke on the benefits of a resort operators' association and Mr. McClaire the County Minister of the department, also spoke briefly and stated it was the first time he had ever attended where the urban centres were united with the rural sections to help promote the tourist industry. He was thanked by Ald. Orliff Lloyd.

Careless Driving Charge Issued

Alleged failure to observe traffic signals of the school traffic guide at the corner of William and Dundas Streets will need some explanation from a Point Anne resident who Tuesday noon was stated to have nearly struck several children who were crossing the street near Queen Alexandra School.

Arthur Hobbs, school traffic guide, told police that the car failed to observe his "stop" signal as children were crossing the street and nearly ran down several of the children. Only a small number of the car was taken and, police said, a summons for careless driving had been issued.

Two Guides Homeward Bound On Trip Afoot Across Canada

Travel stained and weary but still full of adventure two Scouted guides arrived here this morning en route home to Vancouver, B.C., after crossing Canada the hard way. They are stopping here before continuing their journey home after a 8,000 mile trip on foot from the East Coast to the West coast.

These adventurous young men, who lay claim to be the only men ever to undertake such a trip on foot in the winter are Earl Mitchell, 20 and Len Matthews, 20, both of whom are natives of Vancouver but feel more at home in the bush.

Fully qualified guides by the Boy Scouts movement they are the hitch-hiking to the Yukon Territories where they will resume their duties as Scouting instructors. The long and excitement filled trip is being made in an attempt to obtain publicity for the game possibilities in the northland and to demonstrate that nothing is impossible for young Canadians if they once make up their minds. Started Last October

The hardy pair started out on October 15th last with empty pockets but implicit faith in human nature and a sincere love of hunting. They have given talks to game clubs en route and to decor

Ladies Auxiliary of Canadian Legion Holds Rally Here

One hundred and ninety-two members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, Zone 13, were present at the annual zone rally completing Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville, Mallorytown, Gananoque, Kingston, Deseronto, Picton and Belleville held in the Tabernacle United Church on Tuesday evening and partook of a delightful dinner provided by the ladies of the church.

The toast to the King was taken by Mrs. Bradford, 1st vice president of the Belleville Auxiliary, followed by a few brief and pointed speeches by Mr. Don Thomas, city councillor, who, as proxy for the Mayor, who was unavoidably absent, welcomed the visiting auxiliaries and stated he was pleased to see so many present, especially so many nice looking ladies.

Mr. Max Matthews, the next speaker, gave very inspiring, some facts concerning the zone, and part, the Ladies' Auxiliary played in the Canadian scheme of things. He stated that it represented a membership of 200,000 in Canada; that there were now 7,000 branches which were the backbone of Canada, whose prestige was felt day by day with a voting power of 500,000. The auxiliaries should be proud of the place they held, proud of their power and prestige, and should never forget that "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world, it still rings true; and those who rule must get assistance over the breakfast table in order to pass it on over the dinner table."

Reverend J. Grant Sparling remarked that he was most pleased to meet the auxiliaries, and to see a "fine box of blue berries." His word of admiration was "stick together," and "carry out the high ideals of the Ladies' Auxiliary."

Scotch Story

Mr. Little, Zone Commander, prefaced his remarks, after welcoming the guests, by telling a story of the three pals, Sandy, the Scot, George, the Englishman, Jack, the Canadian, and Pat, the Irishman. Pat was ill, and seeing that he was near death, made the request that each one of his friends would lay a ten dollar bill in the chest in remembrance. So George, and Jack, remembering the request of their departed friend, did as he had asked, and each deposited the ten dollars. When it came Sandy's turn, he made out a cheque for thirty dollars, and took the two ten's in change. After the laughter had subsided, Mr. Little requested by stating that the Imperials, according to the provincial secretary of the Canadian Legion, would receive the same consideration as the Canadian Veterans, and requested that the names of all be sent in at once.

A cable had been sent the day after Newfoundland had become a province of the Dominion, welcoming her to the British legions of Canada.

A toast was then given Comrade Richardson of Brighton for her outstanding contribution to the auxiliary, and in replying, Mrs. Richardson said that there were now 200 branches of the Ladies' Auxiliary established in Ontario, with a membership of 12,000 women. She also wished to thank the Belleville Branch for their hospitality and comradeship.

Mrs. Charles Jeffs was mistress of ceremonies, then called on Mrs. Coburn, Brockville Zone representative who closed the rally by asking Mr. Thomas to convey to the Mayor, the thanks of all for his hospitality, and the courtesy in making the rally such a success.

44,150 Women in Ontario Enrolled in Institute Work

Guelph, May 4 (CP)— There are 44,150 women in Ontario towns and villages and on farms who are enrolled in Women's Institute work now, as compared with 38,600 in 1948, Miss Anna F. Lewis, Director of Women's Institutes Branch, Department of Agriculture, told members of the Federated Women's Institute today. Miss Lewis was making her annual report to the Spring board meeting at the Ontario Agricultural College here.

Miss Lewis said there are 1,327 senior Women's Institutes in the province. During the past year 54 new branches were organized. Junior Women's Institutes number 74.

Discussing the co-operative program in home economics, the Director said that special emphasis was placed on needs of the young nation and courses were revamped to help women cope with new postwar responsibilities.

On Tuesday afternoon the Belleville branch of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, staged an enjoyed and splendid representation of the ladies from the ten different Auxiliaries, when Mrs. Ken Coburn, of Brockville, presided, and after the various toasts were given, called on Mrs. M. Richardson, the Provincial Treasurer, to take over the business of the meeting.

Mrs. L. Young, of Belleville, read the address of welcome and the Brockville Auxiliary extended an invitation for the 1950 rally to be held there. Mrs. E. Hodgett, Past zone representative from Picton, was then called upon for a few words which were very ably given.

Purse Presented

An event of great interest occurred when the president of the Belleville Branch escorted Mrs. E. Knight, past president, to the platform, and presented her with a lovely purse from the members of the branch before her departure to England; Mrs. Coburn, Zone Commander, making the presentation. Two other presentations were also made by Mrs. Jeffs, one to Mrs. Richardson, Brighton, and the other to Mrs. Coburn, both gifts accompanied by lovely corsages.

Those who welcomed the guests at the door were: Mrs. Meeks, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Quinney, who also sold tickets for the banquet.

After the close of the meeting, the ladies adjourned to the Tabernacle Church where a reception was enjoyed, returning again to the Legion Hall where a program had been arranged by Mrs. E. Turner, Social convener, and her assistants with Mrs. Bradford occupying the chair.

The recital was of particular interest in the community as it was the first program by local professional artists.

Interesting Variety

The songs offered an interesting variety, ranging from Gounod and Schubert operas to popular duets by Noel Coward and Hammerstein.

Miss Beatty completely charmed her audience with her perfectly controlled, lyrical soprano. Her radiant personality and interpretation of songs held the sustained interest of the audience throughout the entire program.

Evening Branch of Christ Church Woman's Auxiliary Holds Bazaar

The Evening Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary held their "Rainbow" tea and bazaar in the parish hall of Christ Church on Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 6:00. Mrs. J. Grant Sparling and Mrs. Ernest Smith received the guests.

On entering, one was met by a profusion of rainbows, the windows both from the windows with their twisted bands of pink, mauve, gold and blue, and from the two large rainbows spanning each of the two booths from end to end; and above in the wall, bands of the same colors passed back and forth, repeating and repeating the color theme, making a picturesque background for the attractive booths, and a canopy for the charming tea table, resplendent with its silver services, crystal candelabra and bowls of pink and mauve asters and gold candles, flanking the crystal bowl of white snapdragons, and colored tulips, mauve phlox and golden hued daffodils.

Attractive Booths

Along the wall, on three sides, were the booths; the first, conveners of by Mrs. Godden, with her assistants, Mrs. A. Johnson, Mrs. H. Youngbusand, Mrs. D. Muscow and Mrs. D. Milligan, was the handicraft booth, sentinelled at either end by two baskets of artificial peonies, and carnations, in deep crimson, and white, and looking so real, one could almost catch a breath of perfume. Here were displayed, for sale, several dainty aprons for old and young; handkerchief pillow slips; centre pieces of red waxed roses; a sturdy blue shirt for a boy; little knitted berets for tiny tots, of blue, with matching jackets, and others in pink, and some in white; cute little bootees; string holders in wrapping and also in two taupe colored, cotton stuffed dachhunds, one at either end, and watchful, and the other leaning against the foot of the rainbow in a rather defiant attitude, as much as to say, "After all this—to get of gold."

Behind, and supported on either side, were two lovely quilts, one in vari-colored stars, the other in fan design, on a fawn background. Here, too, were many baskets of flowers, calla lilies, carnations, and peonies, and numerous little dresses to fit some chubby three year olds.

Girls' Work Displayed

The next booth was convened by the girls' branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, and all the articles displayed were the hand work of the girls themselves, and consisted of salt bags, with smiling faces, and sunbonnets; oil-cloth string bags, appliqued with bright flowers, and a lamb with a sheepish face, and an elephant, made from pillow ticking, stuffed nice and plump — just the things for wee baby hands to fondle.

The home cooking table with its collection of fine cakes, and luscious birthday cake surmounted with pink candles, and "Happy Days" sign was appetizing as well as appealing to the eye. Here the color scheme was carried out in the rainbow spanning the ceiling, and in the cakes themselves with their rainbow icing. The conveners were Mrs. C. Hayes, and her assistants; Mrs. W. Lancaster; Mrs. W. Edwards, and Mrs. Douglas Ellis.

Presiding at the tea table from 3 to 4:30 were Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. H. Wright; and from 4 till 6 p.m. Mrs. E. Bishop.

The convener for the tea and bazaar was Mrs. H. Pitt, assisted by Mrs. W. Ingram and Mrs. A. Reid:

Those who worked so faithfully in the kitchen, behind the scenes, were Mrs. C. Cooke; Mrs. W. O'Brien, and Mrs. E. Philp. The tea was made by Mrs. Belle Wells.

Those serving the dainty sandwiches and mouth-watering cakes were: Mrs. M. Burleigh, Mrs. J. Spencer, Mrs. H. Smith, Mrs. K. Burton, and Mrs. E. Mosman. Mrs. R. Francis, Mrs. D. Bongard and Mrs. Z. Forstock. Replenishing: Mrs. S. Rose, Mrs. M. O'Connor, Mrs. R. Bryant and Mrs. Gillham.

The decorating committee was composed of Miss Frances Reid and her committee.

Several of the conveners were interviewed by CJBQ.

In all, a most fine, lovely in its appointments, and a fine bazaar of nicely selected articles again meriting much commendation.

"TWELVE MINUTES TO TWELVE YEARS"

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Wants to marry "for convenience"

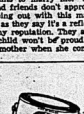
Human nature is strangely inconsistent. Not only that, but in many cases it is strangely unaware of its inconsistencies.

For example, I have a letter from a widow who tells me she is considering a second marriage with a man who cannot marry her until he gets a divorce. His current marriage is his second, his first wife died leaving him with three children. He is now separated from his second wife who does not wish to divorce him.

My correspondent tells me that this man married his second wife "for convenience, to have a woman to raise his children, but he pretended to love her." Then, with that curious human inconsistency of which she seems completely unaware she tells me that she does not love this man but wishes to marry him in order to have a father for my child and security for myself." In other words, she wants to marry him for convenience, exactly the same thing which he did and which she apparently believes was responsible for the unhappiness of his second marriage.

While this man's present wife refuses to divorce him "she claims the letter goes on to say "that he can get one and intends to, as he wants to marry me. My family and friends don't approve of my going out with this married man as they say it's a reflection on my reputation. They also feel my child won't be proud of me as a mother when she comes of age, and also they think the man isn't worthwhile who would desert his wife, especially when she had been raising her children by another mother. They think he would do the same to some day."

"I said I would leave it up to you and follow your advice."



As for leaving this matter up to me, or anyone else, that is a mistake. This woman should take the responsibility of making her own decisions. After carefully considering the situation from every angle.

I have already pointed out her inconsistent attitude toward marriage for convenience. If she thinks it was responsible for the unhappiness of this man's second marriage, why does she think his third marriage under the same conditions would have a chance of being any happier? She says the man "pretended" that he loved the woman he married for convenience. Is she now, on her side, pretending to love the man she wants to marry for the same reason?

Her idea is that 'children are the prime importance in any marriage and their welfare should be considered first." I certainly do not agree with her on that point. I think that the prime factor in any marriage should be love and compatibility between a husband and his wife. If this is lacking, the welfare of the children will be in serious danger.

I think that what this woman is considering is extremely hazardous and that she had better give the whole matter much more serious thought than she has evidently done to date before making up her mind.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Walking Along the Good-Looks Way

How goes the hoofing, lady? Besides the signs of Spring that you see with your eyes and sense with your nose, there may be another omen! On the first warm days your feet hurt and smart like sin. Do you know why? Because you are mean to them. You never do a thing to make them feel better, and you do do a sorts of things to make them feel worse. Spring fever and swinging toes come along together. Do something about it. Do it now!

No doubt your little dogs are in houses that are not suitable for them, so they are uncomfortable. When they protest, they are asking for new and better shoes. Next time you go stalking footwear, look around, observe the clerks. Pick out the one who looks most capable and intelligent. He may be able to help tell you a lot of things you don't know. He will, for instance, advise you to have leather soles and uppers, so that the movement of your feet will be free and flexible.

There are many shoe designs as there are different types of feet. It is silly to choose for style and smartness only. If you have chronic foot troubles and find incomotion more or less painful, seek the services of a specialist and if necessary have prescription shoes made to order. You may have always worn the wrong last.

Have leather soles and uppers

Give your feet a treat now and then by walking barefoot. Yes, we know that they pick up a bit of dust from the rugs, but what of it? Feet are washable.

A good exercise to strengthen tendons and muscles is to walk toeing in for five or ten minutes. It will be a pleasant change from the toes-straight-ahead system. It impasts vigor and vitality to fatigued phalanges. Walking barefoot will unhuddle toes that may have been forced into too close companionship because you have been wearing shoes that are too narrow.

After your toeing-in exercise, sit in a low chair; lift and lower your toes to create flexibility. If you would do your ankles a good turn while you do it, move the forward portion of the foot up and down, keeping the heel on the floor.

While you are in bed, waiting for the sand man to come and close your weary eyes, wiggle your toes. If we had never worn shoes, our toes would be as flexible and as capable of movement as our finger. If yours are in good condition, you should be able to pick up marbles. That is a test.

When you come home on a warm spring day, tired as all get out, with feet hot and blistered, bathe them in cold water, dry them with a coarse towel, and massage them with mineral oil. The free use of mineral oil will have a favorable effect, not only on burning flesh, but on corns and calluses.

Broiler pans should be removed from your gas range as soon as cooking is finished. While still hot, soiled it should be washed with soap and water.

Fashion Flashes

BEAUTIFUL BELTS have a big place in late spring and summer fashions. A simple dance dress of printed organza in lilac violet and topaz yellow has a belt of lilac moire studded with fake amethysts and topaz.

THE LITTLE BLACK DRESS will be out in force for town wear come summer. Black chiffon is used for a pretty simple afternoon dress. The bodice, with deep plunging V neckline and elbow length sleeves, has single and double layers in the veiled top. The wide midriff is shirred and the slim skirt is finely knife-pleated.

DRESS UP the scarf that adds color and interest to your coat or suit by attaching it to a beautiful flower or a flower cluster. A cluster of parma violets on plaid-edged green faille ribbon lends interest to a mauve pink scarf.

THERE'S A WIDE CHOICE of fabric gloves waiting for spring and summer shoppers. Something different in a shortie in natural silk pongee, detailed with a self-bound, slit wrist. Beautiful white piqua gloves with touches of navy red, yellow or green are cool and pretty.

ONCE MORE it looks like the straw bag for summer, but this time in more dressy versions than those obtaining last summer. Iridescent navy blue straw, with top and bottom of hand-crocheted silver metallic thread, is used for a long slim, over-the-wrist bag with self handle and zipper closing.

Rice-Farming Gets Impetus In Australia

By LESLIE BRODIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Australian rice farmers are endeavoring to increase domestic output to contribute more to world rice supplies — estimated by United Nations food organization at around 14,000,000 tons short of requirements.

Present production in Australia is about 50,000 tons annually. Authorities believe that it could be increased to more than 1,000,000 tons if the rice farmer had some guarantee the industry would remain on a profitable basis for him.

The farmers' reluctance to step up production in the past has been based on fear that world supplies would catch up with the demand and put them at a great disadvantage with other rice-exporting countries where coolie labor keeps costs down.

Before the war rice-growing in Australia was a protected industry, but it was carried on by veterans of the First World War who used the irrigation areas of the Murrumbridgee River where the land was fair for growing other types of farming.

The rice industry was subsidized by the government to help them compete with the South East Asian rice exporters who were able to land the best quality, rice on the Australian eastern coast cheaper than the local product could be grown.

War-Made Market

When war cut off supplies from the Burmese, Siamese and the Indo-Chinese ricefields, Australia's farmers had a ready-made market waiting for them. With government assistance production was increased to its present level of 50,000 tons.

Today's high price has given incentive to think of possibility of the rice countries catching up with demands. The U. N. food organization's estimate on world shortages indicated that between 60,000,000 and 100,000,000 people dependent on rice will have to go without this year. Next year the position is expected to be worse.

No rice has been available to Australian housewives since the early days of the war.

Only 8,000 tons are kept for local consumption. This is distributed by the Department of Commerce to the Asiatic crews of visiting merchant ships, resident Asiatics, hospitals and invalids, and members of the diplomatic corps.

A small amount finds its way to the "black market", through these channels, but it is so little the authorities are not disturbed about it.

AIR-BORNE APE LIKES COMFORT

London — (CP) — When two orang-outangs being flown from Singapore to the U.S.A. arrived at London Airport one of them was feeling a little "off-colour."

The staff felt that they should give all possible service to this "passenger" so they sent him to a pet store where he would have every care and attention. When cargo officials called for him they found the orang-outang reclining in an armchair with a blanket around his shoulders enjoying a television program.

Plan Memorial For Dr. A. Dafoe

Callander, May 3 (CP)—A memorial will be built to perpetuate the memory of the pudgy little country doctor who gained overnight fame by delivering the Dionne Quintuplets 15 years ago — Dr. Alan Roy Dafoe.

While the five sisters made plans for their 15th birthday May 28, at their farm home 2 1-2 miles from this Northern Ontario resort centre, the North Himsworth township council Monday night endorsed a Canadian Legion recommendation of the Dafoe memorial.

Dr. Dafoe, who defied science by keeping the Quints alive in a humble frame house, died June 2, 1943, at the age of 60. Since the birth of the sisters there had been friction between the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne and the doctor, and he was finally relieved of his position as their medical guardian.

But in the eyes of many northerners, the little doctor was as much responsible for the fame gained by this district as a tourist centre, as were the Quints themselves. So that northerners won't forget Dr. Dafoe, a committee has been named to decide on details of the memorial.

Foresees Race Of Mixed Blood In New Zealand

By J. G. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Auckland, N. Z. — (CP) — The development of a mixed race of New Zealanders of European and Maori blood has been foreseen by Sir Peter Buck. Acknowledged as the greatest living authority on Pacific ethnology, he recently made a comprehensive tour of almost all Maori settlements.

Sir Peter, who is himself of mixed Maori and Irish descent, has been revisiting New Zealand after many years overseas. He is director of the Bishop Museum, Honolulu, and was formerly professor of anthropology at Yale.

He has found great changes in the Maori race since he was last among his people over 14 years ago. He is convinced that "the Maoris have come to town for good" and that the blood and cultures of the Dominion's two races should be integrated for the benefit of themselves and New Zealand.

"The mixing of races will go on," he says. "In future I see the development of a fine race of New Zealanders composed of pakeha (European) and Maori. The mixture of bloods should lead New Zealand to the forefront of civilization."

Sir Peter says that the Maoris have made the greatest advance of any colored people of the Pacific. They can achieve anything that other peoples can, with as much distinction.

The closer integration the Maoris have achieved with European society since his last visit has astonished him. On all sides, he says, there is evidence of Maoris adapting themselves to new conditions and adjusting their way of life to co-operate more freely with the pakeha.

Maori Progress

He feels the race no longer needs the special protection accorded it by law in the past. For this reason he welcomes the recent repeal of laws which prohibited Maoris from buying liquor to drink at home and also the lifting of the restriction which barred Maori women from hotel bars. As long as these restrictions on his freedom existed, the Maori felt inferior and irresponsible, he declares. Psychologically, the removal of the bans was an excellent thing.

"There were abuses in the past but the Maori has developed since then. They cannot always remain children.

"If the Maoris are to continue merging more and more with pakeha life, the old distinctions must go," Sir Peter declares, but he advocated the continuation of efforts to preserve some of the old Maori customs hand-in-hand with the process of adjustment. Certain elements of Maori culture should be retained to give the race a full respect for its origins and to remove any vestige of an inferiority complex. In the home and schools, too, some attempt should be made to preserve the Maori language.

Statistics are strong support for Sir Peter's view. Of New Zealand's 1,902,000 people, over 100,000 are classed as Maoris and the native race, once believed to be dying out, is increasing more rapidly than the European.

Of the 106,000 Maoris, however, it is estimated that only about half are of unmixed Maori stock. The remainder are either half-caste or three-quarter-caste Maoris. There are many quarter-castes included in the European population.

The proportion of Maoris of unmixed blood is falling steadily. Maoris inter-marry increasingly freely with the white population.

INDIAN CANDIDATE

Frank Calder, 33-year-old university graduate and son of an Indian chief, is the first Indian here to run in a British Columbia election. He was named by the C.C.F. to contest the riding of Atlin.—(CP Photo).

Emphasizes Amount Of Canuck Imports

London —(CP)— United Kingdom imports from Canada in 1948 totalled more than four times the value of imports from the four Eastern European countries, official statistics showed.

The Board of Trade Journal published figures showing that Canadian exports to the United Kingdom for the year were valued at £216,649,000 ($866,596,000) Grain and flour products at £103,839 formed the bulk of the total.

These totals, the Board said, compared with a value of £47,003,000 for goods imported from Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Imports from Russia accounted for £27,048,000 of the total.

United Kingdom exports to Canada were valued at £69,585,000. Exports to the four Eastern European countries totalled £20,819,000.

The Board said the figures were published because of "considerable discussion" both in the United Kingdom and Canada about the effects of Britain's bilateral trade agreements with Eastern Europe.

It was decided that the "exact size of our trade with Canada on the one hand and Eastern Europe on the other should be kept in mind."

More Deaths, Fewer Births in Ontario

Toronto, May 3 — (CP) — Births and marriages declined in Ontario last year, according to figures released Monday by Registrar-General George Dunbar. Deaths showed an increase. There were 105, 919 Births in 1948 as compared with 108,851 the previous year while marriages totalled 42,194 as against 44,055 in 1947. Deaths increased from 41,907 in 1947 to 43,120 in 1948.

Seeding Now General On Ontario Farms

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Seeding is general on Ontario farms after rainy, cold weather delayed operations, the weekly crop report of the Ontario Agriculture Department says.

In some parts of Western and Southern Ontario, seeding operations have been completed.

90 Organizations in Canada Aiding Exhausted Europe

Ottawa —(CP)— More than three years after the war's end, Canada still is stretching out a strong arm to help war stricken Europe to its feet.

With return to a peace time "free enterprise" system of giving, aid now goes through two distinct channels—officially from government funds to pay Canada's share of United Nations expenses; and, voluntarily, from 90 organizations across the country.

Through these 90 groups go a square meal a day for thousands of European children and adults; warm clothing, medical supplies, educational equipment.

In 1948 a total of $14,742,321 was sent overseas from the people of Canada, to the people of war-devastated countries.

Control of this extensive program how rests solely with the people of Canada. The government's wartime supervision and co-ordination is finished and subject to regular export restrictions and local campaign regulations, these voluntary organizations are on their own.

Generally these groups do not receive government assistance. Two exceptions are the United Nations Appeal for Children and the Canadian Council for Reconstruction through U.N.R.R.C.O. Each of these received a grant of $300,000 to start them on their way.

Reason for the exception is that these two are on a different basis from spontaneous organizations such as the Save the Children Fund the Unitarian Service Committee, the United Emergency Fund for Britain. They have formed a response to a request from the government which did not have machinery for country wide campaigns. When the United Nations decided that each member country would assist children and educational and cultural reconstruction, the Canadian government turned the projects over to voluntary committees. Apart from that preliminary grant, they too now are on their own.

Though even Canada's maximum giving could be but a drop in the bucket of Europe's staggering need, the Dominion's contribution is large and comprehensive.

The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, the Canadian Save the Children Fund, the United Nations Appeal for Children, all are primarily concerned with making Europe's children healthy. They send food, clothing and medical equipment to children in any country as long as they are assured of free distribution without government interference.

The Unitarian Service Committee has a foster parent scheme which has seen 2,100 children temporarily adopted by Canadian families.

The Save the Children Fund provides a daily meal for 400 Dunkerque children.

Many groups and individuals ship food and clothing parcels through Care, Canadian branch of an American organization which now stipulates that its Canadian dollars must be sent in Canada.

These are only a few of those 90 groups. Across the country, service clubs, church and school societies, are working on their own or through larger bodies to help give normal living back to war haunted Europe.

London — (CP) — When Winston Churchill is made a freeman of the London borough of Kensington in June he will receive a replica of the field marshal's baton carried on the battlefield at Blenheim by his ancestor the Duke of Marlborough. The baton will be made from the wood of a walnut tree planted at the time of the battle.

Veteran Overcomes Jinx on Farm

Tottenham, Ont. — (CP) — A young R.C.A.F. veteran with judicious use of some free advice and direction from Ontario Agriculture College officials, has made a success of a 100-acre farm near this Simcoe county community where for 40 years no tenant farmer has been able to make a living.

Paul Clausen, the veteran, bought the farm with $4,800 advanced by the Veterans Land Act administration and then started attending educational short courses in agriculture.

He learned that the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph was offering to analyze the soil and plan a crop rotation for any farm in the district and he snapped at the offer.

Clausen's farm lies in a valley and contains the best topsoil drained down from three adjoining farms. The O.A.C. surveyors recognized this and advised a crop rotation which would include a majority of hay and grain needed to feed the farm's growing purebred Ayrshire herd. His first experiment on the O.A.C. plan produced enough corn from three acres to overfill his silo.

The next move in his campaign will be reforestation — a five-acre woodlot — and he plans to ask the Department of Lands and Forests for the seedlings to start now.

Clausen has mechanized much of his farm with a jeep. He has mechanical refrigerator, hydro and a pressure water system and now V.L.A. officials are pointing to his 100 acres with pride. Some of his neighbors, too, want to duplicate his success on their own farms.

Arid Lands Alive When Floods Stop Six-Year Drought in Australia

By LESLIE BRODIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Sydney, Australia (CP)—Ranch and farm owners of the far west of Queensland and New South Wales are studying the balance sheet of the recent rains that flooded their parched lands.

It is agreed generally that the long-range gains will be greater than their immediate heavy losses in stock and property.

Thousands of miles of previous fences have been washed away by flooding creeks and rivers. Destruction of long lines of wire mesh fences erected to hold back the dingo (wild dog) leaves the sheep ranches wide open to the hordes of these animals who will come in to attack surviving sheep flocks.

No estimate can be given of the number of sheep and cattle drowned but it is believed to be high.

On the credit side is an assurance of good grass and water necessary for re-stocking after the disastrous drought years. Millions of acres of grazing land has been inundated and given its best soaking for a century.

The floods followed one of the severest droughts in the history of the outback. No appreciable rain had fallen in some districts for more than six years while most of the land had been without rain for three years. During that time an estimated 6,000,000 sheep and 1,000,000 head of cattle perished.

Parched And Cracked

Before rain began to fall on Christmas Eve last year the outback looked brown and stark. Huge cracks formed in the open plains and the slightest breeze stirred up clouds of dust.

Bones of dead cattle, sheep, and horses appeared as though they would break through the hide as the animals pawed the grasiless earth for roots and seeds.

Small holders were ruined, and many abandoned their homesteads to the creeping dust of erosion.

But with the rain life came back to the west. Birds returned to their old haunts; kangaroos and emus came back as though on a magic carpet from nowhere to join the wild horses, donkeys and wild camels who survived the drought. Wild ducks and even cod and fish have returned to the western rivers.

Less than 24 hours after the rain began to fall tiny grass shoots sprang up from the naked earth. In three weeks native clover was a foot high. Nardoo grass, the seeds of which the aborigines pound into a flour, is already flourishing in a fairyland of red and yellow native daisies.

As the floods subside, families who left the land are preparing to return, even though they had vowed they would never go back.

Bloc Populaire Party in Quebec To Disappear

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—The Bloc Populaire Party, an outgrowth of the national mobilization political crisis in 1942, is about to disappear with the retirement of its founder and leader, Maxime Raymond of Montreal.

Ill-health is forcing the retirement of the 65-year-old lawyer who broke with the Liberal Party when it decided to mobilize men compulsorily for training in the armed forces. He formed his Nationalist Party on both a federal and provincial basis but it found little favor at the polls.

Mr. Raymond, who has represented the Quebec constituency of Beauharnois-Laprairie since 1925, led 40 candidates into the field in Quebec in the 1945 general election. He and J. I. Hamel of St. Maurice-Lafleche were the only two elected. Mr. Hamel plans to contest the June 27 election, but it is believed he will run as an Independent.

The largest number of supporters Mr. Raymond ever had in the Commons was four. That was in the years between the formation of the party and the 1945 general election.

Then Mr. Raymond broke with the Liberals, several other Quebec members went with him and became members of his new party. They were Edouard Lacroix, who has since retired from politics, Dr. Pierre Gauthier, who returned to the Liberal fold and who sits as member for Portneuf, Emmanuel D'Astous, who represented Rimouski at the time, and J. A. Choquette, member for Stanstead.

Swing Behind Duplessis

The party disappeared in the provincial field prior to last summer's Quebec election. It had been singularly unsuccessful, having only its provincial leader— Andre Laurendeau—and one other elected to the legislature. Its supporters have swung their strength behind the Union Nationale Party of Premier Duplessis.

Mr. Raymond, now embittered against the words and actions of some men in public life, said in a recent interview he has never looked back with regret on what he has done.

His last speech in the Commons was a denunciation of Canadian participation in the Atlantic pact. He and his party colleague Mr. Hamel were the only two to vote against adoption of the draft of the Atlantic pact. They were not in the Chamber when the pact was unanimously given formal ratification.

Mr. Raymond said he is not an Isolationist. He agrees with the aims of the Atlantic pact but he cannot accept it as a serious document. He said that it is being depicted as a defence against Communism, but some of its signatories are supplying Russia and her satellites with war materials.

He questions the sincerity of pact signatories when they exclude a Roman Catholic country such as Spain from any agreement aimed at stopping the advances of Communism.

2,000 Eviction Notices Issued

Toronto, May 3 (CP)—Approximately 2,000 eviction notices have been issued in Toronto, effective May 1, officials of the Prices Board estimated today. However, not all the notices will be served, they added.

They said the notices are withheld if the tenant finds a new home and leaves or if he makes a "deal" with the landlord and remains in his present dwelling. Officials said there was "no way of knowing how many of the 2,000 notices will be served.

More Canadians Move to U. S. In Past Three Years

Ottawa, May 4 (CP)—An increase in the number of Canadians moving to the United States in the last three years is shown in a report made public today by the Department of Labor's Technical Personnel Division.

The increase covering the three years up to June 30, 1948, was largest among technical and clerical workers. Most pronounced single jump was among trained and student nurses, in which there was a rise from 246 to 779 from June 30, 1946, to the same date last year.

Other increases included:

Clergymen, 173 to 199; college faculty members, 41 to 87; doctors, 104 to 154; teachers, 182 to 286; technicians and assistants, 69 to 126.

However, emigration decreased in some classifications, including: Engineers, 283 to 251; religious workers, 200 to 182; wireless operators, 34 to 14.

Threatening Letter Sent Councillor

Dresden, Ont., May 3 (CP) — Town councillor Michael Fry and William Carter, who have taken a prominent part in a campaign to have town council compel restaurants to serve Negroes, said today they had been threatened.

Mr. Fry said he had received anonymous threatening calls and Mr. Carter said he had received a threatening letter which he turned over to Ontario police.

Dresden town council has planned to hold a referendum on municipal legislation to license the town's restaurants after it was claimed that three of the five restaurants would not serve Negroes. The referendum was indefinitely postponed and Mayor Walter S. Wesco said Monday night that in view of newspaper publicity a vote should not be in the interest of the Negroes.

Estevan, Sask., May 3 (CP)—A 15-year-old girl, victim of a rape attack, is in hospital after slashing her wrists with a broken water glass Monday. A charge of rape was laid against Raymond Larocque, remanded to May 10 for trial.

JAILED FOR ASSAULT

Kingston, May 3 (CP)—Warning that he would deal sternly with any similar cases, Magistrate James B. Gervin Monday sentenced five youths to one week in jail and fined them $20 each on assault charges. The five—William Daugherty, Earl Gallivan, Alfred J. Nell, Ramon Nall and Steve Sitoski—assaulted Mac Amey Sunday.

FOUR POWERS PLAN TO LIFT BLOCKADE MAY 12

Four Men Trapped At 800-Foot Level In Burning Mine

Believe Miners Will Drown Before They Can be Rescued

Girardville, Pa., May 4 (AP)—Four men are trapped 800 feet underground today in a burning anthracite mine.

The miners are entombed in the No. 5 colliery of the Gilberton Coal Company near the Eastern Pennsylvania town.

Rescue workers pumped compressed air down the smoked filled shaft in an effort to provide ventilation for the trapped men.

Water pumps, however, broke down and company officials expressed fears that the trapped men may be drowned before they are reached.

Mine Superintendent Elmer Christ said he believed the blaze was caused by a spark — circuit in electric wiring which ignited mine timbers.

Michael Caufield, Girardville miner, who escaped from the mine with three other workmen, told a reporter that three of the men were working at the third level — 800 feet underground. The fourth, Caufield said, probably is at the fourth level, 1,100 feet down.

Only eight men were in the mine when the fire was discovered Tuesday night.

Several rescue workers, wearing asbestos suits and gas masks, were lowered into the smoked shaft today. They reached the second level — 500 feet down — but were forced back to the surface because of the heavy smoke.

All other operations were suspended at the mine. The day shift of 350 men reported for work as usual but the men were sent home except for those needed in rescue and fire fighting operations.

The shaft was described as "full of smoke."

Two men crawled out of the mine at the time the fire was discovered. They reported having been overcome by smoke but revived later and were able to make their way to safety.

New Parliament Will Have 17 More Seats

Ottawa, May 4 (CP) — Newfoundland's entry into Confederation and the decennial census of 1947 means a 17-seat expansion in the House of Commons in the June 27 Federal election and boosts Senate representation by six.

Newfoundland is entitled to seven Commons seats. The redistribution Act adds 10 others, raising membership from 245 to 262. Newfoundland is entitled to six Senate seats, raising membership from 96 to 102.

Ontario	82	83
Quebec	65	73
Nova Scotia	12	13
New Brunswick	10	10
Prince Edward Island	4	4
Manitoba	17	16
British Columbia	16	16
Saskatchewan	21	20
Alberta	17	17
Yukon	1	1
Newfoundland	nil	7
Total	245	262

Quebec Used as Basis

Prior to the 1947 Act, Quebec was used as the basis for fixing representation in the Commons. The quotient was reached by dividing Quebec's 65 seats into the province's population.

Under the 1947 Act the quotient was arrived at by dividing 250 into the country's 1945 population of 11,381,566. The 250 figure represented the number of seats in all areas except, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and the Yukon.

The quotient arrived at by dividing 250 into 11,381,569 is 45,526. Divided into Ontario's population of 3,767,655 it shows that province is entitled to 83 members, one more than it has at present. Quebec is entitled to an additional seat.

British Columbia gets two more seats and Nova Scotia one. Saskatchewan and Manitoba each lose a seat. The other provinces remained unchanged.

Redistribution of Commons seats is supposed to take place every 10 years following the decennial census.

The next distribution will be due in 1952, based on the census taken in 1951.

A. Cole Outlines Party Policy At Meeting

The first C. C. F. political meeting of the forthcoming campaign was held at Point Anne Tuesday evening when Arthur Cole, party candidate for Hastings South, outlined the organizational policy of the C. C. F. to a large gathering.

The candidate stressed the points in the C. C. F. policy which he felt would assure Hastings South being won by the party. He felt that the party housing program and their social security platform would meet with the approval of the voters.

Mr. James Russell, C. C. F. organizer of Sudbury was present and told the meeting of the success which the C. C. F. party is meeting with in Northern Ontario.

The winning ticket in a draw was won by Neil Haffey of Assumption College at Windsor.

JOINT STATEMENT CHARGES UNION VIOLATING LAW

Mitchell, Chevrier Give Warning to CSU

By The Canadian Press

Two federal cabinet ministers, Labor Minister Mitchell and Transport Minister Chevrier, yesterday (Tuesday) issued a joint statement in Ottawa charging that the law is being violated by members of the leftist-led Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) taking part in strikes on Canadian ships in ports abroad.

The statement appeared to be a stern warning to the C.S.U. which has been striking against the Shipping Federation of Canada since April 1.

(Fines by the captain are provided for in the shipping act, and it was reported yesterday that 30 striking seamen in Australia had been docked a total of $1,000 in pay.)

Fire Scare

A brief fire scare aboard a Canadian ammunition-loaded ship centred attention at Montreal, March 4, when a small blaze broke out on the deck of the freighter Tribesman, property of the Tribal Steamship Company of Montreal.

It was within eight or 10 feet of a hold where ammunition, destined for China and Pakistan, was loaded. A harbor policeman said there was suspicion the blaze may have been deliberately started.

Longshoremen at other points of the strike, both abroad and at home.

Georgetown, British Guiana — Twenty-five members of the Canadian Seamen's Union pleaded guilty in police court on charges of wilful disobedience to a lawful command. The men were members of the Canadian freighter Sunwhit, now manned by a Seafarers' International Union (A. F. L.) crew.

The crew of the freighter Sunwhit continued to resist efforts by police to arrest them on similar charges. They have refused to allow police to board the vessel which also is anchored at Georgetown.

Halifax—Keith Selig, C.S.U. member, was broken in city police court on a charge of causing bodily harm to William Murdock, 53, of New Glasgow, N.S.

Murdock claimed he was taken in a car to the outskirts of Halifax last week and beaten up by Selig.

Bristol, England—Some 1,200 dock workers at Avonmouth, Britain's port, voted to return to work yesterday. They had left their jobs Monday protesting the presence of a "scab" crew aboard the Canadian freighter Gulfside.

Clayton Favors Federal Union, Says Russia Aims to Frighten Private Capital, Initiative

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Will Clayton, former Undersecretary of State, said today that "on balance, Russia is winning the cold war."

Called before the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee to testify in support of the Atlantic pact, Clayton said in a prepared statement:

"Soviet Russia's principal objectives in the cold war are to frighten democratic governments into excessive expenditures for defense, and to frighten private capital and initiative so that it will not operate freely.

So far, he said, the Russian effort to undermine the democracies appears to be succeeding.

As things stand now, the former government official added, "we win that war."

"we have won the battle of Berlin because that was a problem in transportation, a field in which we excel.

But the west had not won the battle of Greece, had "practically lost the battle of China," and had yet to fight the battle of the Middle East.

Clayton's appraisal was gloomy in comparison with recent summings of officials now in the United States government.

He said the Atlantic treaty is a necessary step, "but, make no mistake about it, the cold war will go on with perhaps greater vigor than heretofore."

However, if a federal union were formed, it would "take the offensive in the cold war in every country in Europe. And we would

Story of Newfoundland Life Adds Much to Canadian News Says Sifton

Toronto, May 4 (CP) — The story of Newfoundland life, now taking its place in Canadian newspapers, is a fascinating and romantic addition to Canadian news, Victor Sifton, President of The Canadian Press, said in his address to the news co-operative's annual meeting today.

Mr. Sifton welcomed to the membership representatives of the St. John's Dailies, Hon. J. S. Currie of the Daily News, and Ralph B. Herder of the Evening Telegram. Both papers receive the CP's report of world and Canadian news and co-operate with a CP staff correspondent in covering the new province for the rest of Canada.

Mr. Sifton, publisher of the Winnipeg Free Press, told the attending publishers and editors the CP's financial position, and said that during the next year plans will be studied for enlarging the new head office building, opened last year, from two to four stor-

FIRE-BLASTED TANKER SINKS AFTER EXPLOSION

Three Persons Injured Including the Captain

New castle, N.B., May 4 (CP)—The fire-blasted tanker Elkhound today rested on the bottom of the Miramichi River after two internal explosions cracked her hull and injured three persons, including the captain.

One member of the 14-man crew, fireman Wesley Weagies of Bridgewater, N.S., was brought to hospital here after the first blast yesterday caught him asleep in his bunk. He later was reported "doing well."

Also injured were Capt. Gordon T Weston of Rexton, N. B., and crew member Wilfred Duplessis of Buctouche, N.B. Both suffered burns.

Flames raced through the 720-ton ship 15 minutes before sailing time. Her oil cargo had been loaded into tanks on a pier and escaped damage. After the explosion she was towed into mid-stream.

Capt. Weston went aboard and ancored her alone, not knowing when a thir dblast might rake the heeling vessel.

His action prevented the flaming Elkhound drifting ashore and causing further damage, confined to broken windows on both sides of the river. The Miramichi is three-quarters of a mile wide at this northeastern New Brunswick port.

Foreign Ministers Council to Meet On May 28 in Paris

Forthcoming Meeting Willbe First in Two and Half Years

New York, May 4 — (AP) — Russia and the three Western Powers met today to work out plans to lift the blockades of Berlin, May 12 and for a Council of Foreign Ministers meeting May 23.

These dates were disclosed by a London source in position to know them as envoys of the four powers convened in the United States United Nations delegation office.

The Foreign Ministers Conference is to be marked the first time the first in 1½ years and the seventh session of the foreign ministers body.

Only five persons were present at today's meeting. They were delegates of Britain, the United States, France and Russia and a Russian secretary-interpreter.

Today's meeting was called to work out "details" of the two days in March, it was learned.

Capt. Weston went aboard and anchored her alone, not knowing when a thir dblast might rake the heeling vessel.

His action prevented the flaming Elkhound drifting ashore and causing further damage, confined to broken windows on both sides of the river. The Miramichi is three-quarters of a mile wide at this northeastern New Brunswick port.

Three Shopgirls Jump 50 Feet To Escape Fire

Glasgow, May 4 — (AP)— Three shopgirls jumped 50 feet from the roof to the ground as fire swept a store here today. One girl was known dead and several were missing. A police official said he feared 10 persons were dead.

A statement issued by the United States delegation to the United Nations said the series of talks have now reached a point where it is possible to consider "detailed arrangements for the reciprocal lifting of the restrictions which have been in existence since March 1948 on communications with the city of Berlin."

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

Gently she put her hand on his arm and spoke softly. "I don't want to be a great lady and live in fine houses and be hostess to the world, Gregg. I'm not the woman you want for your wife. I just want to love a man and share what he has and be with him and never be separated from him. Do you see, dear? You must. You must understand because you've been so sweet and good to me. Forgive me."

"I took an unfair advantage of you," he said soberly, steadily. "If I had not been there that night, after your trying time at the charity ball, you'd never have promised to marry me. I knew that and that's why I was there. If I had not been there, you'd have gone in and spent one of the most wretched nights of your life, but in the morning you'd have had your courage again and looked for another job. I've hurried the wedding because I was afraid you'd change your mind. You're in love with Chris Mallory, aren't you, Gay?"

"How did you know?"

"I knew it the night we saw his play. I knew it tonight when they played that song."

"I don't want to hurt you, Gregg. Even if I didn't love Chris, I still couldn't marry you. It wouldn't be fair to you, not loving you enough." She drew away a little and lifted her head. "The world will call me mad for turning you down and all that you can offer a woman. I'm not mad, Gregg. I know what I want." Her eyes softened and there was a new light in them. "I'm going to Nassau and find Chris Mallory. I'm waiting down a blind alley when I go. He may be married. He may not want me. But I'm going to him. Gregg . . ."

He threw away the cigaret and looked directly at her. "Don't say it. Don't make apologies. In a triangle, one has always got to be the loser." He smiled. "I've spent a good many years in England, and the British are good losers. From the first day I saw you I knew you were too good to be true."

She nodded. "I'm not the person for you. Really I'm not. I don't want to be elegant any more, and I wouldn't be a success as mistress of all your lovely homes. You see, Gregg, I came to you with a terrific jolt. I hated it and then the earth became very sweet to me. I want to go back to it. But I'm still so terribly grateful to you and Millicent. And I know I . . . I'm leaving you in a very embarrassing position . . ."

He shrugged at that. "Let it pass. They blow over quickly. I'll still take the cruise I planned for me. Mother will go now. I think she wanted to go all the time."

"You're making it easier for me," said Gay. "It's very good of you."

Millicent came out on the patio. She looked first at Gay and then at her son.

"I overheard everything," she said, smiling. "You should have closed the door, Gay, my dear, don't look so miserable and don't blame yourself for anything. Hearing what you said made me think I've been a very selfish mother. I've been thinking only of Gregg, his happiness, everything for him, and urging you to marry him." She put her arm through Gregg's. "Thoroughbreds accept their losses graciously." She laughed. "You know, I do hate to see the yacht sail away without me. Now I can go, Gay. I'm still young enough, thank heaven, to remember the day I ran away from home and got a boat to England to marry Gregg's father. So I can appreciate how you feel now . . ."

Gregg said, "Planes are faster. You can get a plane to Nassau tonight. If he should be married, it be shouldn't be there . . ."

"I'll go back to New York," said Gay and laughed. "I'm a trained dress model now!"

Millicent said, "Of course we'll stop over, darling. What are you waiting for?"

When she went to her room, she still could not believe that it was true. For a moment she could do nothing except stand in the middle of the floor and put her hands against her burning face. Gregg and Millicent, standing on the patio, how right they looked together! There would be no wife with another man in her heart to come between their warm companionship. There would be another girl some day for Gregg, a polished and beautiful girl, proud to be mistress of his many homes and hostess to his friends' . . .

She packed a few things, pulled a knitted yellow hat over her hair, a short yellow coat over her white dress.

Gregg and Millicent were waiting in the hall downstairs.

"My best wishes for the best of everything," said Gregg.

Millicent laughed. "I see slim, young Millicent running away for many years ago. Her eyes were as bright as yours, darling. Don't think about us, Gay. We're going to have a fine time on the cruise."

"Think of us a little," said Gregg. "The car's outside. I'll get it at the airport in the morning . . ."

"You are . . ." said Gay but her voice broke. "Thank you, thank you. I can't think of anything suitable to say. I'm terribly grateful and . . ."

"Darling," said Millicent, "do hurry! Do you want to postpone it until morning?"

"If he isn't there," said Gregg.

As the car carried Gay away, Gregg's voice saying, "If he isn't there . . ." made her shudder.

"Chris, you called me back in your song. You coming to you. 'We'll Meet Again' . . . your play and the song is inspired . . . are still echoing in my heart, and we'll meet again tonight in Nassau if you're there and Evelyn isn't your wife. I'm back in your world again. Chris. I'm living again. I'm not a symbol of a man's wealth and I have no debt or gratitude to pay with myself."

She was still there, while figure walking across the ground to the airport office. She looked up. The stars were close and thick and the moon on the water seemed to make a safe path to Nassau. Somehow it wasn't just her own faith that was guiding her. She knew that Penny and Mac and Diana, wherever they were tonight, wanted her to do this. If she found Chris, she'd never have to envy Penny again, and Chris, who loved Diana, would never be ashamed of her.

She did not look beyond tonight and finding him. To be with Chris, to be in his arms, was to be afraid of nothing that came thereafter. If he were married to Evelyn and sent her flying, with somehow she could go back and pick up the fragments of her life better for having known him and At least she could say, "I heard your song. I accept your challenge. And in the end, I am true to you and the things you told me."

She did not notice the other passengers on the plane and she was barely conscious of the roaring motors. To Gay each star she passed brought her closer to Chris, and the moonlit path across the sea seemed to guide her direct to him. She thought,—"In a little while I'll know, and that little while that is an eternity will decide my future for me. Am I going to be his wife or am I going back to New York alone? Alone! I've really been alone since he left. How did I fight against loving him in the beginning? Alan? I've forgotten him and I wonder if I ever loved him . . ."

When the motors spun less vehemently and the passengers began to stir, some one said, "Well, we're here."

Gay, her little white sandals on land again, looked around, picked up her traveling bag, and smiled confidently at a strange tropical country. "Chris, I'm here."

In Nassau the air is warm and there is always the perfume of many beautiful flowers. The sea, a soft blue by day, is deep silver by night. Barefoot natives saunter through the narrow winding streets, plucking at their mandolins, and now and then a low voice, singing a Bahaman song, pricks the warm silence.

To Gay, walking along the street, it was strange and bewildering and she felt as if bewitched. When she looked up, the heavens, dotted with clusters of stars, never seemed closer, and beyond the island was the vast encircling sea.

There was no rush, no madness here. In cafes and restaurants she saw sunburned men and girls talking and laughing over their food and drinks. People brushed by her but they did not notice her. From somewhere she heard an orchestra playing . . .

Now that she was here, she had no idea where to look for him. When a white man came down the street, she asked, "Do you, by any chance, know Chris Mallory? He lives here but I don't know his address."

He said, "Sorry, I don't" and went on.

She walked on, her thoughts divided between Chris and the beauty of the island. When she came to the dock, she knew she could go no farther and turned back. The bag was heavy in her hand now.

When she came to a cigar store, she went in and a pleasant faced English boy greeted her.

"I'm looking for a man named Chris Mallory. I thought perhaps he might buy his tobacco here and you might know him."

"Mallory? A big chap? Dark?"

"Yes," said Gay and smiled. "And I can tell you the color of pipe tobacco he smokes."

He gave her an address and "When he's busy, we send his cigarets and tobacco around to him. That's how I know where he lives."

Gay said, "Thank you."

She hurried to the address he had given her and found herself in a narrow uphill street looking at a quaint white house with steps leading to a balcony on the second floor. A tree, heavy with red blossoms, grew over the balcony.

Swamp Specimens Link With Past

Christchurch, N.Z. — (CP) — Pages of New Zealand's prehistoric past are being opened up with excavation of a swamp at Waikari, on the South Island. Here in the past few years have been unearthed more than 100 complete skeletons of the moa, huge flightless bird which inhabited New Zealand before its discovery by the Europeans, as well as of other extinct birds about which little has hitherto been known.

Collections of moa bones have been found in many parts of New Zealand, but they have rarely been complete skeletons. It has been necessary to piece together bones from various collections. At Waikari, however, the birds died in the swamp. In many cases the contents of the gizzards are intact, throwing a great amount of light on the food and habits of the birds.

About 140 complete specimens of moa skeletons have been taken from the swamp. Resembling an ostrich but with huge sturdy legs, the moa is now thought to have been dying out before the first Maoris came to New Zealand, but there is ample evidence that the Maoris hunted and killed the survivors for food and clothing.

Skeletons have also been found in the swamp of an extinct goose, a giant woodhen larger than a turkey, of the extinct New Zealand eagle, as well as the remains of creatures which survive today at the kiwi and the tuatara lizard.

One-Act Plays Slyly Satirize Canadian Scene

(By The Canadian Press)

A new book of five plays, "Eros At Breakfast" by Robertson Davies (Clarke, Irwin), is slanted directly at Canadians. It is an entertaining plea for Canadian arts and a witty condemnation of the attitudes which stifle the development of Canadian culture.

The bearded editor of the Peterborough Examiner has produced a group of one-act plays which will please him even more than the "Dairy of Samuel Marchbanks," a penetrating, humorous commentary on life as viewed from the sidelines.

It is this same clever combination of wit and thought which characterizes "Eros At Breakfast." Davies uses a subtle, tongue-in-cheek approach in his satire on the stupidity and dullness of the average life.

"Eros At Breakfast," the title piece of the book, won the Barry Jackson award for the best Canadian-written play produces in the Dominion Drama Festival in 1948. The play pokes fun at a conventional college boy.

Another play which rates as high with amateur groups is "Overlaid," the delightful story of an Ontario farmer who wears top hat and white furnace gloves when he sits in his kitchen listening to Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

"The Voice of the People" is a more pointed blast at stupidity. Sherry Morton background his ideas which finally result in a letter to the editor of the local newspaper.

False religion versus art is the theme of "Hope Deferred" while "At the Gates of the Righteous" presents a picture of the youthful "free thinker."

"The Champlain Road" by Franklin Davey McDowell, first published 10 years ago, and winner of the Governor-General's 1939 Literary Award for fiction, now appears in the Huronia edition.

It marks the tercentenary of the martyrdom of the Jesuit missionaries during the extermination of the Huron Indian nation by the Iroquois. Jean de Brebeuf and Gabriel Lalemant died at the stake in March 1649.

Since the original publication of "The Champlain Road" the archaeological excavations of the University of Western Ontario on the site of the Jesuit mission near Midland, Ont., have revived public interest in Huronia. Important historical information has been turned up by the trowels and spades of research parties.

The new edition is shorter and the tempo of the story is consequently speeded up. The author's foreword, a feature of the edition, analyzes the military and economic significance of the struggle and the basic elements in the clash of civilizations.

Endpapers by Kenneth Dawson depicting a Huron Indian, the arms of France and of Loyola, founder of the Jesuit Order, lend distinction to the second edition of "The Champlain Road." The jacket is a reproduction of historic Fort Ste. Marie, residence of the Jesuit Mission to the Hurons, painted by Dawson.

"FLYING SAUCERS" ARE NO JOKE

"Flying Saucers" reported as having been seen in various parts of the U.S. in the past year are no joke, the U.S. Air Force said, adding that three fliers have lost their lives in attempts to ascertain what the sightings were. One victim was Capt. Thomas F. Mantell, above, National Guard flier who pursued an object he described over his radio as "round like a teardrop" to a high altitude near Fort Knox, Ky. His body was found later in wreckage of his plane.

North Sea Herring Vanish Obscurely

Lowestoft, England — (CP) — Fisheries research scientists are tryin gto solve the mystery of Britain's vanished herring.

Drifter skippers report their spring herring voyages to the North Sea are a total failure this year and all but a few have abandoned further trips.

One drifter skipper, F. E. Catchpole, said he could recall other years "when herring were so plentiful at Lowestoft that they sold for a shilling (30 cents) a thousand."

But now the schools have disappeared. No one can account for the absence of the herring which normally form a great part of Britain's predominantly fish diet in these days of meat rationing.

In previous years after the herring spawned in the English Channel they always returned to the North Sea in the spring. Scientists are trying to discover if the fish have changed their habits or if recent gales have influenced them.

Old Cornerstone Divulges Relics

Edmonton — (CP) — A metal box containing documents laid in the cornerstone of an old school in 1902 has been unearthed here by a demolition squad tearing down the old structure.

In those days, Edmonton was a town and was part of the Northwest Territories. Yellowed scrolls in the box told of the laying of the cornerstone and gave a history of the public school board since the first building was erected by the board of education of the N.W.T. in 1881.

Also in the box were several old coins and Queen Victoria stamps, several old newspapers and an Edmonton district telephone company original directory.

Heavy black script informs that the cornerstone was laid April 29, 1902, in the second year of the reign of King Edward VII.

Name of the principal of the school was not eligible but the vice-president was William Rae, M.A. Enrolment stood at 332 pupils.

The first telephone book is an incredibly thin pamphlet, bearing 175 names. Precise instructions are given on the use of the old hand-phone and warning is given on using the apparatus during a thunderstorm.

CORRECTED VISION THROUGH BELLEVILLE LENSES

In the Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited pieces of raw ophthalmic glass are transformed by skilled hands into the finest of vision-correcting lenses. Two types of these lenses — single vision and bifocal —are produced, and widely prescribed by the ophthalmic professions for those whose eyesight needs correction.

Single vision lenses are ground with only one focus and compensate and correct refractive errors of the eye. These lenses are frequently prescribed for people up to 40 years of age, and sometimes thereafter. Bifocal lenses provide both near and distant seeing — In effect two lenses in one. The need for bifocals comes about normally because eyes lose their natural focusing power through age, usually between 40 and 45.

The result of many operational steps and exacting inspections, Belleville-made lenses are adding to the comfort and enjoyment of increasing numbers of Canadians. Good eyesight has become an increasingly important asset—economic as well as social. Belleville people, therefore, may well be proud of the service to better vision that AO lens technicians have rendered. For without lenses . . . good lenses . . . the efforts of professional men to improve vision could be ineffective.

159 Round-Trippers Already Registered in Major Leagues As Boys Swing From Heels

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Time was when such sluggers as Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Mel Ott, Hack Wilson and Hank Greenberg had a monopoly on the four - base wallop. Not so today. Everybody wants to — and usually does — get into this act.

Already 27 athletes in the major leagues have poled at least one over the fence. Although they've accounted for 159 round-trippers, even the rookies are taking the hint. Already Johnny Groth (3), Clyde Vollmer (4), Jack Graham (4), Glen Nelson, Stan Lyznicki, Puddin' Head Jones, Gerry Coleman and others have knocked the ball out of the park.

No fewer than nine home runs were hit at Chicago's Comiskey Park yesterday, seven by Washington and two by the White Sox. That was only one short of the major - league record.

Those seven round - trippers helped the Senators defeat Chicago 14-12 in a 10-inning Donnybrook. Clyde Vollmer, rookie outfielder led the hit parade with two homers, a single and double. But it was home runs by Eddie Yost and Gil Coan in the 10th that decided the issue.

Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers played a 16-14 tie that was halted by darkness after 13 innings. This slugging match produced four home runs, two by each side. Vern Stephens hammered his sixth and Ted Williams his third for the Sox, and Johnny Groth his fifth and Aaron Robinson his third for the Tigers.

Yankees Win

New York Yankees, aided by Phil Rizzuto's home run, defeated St. Louis Browns 5-3 to increase their lead in the American League over the idle Cleveland Indians to three full games. Joe Page, who relieved starter Tex Lopat in the seventh, rallied nine men in a row to receive credit for his second relief victory of the season.

The pitchers fared much better in the National League, where Ralph Branca of Brooklyn shut out Cincinnati Reds 3-0 and Walter Dubiel pitched, Chicago Cubs to a 4-0 victory over Boston Braves. In other games, New York Giants inaugurated their night schedule by whipping Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3, and Philadelphia Phillies won their 6th straight by defeating St. Louis Cardinals 7-3.

Bid Gordon, Willard Marshall and Mickey Livingston cracked home runs off Murry Dickson to help Clint Hartung register his third victory for the Giants. Gordon, who leads the National League with five round - trippers, also walloped a double and triple.

Phil Cavarretta made things a bit easier for Dubiel with his 6-base knock as the righthander permitted only five Boston hits and allowed only one runner to reach third.

Dubiel, first major - league pitcher to win four games this year, also enjoyed the distinction of becoming the first Dodger to hurl a shutout at Ebbets Field since Larry Dey, 1947, the allowed only six hits, but was wild walking six. He fanned seven.

Not a home run was hit as the Phils came from behind to beat Jim Cards with a six - run seventh inning.

A single by Gran Hamner and a three-run double by Del Ennis were the big blows of the inning.

Cleveland and Philadelphia Athletics in the American League were not scheduled.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

— By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Mumbleslie flew hither and yon; the crack of the bat on ball echoed through the evening air and near - thirty - score fans of the softball game wrent through initial ballsheanies at the Fair Grounds last night. It was the initial workout of a potential team which will represent this city at the Provincial Senior Softball Tournament scheduled in the Littlock City on the Queen's Birthday, May 24th.

Approximately 35 candidates for team positions turned out and from reports, Coach Vern Geyer and Manager Barney Dubeau were satisfied with what happened. Al Adams, Don Thibeault were added attraction to the evening duty with Roger Boyle and others worked out for ground duty with Roger Mallory doing the receiving. In a trial infield workout Geyer cavorted around first base, Johnny Ronsky at second, Red Carson at short and the speed Jackie Wardhaugh at third. An unknown, said to be a member of the Provincial Police had the rabbinks agape with his prowess with the hickory, and the boys are lamenting the fact that the softball Babe Ruth is being transferred to another city.

Red Calkin sped around the outer peaseries with all the grace and footwork of a gazelle pulling down tall flies from all points of the compass. Generaux likewise looked to be in midseason form. Generally the possibilities for a strong representation look good.

The powers-that-be are seeking the services of a couple of district pitchers and if successful the team should be well fortified in the flingtag department. 'Tis reported that Leo Geyer will not play this year due to an old injury to a knee.

The team will practice again tonight and on Friday night at the Fair Grounds commencing at 6.30 and all players who are desirous of making the team are requested to turn out. All positions are open from pitcher to catcher and the team that will represent this city at the next team practice can get under way in earnest.

Jarring John Katan, just about the grimmest, grindingest grappler the grip and grab game has produced, will be back in the Arena ring on Friday night. Katan, who doesn't care who he meets or who he injures either, has a date here with none other than Whipper Billy Watson, the beefy Toronto and district strongman for Fred Atkins' British Empire title and best Canada Cards with a six - run seventh inning.

A single by Gran Hamner and a three-run double by Del Ennis were the, big blows of the inning.

Cleveland and Philadelphia Athletics in the American League were not scheduled.

Fans bet less, however. The gross turnover was $349,225,626, compared with $478,118,023 in 1947. The Society said the decrease was due to the 10-percent tax on tote-betting imposed by the government at the beginning of the year.

TURNING THE PAGES OF
"CANADA UNLIMITED"

When Canada was growing up, leaving a living from the virgin forests left little time for visiting. In 1790's visits to distant friends were popular. Settlers would travel three hundred miles by sleigh in winter to see their friends.

Picnics were popular by 1835. While the men fished, the women picked berries, and all joined for lunch. In Springtime, accompanied to the woods for "sweet sugar making" were greeted with delight.

With the arrival of the automobile about 1900, and improvement in the roads, people began to travel "just for the sights". Touring to Niagara Falls, Muskoka or the Laurentians, became a common holiday pastime.

Today, tourists are big business. Canada is a vast wonderland, with countless surprises for the sightseer—and each year millions of Canadians and visitors tour our land. The opportunities that exist in the tourist industry are many—for there's room to grow in Canada Unlimited.

Just how much room is told in "Canada Unlimited", an illustrated 144-page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Time after time when I am teaching I have to get down and put the clubhead right where it should be when the ball is hit.

You would think that any golfer would think of that the first thing and draw a head on the shot. Just the slightest deflection from the club's square line scrubs the line of direction will mean yards off the straight line when the ball has finished its travel.

Another thing that people are careless about is in not having the soles of their clubs flat on the ground when they address the ball. This throws the entire club out of balance. The player is apt to hit the ball off the toe or heel of his club and the force of the improper impact often will make a player fall forward or backward.

When you are on the tee be careful about placing your club, in the address. In the next position you want it to occupy at impact. Get into this habit and you will be surprised how greatly you reduce your percentage of wild shots. — (Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

DEPARTMENT OF NATIONAL DEFENCE

AN OPEN LETTER TO ALL EMPLOYERS About NATIONAL DEFENCE

FICE OF THE MINISTER
OTTAWA

Dear Sir:

You are undoubtedly aware of the importance of national defence today. Essential to the development of that defence are the men of the RESERVE UNITS. The service and wartime experience of the veteran and the alert intelligence of the younger element are vital to the development of plans for national security.

All three services have been actively appealing for men and the response has been good. However, many men who wish to join are in doubt on an important point which only you, as their employer, can answer.

They would be giving part of their time to Canada. Would you on your side release them for the required annual training period? This training is an essential part of their voluntary service. You can help them to serve Canada by granting them additional leave with or without pay.

The decision is yours. Your help is needed in building a sound defence organization to help insure the peace of Canada.

Sincerely,

Minister of National Defence

Regina Capitals Happy to Play On Toronto Ice

Toronto, May 4 (CP)—Regina Capitals, down 2-0 in games in the best-of-seven Allan Cup finals against Ottawa Senators, are pressing for a home ice fight tonight to say in the race for the Canadian Senior Hockey Championship.

The clash has been moved from Ottawa to Toronto—and the stubborn Capitals think it will make a big difference. The broad stretches of ice in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens are just right home to Regina after the egg-shaped ice surface in Ottawa.

The decision to hold the fourth, and possibly final, game in Toronto was reached only after an involved four-way talk-fest among Cliff Thrift, Regina manager; Tommy Gorman, owner of the Senators; W. B. Hewitt, Vice-President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, and George Dudley, C.A.H.A. Secretary-Treasurer.

Thrift, arriving last night by train with his Caps, was happy with the decision to move the Ottawa shiftorium to the big Toronto Gardens.

"We're back on the kind of ice we're used to playing on," he said. "I hope we'll beat them. I think we will, if we haven't gone all to pieces playing on that Ottawa ice."

Ehrle also served notice he would fight to have a fifth game, if the series lasts, on Toronto ice.

"I think there's a chance of another game here Saturday, so we'll play it this one," he said. "But we'll have to fight for it...that Gorman is a hard man to do business with."

Wanted One on Foreign Ice

As originally scheduled, the entire Allan Cup series was to have been played on Ottawa ice. As soon as Regina arrived in Ottawa they asked for one game there, two games moved elsewhere.

After three consecutive victories by Ottawa, the Toronto date was set by C.A.H.A. officials for Toronto.

The C.A.H.A. officials still list the fifth and bowling games, if necessary, for Ottawa ice. And Ehrle's efforts to get a fifth game in Toronto will be necessary if the powerful Senators win tonight.

Ottawans were unhappy to see their Senators defeated for Thursday last night. They didn't like the idea of their Senators possibly winning the Allan Cup on foreign ice. The Ottawa squad, due to arrive here today after an all-night train ride, felt they had a good chance to win on that.

Ottawa yesterday Gorman protested that the C.A.H.A. decision to switch the location of the fourth game had come too late.

Olympia Still Horse to Beat In the Derby

Louisville, Ky., May (AP) — A field of 12 shaped up today for Saturday's 79th running of the Kentucky Derby, with Olympia still the horse to beat.

The ease with which F. W. Hooper's colt won the one-mile Derby trial over six other contenders yesterday boosted his Derby stock considerably.

Jockey Eddie Arcaro, who will ride Olympia in the $100,000-added, wouldn't compare Olympia with his four Derby winners — Lawrin (1939), Whirlaway (1941), Hoop, Jr., (1945) and Citation (1948) — but said Tuesday night "I wouldn't trade my chances with anyone" in Saturday's classic.

Not pushed at any stage, Olympia ran the mile in 1:37 3/5, the same time being up by Citation last year in winning the Derby trial with the same rider. Citation is the only horse ever to win both the trial and the Derby.

Mobbe It's the "Beauty and the Beast." In any event John (The Scowl) Katan returns to the wrestling wars here on Friday night, and guess who he is pitted against. None other than the dapper Whipper Billy Watson, arch-foe of the bough roughie roughie Ukrainian. The pair has an old score to settle especially Marse John. The Whip trimmed him down to a nicety here years ago, and burly John has been holding the grudge since. He has lost none of his ring cunning, or the tricks that made him the most-hated rassler in this village. Watson is eager and ready to match wits and muscles in his return march to the British Empire title.

Border League Will be Composed Of Six Clubs

Ogdensburg, N.Y., May 4 (AP) —The six-team Border Baseball League in fourth race next Wednesday with two new managers and hopes for a 50,000 jump in attendance.

President John G. Ward predicted today that attendance in the Class-C circuit will rise from 368,000 last season to about 440,000.

He cited new ownership at Watertown, Ogdensburg, Kingston and Kingston as turnstile stimulants.

The opening-day schedule sends Watertown to Geneva, Ottawa to Ogdensburg and Kingston to Auburn. The same clubs will meet May 13 in openers at the other three cities.

The new pilots are Zeke Bonura, former major-league first baseman, at Kingston and Frankie Heller, another first-baseman, at Watertown.

Edmonton, May 4 (CP) — A lusty infant—the Edmonton Football Club—is doing a spot of yelling in this boom town.

Little No Name is quite a problem to a lot of people. The very fact that he is nameless causes most of the difficulty. It has a few of his foster fathers thumbing through the name book for a handle for Edmonton's new entry in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Lending an ear and sometimes a voice to these pleas are Stan (Edmonton Bulletin) Moher and George (Edmonton Journal) Mackintosh. They have a word to say about those who want to add to the name with the moniker of his grandfather made popular in football circles, Edmonton Eskimos.

Says Stan: "For our money, too many of these same Individuals are making the rounds in an attempt to perpetuate the name 'Eskimos' for the football squad of the Metropolitan Club. Should Annis (Big Duke) Stukus be working as hard to mold these times."

He thinks Eskimos should be tossed out the window in favor of Oilers, which might serve the double purpose of boosting the city as the Dominion's oil capital and bringing on an attack of that well-known vermillion color before eyes of a city slightly to the south.

That city also has a football team and calls itself the country's oil centre. Whatever Calgary's oil claims are, any advantage over its Stampeder would be welcomed in Edmonton.

Who Has The Key?

George lends his voice to a number of the Edmonton Club's Touchdown Club.

This chap suggests bulldozers shows power and strength as a name and should be adopted because "the bulldozer is a key to Edmonton's progress."

George concedes this is a pretty convincent argument. Eskimos holds "a certain sentimental pull" and suggests:

"Alberta's capital city is just a short punt from the Arctic Circle."

But if it's power and strength the fans are looking for, as one radio sportscaster puts it:

"The way I heard it, Eskimo means raw-meat eater."

A poem, entitled "The Little Egg Hatched a Turkey" or "A Western Lament":

Regina Caps were plucky, chaps and sound of wind and legs
Till they skated on Senators' rink with end-zones shaped like eggs.

How sad to think a hen-fruit rink would lay Regina low
Their wings collapsed, defencemen lapsed—it was a dismal show.

O take us to Toronto; let us play for Hoglown's borders
We don't like Smythe's arena but we want open-ended boards
With crowds that cheer when we appear and lots of do-re-mi
Where shots rebound with cheerful sound to spots we can forecee
Where Schriner knows his way around, where ill is at his best
Where we'll meet with a puck that rolls just like it does out West.

Chorus: "Oh, we're the line of "Horses on The Range";)
O give us a rink, without tract of a kink,
Where the puck doesn't skiddle or sway
Where seldom you hear a Tom Gorman say
And the red light blinks (for us) often and bright.

A five-man delegation from Canada's sports-governing organizations will seek an early date with Dominion cabinet ministers after the June 27 election to talk money. Specifically, they'll ask for $500,000 this year to be spent on promotion and development of sport and $3,000,000 a year for the next three to provide additional playground and recreation facilities for the kids.

They'll go with the blessing of almost every sports-governing body whose delegates discussed the idea at their January meeting in Ottawa. The only dissidents are the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the National Hockey League, who are against asking for the $300,000 because they don't like government will step in and take over sports.

Thirty-two associations were entitled to vote on each of the 13 recommendations made at the meeting, a total of a total of 416 ballots. Delegates were not asked to vote on recommendations—they submitted them to their organizations for a "yes" or "no" answer.

The result, announced by Joe Ross of Calgary, acting chairman of the national physical fitness which called the session to discuss the sports ills, showed: 290 for, two against (the C.A.H.A. and N.H.L.) 11 had "no opinion" and there were 13 spoiled ballots.

Other recommendations, now ratified, include continuance of Canada in international sports and reduced railway fares for athletes. Representation already have been made to the Canadian Passenger Association for lower train rates, Ross said in an interview.

The word no-trump explains itself. It means not any trump suit; that is, no suit bid or no more suit bids. Any other interpretation is some expert's opinion that is not based on fact.

Which cards are most likely to take tricks at no-trump? Only the biggest, of course. The 13 biggest in a pack are the four aces, four kings, four queens. They are known as high cards.

Therefore, see how easy it is to decide how many tricks at no-trump? Simply count one for each high card. To place any dependence on a lower card would be a foolhot gamble.

An opener of one in a suit promises five suit tricks of which four are high cards. Any contrary (non-forced) no-trump bid by him therefore admits having another high card.

Partner of an opening one bidder is assumed to have two high cards as a basis. Each voluntary no-trump bid by him admits having another high card.

Suppose partner bids a suit of one heart when north holds this hand:

♦K 7 4 3
♣Q 6 4 3

An opening of one does not force partner to bid. If partner has not more than two tricks he may pass. Therefore, if he makes any kind of a responding bid it is voluntary.

North has three high cards; one high card more than he is assured to hold. To show this third high card it will require a voluntary no-trump bid some time during the deal.

There is no middle suit in north for a takeout. Nor has he adequate support for an assist in hearts. If he bids at all it must be a bid in no-trump or he will not sell the truth.

Therefore, he bids one no-trump; a voluntary no-trump bid that promises a third high card. And doesn't say it was only to keep the bidding open.

Hollywood, May 4 (AP)—"Like Tennyson's brook," said the screen's original Cisco Kid, "he goes on and on forever."

Warner Baxter could have been talking about the kid—or himself. Both have had long histories in the motion picture business, and neither seems to be coming to a halt.

"It's a thrill every time a new 'kid' picture comes out," Baxter said on the "Beyond These Walls" set. "The Cisco I won as the original Cisco Kid has a place of honor in my house."

Radio And Video

"The role has been played by Cesse Romero, Gilbert Roland and Duncan Renaldo since my time. Now the Cisco Kid has a radio show and is a good bet for television."

In recent years, Baxter has been identified as the "star of the Crime Doctor" series. Instead of yelping about being typed, he says he's proud of the role.

"It's a very comfortable way to continue a long career. When you are doing a familiar character, he practically becomes a friend of yours and more important, a friend of the audience."

Pirates making comeback only a small amount of Baxter's time. But his energies are also devoted to his real estate and his office as Mayor of Malibu.

Girls Commended

Toronto, May 4 — (CP) — Magistrate S. T. Bigelow commended two 19-year-old girls who reported to police that a 22-year-old tavern employee had made improper advances to them.

"I highly commend you for your acts of citizenship," the magistrate said. "These acts which are highly prevalent can only be stopped by such actions of young ladies like yourselves."

The tavern employee, Philip Dean, was sentenced to 30 days.

Junior Tussle Ends in Overtime Three-all Draw

Brandon, Man., May 4 (CP)—Brandon Wheat Kings and Montreal Royals today are right back where they started their best-of-seven Memorial Cup final — on even terms.

After splitting the first two games on identical 3-2 scores, the clubs played a 3-3 overtime tie in the third game here Tuesday night.

They move to Winnipeg tomorrow night for the fourth contest, then back here for the fifth on Saturday and the sixth on Monday, if necessary. The seventh game will be played in the Brandon Arena May 16.

A crowd of more than 4,500 Tuesday night saw Montreal lose a 1-0 first-period lead as Wheat Kings scored three times in the middle session. But that lead was wiped out when Royals roared back with two counters in the last session to even the count and send the game into the scoreless overtime.

Gordie Knutson, former Regina Pat junior, was the hero of the Montreal comeback in the third period, scoring twice. Dick Moore had opened the scoring for Montreal in the first period.

Wheat Kings' Captain Frank King scored their first tally and assisted Walt Pawlyshyn on another. Angus Juckes counted the third goal.

Lacking the fine passing attacks of the first two contests, the third game developed into a hard-checking, wide-open affair, topped by brilliant goaltending and individual rushes.

BIRD'S NEST BLOCKS GAS-HEATER VENTILATOR CHILDREN OVERCOME

Toronto, May 4 (CP)— Firemen revived two young children yesterday when they were overcome by fumes from a gas heater ventilator blocked by a bird's nest. Twenty-six-month-old Estella and seven-month-old penny, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Keefe, were "pretty groggy" when it was discovered something was wrong. An examination of the heater showed the vent pipe had been completely closed by nesting birds.

Leo Durocher Back as Manager Of N.Y. Giants

New York, May 4 (AP)— Leo Durocher, off baseball's griddle, today resumes his role as manager of New York Giants but still faces court action charging him with striking a Brooklyn fan.

The tempestuous Giant pilot, after sweating out four days of indefinite suspension, was cleared and reinstated yesterday in less than two hours before Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Cincinnati.

Chandler held there wasn't sufficient evidence to show that Durocher had "deliberately assaulted" Fred Boysen, a vociferous Dodger rooter, after a wild game at the Polo Grounds last Thursday.

"I am very happy about it all," Durocher said upon his return to New York. "I am very anxious to get back to work."

Durocher was to pick up the Giants' reins today from Frankie Frisch, who has been acting manager.

The biggest load was off the shoulders of the peppery Durocher, who, it seems, has walked a hand-in-hand with trouble.

He showed no concern over the simple-assault summons which Boysen's counsel promised would be served as quickly as possible.

The lawyer, Benjamin H. Chasin, said he planned to proceed with the prosecution. He didn't believe Durocher's reinstatement would have any legal bearing on the case. But he added he was "very happy" the Giants' manager was given a clean bill of health by Chandler.

Boysen, a 22-year-old Puerto Rican, contends that Durocher punched him and knocked him to the ground as the teams were leaving the field from the game at the Polo Grounds, won by Brooklyn 15-2. Durocher denies it.

Northern Cities Of Int. League To Have Openers

By The Associated Press

The International League's northern cities celebrate opening today and a total of 70,000 fans are expected to take in the four games.

Largest gathering of the day is expected at Montreal, where the defending champions take on the tough Baltimore Orioles. Royal management is looking for the 16,000 to 17,000 fans to show up. Don Newcombe, giant 20-game right-hander who won his first two starts via the shutout route will be pitching for Montreal, and hard-working Al Widmar for the Orioles. Widmar already has won four games for the vastly-improved Orioles.

Buffalo Bisons entertain the Syracuse Chiefs and a crowd near or in excess of the 17,473 record opening gate of 1946 is expected.

Luman Harris, veteran knuckleball artist, has been selected to pitch for the Bisons against Johnny Hetki who has won three straight games.

A house of around 18,000 is expected at Rochester where the Red Wings play host to the Jersey City Giants. Rookie Dick Bokelmann has been nominated to pitch for the Wings against Negro Ford Smith or righthander Wes Bailey, who has won four consecutive games without a loss.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I come home from the market with 2 pounds of sugar and ma was in the kitchin waiting for it, saying, My goodness but that feels like. Well no wonder, there's a hole in one corner of the box, she said.

Jimminies, ma, maybe I was held up on the way home, I said, and ma said, How do you mean, bold up?

I mean maybe some robber snuck up in back of me and punctured a hole in the paper bag and drained off some of the sugar into a bag and snuck away again, I said, and ma said. Now that's one of the silliest things I ever heard! I said, and she said, Whatever it was, you were probably the autor of it.

Which I probably was, and ma said, Oh dear, look at my good clean floor, a family streek of sugar that probably feels all the way to the front door.

Well gosh, ma, all you have to do is follow the tracks like a detective, I said, I'll get it up for you, ma, I'll pretend I'm Sherlock Holmes I said, and ma said, I'll tell you what you'll do. You'll take this rite back to the market and make the clerk in the grocer department give you a box without a hole in it, she said.

But G rooslem, ma, maybe the hole got in the 2nd time I dropped it, I said. I know it didn't happen the first time I dropped it, because I looked to see if I hadn't guess that's why I didn't look the 2nd time I dropped it. So do you think it could of happened 2nd time, ma? I said.

50 YEARS A WARDEN

Shorewil Isle of Wight — (CP —E. Carver was elected people's warden of the parish church here

William Clark (left), Amaranth township farmer near Shelburne, studies a point with Jacob Hollander, who was agricultural representative (right), 38-year-old Hollander, who was agricultural representative in Holland. New employer says he "knows far more about farming than I do." — Staff Photo by Hardige.

Besides shouldering full responsibilities on Clark's "home" farm, Van Polegeest looks after a second-growth 100 acres. Wooden shoes, he says, are warmer in winter and cooler in summer than leather footwear. He left Holland because he couldn't get a farm of his own. A good 100-acre tract costs $120,000 and is taxed $6,000 a year.

Speaker Stresses Objectives of Reserve Army

"If you give a man a responsibility he will give a good response if he is any good. This is one of the objects stressed by the Reserve Army in their fight for insurance of peace in Canada."

These were the thoughts expressed by Lieut.-Col. Jack Cousins when he spoke to the members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon.

"The Reserve Army has a twofold object," continued Mr. Cousins, "one is to maintain peace in our country and the other is to make better citizens and to help the boys to be able to mingle better with their fellow citizens. With this training if the need should arise an army could be put on the battlefield in one-quarter the time that it would take if we had to start from scratch.

"The boys over 17 that have an average or better education are taken and given a course that will be an asset to their every day work. The army is no place for loafers. They want men, who can think clearly and accurately and be able to operate the equipment that is run by the army. They teach the best driving and the mechanical parts of diesel motors. Courses are also given on radio operation, signals, maneuvers and field tactics. Those who are willing to accept responsibility cheerfully and the men are better acquainted with their officers."

Lieut.-Col. Cousins also spoke briefly on Army week that is scheduled May 16-21. The speaker was introduced by Everett Fairman. Ken Graham installed Fairman, field supervisor for Northern Electric as their newest member. Guests at the luncheon were Austin Beach of Halifax, John Shaw of Toronto and Barber of Belleville.

Due to the fact that May 24th is a holiday the weekly luncheon scheduled for that day is to be held on Thursday May 26th at 6.15 p.m.

Varlieu represented Canada at the 1948 Olympics in London, where an Olympic record there and gained one point for Canada in the competitions. Two days after his Olympic feat Jack Varlieu competed for the British Empire Championships and placed first. Jack has been the Canadian champion for three years and was North American champion for 1948. At present he is training for the British Empire Games to be held in Auckland, New Zealand in January, 1950.

The younger boys and girls of the department perform drills and marches to show how they are using the "Y" to prove that health is a "Poppin." A special novelty dance number will be given by the Galbraith sisters, Kay and Greta. The boys' Junior Leader Corps will perform on the box horse. With all things taken into account this promises to be an excellent show and well worth seeing. There is no charge for this excellent display as it is part of the Y.M.C.A. open house program.

Food Merchants Sponsor Famous Comedy Success

The Retail Food Merchants of Belleville are going all out to insure the success of the hilarious comedy stage show "It Pays to Advertise" which opens a two-day engagement here at the Collegiate Auditorium on May 10th.

"It Pays to Advertise" is one of the late Geo. M. Cohan's great Broadway stage successes. It has been translated into every language and played in every important centre throughout the world.

"It Pays to Advertise" has been described by the London, England theatre critics as "two and a half hours of continuous hilarity" and from the New York Times "loud and frequent laughter—an expert show." The play has an ingenious and entertaining story and quite unlike many of the plays of its type. The lines and situations are such that one may laugh heartily and not feel that his intelligence has been insulted. It is difficult to conceive situations out of which the humor has been wrung so completely that those introduced into "It Pays to Advertise." A stellar cast of first rate players with many prominent on the Broadway stage has been engaged for this special Canadian tour.

It is felt that everyone in Belleville will want to see this grand comedy stage show—attendance is as eagerly anticipated as are the delightful evenings spent at the concerts, the forums and the Little Theatre Group. There is definitely no question of competition or rivalry between these activities. Rather, the one compliments the other. For the cultural growth of the community by its common aim of all.

The Retail Food Merchants are proud to sponsor a project of this nature and are doing the community a great service in making available to every intelligent man, woman and youth the opportunity of enjoying the same sort of show that is available in the big cities of the country.

Hydraulic Artificial Leg is Demonstrated

Toronto, May 4 (CP)— New Zealand's Jack Stewart yesterday demonstrated the use of a new hydraulic artificial leg at Sunnybrook Hospital to a group of doctors and scientists representing Britain, Canada and the United States. The hydraulic limb is the first which operates both ankle and knee joints is different from other types of artificial legs.

The knee automatically locks itself when the heel touches the ground, preventing the wearer's knee from collapsing as he walks. A lever and a wheel at the top regulate the position of the leg for walking up or down stairs. The lever lifts the toe to the correct position.

Long Memory and Understanding Seem to be Possessed by Water

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

New Orleans, May 4 (AP) — Water does something that resembles learning.

It even imitates the mental quality called understanding, says Dr. H. M. Johnson, Tulane University psychologist.

More startling, water seems to have a very long memory.

The experiments to support this were made by Dr. N. E. Dorsey of the National Bureau of Standards. For 20 years Dorsey alternately froze and thawed samples of water enclosed in glass tubes. The water was pure and the tubes very clean, also sealed hermetically.

After a few freezings these water samples no longer froze until their temperatures dropped close to zero, Fahrenheit.

In some cases one sample of water preferred a different temperature for freezing than the other samples. The largest difference between these preferences was nearly 20 degrees, fahrenheit.

Dr. Johnson says that scientists have known for a long time that non-living systems, such as water, can learn, remember and forget. But because this is usually slight and doesn't last long psychologists have assumed that only living beings have memories.

He explains that the water samples did something very like learning when they lowered their freezing temperatures.

Their long memories were indicated by the fact that once the water samples had "learned" a low temperature, the lapse of time between freezings did not make them forget. Even a lapse of months failed to make a difference in the lower temperature.

"I have no objection," said Dr. Johnson, "to saying that the sample of water had come to understand its task. Those who do not like to say so, should recognize from Dorsey's experiments that non-living as well as living physical systems behave according to their past experiences, and thus should no longer assume that changes in learning behavior necessarily mean 'understanding'."

Dr. Johnson made his report to the Southern Society of Pilosophy and Psychology.

Sea-Going Coon Gave Sailors 'A Merry Chase

Detroit, May 4 — (CP) — Capt. Rudolph Keisling of the City of Cleveland, 58, yesterday advised his ship owners the Cleveland had triumphed in its first sea-going coon hunt. But, he reported, casualties aboard the Cleveland were high.

Once the ship's furry fat enemy had been safely stowed with the Humane Society, Capt. Keisling ordered a board of inquiry. He wanted to know how an 18-inch raccoon stowed away in the Cleveland when the gangplank was under guard at the Detroit and Cleveland docks.

Formula Figures Key to Contents

Ottawa—Were you ever puzzled by the formula figures — such as 4-8-10 printed on a bag of commercial fixed fertilizer? They are there for your protection, fertilizer officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture point out.

The formula figures printed on the bag simply indicate the proportionate amounts of the main plant foods contained in the fertilizer.

But these plant foods—nitrogen phosphoric acid and potash — must be incorporated in the fertilizer so that they can be applied to the soil evenly over large areas. This could not be done in absolutely pure form. A certain amount of bulk is required, or the fertilizer could not be spread around. How is this done?

Well, in a 100-pound bag of 4-8-10 mixed fertilizer for instance, there are usually 20 lbs. of nitrogen chemicals, such as sulphate of ammonia, to supply the four per cent of nitrogen. Then there are 40 pounds of superphosphate to supply the eight per cent of phosphoric acid and 16 pounds of muriate of potash to supply the ten per cent of potash. This adds up to 76 pounds. The remaining 24 pounds is generally dolomite limestone, which contains some calcium and magnesium—both good for the soil.

So, although the actual methods of getting these essential plant foods into the fertilizer bag may vary with different formulas, the end result is always the same. The plant foods will always be there in the proportionate quantities stated in the formula figures on the bag.

The list of the formula figures always stands for nitrogen, the second always for phosphoric acid, and the last always for potash. That is the thing to remember, for the figures are the key to the contents of the bag.

Different crops and soils require different formulas the officials say. Your district agricultural representative or nearest soil specialist can help you to select the right one for your particular crop or soil.

Dublin Papers Attack Bill

Dublin, May 4 (Reuters)—Dublin papers today bitterly attacked the British government's Republic of Ireland bill, which received its first reading in the House of Commons yesterday.

Under the bill, Eire citizens will not be treated as aliens in Britain and may acquire British citizenship by applying to the Home Secretary.

"The very title of the bill is an affront to the Irish nation," the Irish Independent said. "The Irish people deny most vehemently that any foreign country has the right to interfere in Irish affairs."

In Belfast, Unionist government circles today generally considered the Republic of Ireland bill favorable to Northern Ireland.

The Belfast News Letter said the bill, while recognizing what the Ulster people had always accepted as a constitutional right, also gave an appropriate answer to Dublin suggestions that Northern Ireland could be regarded as other than a territorial entity.

The News Letter objected to the bill's recognition of "the misleading description 'Republic of Ireland'."

Commonwealth Aid for Burma Is Expected

Rangoon, May 4 (AP)—Burma will receive money and other aid from the British Commonwealth, it quit last year, authoritative sources said today.

Weakened by six separate revolts, Burma's socialist government has made no secret that it needed assistance from outside. (In London there have been unofficial reports recently that now that India, as a republic, is staying in, Burma might re-enter the Commonwealth in the future.)

Qualified informants said Prime Minister Nehru of India made the arrangements for aid to Burma at the recent London Commonwealth conference.

65,000 FORD CO. WORKERS QUIT THEIR JOBS

Police Constable Said Kidnapped At Asbestos, Que.

Ten More Reported Injured By Striking Workmen

Montreal, May 5 (CP)— Deputy Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Provincial Police said today one of his men had been kidnapped and 10 more injured by striking asbestos workers in the town of Asbestos, Que.

Calling for all possible reinforcements from Montreal and Quebec, Beauregard said he wanted it to be known "we are going to get that kidnapped officer, hold in a church basement."

"We have reached the limit of our patience," he said.

"We have been trying to hold back. In view of what has happened, today we are going ahead and meet violence with violence."

Asbestos, Que., (Cp) — A 12-year-old boy was reported injured by police tear-gas bombs and several cars were said to have been set on fire today as striking miners and sympathizers cut Asbestos off from traffic and resumed picketing of the Canadian Johns-Manville Company Plant.

The boy's hurts were reported as not serious.

Two cars were reported to have been set afire on the St. George Road, one of the highways leading into town where pickets set up blockades to prevent entry of strikers from going to their jobs at the Johns-Manville plant.

Frost Takes Over As Ont. Premier With New Cabinet

Blackwell Resigns and W. S. Gemmell New Minister of Mines

Toronto, May 5 (CP)— Ontario's new government headed by Premier Leslie Frost gives cabinet representation to the province's rich northern mining area.

Mr. Frost, sworn in yesterday to succeed Thomas L. Kennedy as head of the Progressive Conservative administration, turned over his portfolio of lands and forests to Welland S. Gemmell of Sudbury.

The decision of Leslie Blackwell, former Attorney-General, to resign his Cabinet post and backbench seat also left only other major change in the reshuffled cabinet.

Mr. Kennedy resigned yesterday along with 13 members of his cabinet. He agreed last night to take over the premiership from George Drew on a temporary basis until a new Ontario leader was chosen. Mr. Frost, 51, elected leader last week, was sworn in immediately with his cabinet of 13 members.

Kennedy Retains Job

Mr. Kennedy retains the job of Agriculture Minister which he held since November 1948.

Dana Porter, former Provincial Secretary and Municipal Minister becomes Attorney-General and retains his Education portfolio on a temporary basis. Both Mr. Porter and Mr. Blackwell were candidates for the leadership at last week's convention.

Mr. Frost said he had chosen a new Education Minister but the prospective minister had not had time to make up his mind whether to accept. A new Minister of Reform Institutions would also be appointed, he indicated.

George W. Wells becomes Provincial Secretary and chairman of the Liquor Control Board. William Grieslinger, Liquor Licence Board chairman becomes Planning Minister to succeed Mr. Welch.

Mr. Frost remains Provincial Treasurer.

Doucett Deputy Leader

George H. Dunbar, who held the post of Minister of Municipal Affairs and Reform Institutions, will shortly surrender the latter portfolio.

GIRL FIGHTS OFF MAN

Toronto, May 5 — (CP) — A 21-year-old girl Wednesday night fought off a man who attacked her on a dimly-lighted street in the east end and followed her because she looked very nice.

Barbara Laurence said the man grabbed the straps of her dress and followed her. He grabbed her shoulders and pushed her against a high fence, but she kicked him and bit his hand. She was still struggling with him when a policeman arrived and arrested the man.

Commies Sign Mutual Aid Pact With Korean Reds

Threaten Inland Rail Routes to S. China

Shanghai, May 5 (AP)— The official Central News Agency reported today that Chinese Communists have signed a mutual aid pact with North Korean Reds and predicted joint aid to the Burmese Communists.

The pledge to the Burmese included aid in the "joint struggle against American and British imperialism," said the news agency's report from Rangoon.

The news agency said the pact with the Russian-supported Korean area was signed in Moscow on March 17 and in Burma on Feb. 25.

If true, the "mutual defence pact" would stretch a 3,500-mile Red arc from the Sea of Japan to the Indian Ocean—an arc encompassing hundreds of millions of people. There was no confirmation of the pact from other sources, however.

Chinese Red armies meanwhile slashed across south central China, with the latest developments:

Cost of Living Moves up Notch After 2 Declines

Ottawa, May 5 (CP)—Canada's fluctuating cost-of-living index has moved up another notch after a couple of declines.

The Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday that the index, after easing in January and February, edged down-ward at a point higher between March 1 and April 1, from 169.3 to 169.4.

The increase came entirely from small increases in prices of clothing, home-furnishings and services, rents and miscellaneous items.

The index, calculated on the basis of living costs in pre-war 1935-39 equalled 100, has declined three times and advanced twice since its high peak of 169.6 last October, keeping within seven points of a point of the peak.

At 159.3 for April 1, the index was 9.7 points below the last year and three-tenths of a point below the October high.

The food index declined during March from 199.1 to 198.3. The rental index, adjusted quarterly, climbed from 121.7 to 122.4 to touch a new high.

Clothing went up slightly, from 182.7 to 183.2. Home-furnishings and services advanced from 167.9 to 168.0. Miscellaneous goods and services went up to 124.6 from 124.1 on an increase in the automobile transportation series. Fuel and light held even at 121.0.

The Bureau's index of industrial material prices again pointed lower, slipping from 166.0 for the week ended April 16 to 152.5 for the week ending April 30.

The index of Canadian farm products advanced to 145.4 to 147.9 during the same period.

Ohio Farm Wife Wants to Know What to do With Cow That Just Bawls

Columbus, O., May 5—(AP)—Dairy husbandry men of Ohio State University and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station had a problem today.

It involved about a cow but it wasn't one of those simple problems such as getting the animal out of a silo or a hay loft. This was a mental case.

An Ohio farm wife posted the problem in a letter, to wit:

"Dear Sirs:

"Please write and tell me what you can do with a dumb cow that has all the grass she can eat, all the water she wants to drink, and is bred, that just stands and bawls and bawls until she just about drives you nuts.

"She doesn't have a thing to bawl about that I can see.

"Until they look deeper into the matter the scientists are reluctant to offer any suggestion. One suggested waggishly, as a preliminary diagnosis of the cow's trouble:

"Maybe she is just in the moo-o-d!"

Dispute Over Speed Of Production Cause of Walkout

Desperate Peace Talks Held Right up to Deadline

Detroit, May 5 — (AP) — A strike of 65,000 workers hit Ford Motor Company at 1 p.m. (C. D. T.) EDT today and negotiations broke up a last - minute conference in which they had hoped to reach a settlement.

Peace talks were called off at 1:20 p. m. They had been extended after the deadline in a last-desperate hope that agreement could be reached.

Some 62,000 shouting workers streamed out the gates of the big Rouge plant. At the Lincoln - Mercury plant, another 3,000 left their jobs.

Assembly lines, whose speed had been the subject of wrangling for months, ground to a stop.

35-day Battle in 1941

And so, Ford was hit by the first major walkout since the bloody 100-day battle in 1941 when the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. first gained recognition.

Within nine days, the company said, the strike would tie up most of the world's wide industrial empire and hit 116,000 production workers.

Despite the walkout peace talks between top ranking union and company representatives continued beyond the noon strike deadline.

Ford Vice-President John S. Bugas reported several minutes after 1 p.m. that there was no hope of a settlement in sight."

A similar report came from a top union negotiator.

President Walter Reuther of the U.A.W. entered negotiations today at 11 a.m. for the first time.

Overnight, however, hopes for a settlement had dimmed in view of a fruitless 5 1-2 hours of previous negotiation in the emergency.

Soup Kitchens Readied

Strikers' soup kitchens were made ready and administration instructions were issued, according to a U.A.W. spokesman.

Management was preparing for "any eventuality," began removing records Jay yesterday. It ceased this, however, upon union request so that the administration building would not be picked-ted and that employees there would be permitted to work.

Teams of company and union negotiators met for the fifth time yesterday afternoon and for 2 1-2 hours Wednesday night.

Neither side commented at the recess.

John S. Bugas, Ford vice-president in charge of industrial relations, headed the company negotiators.

Previously Bugas had called the Union's proposals "unreasonable to the point of unsolute unrighth" and had proposed "substantial" wage hikes for Ford contract.

The U.A.W.'s strike order had followed upon a charge by Thomas Thompson, Local 600 president, that Ford had violated a verbal agreement to keep production speed at a certain rate during negotiations.

Three Policemen Shot, Wounded Gunmen Escape

Hamilton Officers Thwart Break-in

Hamilton, May 5 (CP)— Three city policemen were shot and wounded early today in a wild gun fight with three young gunmen who they caught attempting to break into a store near the intersection of Main Street East and Bartley Street.

The wounded policemen are Sgt. Arthur Ellis, Constable James Campbell and Constable Herbert Connolly. Connolly was hit by two bullets and hospital authorities reported his condition as serious.

The shooting took place in a laneway shortly before two a.m. when the policemen rushed in on their squad car. The gunmen escaped after exchanging fire but later police picked up a suspect for questioning in an east-end home.

In the gun-fight Campbell was hit on the chin but continued to chase the men after they rushed past the officers to a waiting car a short distance away.

Ellis was shot in the right shoulder as he crouched in the right leg and body.

An extensive search of the east end was made by police in their hunt for the gunmen. Cars in the downtown area of the city were stopped and their occupants asked for identification.

Three Children Burned to Death, Two are Missing

Lowville, N. Y., May 5 — (AP) — Three children perished and two others are missing in a fire which destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jackson today. The parents and two others of their 14 children were brought to hospital here. Their conditions were reported critical.

$40,000 Fire in Warkworth Destroys Stillman's Garage, Restaurant, Living Quarters

Warkworth (Special)— Residents of this thriving northern county village of some 600 people today credited fire department's from neighboring municipalities with saving the business section of the village from fire which yesterday completely destroyed the garage, restaurant and living quarters of Harold Stillman and burned a big hole in the roof of the town hall.

They said that if it had not been for the co-operation received from outside fire departments the entire business section would almost certainly have burned. The fire which broke out in the upstairs Stillman apartment quickly destroyed the two-year-old concrete block building and the roof nearly three hours to bring under control.

Everything which the Stillman family possessed went up in smoke, with flame damaged the neighboring town hall to the extent of $15,000. Besides the help of five fire departments to bring the fire under control, total damage was estimated at over $40,000.

Volunteers Work Hard

When the alarm was given the Warkworth volunteer fire brigade, operated under the direction of village clerk W. Grant Allen, battled the flames and were credited with saving the Canadian Tire Store and furniture shop owned by Roy McNally.

Powers Facing Political Battle For All Germany

Victory for West Would Shatter Russians' Iron Curtain

Berlin, May 5 (AP) — The western powers, victorious in the cold battle for Berlin, come now to the greater struggle for all of Germany.

Many international observers here believe that a victory for the westerners in this struggle would shatter the Russians' iron curtain.

The next phase will open the forthcoming four-power meeting in Paris, called in connection with the agreement announced in New York yesterday to end the Soviet blockade and seek a settlement of the whole German problem.

Many top United States officials in Germany consider the Russians at the Paris meetings, will shift from a policy of obstruction view of one of fering limited co-operation designed to give them the strongest possible voice in a united German government merging the eastern and western zones.

Russian Blockade of Berlin Will be Lifted on May 12 Under Big-Four Agreement

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 5 (AP)— The Russian blockade of Berlin will be lifted May 12 under a Big-Four agreement announced today.

The Western Powers' counter-blockade of the Soviet zone of Germany will be ended at the same time.

The Council of Foreign Ministers will meet in Paris May 23 "to consider questions relating to Germany, and problems arising out of the situation in Berlin, including also the question of currency in Berlin."

The official statement released simultaneously in the United States, British, France and Russia marks the beginning of the end of one of the most critical situations in the post-war struggle between Russia and the Western Powers.

It will require the full weeks from now to May 12 to make the complicated arrangements restoring normal rail, highway and barge traffic between Germany's first city and the western occupation zones.

A statement issued here and in New York yesterday disclosed that final agreement had been reached among negotiators of the four powers in the United Nations headquarters city.

It remained for the Moscow, London, Paris and Washington governments to give final approval to the arrangements and agree on the release of today's

Cheered by Success

United States officials obviously were cheered by the success of the New York negotiations.

They considered it of great significance that Russia finally was willing to agree to lift the blockade virtually unconditionally. Russia became willing only after the Western Allies had proved they could supply Berlin by air despite bad winter weather and while had demonstrated their unity by signing the North Atlantic Treaty and agreeing to create, in spite of Russian objections, a new state in western Germany.

There remained a major reservation about this new turn of events in the cold war. This is that people in the United States and the rest of the west should not interpret it as meaning that the conflict between Russian communism and western democracy has suddenly ended.

Began April, 1948

John Foster Dulles, a Republican foreign policy leader and American delegate to the United Nations, told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday that the United States should not at once regard the lifting of the blockade as a shift in basic Russian aims.

The blockade began April 1, 1948, following the breakdown of the Foreign Ministers' meeting in London the previous December.

Russia imposed stringent restrictions on highway and rail traffic from the western zones of Germany to Berlin. Then it cut off occupying power holds a sector. Successive Soviet measures tightened the restrictions so that Berlin could be supplied from the west only by air.

Belleville Girl Stationed in Salzburg, Austria

U.S. Army Photograph

Major Hollis E. Vernon, Commanding Officer of the U. S. 57th Field Hospital, Salzburg, Austria, pins on the bars of Captain Adeline Spence (Belleville, Ontario, Canada) and Captain Yvonne L. Kelly (no address) after their recent promotion.

The old adage to "Join the Navy and see the world" has nothing on the modern army. And even members of the fair sex attached to Army units see their fair share of the world.

Proof of this is seen in the instance of Captain Adeline Spence, formerly of Peterborough county, who is now stationed as a nurse with the 57th Field Hospital of the United States Army stationed at Salzburg, Austria. Captain Spence is a niece of Mrs. Jessie R. Mallory, Bridge Street.

Born in Burleigh township in Peterborough county, Captain Spence attended Lakefield high school and later graduated as a nurse at Hamilton General Hospital. Following graduation she worked at Albany, N.Y., and later at the Presbyterian Hospital in New York City.

With the entry of the United States into the war Captain Spence offered her services, becoming the first army nurse to join up at Fort Dix, New Jersey.

When the Americans carried the war into the Pacific Captain Spence went along and saw service in New Guinea, in the Philippines and after the cessation of hostilities was stationed for a time in Japan. She has been stationed at Salzburg in Austria since October, 1946.

Speaking with the Ontario Intelligencer Mrs. Mallory said she had not seen her niece for two years. However, she was expected to return to America in July of this year. Captain Spence recently received her captain's bars.

More Building Projects Stopped By Toronto Strike

Toronto, May 5 (CP)— Construction work halted on six more major construction projects in Toronto today as a strike of 1,000 bricklayers and laborers entered its fourth day.

Construction was at a standstill on 25 building projects with some 4,000 workers idle. Value of construction tied up is estimated at more than $50,000,000.

Whether construction of homes nor wages and working hours are at issue in the strike. The Toronto builder's exchange, representing contractors, has refused to approve the modified closed shop demanded by the International Union of Bricklayers and Common Laborers' Union (A.F. L.), which would require all non-union laborers to join within 30 days.

Building exchange officials and building trade representatives today said that about 90 per cent of the large construction jobs are tied up. They predicted all major jobs would be closed within a week if no agreement is reached.

Included in the six projects closed down today is the $7,000,000 Ravens Brollyes Plant. Others tied up previously include the Sick Childrens' Hospital and the Banks of Montreal and Nova Scotia.

POLICE CONSTABLE

Meanwhile, provincial police were awaiting reinforcements before taking any action against the workers who ignored a court injunction to resume picketing of the Johns - Manville plant.

At some of the road blocks, gravel trucks were left across the highways and 200 to 300 men armed with stones were at each blockade.

"Today," said Hamel, "the workers have decided to take their problems into their own hands and stop the scabs from taking our jobs."

Detachment of Police

A small detachment of newly-arrived Provincial Police from Montreal approached one of the road blocks and then turned back.

A reporter from the Sherbrooke Record trying to reach the town found every road blocked that he tried.

Strikers said they had brought in from 2,000 to 2,000 strikers and sympathizers from Thetford Mines, where a similar strike was in effect also since Feb. 13.

The strikers met assembly of hundreds of pickets was said to have been a report that the Canadian Johns-Manville company intended to ship out asbestos by railway.

Strikers said their reinforcements had been arriving since 4 a.m. today.

Police said there were between 600 and 900 pickets at the plant of the Canadian-Johns-Manville Company in Asbestos.

Agents within Asbestos could not get out and those arriving from outside could not get beyond at the blockade. The outside group was Danville, four miles away.

Pickets suddenly showing up at the Canadian Johns-Manville plant ignored a court injunction against picketing and have attended a few days ago until May 31.

Arbitration Board

Quebec — Labor Minister Barrette said today he has been asked to complete an arbitration board to hear a dispute between Quebec Asbestos Corporation of East Broughton, Que., and its 200 employees. The minister will name a chairman for the board later today.

Chrysler Forced To Shut Down Canadian Plant

Windsor, May 5 — (CP) —The Chrysler Corporation of Canada decided today was forced to shut down its assembly line operations at Plant No. 3, passenger car division, because the refusal of 20 internal plant jitney drivers to work, a spokesman of the company said. Approximately 2,000 were laid off.

A grievance had been filed with respect to one individual's classification of work and this grievance was given as their refusal to work.

The corporation said the action taken by the employees is in violation of the terms of the company's collective bargaining agreement with the United Automobile Workers of (C.I.O.)

ON THEIR OWN

This time of year brings graduation from college and university, freighted with possibilities of great moment. On the threshold of careers stand expectant young men and women who have placed themselves in training for years. Who can tell who will be the great doctors, scientists, engineers, statesmen, business executives, lawyers, clergymen and artists who will devote their lives to posts and designs larger than mere self?

In the May letter of the Royal Bank of Canada there is food for thought in the article "When you are on your own." The letter is dedicated to the young people in search of a future this their commencement is "a point of departure. They have reached maturity in the eyes of their families and friends. They are on their own and must justify the faith of their parents. From here on it is their own ability, energy, initiative and enterprise that count."

It is possible qualities are these that are called forth in the development of a young country and its people. Their forefathers had few of the advantages of the people of today but they possessed ability to achieve. Hence likewise for the coming generations there are opportunities not all big things but many little things that make up so many of the big businesses of today as fountain pens, typewriter ribbons, snapshot films, advertisements, gramaphone needles, thousands of vest-pocket things "that were thought up by young men and women of imagination, put into production by young men and women" and made of value by given employment to hundreds of thousands of persons.

These little things are still important, the letter goes on to say and then points to the possibilities of television, air conditioning, civilian aviation, electronics, food freezing and atomic energy in these days. These offer a fertile field for the young of today and call for initiative of eager young persons.

Warning is noted, ambition must be more than mere envy of successful men, "there must be real effort and work to back up the desire." To the young people entering upon the broad highway of life there is offered the advice that the objective must be specific, concrete and definite. Objective is no mere willingness to receive, it is something purposeful and creative.

Never give in to inertia, make proper use of time. Learning must be done intelligently, youth must not be satisfied with the jobs they do easily.

Worst of all crimes against oneself, the graduate is advised, is to lament and wring one's hand over "lack of opportunity," for opportunity knocks at every door. Initiative is one of the ways to success and achievement.

Private enterprise can look forward with high-hope, there is the spirit to venture, the will to achieve. The man who can think things through is likely to win out over the undisciplined efforts of others, perhaps brighter people.

One remark is worthy of note, "mankind has spent many ages in rising to the present level of living, scope of opportunity and ability to conceive and build. Then the letter closes with the thought that there are some things needing fixing. "Amid all our skills we have not yet found the secret of living at peace, of co-operating internationally, of producing as plentifully as nature makes possible."

DISCOVERIES

The infinite number of uses which can be made of the things of earth remains in this age of great discoveries still one of the wonders of life. Research has produced marvellous results in the ways of new foods. Now comes a story of the twenty-year quest of two Norwegian scientists who have found a new vitamin preparation derived from lime water. This means much for the Norwegian people for there are 20,000 tons of limewater—a waste from folk for there are 20,000 tons of limewater—a waste from the manufacture of herring oil and hitherto dumped as wastage into the sea. The new product is rich in vitamins A B and D and when mixed with a basic animal fodder has shown a remarkable result as food for chickens and livestock.

The product of the vitamin is in the record of chick growth. Forty-five-day-old chicks fed with a food preparation containing 12½ percent limewater weighed an average of 631 grams. Chicks of the same age which received the same food minus the limewater weighed 352 grams at the end of the control period.

TO BE USED WITH CARE

Is it ever a good thing to take a vow?

There are some who say no. Take, as an example, Jephthah. Indicated that we do not have will power enough to make ourselves keep them right and that we are ordered up by much solemn swearing. They point out furthermore that oaths, like good resolutions, are easily broken, and when one person has vowed to do a thing and has not done it, his character as a Christian is damaged.

But there are others who maintain that there is nothing which supports one in a course of right action so effectively as to make a public avowal of the course of action he intends to take. By so doing he puts himself on record. Not only is he supported thereafter by a sense of pride, but those who have heard him and found it beneficial to do so declare that the solemn declaration to do a thing, either privately or publicly made, releases unlimited powers within us which contribute to ultimate achievement.

As your day is very much like and what the Book of Common Prayer says about marriage holds good in the case of all solemnly entered into. It is not to be entered into unadvisedly or lightly; but reverently, discreetly, soberly, and in the fear of God. When the yare, they frequently constitute powerful support in the achieving of good ends.

London Letter:

Great Ormond Street Hospital For Children Greatest in World

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 5 (CP) — Bonds of friendship between doctors and nurses in Britain and Canada and countries have been strengthened during the past year by the Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children, which recently celebrated its 70th birthday.

Described as the most famous children's hospital in the British Commonwealth, Great Ormond Street has for years helped to attain doctors and nurses from Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Those who have graduated to put the knowledge gained into practice.

When the hospital was opened —in an old residential house in 1852—there were only 10 beds and the library was used as the out-patients department. Today, on the same site, the hospital has 400 beds and a country branch at Tadworth Court, Surrey, where

"The history of the hospital's of flowers, growth is one piecemeal additions, conversions and construction," an official said. "It is also a record of the generosity and devotion on the part of many men and women."

In 1851, the year when Dr. Charles West and Dr. Bence Jones first established a small children's hospital "for the particular care and study and treatment of ailments peculiar to the young," 21,000 children died from infectious complaints in the London area.

Queen Victoria Helped

Horrified by the rising child mortality rate, Queen Victoria herself a young mother, subscribed £600 (£400) and became first patron. Lord Shaftesbury, whose legislation had already shortened the hours of labor for British children, became the first president.

Mackenzie's Column:

War Probable If Pact Not Ratified--Dulles

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

John Foster Dulles told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday that "war is highly probable" if the United States doesn't ratify the North Atlantic treaty.

That's a mighty blunt statement to come from the United States delegate to the United Nations. It challenges analysis. Why would war be highly probable?

Without trying to read Mr. Dulles' mind, I believe we can get our answer by going back to the statement from which this column discussed long ago. This is that if Russia is to be able to establish Communism across western Europe the English Channel is another world war would be inevitable.

The United States and Britain then would stand alone among the great powers against the Soldiers' vist drive.

If it is to be avoided, the Communist offensive must be held on the line which it now occupies through control of Germany. The thing which will hold it there is a strong and united western Europe. That would be my explanation. Dr. Dulles told the committee: "The present is a very difficult world situation now that it was a year ago. Then no pact was only being discussed but now it has been formally signed. It would indicate a change in the United States' attitude if the treaty were to make other countries change their place.

"Out of that," Dulles added, "would come a war."

While the controversy was being given Russia and the three western powers have been trying to agree on means of keeping the peace. Meanwhile the Soviet bloc and the western democracies have been engaged in a cold war.

While this in itself doesn't mean either peace on earth or cool will toward men, still it's a move in the right direction.

Spell of Muggy Weather Makes Easterners Swelter

By The Canadian Press

Scalered thundershowers expected today may end the unseasonal spell of muggy weather which for two days has made most of Eastern Canada swelter.

The mercury flowing northward from the eastern end central United States sent temperatures to about 23 degrees above normal in southern and eastern sections of Ontario yesterday. But at the same time cooler air started to roll southward from Hudson Bay, giving promise that the hot spell would be short-lived.

Ottawa, which had a high of 79 degrees yesterday, expected the mercury to go higher today. Montreal's lookers looked today for a swelter of 85 degrees.

Toronto recorded 80 degrees yesterday and a mark of 85 today. The official high in Windsor was 87, although across the river in Detroit, U.S. weather observers put the temperature at 89 degrees. Kingston had 86 degrees in Hamilton.

Farther east, the heat was less severe. Fredericton, N.B., reported a high of 78, Halifax 74 and St. John's, Nfld., 70.

Several high school cadets collapsed from the heat yesterday during an outdoor inspection at Orillia.

In Hamilton, John Hall tried to go in for a swim but remained in the water only a minute or two. It was still too cold, he reported.

Letters to the Editor

Suggests Board Reconsider Appointment

Editor's note: Following is a letter addressed to the Belleville Board of Education by the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, with respect to appointments for school principals made by the board.

Miss J. Tickell
Chairman Board of Education
Belleville.

Dear Miss Tickell:

The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans, is concerned by the injustice to Lt.-Col. Cousins in by-passing him in favor of a non-veteran, as principal in one of the new schools.

We are not unmindful of the fact that Lt.-Col. Cousins' military service is outstanding, and of his seniority rights as a teacher in this school system, but he has proven his ability as a leader in times of war and turmoil, he should be considered in times of peace.

Both Dominion Civil Service, the provinces, and most municipalities give preference to returned men. It is recognizing a principle which is only right and just. Surely then the Board should also give recognition to an outstanding soldier.

It is our intention to protect the veteran and assist him to the best of our ability. In this case we believe you should reconsider your appointment.

Yours very truly,
Wm. J. FORD,
President

Resident from City Enjoys Trip West

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I thought that it might interest you to have a letter from one of your citizens, and that the note would be a news interest for you. Perhaps you can give me a chance, a nice old lady can be interested in your columns.

Mrs. Rachel Alexander, 144 Station Street, Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mrs. Here she met one daughter, one granddaughter, three grandsons, and one great granddaughter. Twenty - nine years ago I stopped since she has had such a visit with some of the family.

Mrs. Alexander was the life of the party and far more active and interested than some. She attended her trip for Calgary to visit the Rocky Mountains, spending time in Banff and Lake Louise. Here she drank hot water from one spring and cold water (the famous Hot Springs at Banff) which was very nice as she had it must be cooled to permit bathing. She fed the deer as they wandered about the lake, but viewed the elk and moose from a distance, (one of which had certain lodge members.) At Lake Louise she was thrilled with the beauty of the blizzard or cloud marred the gorgeous View. Then there was the glowing color of the lake.

The charming lady was always at her best and it is rumored that at the day's end her daughter, Mrs. Stoll, was very, very tired though thoroughly entertained. Mrs. Alexander is quite happy and sorry there was no more time for other visits.

One Calgary citizen hopes Mrs. Alexander will come back and really see the West. It is too bad she did not stay out here years ago and make her home with her daughter. She would have been a good Grey Cup supporter.

P.S.—Come for the Calgary Stampede.

Brighteners

Albuquerque, N.M. — (AP) — Are you lopsided?

Probably normal.

A New Mexico university anthropology class has just completed a study of the physical characteristics of 200 men selected from the student body at random.

Some are some of the findings:

Right-handed men tended to have broader right hands and wider right eyes.

Most of the men claimed a slightly greater height than the tape measure proved.

Tulsa, Okla. — (AP) — They tried to give Harry Hall a watch maker $1,000 yesterday. He had been a watch maker. But you would think he was trying to avoid smallpox.

Actually, the Pittsburgh, Pa., firm called twice. Shoemaker was out. Then they sent a registered mail. They finally learned he was in.

The two men rushed down to Shoemaker's office. He was busy. They swore to tell no hour long. Shoemaker gave up. "Here," one of the agents said, "it's all yours."

Shoemaker, who won the $1,000 cheque, prize for an advertising slogan, had submitted it in January, and sat down breathless.

"I thought it was a gag," he stammered.

TONSILLECTOMY

Please let me know if a woman aged 40 could have a tonsillectomy? She had a blood clot in her right leg near her ankle that is swollen and does not heal at times. She seems to have pimples on her face, pain in her eyes although she has new glasses, and headaches in the back of her neck. Would a tonsillectomy be helpful in a case like this? She had an appointment to have them out some time ago, but the doctor went to a football game, as she never went back...She does not hear much from her left ear. (A. R.)

Certainly, a woman of any age may promote a tonsillectomy. The symptoms you mention would not bar the woman from the atrocity. On the other hand if don't think removal of the tonsils of her tonsils would be helpful in any way. That's what tonsillectomy really means—getting out, dissecting portions of the tonsils and not the entire tonsil, as the near-surgeons of yesterday tried to make their performances believe. Note to any old-timer who may feel peeved by remarks I've just penned: I have statistical evidence to back it up, if you wish to challenge me.

I haven't the faintest notion what all the symptoms described by the correspondent.

If the trouble near her ankle that does not heal is an ulcer or raw sore, I have a pamphlet which may prove of some use to help she needs. She may send a stamped envelope for a copy of it and ask in writing (a clipping will not suffice) for "Varicose Ulcer."

Tonsils are still many physicians, too many physicians by far, who seem to believe in tonsillectomy just for malignancy, which may justify such a radical procedure. But it is a criminal attempt to eradicate a purely presumptive "focus of infection" by tonsillectomy (clipping or sliding off a portion of tonsil) tonsillectomy is a major operation involving risk to life. An individual fairly critical review of the evidence for and against this crucial" procedure is presented, for instance, by Dr. Albert D. Kaiser of Rochester, N.Y., who is one of the foremost authority on this subject. In my opinion, given precious little comfort or assurance as to the immediate and remote effects of tonsillectomy. How those old timers who take the patient into the next room to decide the patient must have those last 3 tonsils out before they can sleep nights is more than I can understand. Appar-

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

"How," enquired one of Fred Allen's stooges, "how does a hen know the first egg she lays is an egg?" How can it tell what size of an egg to lay, every time . . . ?"

The answer to that one lost amid the laughter. But the question is a natural one to be asked by a humble man with a sense of the ridiculous, by a practical man and honorable servant of mankind, the hen. Every Canadian knows the hen — from bacon and eggs to angel cake—to which the hen does not contribute. Even no man knows who first induced a hen to respect the sanctity of family circle.

Figures have recently been published regarding the number of eggs a hen will lay in her lifetime. The present record, claimed to be a world record, is 1,515 eggs from one hen. This has just been equalled by a Scottish hen belonging to the flock at the Poultry Research Centre at Edinburgh. The record of this bird is all the more remarkable in that her greatest production was in her fourth year, when even hens might have been expected to be past the best of their record days.

She was hatched in April, 1939, and began her career of egg laying year as a pullet, she laid 240 eggs. Year by year, then after she laid the following number of eggs: 241, 241, 240, 239, 214 and in her last year, 64. Eight years of distinguished motherhood, at a rate of laying the same as the American world's record, 1,515.

The cause of her death was given as hardening of the arteries.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INTO THE PEACEFUL HARBOR

I get many letters from people who are in their eighties, and recently one came from an old friend of mine whom I delivered newspapers when a student in college — Mr. A. P. Rider, of Ottawa, Kansas, who has just celebrated his 85th birthday. There is one noticeable thing about these letters from people in their extended youth, and it is this — cheerfulness and peace of mind.

Usually the great Italian poet, uses the illustration of a ship coming into harbor, when it "lets down his sails," and rides serenely, with slight headway only so we ought to let down the sails of our worldly pursuits, and "enter, by God's mercy and favor, into the quiet harbor of eternal rest."

The well-ordered life few regret, for it is he who cannot read the salty sayings of George Bernard Shaw, without a chuckle! This unusual man now in his 93nd year, has no immediate fear with anything but life. In a recent letter, "Dear Friend, with Bernard Shaw," he is quoted as having said: "Ibsen is the most practical writer in the world, worse himself away and at seventy-five becomes a child again trying to begin once more at potshoots and hangings." Mr. Shaw does not guard my health as well as my genius. The doctors say that I shall outlive my welcome.

Well, no one like Shaw will "outlive" the welcome of his fellowmen so long as he keeps a sense of humor, and is kind to those who have outlived that welcome.

The beauty of autumn is in its brilliant and varied coloring. It is an example of fulfillment. A culmination of the growing season, ending in ripeness. Gentle peace throughout the land — and the harvest is gathered into safe storage. And the fragrance of the harvest that remains is giving substance far into another year.

How beautifully the poet Bryant has ended that immortal poem: "So live, that when thy summons come to join the innumerable caravan which moves to that mysterious realm where each one takes his chamber in the silent halls of death, thou go not like the quarry-slave at night, scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave, like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

Interplanetary Communication May Utilize Telepathy, Spaceship

By NORMAN CHERRENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London — (CP) — Communication with Mars by means of telepathy is envisaged by some members of the British Interplanetary Society.

Ridiculous? A few members say yes, though they believe rocket travel to Mars will one day be an accomplished fact. Some, like radio engineer James Fairley, declare "the wireless of the mind" is no more incredible than radio was 50 years ago.

When interplanetary telepathy was discussed at a recent meeting of the society, mention was made of experiments conducted by Dr. J. B. Rhine of Duke University, North Carolina. These experiments proved that thoughts could be exchanged between people in separate, sealed rooms — and even in separate towns.

To the discussion members contributed examples of how messages sometimes flash from brain to brain and of how people with perhaps half the world separating them "can become animated at the same instant by a similar thought."

"Many people have telepathic power without knowing it," one member said. "That is their brains act as transmitting stations and receivers. In their minds the thoughts are picked up by others who usually people in mental harmony with themselves.

Short Distances First

Another member then suggested that one day people on earth might be able to communicate with intelligent beings on such a planet as Mars by telepathy.

A tussle of arguments for and against followed. Those in favor of interplanetary telepathy numbered eight or nine. The general view, however, was that telepathic communication over much shorter distances first to be established on a firm basis.

The real business of the society, whose members include playwright Bernard Shaw and aviator Jim Mollison, is to promote the possibility of travel through space — possibly by rocket ship.

On his return from Canada last February, Mollison said he would be willing to volunteer for an "experimental flight to the moon."

Two society members — engineer H. E. Wenh and R. H. Smith — have designed a spaceship on paper and now are discussing the building of it with fellow members engaged in scientific research.

Lawyer Declares Himself Alien, Gives Up Office

By DON GILHERRT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 — (CP) — The 78 - year-old Doyen of Irish barristers in London handed out his last legal opinion.

While bearded Alexander Martin Sullivan, the King's Sergeant-at-Law, declared himself an alien.

Then he announced he has given up his law practice.

Sullivan held that when Eire declared herself a republic all Irishmen living in Britain became foreigners. And he warned fellow Irishmen holding public office in this country that they lay themselves open to penalties under British law.

In addition to ending his law practice, Sullivan said that as an alien he is disqualified from continuing as King's Counsel and from holding the office of His Majesty's Sergeant-at-Law, an ancient legal office now obsolete. Sullivan was the last of the sergeants.

He was the central figure in many famous cases and played a prominent role in Irish affairs. During the First World War he defended Sir Roger Casement, the Irish conspirator who was hanged for treason.

Sullivan particularly warned Irish - born members of parliament of the pitfalls of their present constitutional position.

And his views were supported by Erskine May, authority on parliamentary practice.

"An alien is disqualified both by common law and by statute for membership of either House of Parliament," May said. . . . There are heavy penalties for sitting or voting when disqualified, and these are recoverable at the instance of a common informer."

Commented Dublin - born Valentine La Touche McEntree Labor member of parliament for Walthamstow West: "If Serjeant Sullivan is right, I can be prosecuted twice over."

McEntree has been in the House of Commons for more than 30 years and a member of Walthamstow Borough Council for nearly 30.

LINES OF RED MARCH

Chinese Communists have captured Soochow and this map shows the three Red spearheads which appear to be developing in the region. About 40,000 troops are reported around Shanghai, the world's fourth largest city. The Communist army heading from Soochow towards Hangchow is reported smaller than the northern group. A third force is moving south, around Lake Tai, also towards Hangchow. The cutting of rail line at Kashing would almost complete encirclement of Shanghai.—Central Press Canadian.

Mr. Frost, who chose G. Arthur Welsh as Board Chairman to succeed William Griesinger, said Mr. Foote will devote himself to executive work in the Liquor Control Board. At the same time, Mr. Foote, who won the Victoria Cross at Dieppe while serving as an army chaplain, will attempt to keep the public informed about government policies.

Mr. Welsh also is Provincial Secretary in the new cabinet. Mr. Griesinger takes over the Planning and Development portfolio.

DESIGNED FOR ARCTIC

Hair Stands Up On Mountain Top

New Plymouth, N.Z. — (CP) — Strange things are apt to happen to climbers on 8,260-foot Mt. Egmont, in the North Island of New Zealand.

A party which climbed the mountain in fine weather suddenly heard the metal parts of ice axes humming and singing in a strange way. At the same time two members of the party felt a buzz inside their caps "as if a bee or a fly had settled on top of our heads."

When they removed their caps their hair had literally stood on end. The strange effects of electricity at high altitudes are well known, but these phenomena usually occur during thunderstorms.

WEDDINGS

PARKS—CONBOY

Holloway Street United Church was the scene of a pretty Easter wedding on Saturday, April 13, at 2.30 p.m. when Ellen Jane, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Conboy, Belleville, formerly of Mountain Grove, became bride of Clifford Reid, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Miller Parks, Wallbridge. The ceremony was performed before an altar banked with Easter lilies and ferns. The Reverend C. A. Perkins officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Patricia Barker, organist, and Miss Patricia Barker, of Kingston, and friend of the bride, sang before the ceremony, "Because," and during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor-length gown of white, brocaded satin with sweetheart neckline and bustle back. Her floor-length veil was caught in a band of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Jean Conboy, of Oshawa, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of blue nylon sheer with shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Mr. Elton Goodman, of Plainfield, cousin of the groom, was groomsman, and the ushers were, Edgar Fisher, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mr. Ernest Gould, brother-in-law of the groom.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held for about fifty guests at "Lanthorn Inn". The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a gown of grey crepe with black accessories, and corsage of pink sweetpeas. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore navy figured crepe with black accessories, and corsage of white sweetpeas.

The toast to the bride was proposed by John Halliday, of Kingston, a friend of the bride's family.

For a honeymoon trip to Ottawa and points east, the bride wore a suit of grey gabardine with black accessories, and corsage of red roses.

The groom's gift to his nonesmaid was a string of pearls with matching earrings and to the soloist, a cup and saucer and silver pin.

Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. John Halliday, Miss Patricia Barker, Mr. Clarence Barker, and Mr. Earle Tooley of Kingston, Miss Ethel Johnson, Bloomfield, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Conboy, of Fernleigh, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Goodman, of Frankford; Mrs. Edna Goodman and Lee, also Mrs. Parks, grandmother of the bridegroom, of Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Wannamaker, of West Huntingdon and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Fisher, Omemee.

Minerva Chapter, O.E.S. Holds Successful Bazaar and Tea

The Minerva chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star held their first bazaar and tea of the season on Wednesday afternoon in the I.O.O.F. Hall, Front Street, and was splendidly attended by members and friends.

The tables, the Worthy Matron, Mrs. H. Mason, assisted by Mrs. A. Johnson, who received the guests, and Mrs. C. Stirland, treasurer, who had charge of the treasury.

Around a large room, in the form of a U were placed the several booths, attractively decorated in garland loops of red, one of the Order's colors. Across the open end of the U was placed the long tea table with its lacey cloth, centered with sweetpeas, and in the open space, were the little tables with their crystal holders of sweetpeas in soft pastel shades.

The first booth was the "White Elephant" booth containing all those useful, and useless articles things, as sugar and syrup holders, an ever desired china and cookie basket woven in raffia and having a pretty floral piece under the handles. There were sherbet glasses, lemon squeezers, books, pictures, a red shoulder purse, fitting complement of the "little red shoes", a nice towel suit, size 14, was waiting for the right person, and a china outfit, peacefully resting, and a dainty infant face imaginable. This booth was convened by Mrs. A. Wonnacott and Mrs. B. Humphreys.

Attractive Booths

The next booth was convened by Mrs. C. Stirland and Mrs. M. Vannest, and here one was at a loss to decide just which of the many attractive articles to purchase. All were lovely, and many were useful, including which were pillow-slip lace edgings, some crocheted, having "Good Night" on the white, while others was done in fine knitting in a 'wave' pattern effect, beautifully even, and long wearing. There were also two very pretty handkerchief holders in pink satin, one hand-painted with flowers, while the other was covered with lace to trimmed set, nice accessories to a wardrobe.

A pink clad doll sat sedately in the midst of all these pretty things, looking demure and sweet in her blue-trimmed bonnet, while waiting to lend happiness to some little heart. Here, too, were packages of real pastel sachet, bright metallic flowers in shades of mauve, and blue for coat lapels, flowered note papers, a Chinese cushion top or wall hanging, done in an intricate design with metallic-colored thread, dainty handkerchiefs edged with fine crocheted lace, and lace doilies.

Home Cooking Plentiful

And next came the Home Cooking booth with its snowy white cloth, topped with rich goodies, displaying tasty tarts, chocolate cakes drenched with minced walnut meats, delicious light large of fruit, golden colored preserved peaches, macaroons, date squares and tempting fruit loaves. All tempting, and having eager purchasers. This booth was convened by Mrs. A. Jordon, Mrs. H. Vickery, Mrs. L. Langbeer and Mrs. W. Trewin.

The Apron Booth was a riot of color with its array of aprons, large and small, dainty and durable, for young and old. One was made from white organdy with tiny bias binding of pink and white striped material, having three pockets across the centre. A lovely little apron, making a perfect gift. Another attractive apron was made of yellow print with tiny flowerettes, and bound with mauve. A tulip apron of blue chambray, had a red shoulder ruffle appliqued on the front above the hem, and was finished with matching red ric-rac braid. This booth was capably convened by Mrs. R. Bonisteel, Mrs. Reed-dick. Mrs. H. Thrasher and Mrs. A. Clare, and doing a flourishing business, judging from the number surrounding it. There were also the fancy work pockets of pretty birthday cards, sympathy cards, anniversary cards and cards for baby gifts, with a little pink baby on each.

Plenty of Sweets

Another attractive booth in more ways than one, was the candy booth, with its array of, mouth-watering creams, chocolates, fudge, and maple cream in little red-covered containers, as well as several good sized boxes of the various assortments. The busy conveners of this were: Mrs. D. Storey and Mrs. L. Carrow.

Those who presided over the tea room were: Mrs. W. Stirland, Mrs. J. E. Marsh and Mrs. A. Moon. Paying tribute to the dainty muffins, and delicious jams which accompanied them, black currant and strawberry, were the many who tasted and remained for more, and left with glowing faces, on which was written, "perfect satisfaction."

Those who served were: Mrs. H. Kelly, Mrs. F. Ackey, Mrs. R. Andrews, Mrs L. Gale, Mrs. L. Jones, Mrs. H. Steward, Mrs. M. Robson, Miss D Craighead, Mrs. G. Dolmage, Mrs. L. Watson and Mrs. E. Pingsbore.

Mrs W Adams convened the kitchen from whence issued the delicious beverage, tea and "cup which cheers but not inebriates", and the delectable jams.

A fine bazaar, and satisfying tea, nicely convened, and successfully culminated.

IVANHOE

Church Circuit Family Night Well Attended

Ivanhoe—A family night was held in Ivanhoe town hall on Friday evening. Families from the four appointments of Ivanhoe's United Church circuit Salem, Fullerton, Bethel and Ivanhoe were present. The program was divided in two parts with Mr. G. A. Crasser as chairman.

A one act play "Uncle Bob's Day" was presented by the Frankford young people. A duet by Gene Lohnes and Ernest Wallace with guitar accompaniment was well received.

Three ladies' cardboard links fastened together with the words "Home", "Sunday school," and "Church" printed on them, surrounded by children holding lighted candles, provided a very effective setting for the second part of the program. The organist played soft music. The children sang "Marching Along Home Land Among Us" "Jesus Loves the Little Children." Other numbers were vocal: Piano solo, by Miss Phyllis Twiddy, hymn, "Happy the Home When God is There," short talk on Homes" by Carol Martin; solo, Blest This House" Marjorie Prest; talk on Sunday School, Barbara Sickle; song "I Frankford Now Everyone Should Come to Sunday School; song, Ivanhoe Male Band; accordian solo, Marilyn Spencer.

Short talks were given by the superintendent of the different Sunday schools.

The minister of the Church was given by Mr. Robert Bleecker, of Frankford and brought an enjoyable and instructive program to a close.

A regular Mother's Day service will be held in Beulah United Church, Sunday morning at 10 a.m. This is a combined service of Sunday School and church and everyone is invited to be present as there will be no evening service.

A delightful shower was held last Friday night in Manor Hall (Dorothy Greene, bride of this month) in the home of Mrs. A. Mason, Purdy Street, with Mrs. K. Graham as co-hostess.

The evening was spent in games and contests and at 10.30 p.m. the gifts were wheeled in, contained in a huge watering can decorated in pink and white by a tiny bride and groom. Miss Greene thanked Alfred Graham.

Miss Greene graciously thanked all those present for the lovely gifts after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses and their helpers.

Clergyman Frowns At Bare Shoulders

Barking, Essex, England — (CP) — Brides in Essex who may be thinking of choosing wedding dresses which begin below the shoulders have been warned by Rev. W. F. Chadwick, who preaches 500 couples a year at St. John's Church here.

Even when bare bridal shoulders are covered with net the vicar still is not happy about them.

"Low-cut dresses are not suitable for wearing in church," he said.

A fashion expert said the trend towards ritual surpice clothes is responsible for low-cut wedding dresses.

"Brides who wear them usually plan to turn them into evening dresses," he said.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The May meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. was held in the church parlor with Mrs. F. Wilson presiding. Mrs. Downey accompanied on the piano during the meeting.

Mrs. Wilson welcomed the members, and then called on the various secretary for their reports. The treasurer, Mrs. Burrows, reported a splendid Easter Thanksoffering. Mrs. Hubbs was thanked for her completes reports on all meetings held. Mrs. Scott reported many shut-ins were remembered during the month. Mrs. Wesse, community friendship secretary, reported that 56 personal calls had been made during the month, and that cards had been left where people were not found at home.

Clothing Needed

Mrs. Johns urged for new and used clothing for overseas to be sent in immediately, and cash to assist in sending some urgently needed. Mrs. Stesser, librarian, made her monthly report. Mrs. Jones, temperance secretary, gave a brief and concise reading on the evils of temperance teaching "If the home.

Mrs. Buck, representative from the W.M.S. to the C.G.I.T. mentioned that an affiliation meeting of the two societies will be held on May 20th. She also made a report from the C.G.I.T. work board.

A letter of appreciation from the Catford House Mission was read for the donation of skates which had been given to them in the winter from the W.M.S. Mrs. Bailey, President of the Mission Band, reported that the mission band was coming along very nicely. The roll call was 75% a fair number of members responding.

Church's Responsibility?

Mrs. Dobbs and her group then took charge. Mrs. Campbell gave a reading on the sufferings and sorrows of displaced persons, and mentioned that there were millions of homeless, hopeless, and friendless in Germany. "What then is the responsibility of the Christian church in this regard, can we disregard the challenge?" asked the speaker.

Mrs. Reid and Mrs. Tucker were chosen to the 54th annual Presbyterial which was held in Trenton. Their reports were full and comprehensive it was almost like being as sylvpable as attending the presbyterial would have been.

Mrs. Reid mentioned that allocation of the presbyterial has been over-reached for the first time since the union. Stewardship of talents, time and money were especially urged.

Mrs. Tucker stressed the point that young recruits were very much needed as train as missionaries. Expressions of appreciation were extended the delegates for their painstaking efforts.

Mrs. Bell sang, "The Lord is my Shepherd," which was a fitting ending to a meeting in which so many needs and responsibilities had been brought to mind.

Mrs. T. A. Tucker gave a chapter of the study book in a most interesting manner.

After the close of the meeting, a social half hour was spent with Mrs. Dobbs and her group serving tea.

Freedom Real Privilege Says Charlotte Whitton

The individual citizen's participation in movements dedicated to the common good is vitally necessary, declared Dr. Charlotte Whitton, O.B.E., in an address at the annual meeting of Prince Edward Children's Aid Society here yesterday.

"An integral part of the structure of traditional freedom is the citizen's participation as a volunteer in the planning, financing and actual administration of the welfare agencies of a community."

The right of the individual to do what he wants to do for citizen, if his own free will, no less than what he must do under the law, is a very real privilege of the free. The association of free citizens in voluntary organization for these purposes is a characteristic of vigorous democracy," she declared.

Dr Whitton, who has been in the public eye in connection with the study, "Welfare in Alberta", which she directed for the Provincial Government of Alberta, stated that study and conditions as she found them, as the basis background for her address to more than 300 persons. She stressed the dangers of freedom in that individual when welfare services pass completely to state control as they did in Alberta.

143 Wards

Miss Violet Anglin, superintendent, reported that there are 143 children under the care of the county Society. There are more requests for adoption than can be filled, but stressed that there is need for foster homes. A total of the society was fully reviewed.

H.A. Cleeve was elected president to succeed Dr. Ketcheson with W. C. Hicks as vice-president; Mrs. Harold Koopman, secretary; Mrs. C. G. Rutter, treasurer; E. S. Theakston, chairman of finance; Mrs. F. J. Webster, chairman of advisory committee; W. C. Hicks, chairman of juvenile court and Mrs. W. S. Lane, Mrs. L. B. Caloen, Mrs. A. Devine, Colin Carter, directors.

Reporting for the Juvenile Court, Mrs. W. S. Lane said 109 cases had been handled during the year, and praised the value of the court. Ernest Majury of the Provincial Department of Public Welfare, commended the Prince Edward Society on its excellent work.

Several Stitches Required to Close Scalp Wound

Picton — A passenger in a car driven by Miss Mae Hazlewood of Picton was injured and admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital here yesterday afternoon, when the car left the road and went into a ditch near Adolphustown. The vehicle overturned and was badly damaged. Mrs. Margaret Howson of Picton suffered a scalp wound which required several stitches to close and suffered shock. She was kept in hospital overnight. Miss Hazlewood and her aunt, Mrs. Charles Lewis, who is a daughter of Mrs. Howson, escaped with shock and bruises. The accident was investigated by Cpl. Smith and Constable Morden of Napanee. The Wartman ambulance of Napanee brought the woman to Picton after first aid had been given. A tire blowing out is believed to have caused the driver to lose control of the car.

BLAME TAKEOFF WITH ICE ON WINGS FOR CRASH

Washington, May 5 — (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday blamed an effort to take off with ice on the wings for a Seattle air crash last January in which a group of Yale University students were killed. Eleven of the 37 student - passengers and three crew members lost their lives in the accident Jan. 2.

Rotarians Told Importance Of Tourist Trade

Picton—The importance of the tourist trade in bringing needed United States dollars to Canada was stressed by J. Edward Wright Assistant Director of the Publicity Branch Department of Travel and Publicity for Ontario, at the local Rotary Club.

"As Canadian citizens we must all realize that the 260 million dollars which were secured from tourists in 1946 provided us with the means to acquire a large variety of goods not manufactured in Canada, and which would not have otherwise been available to us," he said.

Mr. Wright stated that Ontario secured 61 per cent of the total holiday travel from the United States to Canada and the revenue was estimated at 160 million dollars, which is about the same amount voted by the Ontario legislature for Ordinary expenditures. In Canada, the tourist trade ranks second only to the pulp and paper industry as a producer of U.S. dollars.

Mr. Wright devoted considerable time to stressing the need of suitable accommodation and attractions for tourists.

The club is sponsoring a chicken raising competition under the chairmanship of Gordon Campbell. The birds will be exhibited at Picton Fair.

Assault Charge Brings Sentence To Training School

Appearing for sentence on a charge of assault against a young girl, a local youth was committed to the Ontario Boys' Training School by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Picton police court this morning.

The young lad pleaded guilty to the offence in court last week and was remanded until today for sentence.

"This was a very serious matter and could not be overlooked," stated Magistrate Wills as he passed sentence on the young boy. "I have considered the report of the psychiatrist but I do not feel that I can agree."

The magistrate stated that any thought which he may have had in ov looking the matter passed when he learned that since the lad had appeared in court he had been guilty of a similar offence against another young girl.

Must Protect Girls

"We have got to protect our young girls in this city and if you were older I would ask that you be whipped," stated the Magistrate. "I am admitting you to the boys' training school and trust you will be taught something which will be of use to you."

The court was told by Inspector Clair Hayes that the boy had grabbed the young girl around the neck and attempted to indecently assault her.

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan also referred to the seriousness of the offence and when the boy was called before the court stated application had been made for his admission to the training school owing to his being incorrigible.

PLANES TAKE OFF

Sault Ste. Marie, May 5 (CP) — Last-minute preparations are being made by planes of the Provincial Forestry fleet before they take off for their summer bases. Some of the planes, which cover approximately 400,000 square miles of territory have already left after complete overhauls.

PETITION FAILS.

Peterborough, May 5 (CP)— A petition to upset a by-law limiting gasoline service station hours failed to go through yesterday when it didn't bear enough signatures. It required one-third of the 54 operators' names in the city.

DR. LESLIE BELL

"Professional amateurs" is the way Dr. Leslie Bell describes his famous Bell singers. Next Monday evening at the Bridge Street Church these singers will give their first appearance in the city. They are celebrated for their fine renditions of superb arrangements and for the freshness and charm of the choir itself. With the enthusiastic reception the Bell singers inspire, it is apparent that the credit is due to both Dr. Bell's breath-stopping arrangements and his remarkable ensemble technique. The girls sing in not three or four-part harmony but in six or eight — a unique accomplishment for an all-girl choir, but a feat Dr. Bell has achieved with eight low-register voices that he has trained to give his arrangements the effect of a mixed choir.

"No Accident" Buttons Given Several Drivers

In conjunction with the nationwide safe driving campaign which is in effect at the present time through which many interested parties are endeavoring to lower the appalling toll of life and property, many of the larger fleet operators in Ontario and throughout Canada and the United States are conducting "safety campaigns" in their own districts.

The results of these campaigns have been very good up to the present time and the companies are looking forward to even better results as time goes on and the educational program bears more fruit.

The net result of these programs will mean something to each and every one of us. It will mean that our highways will be safer places on which to drive. It will mean that our lives will not be in danger to the same extent on the city streets and that our children will not also be in risk of being killed or badly hurt while they are at play or going to or from school.

Direct-Wintern Transport is one of the operators, which are conducting a rigid safety program among their drivers. As an incentive to accident-free driving they award "no accident" buttons to the men who have successfully completed one year with no accidents for which they could be held responsible.

At a safety meeting held at the local branch of this organization on Thursday morning it gave the management great pleasure in being able to award buttons for no accidents during 1946 to W. Denyes, R. Belshaw, H. Young, R. Downey and F. Heffernan. Some of these men have several years with no accidents to their credit.

COMMIES SIGN

1. As government forces prepared to yield Hankow, shaky Central China fortress city, a Red offensive was nearing Nanchang, midway between Shanghai and Canton, and seemed aimed at Changsha as well. Changsha, 175 miles farther inland, is on the rail line 200 miles south from Hankow.

2. Formosa sources reported the return to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek from Red-encircled Shanghai to that big island haven.

Reds Repulsed Claim

2. The Shanghai garrison command said Nationalists repulsed two Red columns in "a heavy battle" 37 miles northwest of Shanghai in South Kiangsu province.

4. Fire of unknown origin destroyed 4,000 huts in the poorer sector of Shanghai, leaving 20,000 homeless.

A Central News Agency report said the Chinese-North Korean influence in Manchuria "has revolutionized

"Common defence against aggression of whatever nature," and a pledge for "joint action for common warfare" against any "imperialist power" which launches attacks either North Korea or Red China.

Chinese Reds would supply North Koreans with "arms, material and manpower" from Manchuria, from July 1, 1949, to Aug. 8, 1950.

Reported provisions of the Chinese Red pact with Burma Communists included:

Continuance of their "common struggle for liberation of the people in southeast Asia," and an agreement "to take steps in unison on their war strategy."

An "exchange of information on war strategy and other actions in their joint struggle against American and British imperialism."

POWERS' FACING

Some very able observers expect the diplomatic struggle for all Germany will be drawn and less subtle. They predict that the Russians, pinched by the Allied counter-blockade which has stagnated the economy of the Soviet zone of Germany, simply will discard the blockade as a useless weapon and turn to building the west with propaganda in the hope of winning German support.

The stress the Communist policy in Eastern Russians have built within their zone.

Election Scheduled

The east zone Reds have scheduled elections May 15-16 for a "people's congress" claiming to represent all Germany. While this is a step week before the foreign ministers are due to get together, some observers feel the Communists will try to set up a government to claim parity with the pro-West German United States.

Possibly the most solid clues to guide this speculation came in yesterday's edition of the Soviet army newspaper Tsegliche Rundschau. It hinted at these probable Soviet demands:

(1) Withdrawal of Germany, with disproportionate representation for German Communists; (2) Drastic modification of Allied control over steel and coal resources of the Ruhr, with assurances that Russia would have equal authority with the western powers in policing it and that a large share of Ruhr production would go to eastern Europe; (3) An early end to military occupation of Germany.

Withdrawal of foreign troops and relaxed control of the Ruhr have been demanded by many Germans outside the Communist camp.

Would Make Cairo Prominent Centre for Producing Arabic Films

By GILBERT SEDDON

Cairo — (Reuters) — To celebrate its coming of age this year, the Egyptian film industry is to make an all-out effort to enter competitive foreign markets with films of typical oriental character and background.

The starting point of this program will be Egypt's participation in the Cannes International Film festival, where four or five first class Arabic full-length features will be shown.

Among the pictures released by Cairo studios recently are "The Adventures of Antar," a colorful-and-larger episode of the legendary Arab knight; "Mohammed Ali the Great," and "The Beast of Upper Egypt," a killer story based on police records of the notorious gangster El Khatti, who terrorized the country and broke into world news headlines.

The Egyptian movie industry, which ranks third in the country that has recently made great progress both from the technical and from the artistic points of view. The war boom gave it its biggest impetus.

Film companies sprang up like mushrooms during the period from 1943 to 1946, producing no less than 120 features a year.

New studios were built and modern equipment installed from Britain, the United States and France, and local sets possible equal any in British and American studios. Talent exists, although there is no actual "groomings" of stars.

Depict Arab Life

Arabic films in the past have largely been of western inspiration, mainly American. But Egyptian producers are now digging into the rich, if limited, Arab literature and directing script writers to depict modern and ancient Arab life in keeping with customs and traditions.

Egyptian actors, directors, producers and technicians are endeavoring to establish Cairo as the leading film centre for Arabic pictures. British and American film companies are also planning, with Egyptian companies, joint productions which will be shown in English and Arab versions.

There are six big studios in Cairo. The capital invested in these studios amounts to $4,000,000 while $8,000,000 is being spent every year on the production of 42 or more pictures.

The Egyptian film industry employs directly some 1,000 actors, technicians, producers and directors, and a total of 10,000 indirectly. Production costs are still ridiculously high.

Apart from stars who draw between $80,000 and $8,000 a year according to their talents, the make-up man is one of the most highly paid men in the industry. He earns between $400 and $1,200 per film.

The local film industry's one ambition at present is to produce a technicolor picture of the magnificence of the Arabian Nights in genuine Oriental splendor.

In the opinion of Roger Seydoux, vice president of the U.N.E.S.C.O. executive board, the Egyptian film has travelled far in its 31 years of existence and stands a good chance at the coming Cannes festival.

U.S. to Bolster Merchant Marine

By ROBERT MARX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York — (CP) — The United States is starting a program to build a merchant marine that can compete on equal terms with fleets of other countries.

In charge of the plan is the United States Maritime Commission, set up in 1936. During and before the war, it made long-range studies "to promote the commerce of the United States and aid in the national defence."

Wartime losses, post-war sales and scrapping reduced the United States merchant fleet to fewer than 3,400 ships from a peak war strength of 6,200.

Under its new program, the commission will grant subsidies to ship builders and operators to make up the difference between costs of construction and operation in the United States and other countries. Costs in North America are higher because of higher labor charges.

Construction of new ships will be subsidized up to 45 per cent, further "operating differential subsidy" will vary with the routes travelled.

Post-War Situation

After the war many countries, foreseeing increased traffic, started heavy building programs. But United States yards were clogged with war-dited "mariety" ships being converted to peacetime use. Still other ships could not be converted, remaining in service to bring troops, displaced persons and war brides from Europe.

Of the total tonnage under construction in 1947, only five per cent was being built in the United States. The current program will increase the American proportion.

In its first contracts, let in August, 1946, the Maritime Commission attacked the most conspicuous lack of the post-war merchant fleet—passenger liners. One contract calls for two ships of about 20,500 gross tons, 638 feet long and capable of a speed of 20 knots. Each will cost more than $23,000,000, carry 972 passengers and be ready for service in the fall of 1950.

Also included in the Commission's schedule are 20 tankers, designed to sail at 20 knots as a "defence feature." These 24,000-ton tankers will carry about 275,-000 barrels of oil, almost twice as much as wartime tankers.

Hull, England — (CP) — A fishing captain who was said to have dumped some of his crew ashore in Norway in a snowstorm and left them was fined £63 ($253) and costs in Hull police court. He said he would appeal.

The captain, Christopher Pratt of the trawler Norland, 24 years a fisherman, said the men had been put ashore because they had refused to fish in bad weather. Previously two of the three concerned had been found guilty of disobeying Pratt's commands.

The men said they had spent seven hours on a jetty in a snowstorm after Pratt ordered them ashore and signed on some Norwegian seamen in their place. Pratt said he had arranged for them to stay at a hotel in the town.

One of the charges to which he pleaded not guilty was of discharging the men without proper authority of a British consul or shipping master. Pratt said there was no one of that description in the town, and the nearest consul was at Tromso, 13 hours' sail away.

"Master Crook" or 1949 Robin Hood?

"A good fellow always doing favors," is opinion Wasaga Beach neighbors have of Gordon Barrett, wanted under escort. Police hint he is "master crook" and is involved in robberies. Stolen goods totaling $25,000 in value were found in and near his Wasaga Beach lodge. Ont.

Miner Keeps Tab On Huge Family

Glasgow, Scotland — (CP) — Tom Crellly, 81, claims he has the biggest family in Britain — 12 children, 61 grandchildren and 85 great-grandchildren.

Keeping in touch with them is an all-time job, he says, which is why he rises at 5 a.m. every day. All but three children live within walking distance of his home.

A native of Belfast, Tom came to Scotland 62 years ago to work in the Lanarkshire coal mines. He married a Glasgow girl, who died nine years ago, a week before a golden wedding party which would have brought all the family together.

One of Tom's daughters, Mrs. Annie McBride, also has 12 children living.

Youth of Berlin Busy Practising For the Dancing Championship

By TOM REEDY

Berlin, May 5 — (AP) — All over Berlin the young men are practising for the dancing championship. It is the high spot of the young dance enthusiast's springtime in Europe.

If they win in their home towns, they expand into wider fields. States oppose states, countries vie with countries.

It is pretty well regimented into classes. A youngster in his teens can't compete with a veteran unless he can win his way through the various classes to the championship flights. That seldom happens.

Says Edgar Neumann, 1947 champion of Berlin:

"Your champion dancer is always around 30 years old." Edgar is 31.

It takes 10 years to make a dancer — the kind Europe and particularly Berlin means.

Eliminations have been underway since February for the grand climax — the championship for specialists this month.

In the first contests, Klaus Schultz, a student aged 23, paired with Helga Kartsburg, 20, to win the "youngster" title. Siegfried Kilbecker, 28, an engineer, and his bride, Gerda, 23, won the "junior" crown.

They had to dance the slow and also the quick foxtrot, the English waltz, the Viennese waltz and finally the tango. These five dances comprise the traditional obstacle course, but this year the rhumba has been added.

Jitterbugging, the Big Apple, the Charleston or any modifications are strictly taboo.

The prize is only a silver cup, worth maybe 300 marks ($90). But thousands on thousands compete and everyone knows who is who in ballroom dancing.

In a night of competing, a pair may dance about five miles. At a usual contest the competitors number maybe 100. There will be another 800 to 1,000 spectators.

Dancers don't smoke so that they can keep in condition. And they are amateurs — they don't do it for money.

The best partners and those who win usually are married couples — whatever that proves.

Kill Shipworms With Dynamite

Vancouver — (CP) — Dynamite seems to be the only protection British Columbia marine and logging operators have against the teredos — tough little "forty-second-cousin" to the clam.

A mounting menace to the water transportation of logs, wooden ships, and untreated dock pilings are billions of these little creatures — also known as shipworms — which in the past two years have caused heavy damage.

Logging operators explode dynamite in areas where they plan to moor log booms and the blast kills most of the creatures in the area. But the remedy is only effective until others have had time to make their way to the scene.

Some waters are more infested than others, and where the infestation is serious they can wreck and sinka a veritable honeycomb of a log in a few weeks.

ENLARGE JERSEY AIRPORT

St. Helier, Jersey, Channel Islands — (CP) — Work started under the German occupation to transform St. Peter's barracks into an airport is to be completed. The plan cost £105,000 ($420,000) and will greatly enlarge Jersey airport.

STIRLING

$132,000 Public School Approved by Bd. of Education

Stirling (Special)—Approval from the Ontario Department of Education for the expenditure of an amount up to $132,000 at the erection of a new public school in Stirling was received at the regular meeting of the Board of Education on Monday night.

Inspector A. W. McGuire of Tweed, tabled the letter of approval from the department, and in a brief address enumerated the steps to be taken by the local board in getting plans drawn and estimates approved.

Committee Appointed

Following a lengthy discussion Chairman C. I. Hatton and vice-Chairman R. E. Fox were appointed as a committee to meet the village representative in choice of a site after which arrangements will be made for the plans drawn and estimates prepared.

Principal J. L. Good of the high school thanked the Board for the honorarium of $10 in connection with his expenses of the O.E.A. and gave a brief report of the meetings. He also tabled a request from a pupil for permission for a student to quit school as well as requisition from Mr. Gardiner for a supply of records, a history book "Canada as a Nation", and recordings of excerpts from Shakespeare's Henry V. Mr. J. M. Mahon requested a supply of chemicals and a number of softballs, bats and mitts for use by the students.

Requests Granted

These request were granted but a request for the purchase of a new typewriter was held in abeyance. In the absence of Mr. Wells, public school principal, Mr. Good presented a requisition from the public school for a number of softballs. The request was granted.

The matter of joining the Centre Hastings High School Agana was discussed at length and while Board members were reluctant to give up control of the local school they agreed that due to the fact the adjacent township of Rawdon had joined the Area and the attendance at the local school would therefore be considerably lower, starting September next, the village should join the Area. Consequently it was agreed unanimously that the chairman secretary be authorized to sign the request for dissolution and discontinuance of Stirling high school district.

Complains of Dogs

Reporting for the property committee Mrs. J. S. Benson spoke of the dog nuisance at the public school where holes are being dug in the lawns and shrubs damaged by the animals. He also stated a new lawn hose was needed.

The following accounts were presented for payment by R. A. Patterson chairman of the Finance Committee.

Public School

Mrs. D. Rodgers $16.00, H. C. Bird $4.74, Geo. Noale $4.28, Mitch School.

Bill Cairns 75, Dominion Store $1.43, Mrs. R. Bagley $ 86.00, Centerton Co. $3.15, Bird's Grocery $12.30, G. B. Noble 32.05.

Chairman R. E. Tompkins of the Teachers' Committee led a discussion on the re-engagement of the teaching staffs. Representatives of the committee will meet the teachers. A communication of thanks from Miss W. Hay was tabled and filed. Following a discussion of minor details the Board adjourned.

Security Clause Of Atlantic Pact Rejected by U.C.

Toronto, May 5 (CP) — The General Council executive of the United Church of Canada by a one-vote margin Wednesday refused to call on Canadians "to maintain security of the North Atlantic area" under terms of the North Atlantic pact.

Approving the pact generally, the church's central governing body voted 15-14 to delete from the general resolution, a clause calling the church's membership "to recognize...if the necessity arises, Canada should do her duty under provisions of the pact."

The vote came after lay and clergy members criticized the exportation clause as "unnecessary," "warlike" and "beyond the scope of the church as a spiritual body."

Very Rev. Willard Brewing, Moderator, said that by passing the "preparedness clause, the church "might sacrifice a good deal politically while gaining very little."

Rev. Harvey Campbell, of Montreal led the attack against the issue brought before the assembly by Rev. Dr. John R. Mutchmor, Secretary of the church's Board of Social Service.

It would be "nothing short of tragedy", Dr. Campbell said, for the United Church at this time to urge Canadians to get ready for war."

Dr. Mutchmor defended the entire resolution on the grounds the church must be prepared to express itself and give a lead on major moral issues of the day.

"I agree with much that Dr. Campbell has said," Dr. Mutchmor said. "But as a church, we must realize our obligations to speak out. We have a service to render."

Export of Brains Debatable Point

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP) — A frequent complaint by churchmen and scientists in New Zealand that the Dominion exports her best brains, has been reinforced by recent reports of serious shortages of skilled specialists in several professions.

A large proportion of the brilliant students at New Zealand universities go overseas after graduation for advance studies at institutions abroad. The majority go to Oxford or Cambridge universities in Britain. Many of them find there are better paid positions available overseas.

Some of them would like to return, but cannot find suitable openings in a small country like New Zealand for their special abilities. Others are deterred by the lack of facilities for further research.

Many people claim that New Zealand now retains only the less brilliant students and does not attract the more capable men from abroad.

This view has lately been questioned by the minister of education, Mr. T. McCombs, who himself holds a New Zealand science degree. Many of New Zealand's best scientists do leave, he says, but in turn large numbers of important jobs are filled by men from overseas who bring a wider and more varied outlook than could be obtained if all posts were occupied by men who had never been abroad. Many New Zealanders, he adds, do return and they bring back enriched experience.

He claims that a professorship at a New Zealand university, worth about $4,000 a year, has been found by men returning from North America to give a living standard comparable with those at American universities with higher salaries and higher costs.

McCombs admits that there is an acute shortage of skilled men, especially for scientific posts. One cause, he thinks, is the high salaries at present being made by doctors. Men who would make excellent scientists decide to become doctors. Even when they prove to be indifferent practitioners they can still make high salaries.

Net Earnings Of C.P.R. Lowest Since 1905

Montreal, May 5 (CP) — Net earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway from railway operations in 1948—at $18,400,000—were the lowest of any year since 1905, C. P. R. shareholders were told Wednesday at their 68th annual meeting.

This condition prevailed, said company president W. A. Mather, despite the highest gross earnings in the railways history. He remarked the scale of net earnings caused "grave anxiety" to company directors.

Mr. Mather noted Canada today is in a period of expansion. He termed it "similar in some respects to that which occurred in the early 1900s." But, he said, prolonged opposition to freight-rate increases and resulting delay in obtaining adequate revenues decreases forced restriction of desirable capital expenditures for railway modernization aimed at increased railway efficiency.

He warned there could be no assumption that C.P.R. income from other than rail operations meant there is no need to trouble about rail operations earnings.

"Had 'other income' in 1948 been no more than the average of the 15-year period, 1933-47, your total corporate income would have been insufficient to warrant the payment of a dividend on the ordinary stock," Mr. Mather said.

Premier Frost Given Welcome In Home Town

Lindsay, Ont., May 5 (CP) — Premier Leslie Frost was given a homecoming welcome Wednesday night by 12,000 friends and well-wishers.

A Canadian Legion 100-man guard of honor was at the station to greet him on his arrival from Toronto where he and his Ontario cabinet were sworn in earlier Wednesday. There was a bouquet of roses for Mrs. Frost.

The Premier then drove a mile to Victoria Park, greeting by name many of the citizens who lined the route. Speaking from a flag-bedecked bandstand at the park, he said:

"This is a great demonstration of friendship. To meet such a great throng of people is a wonderful inspiration to me."

WILL DISCUSS MEANS

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—A special meeting of the Ontario Provincial Dailies Association May 20 will discuss means of publishing newspapers when normal facilities are unavailable.

The Association's quarterly meeting Tuesday set up a committee to investigate alternate printing processes. The committee was asked to report to the special meeting.

The quarterly meeting also discussed plans for a campaign the Dailies expect to launch about June 1 to increase advertising.

Manitoulin Is. Electors to Vote On Liquor Issue

Little Current, May 5 (CP) — Manitoulin, the world's biggest fresh-water island, will decide 10 days from now whether it wants government sale of liquor, beer and wine—banned since 1914 under the Canada Temperance Act.

The plebiscite Monday, May 16, in a plebiscite in which an estimated 4,863 voters from the 2,000-square-mile district of Manitoulin have an opportunity to say whether they favor revocation of the C.T.A., often called the Scott Act.

If the vote goes against the C. T. A., the Liquor Control Act of Ontario comes into force.

If the vote goes for the C.T.A. it will remain in effect. It bans sale of liquor, or keeping for sale. But it places no restriction on consumption.

For years the C.T.A. has not been a serious obstacle to drinking on the island, a notable vacation area. Many residents make their purchases at Espanola, on the Northern Ontario mainland, some 30 miles away, or at Sudbury, 60 miles east. There has been more or less open sale at some hotels.

The forthcoming plebiscite developed from a petition circulated on the island last year. Rev. W. W. Austin, 60-year-old retired United Church minister for Manitoulin, is the returning officer.

Intensive Campaign

An intensive campaign is being waged. George Bishop, Shegiundah cattle breeder and tourist lodge operator, heads a committee of 80 working for repeal. Rev. Gordon Taylor, Little Current United Church minister and secretary of the Manitoulin Temperance Federation, is in charge of the pro-C.T.A. campaign.

Mr. Bishop claims the C.T.A. for drinking among teen-agers on the island.

Mr. Barkwell says conditions can be improved by enforcement of the C.T.A.

The C.T.A., first passed in 1878, provided for local option in districts on whether it comes into force. Manitoulin, a judicial district—Northern Ontario counterpart of a county—voted for the C.T.A. in 1914. It became effective in May, 1916. It is also in effect in three Ontario counties—Peel, Huron and Perth (excepting the city of Stratford). Peel voted against its repeal in a plebiscite two years ago.

Poet Laureate John Mansfield 'Growing Weaker'

Oxford, England May 5 (CP) —Poet Laureate John Masefield today was reported "growing weaker," following an attack of influenza.

Masefield's doctor visited him this morning in an Oxford hospital and told reporters:

Mr. Masefield's condition is again giving rise to some anxiety."

The 70-year-old poet has been ill for two weeks.

War More Remote Than 12 Months Ago--McCullagh

London, May 5 (CU)— George McCullagh, Toronto publisher nearing the end of his tour of the United Kingdom and western Europe, said today he thinks war "is far more remote now than it was 12 months ago."

"That is not just my opinion but a viewpoint garnered from a lot of people who should know," he said.

McCullagh added that he found the British political scene lively and that "every county council election results in Scotland indicated a protest against the Socialist government."

"I am more convinced than ever that this country will be in the van of civilization's recovery — economically and spiritually," he said. "You cannot down character and wisdom."

SURRENDERS TO POLICE IN NEW YORK CITY

Brantford, May 5 (CP)— Lance McKinnon, 37, charged with theft of $3,130 from the Canadian Department store here, has surrendered to police in New York City Brantford police said today.

McKinnon, acting office manager for the department store is scheduled to appear in court in New York today.

Police said they expect to bring the accused back here tomorrow.

World Opinion on Ending Of Blockade of Berlin

London, May 5 (AP)— All Western Europe today hailed the scheduled May 12 ending of the blockade of Berlin as a warm ray of sunshine in the cold war.

But whether it was a victory for the east or the west depended upon which newspaper you read or to which statesmen you listened.

Communists generally said Russia had won a round in the tense battle with "western imperialists and war mongers." Western European countries took the view that allied diplomacy—plus the air lift—had scored a victory.

But the press of the London morning newspapers which made editorial comment took the view the end of the blockade was a step toward peace but the Communist Daily Worker chortled:

"This marks a retreat for the United States."

The Daily Express said "the Russian decision to lift the Berlin blockade and the prospect of a new meeting of the foreign ministers are a joint victory for good sense, conciliation and statesmanship.

The Times termed the agreement "a reward to steady nerves, insistence on established rights and great technical powers without which the air lift would have failed. A new test now begins which is no less exacting and in its own way no less dangerous than the tense battle of wills which it is ending."

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, president of the United Nations General Assembly, called it "another triumph of the good effects of United Nations intervention."

A dispatch from Austria reported Vienna breathed easier after hearing of the agreement. Hopes were raised in Vienna that the Deputy Foreign Ministers in London might agree on a Four-Power peace offered to write an Austrian Independence treaty.

Soviet-licensed newspapers in East Germany contended that the Western Allies had "backed down" in agreeing to the Four-Power meeting.

In Paris where the Four Powers are to meet, the newspaper Figaro commented that the United States and Russia "would probably easily agree . . . on a provisional division of the world into two spheres of influence" if it were not for France. I said France is mainly interested in regaining her place in the world as a power and "of playing the role of mediator."

Three Men Held, 'Cigs' and Obscene Pictures Seized

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—A "large-scale smuggling ring," dealing in American cigarets and indecent literature and pictures, was uncovered by R.C.M.P. and Toronto police today with the arrest of three men. A large quantity of cigarets and obscene pictures were seized.

Charged with smuggling goods into Canada from the United States and offering indecent literature for sale are James Mauricio, 26, Victor Pace, 29, and Joe Bastello, 30-year-old taxi driver, all of Toronto.

Police officials said the smuggling racket has been in operation "for a number of months" and that hundreds of cartons of United States cigarets had been sold here at black market prices. Sale of indecent comics and portrait pictures "has only come to light," police said, adding that the smuggling ring was the first case to set dealing in obscene literature uncovered in years."

The arrests were made by two police officers who became suspicious of a man wearing a taxi cap and driving a car without a taxi sign.

Police said they believe the cigarets had been smuggled into Canada from Buffalo, N.Y.

Six Cottages Burned, Probe Is Expected

Toronto, May 5 (CP)—Six summer cottages destroyed by fire Wednesday and today at Muskemine Lake, a Peel County resort 15 miles northeast of Toronto. Fire officials said they believed the fires were "deliberately set."

Deputy Fire Chief W. T. Rennie of the nearby Stouffville volunteer fire brigade said five cottages were destroyed early Wednesday and for a time threatened other houses and a large dance hall. He said the fire "must have been started" in one or more of the cottages and spread to the others.

Early today, the fire brigade answered the second call but was unable to save a cottage which had been slightly damaged by the earlier blaze. The fact that today's fire broke out on the side of the cottage opposite Wednesday's blaze definitely "indicated" arson, Chief Rennie said the Ontario Fire Marshals Department would be asked to conduct an investigation.

FIRE IN SURPLUS WAR MUNITIONS

London, May 5 (AP)— Surplus war munitions worth £30,000 ($120,000) burned in an eastend warehouse today, the sixth firehood in the neighborhood in a week.

Scotland Yard promptly began a careful probe in search for signs of sabotage or incendiarism.

Rockets and flares soared into the dawn skies as the war stores burned and one fireman said "it was just like being in the 1941 blitz for four hours."

Leaders Head For Hustings Next Week

Ottawa, May 5 — (CP) — Political leaders head for the hustings next week. And heads of the three biggest parties will start off by concentrating on Canada's four eastern provinces and their 34 Commons seats.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, leader of the Liberals, Progressive Conservative leader George Drew and C.C.F. leader M. J. Coldwell all plan tours of the Maritimes.

Both Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Drew have scheduled a few speeches in Quebec during their tours. Both Mr. Drew and Mr. Coldwell plan visits to Newfoundland. The Prime Minister is expected to go to Canada's newest province later in the June 27 federal election campaign.

Besides the all-important June 27 federal vote, the three leaders will be able to do a bit of campaigning for two provincial elections — Newfoundland's provincial vote May 27 and the Nova Scotia election June 9.

There's a possibility Mr. St. St. Laurent and Mr. Drew will pick the Halifax area for their key-note campaign speeches.

The Prime Minister will visit Quebec's eastern townships then, arrive in New Brunswick by train. Mr. Drew's first meeting is in Charlottetown May 10. He expects to Ottawa May 21 for meetings in his own riding of Carleton. Mr. Coldwell's tour is expected to last from May 13 to 21.

Liberals Hold 17 Seats

Liberals held 17 of the 28 Maritimes seats at dissolution, the Conservatives eight and the C.C.F. one. Both seats in Newfoundland to the Dominion and the 1947 redistribution will mean there will be another eight seats along the eastern coast.

Mr. Drew and Mr. St. Laurent will be following their tours and during their trips. The Prime Minister reaches Halifax May 14, two days before Mr. Drew speaks there. He goes to Truro and Amherst, N.S., May 16, and then after the opposition leader appears in these areas to Moncton, Newcastle and Campbellton, N.B., May 20. Mr. Drew visits those cities May 19.

It will be Mr. Drew's second trip to the Maritimes and Newfoundland in the last month.

The Conservative leader will start campaigning in Prince Edward Island, hold one meeting at New Glasgow, N.S., then fly to Newfoundland for two days and then to Halifax.

The Prime Minister starts in New Brunswick, then goes on through Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island.

Mr. Coldwell's complete itinerary has not yet been made public.

Asks to be Convicted Of Many Offences, No Evidence Known

Sudbury, May 5 — (CP) — A policeman's job is usually to find evidence of guilt, and then prosecute the accused party on the basis of that evidence. However, the opposite developed in district court before Magistrate William Cooper here Wednesday afternoon.

Robert C. Meunier, 24, of Moncton, asked to be convicted of an untold number of crimes without evidence to back up the charges. He was charged with creating a public mischief and with vagrancy and remanded eight days for further investigations.

The Maritimer surrender himself to provincial police at Carter and said he had committed offences to a large number of crimes he had committed in Canada and the United States. No proof has yet been found that Meunier had committed any of the offences.

He had written a 'confession' that took more than an hour to read in court. Checks of his allegations he claimed took place at Weyburn, Sask., and Sault Ste. Marie proved unfounded.

Virus Infections Attack Strawberries

Ottawa, May 5 — (CP) — A federal horticulturist said Wednesday night that commercial strawberry growers in Canada were faced with serious virus infections that stunts the plants and decreases yields. A. W. S. Hunter, of the Department of Agriculture's central experimental farm, said the disease was spread by insects and advised commercial growers to take more care in the selection of strawberry plants and to remove plants suspected of infection.

Sherritt Gordon Mines Has Many Irons in The Fire

By FORBES RHODE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The drama of Canadian mining, its chances for riches and its chagces for disappointments, was apparent at yesterday's annual meeting in Toronto of Sherritt Gordon Mines, Ltd.

This company has taken out of the ground some $45,500,000 in copper, zinc, silver, gold, at Sherridon, in Northern Manitoba.

In late 1945, Sherritt found new ore body, nickel-copper this time, at Lynn Lake, also in Northern Manitoba; and at this date they are confident that they have nickel and copper there worth $60,000,000. Which would last for 13 years at 2,000 tons of ore a day.

Question to be raised at yesterday's meeting, have they enough ore to justify the money and will have to be spent to get it out?

Heavy Costs

A power plant, for instance, to develop 100,000 horsepower, will cost about $17,500,000. A railway to Lynn Lake, which will cost at $10,000,000. There are other heavy plant expenditures.

Behind the hope of building another great mining property in Northern Manitoba, are several human interest stories of the stuff of which Canadian life is made.

Geophysical prospecting is locating potential ore bodies deep underlying northern Ontario, with disappointing results, but also with some success.

The University of British Columbia came into the picture when Professor Frank C. Forward found a new way of treating ore, which the company believed will prove profitable.

This summer, in the present development stage at Lynn Lake, ore concentrates will be flown to Sherridon on the Hudson Bay railroad to Ottawa, where the company will have the benefit of the advice and facilities of the Federal Department of Mines.

The company has other stringers it has, for instance, iron holdings in the Manicouagan area, Northern Ontario with proven reserves of 100,000,000 tons, and hopes of much more. They expect to lease these and, on their life-time, to obtain about $10,000,000 in royalties.

Under Selling Pressure

Sherritt has recently been under selling pressure in the stock market. Before the Lynn Lake mine was found in 1945, it was selling to 65 cents. In 1947 it reached $5.35. Its high was $4.43, and it finished the year at $2.15. This year's high was 2.50, and low 1.45, while its close yesterday was 1.54, down two cents on the day.

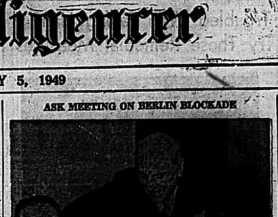
As it stands now, Sherrit shares the hopes and uncertainties of most mines put under the hammer, and a good many millions of years ago.

Nearly 50 Inches Rain in N. Italy

Rome, May 5 (AP)— After the drought, the flood.

Suffering its worst drought in 30 years, Northern Italy's Po Valley here was flooded in many places.

Crops that withered last week were under water. There were still no estimates as to the amount of damage nearly 50 inches of rain in Italy this week has caused.



Ingrid Bergman Will Rejo'n Hubby

Rome, May 5 — (AP)—Ingrid Bergman said Wednesday she will rejoin her physician husband, Dr. Peter A. Lindstrom, after completing her film "Stromboli Earth." The ash-blonde Swedish star, making a surprise public speech of a romance between her and Roberto Rossellini, has divorced her husband and had planned to divorce Lindstrom in order to marry Rossellini.

POLICE BREAK UP FIGHT

Toronto, May 5 (CP)— Rushing to the scene in six squad cars Police Wednesday night arrested 12 Toronto youths after breaking up a fight between a suburban Scarboro Township dance hall. There were no injuries reported. Police said the Toronto gang met the other young to get revenge for reverse they suffered in a similar scuffle last week.

ASK MEETING ON BERLIN BLOCKADE

Delegates of three western powers are shown at meeting in New York which resulted in decision to ask Russia for a four-nation meeting in New York by the end of the week to discuss lifting of Berlin blockade. The proposal was contained in a formal message sent to U.N. delegate Jacob Malik of the U.S.S.R. In picture, left to right, are Sir Alexander Cadogan, British U.N. delegate; Jean

'Sockless' George Ponsford Slips on Socks, Suffers Silently on His Wedding Day

"Sockless" George Ponsford, Canadian soldier extraordinary and one of the outstanding non-commissioned officers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, relinquished his nickname temporarily a few months ago.

The "sockless" one who has disdained the use of pedal extremity upholstery since the time he ran away from home when a youngster, wore the hated foot covering for the space of three hours.

But it was a special occasion which took place in Durban, South Africa, early this year. It was George's wedding day, and the new Mrs. Ponsford insisted that the shins and ankles of the bridegroom which have been exposed to the weather for many years, be hidden from view, if only for a short time.

Not Too Comfortable

"Sockless" was anything but comfortable during the [illegible] rites. He felt at least six inches taller, and he missed the comforting "wiggle of his toes" and the familiar touch of hard leather against his disguised tootsies.

But, the ceremony over, George dashed for the bridal suite of the hotel and quicker than you can say "Pyramid Club" removed the offending socks from his protesting "dogs". Everything was right and everybody was happy.

In a letter from Durban received here the other day, George relates a glorious honeymoon. "Three weeks of mountain climbing and the highest peak we climbed was 10,869 feet."

"It was a vastly different experience from climbing mountains with a beautiful bride at your side in South Africa, than it was in Sicily and Italy with a Bren gun on your back and some foul German shooting at you."

Has New Job

Formerly the manager of a hotel in Durban, George has given that up and put under the [illegible] through my ability to 'shoot a South Africa.

Bearded Heinz Fink Ready to Submit To Truth Serum

Vienna, May 5 (Reuters) — Bearded Heinz Fink, self-styled "monarchist partisan" claimed by his followers to have "devilish powers," today told a court he is willing to submit to the truth drug to prove whether he was lying when he denied charges of high treason, sabotage, robbery and murder.

Fink, already serving a seven-year sentence imposed by a British court last year for illegal possession of arms, denied another charge that he was responsible for attacks on Communist party headquarters in Styria Province.

Fink's followers claimed he used hypnotic powers to force them to help him. Fink has claimed his activities have been directed only against the neo-Nazi movement.

Joseph C. Kennedy, Former Actor, Dies

Halifax, May 5 (CP)— Joseph C. Kennedy, 59, former actor and a member of a well-known picture company here when movies were in their infancy, died today.

He played in stock companies throughout the Eastern United States and was a fellow player of the late Sydney Toller who became famous as Charlie Chan in the movies.

Mr. Kennedy was a member of the Canadian Bioscope Company which had a studio in Halifax before the First World War. The Bioscope Company produced the story Evangeline.

In recent years he worked with the Porter Construction Company at St. Croix.

TEA AS MEDICINE

The war used tea as a medicine rather than a beverage until about 500.

Ilne' learned by verbal contest with a certain RSM of the Hasty Fees, I have secured a job as a carpenter, now instead of destroying, I am creating."

"Sockless" carries 48 hours a week and a wage of something over ten pounds ($45). He has a home by his help from who "lifts up my saw and hammer for me." In fact, George admits "the lowest one shirks the job than I do. He gets two quid a week". (Old soldiers never die now days).

Ponsford included a highly informative account of the recent racial strife in Durban in his letter. He resides at 15 Cadogan Drive, Durban North, Durban, South Africa.

"TWELVE MINUTES TO TWELVE YEARS"

Canuck Woman Runs Traffic For Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda (CP)— A Montreal born woman, who served six years in the Canadian Women's Army Corps, is in charge of traffic on the island of Bermuda.

Mrs. Robert B. Watson, who had to be persuaded to stand for parliament, found that the job of controlling traffic on the island also came under her jurisdiction.

Mrs. Watson's task is not an easy one. Although Bermuda is only 22 miles long and two miles wide, it is criss crossed with narrow twisting lanes. The population, all sharply divided in opinion as to modes of transportation; many still adhere to horse drawn carriages; the bicycle has many devotees; and of course, there are cars.

Mrs. Watson took her seat in parliament only last year. There is only one other woman.

Moved to Bermuda

During the First World War Mrs. Watson served with the St. John Ambulance Brigade of Montreal. After the war, she married Robert B. Watson, a childhood sweetheart, and in 1937, they moved to Bermuda, where they started a poultry farm and built a home.

When her husband died in 1938, Mrs. Watson ran the farm alone for a year then on the outbreak of war, she decided to volunteer her services to the Canadian army.

But even after getting back to Canada proved eventful for Mrs. Watson. She was a passenger on the flying boat "Cavalier" which crashed in the Atlantic. With other survivors, she spent several hours in the ocean before being picked up.

After her discharge from the army, she went back to Bermuda to stay. So far, the tall, greying 52-year-old Mrs. Watson has only this to say about her legislative duties:

"Don't let anyone ever tell you women are the most talkative of the species. After a couple of months sitting in parliament, I'm convinced men can out-talk women.

Troubled With Falling Hair? Try These Remedial Measures

If you are troubled with unsightly dandruff, buy a special preparation designed to remove it and a spiv with an eye dropper at several places.

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a woman's complexion becomes rough and dry, she knows what to do about it. She gets out the cream jar and it responds. She looks like herself again. When her finger nails look dim, she soaks them in hot oil and that helps. But when her hair starts to fail she gets panicky. A depleted halo is no minor goodness grief; it is tragic and terrible.

If the scalp—which is susceptible to infections—shows the slightest irritation, the wise step is to seek a doctor who specializes in the treatment of skin and scalp diseases, if conditions are normal then do everything possible to stimulate the growth.

Scalp Treatment

A rousing shampoo with plenty of friction is a good treatment in itself. Brush the hair before doing the rousing. Remove every bit of the shampoo agent whether it be soap, oil, powder or cream. Scrupulous cleanliness is essential, as is stimulation of the blood stream in the scalp. Hair can starve, the same as body tion.

Humble Beanie Makes Comeback In London Town

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)— The "beanie" has returned as the Easter millinery rage in Britain.

A close fitting skull cap, all one piece or sectional, it may have an all round minute roll brim, a half-round fold brim or a shallow forward sweep.

The cinderella of Easter bonnets, it is selling in 10 shades from 29s 6d. ($3.90) to 35s 6d. Its popularity lies in its scope, tability and suitability for all ages.

The roll brim beanie can be worn undecorated, sporting a curling feather mount or a taxi waving pheasant quill; or it can be transformed into a bonnet by two side chous of flowers, fixed ashed by one eye or face veil.

The beanie bonnet in pastel straw site well back on the head with shallow brim and bein and side chour of tall black feathers. A petal edged, to-the-head version in felt has a waving sprig of osprey mounting from a side bow.

Flannel or Silk

A tiny cloche style in pale flannel grey has grey and pink satin ribbon chour at either side. A watered silk cap in three sections cut back to a point in front, is trimmed with a large pompom of marabou and ostrich feathers.

The sheil beanie is in six sections, with one back and scalloped edges, while the beanie bowler shaped crown minute back on the head with shallow bowler shaped crown, minute roll brim and can be either fastthered or flowered with full face veil.

Then there's the tartan taffeta halo, in tartan, check or candy stripe, are attracting an increasing following in the pursuit of coneration—be they beanie, cloche or bonnet.

Young and chick is the shirred cerise check taffeta cloche, simple and practical with its lack of trimming. A coarse straw cloche with tartan crown has matching scarf and gloves.

The taffeta hats are often matched to the lining and blouse of a suit, the bow of a beau brummel collar, or repeated in gloves bag and shoes.

No Room for Fear Servicewomen Say

London — (CP) — Women often have a good deal more courage than men, judging by some of the anecdotes in "Fire Service Memories," a book of reminiscences recently published by Commander Sir Aylmer Firebrace, chief of fire staff for Great Britain from 1941 to 1947.

He tells of how a firewoman was asked "Were you ever badly frightened during service?"

"Yes," she said and went on to relate:

"During a lull in a raid I had opened up my canteen van in front of the town hall at X. Suddenly a second wave of bombers came in and quite a lot of incendiaries were dropped all around. I couldn't leave the canteen van and there was nowhere to take cover."

"Why didn't you get under the van?" she was asked.

"I tried to," she said, "but there were 14 men under it already and there wasn't room."

Sir Aylmer recalls he told the story to a woman service officer and she capped it by this one:

One night, during a V-Bomb attack, she entered the mess and found all the men officers taking cover under the dinner table while two women auxiliaries waited to hand around the vegetables as soon as the men resumed their chairs.

Finally Sir Aylmer tells of a letter he got from a friend whose farm had just been hit by incendiary bombs. The letter ended:

"The bulls were terrified. The cows took no notice."

Arrange Feedings For Baby's Needs

Cambridge, England, (CP)— Throw away that schedule of baby's mealtimes and feed a child when he is hungry, says Dr. Douglas Gairdner of Addinbroke's Hospital here.

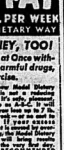
"Feed him five or six or seven times a day, if he wants," Dr. Gairdner told a group of nurses. "Study the child, learn when he is hungry and feed him when he is.

"In my experience, what happens when you feed a baby whenever he wants it that very soon he puts himself on a regime surprisingly like the ordinary planned schedule.

"Use common sense in feeding children. Feeding a baby at definite times on a rigid schedule does not take into account the different needs between individual babies.

"Under-feeding is common; over-feeding is rare. Most babies are impossible to overfeed. They either go to sleep, refuse to take more or regurgitate the excess.

"Today in Britain's food crisis natural feeding has long been out of fashion, the pediatrists are in the van of demanding its return.



"Today in Britain's food crisis natural feeding has long been out of fashion, the pediatrists are in the van of demanding its return.

"Today in Britain's food crisis own baby is increasingly fashionable among the professional classes and may become the fashion among the artisan classes."

Croquettes Can be Appetising

The luncheon for ladies is supposed to be a colorful and dainty meal which appeals to the esthetic sense but at the same time is a gastronomic achievement.

How or when this idea became fixed in menu-planning for the ladies of this century are just as able and willing as the men folk to tuck away a substantial meal.

Each hostess who plans a ladies' luncheon wants to do something a little different. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, suggest trying croquettes. They have several advantages for the homemaker who does her own cooking and serving. Croquette are not commonly served because they are often considered difficult to make but this is a mistake. They may be prepared ahead of time, kept for several hours and re-heated in the hot fat for one minute or in a moderately hot oven, 375°F., for 8 minutes. If made an hour ahead of time, they may be kept hot in a very slow oven until ready to serve.

Croquettes may be a penny saver or an extravagance, according to the ingredients, but they do put a bit of cooked meat, vegetables or fish the luxury touch. They are easily handled for either buffet or plate serving.

Excellent for Left-Overs

While croquettes are frequently made with freshly cooked or canned foods such as chicken, sweetbreads, lobster, hard-cooked eggs or mushrooms, they are an excellent means of using meat or other foods for a second meal.

The usual proportion is two cups of the minced, solid food to one cup of thick white sauce. This makes a fairly solid croquette. For a croquette that is soft in the centre when cooked the proportion is reversed, such soft croquettes do require careful handling but are usually considered worth the trouble.

Exactly if fats has practically eliminated deep fat frying from many households. Now is the time to revive this type of cooking. A heavy saucepan with deep sided about four inches deep with three inches allowed between the fat and the top of the pan, to keep the fat from bubbling over. Croquettes should be cooked in 390°F. fat.

If no thermometer is handy it may be tested by dropping a cube of bread into the hot fat. When a cube of bread is golden brown in a minute, the fat is ready for frying croquettes. Only a small quantity of food should be put into the fat at one time as the cold food reduces the temperature of the fat. Retest the fat before adding a second lot of croquettes.

Yield: six croquettes.

Variations may be made with ground cooked chicken, pork, veal or fish.

Meat Croquettes

"THANKS TO SYNTONA I FEEL BETTER THAN IN MANY YEARS"

Was Formerly Rundown, Back Ached, Stomach Out of Order. Had Many Boils. Says the Herb Medicine Gave Her Grand Results.

MRS. GLADYS MOORE

"I really haven't felt so well in years, as I do right now, and I give Syntona all the credit for my improvement in health," said Mrs. Gladys Moore, 110 Edward Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"A few weeks ago I was miserable and in a very bad rundown condition. My stomach was badly out of order, my appetite was poor. What little food I did eat gave me heartburn and gas pains. I felt tired and nervous all the time. Some days I couldn't get out of bed. I had rheumatic pains all through my joints and muscles and my back felt lame and tired. Then I began to have boils, one right on top of another — terribly sore and painful. Nobody will know how I suffered with them.

"I had taken almost all around here and about Syntona, so I decided to get some. Truly, it seemed this medicine was made for me alone. In a matter of days it relieved the sour stomach and distress in my stomach. Then, as I kept taking it, I soon gradually went away. I could feel my strength and energy coming back to me. Soon my appetite was splendid. I felt fine, could sleep at night and rest well all. I am entirely free from boils. I certainly am glad to recommend Syntona to all others who suffer as I did."

Whitehall Notebook:

Document Being Considered Landmark in Social History

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 8 — (CP) — A bulky, soberly-worded document which some Whitehall officials regard as a landmark in British social history now is under government consideration.

These are among its recommendations:

1. Housewives who employ domestic servants should observe a special code of conduct.

2. A maximum work-week of 45 hours for all boys and girls under 18, and a maximum work-day of nine hours, with limited overtime, no night work, one half-holiday and one rest-day a week.

3. A statutory code for stores and offices regarding cleaning, space, ventilation, temperature, lighting, underground rooms, washing facilities, first-aid equipment, meal facilities and fire escapes.

Generally, the report suggests that the provisions of the Factories Act, 1937, which governs conditions in factories, should be adopted for stores and offices. Some should be applied also to hotels, restaurants, theatres, railway stations and other public buildings.

The recommendations were submitted by a committee under Sir Ernest Gowers, senior civil servant. Its proposals for designated to and possible slum conditions in places the law does not reach —in the home, in offices and railway sheds, and backstage at the theatre.

Rates of Pay

Regarding domestic servants, the committee urges a code to include rates of pay, holidays and hours of work.

The code, it says, should include references to suitable bed and sitting-room accommodation, bathing and washing facilities and breaks for refreshments. Maximum weights to be lifted by women should be set and women should not be allowed to work within seven weeks of childbirth.

These "minimum obligations" of a good employer would not be enforced by law because of the undesirability of inspecting private houses.

Working hours for 1,600,000 juveniles would come under statutory paperchase. Young workers in agriculture, forestry, fishing, shipping and private domestic service would not be affected.

Home Secretary Chuter Ede has promised early consideration of the recommendations.

Explosions Cut Off Oshawa Power

Oshawa, May 4 (CP) — Two early morning explosions in a central Hydro sub-division power station cut off the city's power and halted work in several industrial plants.

The explosions about 7:50 a.m. were believed caused when a primary went in the sub-station broke. One of the wires fell across a nearby automobile and set it afire. Damage was reported from the explosions and firemen quickly extinguished the fire.

Some 1,000 men were reported sent home from their jobs while the power break was being repaired.

FLASH FIRE TAKES 5 LIVES

Jersey City, N.J., May 4 (AP) — A flash fire took five lives early today as it swept through a building housing several families as well as a welding shop and another place of business. How the blaze started and the identities of the dead persons were not immediately determined.

R.C.A.F. REMEMBERS

When United States citizens crossed the border to join the R.C.A.F. during the war, most of them claimed to be from Texas and many actually were. In recognition, 49 officers and airmen flew to that State last week to pay tribute. This R.C.A.F. photo shows Air Vice Marshal K. M. Guthrie, right, commander of the Northwest Air Command who headed the group, presenting a Canadian ensign to Governor Beauford Jester, centre, of Texas. At right is Maj.-Gen. K. L. Berry of the Texas National Guard. The three men are standing before a Thunderbird totem pole from British Columbia which was dedicated to the Texas airmen as part of the ceremonies. — (CP Photo).

Production of Tea May Top Demand in Few Years

By GRAHAM BARROW

Colombo, Ceylon—(Reuters)—Trade circles in Colombo believe that in the next three to five years world production of tea may well exceed demand.

They expect this is inevitable if the political unrest in Asia eases sufficiently to enable Java and Sumatra to produce their normal crops.

Tea represents three-fifths of Ceylon's exports and earns nearly a quarter of her revenue. Ceylon's economy is based on tea.

Although it was first planted commercially in Ceylon in 1866, it was not until 1880 that tea really came into its own following a disastrous coffee blight which wiped out coffee production and forced the estates to switch over to tea.

In that year, 5,000 acres of tea were planted. Today's acreage is approximately 560,000, or a quarter of the world's total acreage, excluding China and Japan.

The phenomenal growth of the industry brought in its wake many benefits to the people of Ceylon. Roads and railways were built to link up the plantations with the larger towns and with Colombo; hamlets became villages, villages became townships, all catering for the needs of the tea estates and the 700,000 people who now reside on them.

Second to India

Ceylon has become the world's second largest exporter of tea. India is the first.

In 1948, this island produced 229,000,000 pounds of tea; 296,000,000 pounds were shipped abroad. Approximately 50 per cent of the tea exported finds its way to the United Kingdom, however either through government contract, or through private sale for re-export from the United Kingdom.

The package of Ceylon tea which is eventually sold over grocery counters in London, New York, Montreal, and other towns all over the world, represents a considerable amount of hard work by specialists of many years' experience in the industry.

Ceylon leaf is grown on estates dotted throughout the hill country, mainly in the centre of the island. A large number of these estates are in European hands; the remainder are owned by Ceylon and Indian firms.

To produce a crop of, say, 250,000,000 pounds of tea every year means that 1,000,000 pounds of green leaves are plucked from tea bushes. The complicated processes which the leaf goes through in the factory reduce four pounds of green leaves to one pound of black tea.

The leaves from which tea is made grow on bushes which are periodically pruned to a height of about four feet. These bushes which are planted three or four feet apart in specially prepared ground, are not ready for picking until they are five years old.

MODERNIZING BOMBAY PORT

Bombay, India — (CP) — Gopalaswami Ayyangar, minister of transport, said a scheme for the reconstruction of Prince's and Victoria docks, damaged during the explosion of April, 1944, and for the modernization of Bombay port was under consideration by the trustees. It is estimated the scheme will cost $18,000,000.

LOST AND FOUND

Didsbury, Alta. — (CP) — Mrs. Gwen Rodney lost a valuable diamond ring here two years ago but now it is on its way back to its owner in Ladner, B.C. The ring slipped off while Mrs. Rodney was washing dishes. The Rodneys sold their farm and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reese found the ring while digging a hot bed.

Sun's Shrinking Is Minor Matter

Winnipeg — (CP) — The sun is losing weight, says V. C. Jones of the Winnipeg branch, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

He told members of the society the sun was "shining itself away." But there doesn't seem too much to worry about. The sun still weighs 2,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

Mr. Jones proved the point during his address on "Floating the Sun."

He's familiar with dozens of stars and planets. His hot and heavy subject gave him no difficulty. He led members through a mass of figures on the "blackboard with only an occasional flourish of his slide rule. A diagram made things entirely clear to members.

When it was over, he said: "We now can weigh the planet Jupiter. But with this method, it's so easy we won't bother."

Members agreed. They said a proof of how much the "nucleus of the galaxy" weighed might just bore them.

The sun, it appears, is just peanuts when it comes to weight. The sun, he weighs 2,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons, was satisfied.

Brighteners

Fawkuckel, R.I.—A teacher called police yesterday because one of her pupils, a 10-year-old boy, was "too happy."

Police took the boy to hospital, where he passed out. When he later revived, he explained that he had wanted some soda with his luncheon and, his parents being away from home, he had drunk a glass of stuff from a bottle labelled "B-r-a-n-d-y."

Said Sgt. Peter Hughs, school officer: "How in hell did he manage to gulp down a whole glassful?"

Ludlow, Mass.—For two weeks workmen had been hacking at the base of a 247-foot smokestack at the Ludlow Manufacturing Company to make it fall just right.

They had measured off a large area and said that's just where the chimney would topple.

Yesterday it collapsed straight down under its own weight. Workmen had to run for their lives.

The Canadian otter-trawl net, used to catch cod and other groundfish, is cone shaped and may have a mouth 80 to 100 feet in width.

Two-Year Bike Ride Still Going Strong

Edmonton — (CP) — Robert Scott McArthur is the man to go if you want an appetite like a horse and legs of steel.

The solid, 28-year-old Scot straddled his bicycle in Vancouver one day in 1947 and will collect a sizable wager when he returns but that may not be for some time yet because Scottie has come to love the life on the open road.

Asked when he expected to hit Vancouver again, Scottie replied: "Weel, ye nay kin tell — I may go noo or I may go back to the States for a wee while."

Born in Scotland, Scottie came to Canada while still a "wee bairn" and, apparently, gained a strong desire to be other than where he happens to be at any given time. So he began going elsewhere in 1947 and has been pedalling around North America since.

To list all the places he has been on his travels would take time and space but he has ranged down to Montreal and has pretty well covered Western Canada and the United States.

Only three mishaps have marred an otherwise happy two-year ride. Once he got some tires knocked out when he hit a car in London, Ont., he froze both feet early in the morning just out of Moose Jaw and he went into a Montreal hospital when a chill threatened to bring on pneumonia.

Scottie doesn't rely on charity for his trip. He works a few days here and there because he must earn enough for his horse-like appetite.

CLAIM UPHELD FOR INJURED COW

Toronto, May 4 (CP) — Court of Appeal yesterday upheld Nelson McCrea's claim for $200 and costs for a cow which McRae said had to be destroyed after a highway accident near Cornwall, Ont.

McCrea sued William Auhe, claiming that Auhe's automobile struck the cow and injured the cow's leg so severely that the animal had to be destroyed. McRae won the lawsuit in the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Court last March but Auhe appealed. The appeal was dismissed.

WE'LL MEET AGAIN

By Margaret Cannon Nichols

She said. "I've found you, Chris," and picked up the bag again and walked up the steps. On the balcony she hesitated, looking around and thinking of Chris living here many months, writing, "I had no idea it was so beautiful," she added.

The door was open. It was like Chris not to lock his door. When she walked into the room, Guy fast as if she had come home and her eyes, taking in the worn chair, the desk with his typewriter on it, his pipe, loved each object because it had been close to him. "You loved me enough to write a play," she thought, "but that was months ago. Evelyn has been with you and you were probably lonely after Mac left."

She pulled off her hat and her hair tumbled about her face. It was then she saw Evelyn Erving's picture. Chris was in white tennis dress, smiling . . .

Evelyn loved Chris. What right had she, Guy, to intrude upon it and to thrust herself between them? And while Broadway ballad his lips and the words that song on its lips, perhaps he was falling in love with Evelyn. The thoughts made the room seem cold and unfriendly to her. She thought, "I should never have come. I didn't think that perhaps he doesn't love me any more. When he went away, I took him to a girl who has been his friend all these months."

She put on her hat again. "I'll stay only a little longer," she thought. "I'll go to the hotel and get a plane to Miami in the morning. I won't tell Gregg and his mother. I'll go back to New York. Chris will never know I've been here — that I was. I'll write her where he wrote his play. He'll never know that this picture of Evelyn sent me away."

Picking up the bag, she walked out onto the balcony and down the steep steps. A woman, stepping out of the darkness, surprised her.

Guy said, "I'm looking for Mr. Mallory. Has he at home."

"He hasn't been home for several days," the woman said. "I'll tell him you were here."

"I don't want him to know I've been here." She asked about a hotel.

"Why don't you stay here tonight? Mr. Mallory isn't here. He went away three days ago with Miss Erving."

Guy's heart seemed to stop beating. Chris and Evelyn, away? On their honeymoon, of course. Should she stay here for night? At least for a few hours she could be in a room where he had been before a plane and a fast train took her back to . . . "I must not think of New York. There's nothing for me there. No one will want to see me except Penny and Mac. And I've . . . very little money."

To the woman she said, "I think I'll stay. But I'm rather tired and dirty and I think I'll go to a restaurant first . . ."

But she could not eat and her temples throbbed. Chris and Evelyn were married and were on their honeymoon while she had been saying to Gregg, "I'm going to be your friend." To him as soon as she was free. Why hadn't she realized that Chris had written his play months ago. "I'm never spared anything," she thought, "but I'm not sorry about Chris. I couldn't have married him."

Perhaps in the restaurant she pulled her away from her own thoughts for a moment. A white-clad officer of a ship was talking to a pretty girl with yellow hair and a charming face. He was quite audibly, "I won't have a girl in every port now." And the girl's eyes smoked him gaily. There was a party of young people in evening clothes and while they talked and drank, a native slowly slid his fingers over the strings of his banjo. A boy and girl held hands and for them there was no one else in the room . . .

Slowly Guy walked back to the quaint white house. She wanted him to be happy and she didn't hate Evelyn. Perhaps Evelyn had been! Chris had not called back and a thousand memories had fled when they had played "We'll Meet Again" and urged her to come. "I'll be true," she said. "That's why I came."

There would be no sleep for her tonight in a room where Chris had ceased to love her and had begun to love Evelyn. But it was, at least, his room, stamped with his personality and filled with objects for his comfort and use.

Taking off the yellow knitted hat again, Guy put her head against the pillow on the divan. But she was restless. Fighting against a disappointment almost too great to bear, Chris and Evelyn were having their honeymoon.

She went out on the balcony, feeling the wind stir her hair, and looked toward the sea. "I'll never remind you, if we should meet again, that once you loved me. You'll never know that I'm lying to you tonight! I saw the dreams that Alan tarnished made whole again. I'll go away and no one will know I've been unhappy. A woman downstairs who didn't see my face."

It was there that Chris found her when he came, standing on the balcony, her hands resting on the ledge, her hair disturbed by the breeze, and her eyes looking toward the sea.

He had come in quietly, not wanting to awaken his landlady.

In the shadows he frowned because he did not believe what he saw. Was it Guy in a white dress? Or was it the vision of her he had seen on many times, a vision which at times had been maddeningly real?

He said, "Guy, is it . . ."

She turned and caught her breath. Yes, he was the man Chris . . . the same Chris with black unruly hair, a stern sensitive mouth, and warm eyes. Chris . . . in a white linen suit with a cigaret burning between his fingers, standing in the shadows looking at her . . .

Guy stood very still . . . looking for Evelyn.

But Evelyn was not with him.

Only a moment Guy held herself back, thinking, "Just one moment while I look at him, remembering . . . " Then quickly she went to him and put her arms around him, feeling the strength of the strongest arms that had ever held her, holding her again.

"Chris, I want to be with you. Let me talk. Let me say what I've been wanting to say for weeks and weeks."

"I want to be with you with little or much. I want to climb to splendid heights again with you, and I'll go anywhere in the world and be a happy woman just to be with you. I don't want glitter, Chris. I want to look at everything as clearly and as honestly as you look at it and care about success or money. If you can forgive me for being so blind and for clinging to something I don't want now . . . I don't care where I am so long as you're there . . ."

"You wouldn't knock a man off his feet, would you? Would you? You have! Look at me." And when she was looking at him, he said, "That was a long speech you made, but a good speech, Gay." His frown was both amused and perplexed. "Your hair is still red, so I guess it must be you."

He held her close. "I'm crazy. Everybody's crazy. You should have let me know you were coming and I wouldn't be saying such idiotic things to you. I don't believe it," said Chris. But he did. And his eyes looked at her and loved her and wanted her as they had months ago.

"You're still stubborn and proud," she said. "You told me you couldn't put your love story into words for me. But you did. You put it in every line of your play. I've put everything behind me and can find you. When I got here, a woman told me you had gone away. I was going to stay tonight and leave in the morning."

"Leave? Why?"

"Because of Evelyn. You went away with Evelyn, she said. I won't interfere if you're in love with her. I treated you badly, Chris. I threw up and left you, and I know that to Alan I was only a conquest and to Gregg an other possession. I told Gregg I'd marry him but tonight I changed my mind because I always feel unfaithful to you and because your life, whatever and wherever it is, is my life, too, from now on. But if you and Evelyn . . ."

He smiled. "Evelyn is the best pal a man ever had, a man will-ing to go to any length to be interested in that play he forgets to eat. She's fine and influential and her tennis is great. Three days ago I went on a fishing trip with her uncle . . ."

"I thought you were on your honeymoon."

"Chris doesn't want to marry a girl who plays better tennis than he does and catches bigger fish. There's been nothing romantic between us."

With both hands he took her face and put his mouth close to hers. "How can I talk about other people, flies or fish? Darling, I want to say I love you as much as when I left! My love hasn't diminished or increased. It was all there . . . from the beginning. And why do I say I love you when you already know it? Why do I talk when I want to kiss you?"

Bending his head, he put his lips against hers. Gay felt hard strong arms go around her.

"You're crying." Chris said.

"I'm happy. Once you said cruel, stinging things to me, Chris. That was when I was important and you weren't . . . you thought. Now you're on your way to fame and I'm only a girl who has burned her bridges to come to you."

"I'm not going to say I'll give you this or that."

"I don't only . . ."

Frowning, he pointed out at sea.

"It's dark now but soon there'll be patches of light. When the light comes, we'll go somewhere for breakfast and walk along a little way until we come to the cathedral."

She was smiling now. "Then we'll go into the cathedral, Chris."

"You'll look awfully little in that big empty church. But a dignified old gentleman will say words over us, pretty solemn words, and shake my hand. Then we'll come out, and the sun will be shining, and black women will be walking down the street with baskets on their heads, and little black boys will be playing in the streets . . ."

"We'll notice them and they'll smile at us . . ."

"They'll notice us, you mean."

"Because we'll look very happy, arm in arm, dressed in white . . ."

He kissed her again. "We'll probably walk a little [illegible] getting used to the idea of being married, and by the time we get back here we'll think we've been married a long time." He smiled. "And then what. You tell me."

"I don't care."

"We probably get a boat and go away and see if the Bay of Naples is as blue as they say it is. And we'll always live in a house with a balcony because you get such swell scenery."

"But we must go back," said Guy. "I had forgotten to tell you. Sandy and Macduff have quite a family. Mother wrote me."

Chris said, "And we'll have to think up a lot of good Scotch names for those little scotties."

She put her arm around him and lifted her face.

"Chris, there's a little light in the sky now." She put her lips against his face. "I love you. Dreams do come true. Let's stay here a little while before we see how blue the Bay of Naples is. This balcony . . . we ought to put a gold plaque on it, darling, because here a girl, found everything in life she wants . . ."

"I shall probably make a very poor husband," said Chris, "never having been one before. You will be stuck with me."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman

A Kindly Invitation . . But Not Meek Maybe

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

There's a lady sitting in a car in front of our house, right now which prompts me to write to ask you a question that has been bothered me. It is this: What is the proper procedure to follow when a man comes to our house in a car to see my husband on business and with him is his wife who comes along "just for the ride"? I generally go out and ask her to come in. But if she says she'll "just wait in the car," should I just come back into the house, or what? It's always awkward, since we are strangers to each other. Sometimes I chat awhile, then repeat my invitation for her to come in, and if she refuses again, I go back into the house. Is this "O.K."?

Puzzled

I think your sometimes procedure is excellent . . . kindly, graciously hospitable . . . go to the car, introduce yourself, chat a while, give your invitation to "come in," and then, if the woman says she prefers just to wait in the car, to abide by her decision, say your "Good-bye" and return to your house. (Add to your "Goodbye," if you wish, "I'd love to have you come in . . . if you change your mind, do come.") But the less urging you do, the less awkward the situation, particularly to the woman in the car.

Difference Between Wedding Veil with "Face Veil" and with 2-Tiers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer this question: If a bride chooses to wear a "face veil, is it incorrect for her not to wear the one-tier or section over her face before she wears her two-tiered gown? I have been told by my friends that it would not be proper for me to wear this veil unless I wear it over my face . . . and

Too Much to Do Try Doing More, Expert Advises

By MARIENNE ZESAK

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York — (CP) — Dr. Lillian Gilbreth has an answer for women who complain the 24 hours of the day are too short for them.

It is: "bear and raise 12 children; help your husband in his work; study for your doctor's degree in your spare time; write at least half a dozen books; and, just for good measure, go on a lecture tour now and then."

If you still find the day too short, add a few more duties and you'll be surprised to find that everything will fit in somehow.

This amazing woman, who is still active at 79, holds the title of "Woman of the Year for 1948." The American Women's Association, in a national poll, made the award for eminent achievement in "discovering, recognizing and formulating the laws of human motion which in industry are accepted today as fundamental."

Dr. Gilbreth and her husband, the late Frank B. Gilbreth, Sr., are credited with pioneering in the field of scientific management and with launching the science of "motion study." The firm they established many years ago, Gilbreth, Inc., has served as official expert for many big plants in the United States, Britain and Germany.

The Gilbreths devised a method of analyzing motion which they called "Therblig" Gilbreth spelled backwards with two letters transposed.

Motion Unit

A "Therblig" stands for a unit of motion, such as "search," "find," "grasp," "hold." There are 17 of them. Each is classified into an activity such as "search," "find," "grasp," "hold." Motion-study was at first applied only to lowering industrial jobs—easier but recently Dr. Gilbreth has applied it to housework and to rehabilitating disabled persons.

A "heart" kitchen, for women suffering from heart trouble, emphasizes fatigue-saving principles which should be placed at the centre of the first unit. Thus, the sink where vegetables are prepared there is storage for everything needed in the process — peeling and cutting utensils, grinders, bowls and vegetables.

A newly-published book, "Cheaper by the Dozen," written by two of Dr. Gilbreth's children, explains how the "Therblig" system was first tried out on the children at home.

According to the book, Dr. Gilbreth and her husband decided soon after their marriage:

1. To have a family of six boys and six girls;

2. To establish a family council on which every child participated fully in family life;

3. To test all methods and devices of effective work which her husband had discovered in his many years of diversified industrial experience.

After Dr. Frank Gilbreth's death in 1924, his wife continued his work, even taking the lecture tour overseas which he had planned and for which he had even bought tickets.

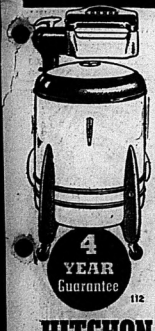
P.M.

Your wedding veil may be designed and worn according to your own individual idea and choice. You need not wear the short frou-frou veil (the so-called "blusher") over your face if you do not wish to. But if you do not wish to wear this face veil for the purpose for which it is intended (which is to cover the face of the very young bride too shy to face the wedding guests!) what is the reason for having your veil made with the separate piece? Or . . . I find myself wondering . . . are you confusing this face veil with the top tier of a 2-tier or 3-tier fashion of wedding veil? This type is entirely different from the one to which the face veil is attached. This 2-tier type may be made with the first length coming to the shoulders, the second to the elbows, and the third falling just below the hipline; the 2-tiered type may include any two of these depending on the bride's height and type.

Dress Problem's of Groom's Mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:



My son's wedding is to be in church; four o'clock; bridal party to wear formal attire. Could I wear a street-length dress, or should I wear a long, dinner type dress? Also should I wear a hat?

M.J.K.

You must find out from the bride's mother what type of dress what length of dress, and what color of dress she is to wear . . . for the mothers,' who stand together in the receiving line, should naturally wear the same type of dress, both either of formal length or of street-length and the colors should harmonize. And whatever type of dress you and she wear, you must both wear hats at an afternoon wedding in church.

Heads Up

Asparagus will soon be coming on the market in good supply. This aristocrat of the vegetable family is in season for so short a time that it is a veritable spring treat.

There are two types of asparagus. Practically all of the green, thin variety is edible, when in season. Of the thick green kind, which shades to purple and white at the stem end, only the green portion is edible. The edible portion of both is about 4 or 5 inches from the tip. When the lower stalks are pithy, with hollow places, the asparagus has probably been cut so long that the juices have dried up. Bud ends that have opened slightly are an indication of over maturity. Wilted spears are easily detected. Asparagus that is not fresh will be stringy and flavorless when cooked.

The stem should be cut or broken off, a little at a time until the juicy section is reached.

Wash Thoroughly

Because asparagus grows so close to the ground it is necessary to wash it very thoroughly to make sure there are no particles of sand under the scales. It is usually necessary to remove the scales or particles of grit cling beneath them. Tender asparagus should not need to be scraped.

Asparagus heads are extremely tender and therefore easily broken, so the stems should be tied in bunches and cooked with the tips up. The tall top of the steam boiler makes a good asparagus cooker. Some homemakers purchase an enamel coffee pot for this purpose exclusively. The water is never allowed to cover the tips, rather let the lower part of the stalks boil in the water, while the tips steam. Salt, added at the beginning of cooking, tends to toughen the asparagus so it is better to add it after the first 10 minutes of cooking.

The water from cooked asparagus is one exception to the oft-repeated rule "save the vegetable water." It is apt to be quite acrid in flavor.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that asparagus is definitely a luxury vegetable and it may be desirable to extend the flavor to make a small amount serve a larger number of people. Here are some of their suggestions:

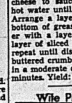
ASPARAGUS TIMBALES

2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon onion juice
1 cup milk
1 cup cold cooked asparagus.

Beat eggs slightly, add salt, pepper, onion juice and milk and stir well. Grease six timbale moulds and divide the asparagus, having each mould about half full. Cover with the egg mixture. Place moulds in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven, 300F., until firm, about 30 minutes. Turn out of moulds and serve with Hollandaise or cheese sauce. Yield: four servings.

ASPARAGUS POTATO PUFFS

1 cup chopped, cooked asparagus
2 cups hot, mashed potatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1/4 cup bread crumbs



Combine asparagus, potatoes, salt and well - beaten egg. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased baking sheet. Brush surface with melted butter and sprinkle lightly with bread crumbs. Bake in a hot oven, 400F., until golden brown. Yield: four servings.

BAKED ASPARAGUS

2 pounds asparagus
4 tablespoons fat
4 tablespoons flour
2 clips milk
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 cup grated cheese
3 hard-cooked eggs
½ cup buttered crumbs.

Cook asparagus in boiling, salted water. Melt fat, blend in flour and gradually add milk. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Add salt, pepper and grated cheese to sauce and cook over hot water until cheese is melted. Arrange a layer of asparagus in bottom of greased casserole, cover with a layer of sauce, add a layer of sliced hard-cooked eggs, repeat until dish is full. Sprinkle buttered crumbs on top and bake in a moderate oven, 350F., for 20 minutes. Yield: six servings.

Budgies May Help To Banish Blues

Vancouver. — (CP) — Banish the blues with budgies!

That's the latest wrinkle in mental therapy for veterans in hospital and it may soon be used in British Columbia's department of veterans' affairs sanitoria.

Using budgerigars as an antidote for boredom which sneaks up on long-time patients has been tried in two Edmonton hospitals, George Derby, Vancouver D.V.A. regional administrator has heard of the budgies' "good work" and is planning to experiment with the birds at Shaughnessy hospitals here.

Don't Scalp the Lawn

Don't clip the garden grass too short. Many people go to endless trouble in the spring fertilizing, top-dressing and rolling their lawns, only to offset much of the good they do at that time, by mowing it too close all through the summer. The shorter the leaves, the more the grass will be exposed to the burning summer sun; the more fertilizer and water will be required; and the easier it will be for weeds to encroach.

The cutting bar of the lawn mower should never be set lower than 1 - 1-2 or 2 inches from the ground, except with creeping bent grass, which are seldom used in garden lawns. Mowing should be frequent, so that clipping may be left on the lawn where they form a good source of rich nutriment. If the grass is allowed to grow long, however, the clippings must be raked as they lie in rows, or the lawn they tend to smother the grass roots and cause dead patches to appear.

Watering is valuable during the hot summer months. A good soaking once a week is more use than a light sprinkling every other night. Watering should be continued until the soil is thoroughly moistened to a depth of four inches.

Five Straight Victories For Phillies Rate 21-Gun Salute for Manager Sawyer

Philadelphia Phillies win five straight from Dodgers and Cardinals!

Hardly a man is still alive who remembers any such antics by the Phils. For years they were the doormats of the National League.

Manager Eddie Sawyer, who led Toronto Maple Leafs for the first part of last season, has uncovered a one-man staff in Ken Heintzelman.

The 33-year-old'ster has "arrived" with two victories over Brooklyn, one over Boston and a decision over the St. Louis Cards for a 4-0 record.

Ken needed help Wednesday night to get past St. Louis when two walks, an error and a double by Marty Marion put him in a hole in the ninth. Ken Trinkle finally put out the uprising after three runs scored, leaving the Phils with a 7-5 edge.

As a result of the second straight win over the Cards, the Phils have moved from the cellar to a fourth - place tie, only two games off the pace.

Stan Hollmig was the big gun in the Phils' latest success. Breaking into the lineup in right field in place of the slumping Bill Nicholson, Hollmig drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

Sain Wins One

Johnny Sain came through with another complete winning game to make Boston Braves look more like the club that won the 1948 pennant.

The Brave' ace retired 18 men in a row Wednesday night after leadoff man Harry Walker singled. Chicago scored two runs and another in the eighth but the Braves' four-run first inning attack on Dutch Leonard stood up for a final 4-3 edge.

Leo Durocher returned from his five-day suspension by Commissioner Chandler and saw Johnny Mize, Sid Gordon and Bobby Thomson hit home runs as his New York Giants walloped Pittsburgh, 11-4.

Larry Jansen, an 18-game winner in '48, finally copped No. 1 although nicked for 15 hits.

Dodgers Bell Cousins

Brooklyn belted over its "cousins" from Cincinnati, 5-1, with Joe Hatten doing the honors. Catcher Roy Campanella clouted in with two hits. He has hit safely in the last 13 Dodger games.

American League Browns gave the fences another workout, smashing 13 homers in two games.

Washington hitters hammered three homers to nip Chicago White Sox, 5-7 at Chicago. But Chicago, until Lou Brissie pitched the third baseman, hit the first home run of his seven-year major league career.

It was 7-5 Chicago going to the ninth. Reliefer Ernie Groth fed a home run ball to Ed Stewart and it was 7-6. Eddie Robinson was hit by a pitched ball and then Mark Christman swatted his third homer in three games to give Walt Masterson his first '49 decision.

Gordon Hits Two

Joe Gordon bit two into the stands and Dale Mitchell and Mickey Vernon each banged one to account for all the runs of Cleveland's 4-3 and over Philadelphia. Gene Bearden, with bullpen help from Al Benton, hung up his third straight win at the expense of rookie Dick Fowler.

Vic Raschi and Virgil Trucks earned their fourth straight games for New York and Detroit, respectively. Raschi breezed past St. Louis, 4-1, for a 15-hit Yankee attack led by Phil Rizzuto and George Stirnweiss. Trucks turned back Boston with three hits as Detroit clubbed Mickey Harris for a 5-1 edge.

Old Rockport Given a Chance To Beat Olympia

Louisville, Ky., May 5 (AP)—A lot of the "smart guys" are insisting today that Old Rockport is the only horse that can beat Olympia in Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby. They could be right—and for that matter, so wrong.

Old Rockport is the one horse other than Ocean Drive—a stablemate of Red W. Hooper's Derby favorite—to bang it on Olympia this year. "Rocky" did it in the Santa Anita Derby Feb. 19, collaring the front-running Olympia about 50 yards from the finish to win by a length and a half. Ocean Drive beat Olympia in the Hialeah stakes at Hialeah a month earlier.

Sharing the opinion of several Derby experts that if he did it once, Old Rockport could pour it on again, Ben Jones, the Calumet Farm trainer, said: "I still believe Olympia is going to win," and Bill Post, "but Old Rockport appears to be the only horse with a chance to beat him. If we can take third with Pooder I'll be tickled to death."

John Gaver, trainer of the Greentree Stable entry of Capot and Pavot Ltd., couldn't come right out for Old Rockport, his own pick, but said Pavot, horse, including Olympia.

"He has been beaten, you know," he said, "by Princeton grad declared.

Clifford Moers is high on his Old Rockport. But he refused to predict a derby triumph.

"Our horse is not a fast breaker, but when he starts rolling he's got the speed. The Derby at Santa Anita showed that. He likes to come from behind."

Moers, who saw Olympia easily trounce six others in Tuesday's one mile Derby trial, was among those who will finally out if Olympia can carry his blazing speed a mile and a quarter. When Old Rockport won at Santa Anita, it was just a mile and one-eighth.

With a dozen horses facing the starter Saturday, the race would draw $117,650. The winner would collect $89,600, third largest purse in Derby history.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

It is pretty hard to tell a player how to change his style if he happens to be getting some good shots. The reason he is getting the good shots is that some corrective action is taking place in a finely split second. Nobody can count on having that sort of hair-trigger correction continue to work when the fellow who is getting the shots gets out of his queer groove by the least little error he is terrible. Then he keeps trying experiments and gets worse every shot.

That is why it is pretty nearly hopeless for a fellow who has started to form to change an 8 or a 9 that he may get on the first hole. The time that fellow should have protected himself against those big numbers was the previous time he played when he was doing something queer and getting with it.

Look out for the "new style" that you discover for yourself some day when you know that it is peculiar to you. It takes a long time to make those points of a peculiar style so much of a set habit form to repeat an 8 or a 9 that he may get on the first hole. The time that fellow should have protected himself against those big numbers was the previous time he played when he was doing something queer and getting with it.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Like other major sports organizations, the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Association is encouraging interest in the youth of the province, realizing that a junior organization will be the "feed-box" of the future. It is advocating the formation of junior bowling associations in each district in the province and will create championships for the youthful trundlers, according to Harold Argue of this city, vice president of the provincial association.

Work along teen-age organization lines has started in the Ottawa district, Vice-Prexy Argue told this corner today. He attended a meeting of District 16, Ottawa recently in his capacity as vice-president and member of the provincial executive.

"District 16," Mr. Argue said, "has already taken steps for the formation of a junior club. A well-known Ottawa bowler has donated awards for the junior winners. A steep committee has been formed to supervise instruction and other phases of the sport and all junior members will be given one year's membership free."

"It is hoped by the provincial body," Vice President Argue said, "that other districts in Ontario will fall in line with the idea of promoting and sponsoring junior activities within their organizations. Interest shown this year by districts and junior clubs will be a factor in determining action for the future such as junior district and provincial championships.

The executive of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club, at a recent meeting, went on record as endorsing, and providing facilities for a teen-age organization here. Junior championships will be held by the local club at the end of the current season.

"This move on the part of the Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Association will be welcomed by all who have the right interests in lawn bowling, it has been said. can be played by those "between nine and ninety." But of late there has been a tendency to cater to the younger element, and boys and girls of junior age. The game has increased in popularity in leaps and bounds during the past few years, and there is no doubt that its appeal will prove popular with the teen-age generation. It is wholesome, healthy, clean recreation and it is to be hoped that the executive of OPLBA will fall in line with the idea and follow the Ottawa district's example.

The Belleville Lawn Bowling Club will be hosts to a team of 24, bowlers from British Columbia next August. The team will come east early in the summer and will play at important centres en route to their Jankei here. It will arrive in Ottawa on Aug. 16 and meet a team from District No. 16 there. The next day the British Columbians will play a team from District No. 14 and on Aug. 17 will leave for Belleville, arriving here at 4.30 a.m.

The visitors will play a team of 24 players selected from clubs in District No. 14 (Belleville) on Aug. 18th. A special program of entertainment is being arranged and a three day round of festivities will take place with Mayor Ellis' civic reception will likely take place with Mayor Ellis' civic reception will likely take place on the morning of the 18th, extending the program to the westerners. A banquet will conclude their stay here.

They will leave for Peterborough Aug. 19 to play District 14 and from that city will go to Toronto where they will engage a team made up of executive members of the OPLBA and the Dominion Lawn Bowling Association. From that point the British Columbians will tour Western Ontario and then return home.

Vice President Argue will officially meet and greet the westerners on their arrival in Ottawa and will accompany them on their tour of Eastern Ontario tour. He will accompany them to Toronto where he will hand over his official duties to Mr. T. Sinclair, OPLBA president, who will conduct them on their tour of Western Ontario.

Last year a team of OPLBA bowlers visited British Columbia and other parts of the west and their return with glowing accounts of the fine western Canada hospitality. Every effort will be made by the "effete East" to return the compliment and show the westerners what eastern hospitality is like.

With local interest steadily mounting among softball fans regarding the Peterborough Softball Tournament set for 24th and 25th of this month, indications point from this city, it has been suggested that a bus be chartered to convey fans here to the scene of muskhead hostilities. Thinking that the scheme could be worked, a venture will be undertaken and the cab fare to and from the city will be available within a day or so and the bus will accommodate 50 fans. The bus will accommodate approximately thirty-five people.

The executive of the Central Ontario Baseball League goes into solemn conclave here on the 16th of this month to work out details on the agenda is the application of the Brockville and Smiths Falls teams and it is more than likely that they will be admitted. Should this be accorded, owning to latest reports are definitely "out" of the senior baseball picture this year, and according to rumors on the rialto, there will not be a Belleville Merchants team in the City and District League.

Winnipeg, May 5 (CP) — Once upon a time, although only the oldsters can remember, hockey players used to put away their skates when baseball season arrived. Now, the baseball season is well under way and the last puck is netted.

Tony (Winnipeg Tribune) Allan points to the lengthy season as one of his arguments against the proposal by Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens that the Memorial Cup final be turned into a best-of-nine affair.

The National Hockey League meeting decreed that four games be played in one part of the country and five in the other. But Allan, while stressing that he is convinced of Selke's sincerity in hockey matters, thinks that "we should leave well enough alone."

Long, Long Ago

Allan, mentioning that both Montreal Maroons and Brandon Wheat Kings (the Memorial Cup contenders) have been at play since last September, feels that the five-four idea has plenty of drawbacks.

For instance, suppose teams from Halifax and Edmonton should reach the final.

Let's say the Halifax team wins the first four in Halifax. This could leave only one more game to complete the final, and the clubs would be obliged to travel all the way across the country to Edmonton to stage it.

Allan counter's Selke's argument—that the Royals are not set-in the West—by digging into the past history of play for the Memorial Cup.

"The Royals are getting exactly the same deal any travelling team, eastern or western, has received in the past," says Allan. "It is a matter of record that, since the cup final was inaugurated in 1919, the western team has gone west 20 times, while the eastern team has gone west on only 11 occasions."

Against Switch

"If there are to be any changes," says Tony, "it seems to us that something should be done to shorten the playing season—even if it is necessary to reduce all best-of-seven series (including the final) to best-of-five."

New York, May 5 —(AP)— Wasn't just a few weeks ago that the boys were saying the Yankees' farm system had gone to pieces and wasn't producing the replacements needed for a big league team? That was beginning to split in the seams? ... Well, it says here that the Yankees are in fine place—minus such ailing regulars as Joe DiMaggio, Charley Keller, Snuffy Stirnweiss and Bob Porterfield ... of course, you have to give Tommy Henrich a lot of credit, but a bunch of boys from the farms have managed to earn themselves fairly steady jobs in the Yankee traveling line up ... there's Jerry Coleman, strictly a farm product, at second base, and he's going to be hard to dislodge. Dick Kryhoski and Jack Phillips have been sharing first and Cliff Mapes, Hank Bauer and Gene Woodling have been playing in the outfield. The only Woodling didn't come from the Yankee chain.

Reinstatement Requested by Rocky Graziano

(By The Canadian Press)

Rocky Graziano, Brooklyn's bad boy of boxing, at Chicago Wednesday made a formal application for reinstatement before the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

The Commission will announce its decision later.

Graziano, who won the world's middleweight championship from Tony Zale, and then lost it back to the Gary, Ind., rusting man of steel, has been barred in Illinois since eight months after he knocked out Zale 1st July, 1947.

Frank J. McAdams, Graziano's Chicago lawyer, attacked the legality of the rule barring Graziano. The rule, which McAdams said was aimed at Graziano, refused licences to boxers who had been given dishonorable discharges from the armed forces. The previous commission, headed by Joseph Cline, barred Graziano without a hearing.

At New York, the three-judge United States Court of Appeals reserved decision Wednesday on the request of two middleweight boxing pitchers that they be permitted to return to organized baseball at once. The two baseball pitchers are Fred Martin and Max Lanier of the St. Louis Cardinals. They were suspended for five years in 1946 for jumping their contracts and joining the Mexican League. Technically, their suspension ended the second decade of a ruling last month which denied them from re - joining organized baseball, after having of their $2,500,000 damage suit.

Rouyn Flashes and Port Colborne Merchants will clash at Port Erie tonight in the opening game of the best-of-three series for the Eastern Ontario intermediate 'A' hockey title. They won the first game 6-5 and lost the next 7-4.

Rouyn Flashes will be minus the services of goaltender Gabby Gendreau, who was injured during his last hand injured in a pileup in Tuesday night's game. He will be replaced by Paul Le-Chance.

Falkirk Lions Wednesday night won the Scottish National Hockey League championship by defeating Dunfermline Vikings 6-3 at Falkirk, Scotland. The victory enabled the Lions to win a two-game total - goal playoff series 8-4. Will Thomson of Dunfermline notched one of the Dunfermline goals.

At Southern Pines, N.C., Johnny Palmer of Dublin racked up a par 70 Wednesday to win the Carolinas Open golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 277, four strokes better than runner-up Tommy Bolt. Locke had a morning 70 and matched Palmer's closing 68 for 281 to nose out Dick Chapman for single stroke. Chapman, opening day leader, 72-69 Wednesday for 282 and third place.

Coach Otis Douglas of the Philadelphia Eagles professionals football team arrived in Montreal Wednesday to coach the Philadelphia Eagles professional football team's annual spring football clinic.

The clinic, started by Coach Vic Obeck of the McGill grid squad three years ago, will open tonight and continue until Saturday night. Obeck said he expected to see about 200 coaches and players attend the clinic from Dalhousie University, Halifax and Queen's University and Royal Military College.

Bob Shantz, southpaw pitcher optioned Monday by the Philadelphia Athletics to Buffalo Bisons of the International League was recalled Wednesday by the American League club. Paul Richards, Bison general manager, said at Buffalo he was told by Connie Mack, idol of the A's, that injuries to Phil Marchildon of Pennsylvania, Ont., and Dick Fowler, native of Toronto made Shantz' return necessary.

At Sandown Park, England, Royal Forest, 7-to-1 favorite in the derby, won a 7 1-4-mile thumping race Wednesday worth £1,189 ($4,676). The three-year-old, ridden by champion jockey Gordon Richards, caused a home in the Sandown Park trial stakes four lengths ahead of Bobo with Transatlantic a half-a-length farther back in third place. Royal Forest's price was 7-to-15. The winner's time was 2:18.2.

Record Crowd Of 22,206 Watch Leafs Win Opener

The second openers of the International League were a whopping success on a total of 72,532 fans, attending the curtain raisers at the four northern city parks Wednesday night. Not only with a record crowd of 22,206 watching the Maple Leafs eke out a 4-3 victory over Newark Bears. Buddy Hassett's Bears came back with three in the ninth inning to knock out Oscar Judd, who allowed only three hits in eight shutout frames.

Rochester, playing before 18,401 customers, knocked off Jersey City to tie the Little Giants for the league lead. Dick Hirkelmann, in trouble throughout the game, went the route for a 5-3 triumph, his first of the season.

A double by Ed Kierpowicz following a walk, gave the Buffalo Bisons 430-foot homer sewed up the game on the Matt Wilson.

Buffalo packed in 16,887 to see the Bisons topple Syracuse Chiefs, 7-4. Jack Hoskey, relief pitcher baseman, put on a one - man show. He drove in five runs with a triple and homer.

Omar (Turk) Lown pitched Montreal Royals to a 5-1 romp over Baltimore before 16,653 fans. Lown allowed only six hits although he trailed 1-0 until the fourth as the result of a double by Ted Blackwell and a triple by Don Richmond.

Aids Down-and-Outs For Half a Century

London —(CP)— For 50 years Albert Shadbolt—usually known as "Shakey" has been the friend of London down-and-outs.

Starting life as a pugilist and "bouncer" at a dance hall, he turned over his fists and his pulpit told how he had been leading a life of negligence and the companion of bullies and burglars.

Now 76 years old, "Shakey" recalls the time when he could "scrape a penny in two between my fingers."

Besides giving food and lodging to flower girls, tramps and unemployed, he is credited with having saved many lives. Once during a fire at Beverley, Hull, he stood on a ladder and caught in mid-air people who leapt for their lives. Another time he dived under two barges to the rescue of a drowning boy at Hull docks.

Regina Capitals Beat Senators By 6-3 Score

Toronto, May 8 (CP)— Unless Regina Capitals and Ottawa Senators get together on the venue for the third game of their Allan Cup series—and they're as far apart as Toronto and Ottawa now —the Cup final may be decided by default for the first time in modern hockey history.

The Western Canada Senior champions sprang an upset 6-3 victory over the Senators at Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night and stirred arguments anew on where the fifth game of the best-of-seven final will be played. A capsule version of the various viewpoints looks like this:

1. It will be played Saturday night in Ottawa—(says Ottawa).

2. It will be played Saturday night in Toronto—(says Regina).

3. It will be played where we say or not (cryptic mutterings from both sides).

An attendance suggestion, prompted solely by Toronto's beat wave at the Maple Leafs, their series up to Aklavik and finish it in the Arctic cold. Both sides tried that before the weather that followed yesterday's 89 degree temperature—highest ever recorded in Toronto for May 4.

Billed For Ottawa

Secretary manager George Dudley of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, pointed out Wednesday night that the entire series originally was billed Ottawa.

The fourth game was moved to Toronto, he said after Tommy Gorman, Senator "communicated with me Sunday and offered to play it in Toronto."

Dudley added that "if Regina files a formal request for the next game to be played in Toronto, the decision would have to be made by vote of the C.A.H.A. executive."

Dudley also quoted Cliff Erzie Capitals manager as saying that Regina would default the series rather than play in Ottawa Saturday night.

Erzie declined comment on this but, could blame Regina for wanting to play where size does not matter. They lost the first three games by scores of 6-4, 3-1, and 7-6 on the oval shaped ice surface in Ottawa, then looked like a different team Wednesday night on the smaller Leaf rink ice rectangle.

Raced Away in Flash

The Cups held the Eastern Canada champions to a 1-1 tie in the first period, led 3-2 after the second and raced away in the third. Their trigger men were Red Tilley with three goals, which each fired two goals, and Mel Hill and Bill Ezinicki, the scorers were Eddie Emberg, Emile Dagenais and Bob Solinger.

Erzie said after the game he thought it "only fair that the next game be played in Toronto on neutral ice . . . we've played three games on Ottawa's home ice and I feel that we are entitled to have two games of the series played in Toronto."

But Gorman countered by saying flatly that "the next game and any remaining games of the series are back in Ottawa . . . that's where they will be played."

The crowd for last night's game was 5,886.

Ross-Zaduk Fight Laid Over For One Week

Halifax, May 8 — (CP)—Postponements usually are both bitterness and sentiment. But the week's delay in the George Ross - Pete Zaduk Canadian middleweight boxing title match here may prove an exception.

The 15-rounder, originally slated for the Halifax Forum last Saturday, was moved ahead a week with mutual consent. Sammy Kelley, manager of challenger Zaduk of Guelph, wanted more time to heal a dime - sized cut over Zaduk's left eye.

Promoter Augustine (Gussie) MacLellan, Glace Bay, N.S., figures the delay has made the fans hungrier.

"The way ticket sales are booming now it looks like a capacity crowd of more than 6,000 with a gross gate of more than $12,000," he said. That would be a record for the Maritimes and Halifax.

The fight will set two other records. Ross and Zaduk will haul down at least $4,500 between them and more if they take the alternative cut of the gate—the highest individual and total purse ever paid in the Maritimes.

Ross, the 25-year-old undefeated sensation from Glace Bay Road, N. S., can get $2,500 or 30 per cent of the take for the scrap and defence of the title he won last June from Hamilton's Len Wadsworth.

Zaduk, just out of his "teens, can get $2,000 or 20 per cent of the gate.

Speedway Chiefs Oppose Campaign To Reduce Noise

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto (CP)—Speedway racing took a bite into the 1940 season recently. But behind the noise of the motorcycles and sputtering cinders there's plenty of all-round healthy racing.

Among the longest faces are the directors of the Speedway Control Board. They're just the boys faced with Sir Stafford Cripps' refusal to reduce the 46 per cent entertainment tax considered the biggest handicap to speedway progress.

Brighter news is of five newly opened track which are expected to boost attendances to more than 13,000,000 for the season. There are 26 clubs divided into three divisions in the league each annual championship to each division.

The Speedway Riders' Association recently ruled that riders imported from the United States and Australia would be limited to two a club. Then soon after they permitted Britishers to have three.

Speedway followers took offence because Birmingham second to the Wembley Lions was promoted to the first division instead of first-place Bristol.

Outspoken Sydney Pottel, pictorial columnist Peter Wilson said that presumably because Birmingham wasn't strong enough for the premier division without additional strength, two Canadian riders and an American would be permitted to ride for them.

Latest controversy among thousands of enthusiasts is whether machines should have silencers.

For 22 years the roar of engines has been as much a part of speedway fans as the motorcycles and wheel-to-wheel tussles of the stars. Opponents say the noise is one cause of disapproval of noise, which for the promoters has meant cash in the till.

Prof. A. M. Low, a scientist who says he has worked on silencer devices, says:

It is impossible to build an effective silencer for a single cylinder machine without drastically reducing the power.

Knockout punch for the anti-noise campaigners is the Professor's comparative recording of the noise at a soccer match and a speedway meeting at the same ground. For speedway it was only a few minutes. The soccer crowd's clamor registered for 90 minutes, almost non-stop.

Wembley Stadium speedway manager Alec Jackson, whose Wembley Lions Club is the world's largest, says: "Take away the roar and you take away the life. The crowd don't want silencers. The roar and the smell are as much incense burtle round the track is the box-office magnet."

Silencers are now be heading for more trouble. With the Wembley Lions Club threatening abandoning an attempt last year with rocket-propelled machines.

But speedway in Britain is a family sport, and despite frequent controversy, it continues to expand.

Little to Choose Between Teams In Junior Series

Winnipeg, May 8 (CP)—Action in the closely-fought Memorial Cup final between Montreal Royals and Brandon Wheat Kings switches to the amphitheatre rink here tonight for the seventh game of their best-of-seven series, now tied at one victory apiece and a draw.

With little to choose between the clubs—each has scored eight goals—fans are hesitant to pick a winner or even call how many games the series might go.

A capacity crowd of more than 8,000 tonight will again pack the amphitheatre—scene of the first contest, won 5-3 by Royals. Wheat Kings took the next game by the same score at Brandon Saturday night, then the series shifted to a 3-3 stalemate at Brandon Tuesday night in the third game.

Neither squad has any serious injuries. Brandon's Ken Mosdell, key centreman Reggie Abbott, out with a twisted knee suffered in the opener, is due to suit up for the second and third games by Mike Durban, who turned in smart two-way performances, but Coach Bill Mackenzie feels Abbott would give the Wheat Kings an extra scoring punch.

Brandon's tallies have been evenly divided among their three forward lines, while Royals have got served by their first-string line of Gord Kmutson, Matt Smith and Jack Moores.

Frank King, Angus Juckes and Jack McKenzie, each on separate lines, have picked up two goals apiece for Wheat Kings. Max Bentson and Walt Pawlychuk, who work with King, have scored a goal and a help to the team's leading goalmaker with two goals and two assists.

Heading both teams in points is thirty-centre Kmutson, with two goals and three assists. Bentson has two and two, while Moores has scored once and assisted twice.

Highlighting the series to date and expected to be a deciding factor in the final result has been the work of the two goalkeepers—Roy Frederick of Brandon and Bobby Bleau of Montreal.

Coach Peg Millar of Montreal maintains Brandon has been lucky and had all the breaks. Coach Mackenzie has said little other than it has been a "tough series," and probably will continue to be so.

Take your pick, it could easily go either way.

BRITISH TOMMY GETS A RED HAND

This friendly interlude in the "battle of the locks" took place when two Soviet officers called on British Brigadier E. R. Benson to discuss the dispute over control of the canal locks, in which the Soviets tried to bar western zone water traffic in Berlin. The man at right is a British army sergeant who was serving as interpreter for the discussions. The Russian officer is doing a bit of unusual unbending by shaking hands with the Tommy—Central Press Canadian.

George Raft, who might set the continental type, expects to join the ever-growing Hollywood colony in Europe for the rest of this year.

The perennial film tough guy leaves for France next month after finishing "The Bali Bond Story." He is seeking a house on the Riviera.

Others Go, Too

Evelyn Keyes will hop a slow boat to Italy as soon as she finishes "Mrs. Mike," and she doesn't care what her studio thinks about it. Her relations with Columbia have often been strained and reached a climax with her recent suspension. Evelyn will take the boat trip with Paulette Goddard to join husband Jean Renoir.

Gloria Swanson won't stick around Hollywood to see if her long film career flowers again after "Sunset Blvd." She returns to New York to negotiate a deal to resume her television show in the fall. She hopes to make it a coast-to-coaster.

Faint Hope Held For Men Trapped In Burning Mine

Girardville, Pa., May 8 (AD)—Faint hope was held out today for four men trapped 800 feet underground in a burning anthracite mine since Tuesday night.

As rescue crews stood by, companions pumped life-giving air into the shaft and huge fans attempted to clear away the smoke and fumes.

A State mine inspector said tests of the fumes at the pithead indicated a monoxide content as high as 10 per cent. One-half of one per cent normally proves fatal.

A night force of eight men was in the shaft-side No. 9 colliery of the Gilberton Coal Company when fire broke out Tuesday night. Four miners managed to reach the surface, although partially overcome by smoke and gases.

The mine's communication system was cut off by the fire and no sound has come from the trapped men since then.

Those trapped are William Kelly, 49, and Joseph Wowak, 34, both of Shenandoah; and Raymond Eps, 35, and William O'Brien, 53, of Gilbertville.

They had been at work in the 1,100-foot shaft timbering small tunnels when the fire started. Four hundred other miners employed in two shifts were not on duty at the time.

Britons Urged To Send More Goods to Canada

Birmingham, Eng., May 5 (CP) —Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe, Canadian Trade Minister, today asked Britons to increase the flow of their capital goods to Canada.

The Dominion market is a challenge to British industry to supply such products as engineering plant and equipment and machine tools, Mr. Howe said in address prepared for delivery in connection with the British Industries Fair.

Canadian business men, he said, are "rather conservative" that the largest part of Britain's exports for dollars are made up of "more or less luxury lines" such as fine textiles, china and automobiles.

On the other hand, Howe said, engineering products were badly needed in Canada. Expansion of British exports in that direction would enable the Dominion to cut down its use of United States dollars to purchase them in the U.S.

He said the recent British engineering mission to Canada had appeared to be well satisfied that there was a "potential for a large and lasting market for engineering products."

The Minister noted that last year Canada bought about 30 per cent of her machinery and equipment from foreign countries, and only about six per cent from Britain.

Howe's speech was devoted largely to detailing how British exporters of engineering goods might make their way into the Canadian market. He told them they could expect "every co-operation" from the Canadian government and from Canadian business men.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 4 (CUP) — A one-in-a-million try that won a championship provided an argument feast in British rugby circles.

(Terry Beatson scored the try in the London Hospital Cup finals. It was good enough to satisfy referees Arthur Rees and then give St. Mary's Hospital a decision over Guy's Hospital 6-5.

Some say it wasn't legal; others say it was. Anyway, here's what happened:

With Guy's leading 5-3 a few minutes from the end, St. Mary's were awarded a penalty near the left touchline a few yards from the goal line.

Centre three quarter Terry Beatson placed the ball back 20 yards and placed it for a kick at goal. While Guy's players gathered near the goalpost, burly second row forward John Ambrose ran over and held a whispered conference with the would kicker.

Beatson went to kick, but instead tapped the ball a few yards, gathered it up and belted pellmell down the touchline in two flips of a fiddler's elbow. As a stream of frantic defenders ran-shed him, Beatson made a three-yard dive for the line to touch down.

After the game Beatson said Ambrose had put him up to the dodge, Said Ambrose: "Well, it was obvious wasn't it?"

He was not so obvious to others. Opinion was sharply divided as to the try's legality. Referee Rees said he was all right.

Many said that as the original offence took place only 10 yards from Guy's line and Beatson carried the ball back a further 20 yards to the kick, the kick itself could not have passed through the "mark"—the actual spot where the offence took place.

Charlie Marriner, joint holder of the British 4,000 metres individual pursuit cycling championship, is defending his title against a replay with Cyril Cartright, is placed out of the event and it is probable he will not ride this year.

Preliminary rounds will be held in various parts of the Upper, already is in serious trained Kingdom and the final take ing.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The wrong ideas in the heads of bridge players are from the bad advices of experts. Instead of doing what would come naturally, many players are using cumbersome methods to determine their no-trump bids.

The 12 highest cards in a pack are the best for no-trump tricks. They are the four aces, four kings, four queens known as high cards. Count one for each and it will tell you how many no-trumps tricks you have.

The partner of an opening one bidder is supposed to have ten high cards before he is heard from. Each voluntary no-trump bid by the responder usually promises one more high card.

South opens with one heart when north holds this hand:

♠A 7 3 2
♥Q 6
♦K 5 2
♣Q 6 4 2

♠7 5 2
♥K 7 5 3
♦Q 6 4 2
♣A 6 4 2

North has no biddable suit for a takeout. He has not adequate support for a heart assist, if he bids at all it must be in no-trumps.

His hand contains four high cards. Therefore, he has enough for two no-trumps or three.

His first response is one no-trump. This shows only his third high card.

Later he can make another voluntary no-trump bid. This will show his fourth high card. In this manner will he remainder tell the opener of the four high cards in his hand.

You can see from this how south learns the number of no-trump tricks in their pair. North has said he has four high cards and South adds the high cards in his own hand. The total will tell south exactly how many (high cards) no-trump tricks in both hands.

After north makes a first response of one no-trump, suppose the south hand says two no-trump. The second bid by north will be three no-trump to show his fourth trick.

Why not show the third and fourth high cards in north at once in the first bid? It would require a jump (game-going bid). And north did not see game at once.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma is a famous believer in dreams, especially her own, and this morning she was telling her breakfast diet of grapefruit and a half of a piece of toast, and she said to pop, Oh by the way, Willie, I had the most amazing dream last night. I'm sure it must meen something. I'll tell it to you, she said.

Please do, my dear, I'm sure it's more believable than some of the items in today's news, pop said.

And he put down his paper and ma said, Well, I dreemed I was so thin that I was a proverbial human clothes horse. My clothes there to distract their natural flow, she said.

Whether that calls for congradulations or condolances, allow me to be the first, pop said, and ma said, in fact I was so unnaturly slender that I was elected Mrs. Stand Up and Down in a big national contest.

Are you sure it wasn't international? pop said, and ma said, it mite of been. Anyway, I'm positive the dreem means something, and the unluckiest thing you can do is not to take advantage of a dreem, so I'm going to show my good faith rite now by eating a whole extor slice of toast besides my usual half slice, and furthermore I'm going to put as much butter on it as anybody else, or at least as much as any normal person, she said.

Probably not meening me, and danger signal and fell in a big vat of ice tea and was half frozen and half drowned before I was morning, he said.

Airlift Machine Will be Kept In Readiness

Washington, May 5 (AP) —The airlift machine—its pioneers, men and directors—probably will be kept in stand-by condition in Europe until it is reasonably certain Russia has no plans to set up another sudden road-block to Berlin.

It took the United States and Britain six months to create the intricate system of hundreds of planes and thousands of men to carry supplies in unending stream over the Russian blockade and into the former German capital.

By continuing to exist for the time, it could serve as an inspiration for the Russians to live up to agreements.

With "operation vittles" apparently drawing toward a close, the United States Air Force prepared to start an exhaustive analysis of the strategic lessons learned in the greatest air supply operation in history.

The experience value already had been emphasized by various United States Air Force officials.

Studying all the technical details behind the overall costs and accomplishments, the air force now will set up an over-all plan for any big-scale air lift needed in a future war.

Retreat From Stromboli

Tempestuous Anna Magnani, Italian screen star, is shown as she arrived in Paris, France, en route to London, apparently in strategic retreat from Roberto Rossellini, erstwhile boy friend and director, now engaged on the island of Stromboli making a picture starring Ingrid Bergman, Swedish-born Hollywood star. Persistent reports have Rossellini and Miss Bergman attempting to hash out a romantic triangle with Miss Bergman's husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom, who flew to Stromboli from Los Angeles several days ago in wake of disturbing reports that the association between the director and Ingrid was not entirely professional. Miss Magnani, who once organized protest of 3,000 Italian actors against invasion of U.S. motion picture talent into Italy, was expected to raise some sound and fury, but seems to have changed her mind.—Central Press Canadian.

THE SOVIET 'GIBRALTAR' OF THE MEDITERRANEAN

While challenging U.S. naval activities in the Mediterranean, the Soviet is quietly building Albania into a "Gibraltar" replacing wayward Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia as the main Mediterranean base and outlet. Recently, Albania's youthful dictator, Enver Hoxha visited Moscow and received highest military honors, presumably in reward for use of his little country as a base for rebel troops in Greece. The Red naval base of Saseno, rebuilt by Russians, is in the sea pathway to Trieste, a cauldron of unrest.—Central Press Canadian.

STILLMAN'S

Then the wind veered and the townhall, built in 1888, took afire. Brick walls and a steel covered roof protected the building to some extent but a gaping hole 30 feet square was burned in the roof before it was brought under control. Fire pumpers from Peterborough, Campbellford, Hastings and Rosenesth poured 11 streams of water onto the flames.

Mrs. Ruth Allen, telephone operator, roused the village and volunteers made short work of carrying the most of the townhall chairs and other equipment to safety. The hall piano was not saved.

After working late the night previously, Clifford Stillman, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stillman, was still sleeping when the fire broke out. He was awakened by the smoke and roaring of flames.

Room Full of Smoke

"I woke with a start to find the room full of smoke and to hear flames crackling in the next room," he said. "I ran out and then went back to get my clothes and wallet. By then it was too late to enter the upstairs."

Clifford said the fire apparently started in a storeroom upstairs where clothes and other things were kept. "There was no furnace or other pipes running through the room," he said.

Mrs. Stillman was on duty in the restaurant when the fire broke out, while Mr. Stillman was in the garage. Neither was aware of the fire. A daughter, Marion, aged 17, who assisted in the restaurant nights and on holidays, was at high school.

None of the restaurant or garage equipment was saved from the fire, while the household contents and all clothing were a complete loss. Cash amounting to $140 in the restaurant cash register went up in smoke.

Had to be Restrained

Mrs. Stillman's first thought on learning of the fire was for her son Clifford, who she knew was sleeping upstairs. Not believing Clifford had escaped, she had to be restrained from attempting to enter the upstairs to look for him.

Later Mrs. Stillman was taken to the home of a neighbor and was placed under the doctor's care.

"Everything is gone," Mrs. Stillman tearfully cried. "We were able to save nothing. Everything is wiped out. I don't know what we will do now."

It was reported the Stillman's carried only a small amount of insurance on their combined garage and restaurant which had living quarters upstairs. There was no insurance on the contents.

From his place of business across the street, Mr. Jack Allen, Warkworth undertaker, was first to notice the fire. He saw smoke rolling from the upstairs window and promptly turned in the alarm and then went to assist the Stillman's.

Products Burned

Gordon Stillman, brother of Clifford, had $800 worth of Watkins products burned in the blaze. With his family, he lives in the country but had the products stored at his father's residence. They were not insured.

School children of the village took advantage of the excitement of the fire and many declared for themselves a holiday. But they reckoned without the school principal who during the afternoon was seen at the scene of the fire crooking his finger at truant pupils and directing them back to classes.

"I don't know why I did not think of the cash in the restaurant till," stated Mr. Allen after the fire. "If I had saved that it would have been some help to the Stillmans. I guess I must have been too excited."

Mr. Stillman said he had sunk everything they had into the construction of the business block two years ago.

Pretty 17-year-old Marion Stillman took the loss calmly despite the fact all her clothes had been lost.

"I have nothing but what I have on," she said.

Staying With Friend

Marion said she was staying at the home of her girl friend, Zella Gummer, who lives two miles out in the country. Mr. and Mrs. Stillman said they would stay at the latter's sister's Mrs. Edgar Ferguson, five miles away.

Residents of the village paid high tribute to the co-operation and work of the outside fire department. One villager said: "If it hadn't been for them the entire Front Street of the village would have gone and it's wonderful to receive such co-operation when it is needed."

With a creek running through the heart of the village there was no lack of water supply and pumpers were able to flood the fire with water, the village brigade was needed but hundreds of villagers were ready to give any assistance needed.

Brigade Praised

Village Clerk W. Grant Allen had praise for the Warkworth volunteer brigade who, he said, "had saved the Canadian Tire Store while help was arriving from outside." It was necessary to chop a small hole in the roof of the building to extinguish the flames.

Mr. Allen said township councillors would be held in the community hall until repairs were made to the town hall. "Insurance carried on the hall would be inadequate to repair the damage," he said.

Firemen who had successfully fought the flames were fed sandwiches and coffee hastily prepared by store proprietors and village housewives.

NEARLY 100 STRIKERS ARRESTED AT ASBESTOS

Furious Fight Between Four Men Reported to Police

Service Station Robbed And Several Shots Fired

Toronto, May 6 — (CP) — Ray Paquette, service station operator on the Queen Elizabeth Highway, today told police of a furious fight between himself, two gunmen and Robert Robinson of Toronto, whom the bandits allegedly kidnapped in the downtown district. A 22-year-old suspect is being held at Etobicoke for investigation.

Robinson said a man followed him from a downtown hotel and as he stepped into his car the gunman forced him to sit in the front seat while another man drove. He said they headed into Toronto for three hours looking for a place to rob.

They filled the gasoline in the car and then, they drove to Paquette's station and robbed the cash register. In the ensuing fight among the four men, Paquette was hit on the head with a gun and was fired at several times, but all the shots missed.

The gunmen then fled in the car. Police picked up a man related throughout Southern Ontario and the Provincial Police officers spotted the car. After an 80-mile chase, they took the suspect and abandoned the car in Oakville and ran into a ravine on a farm.

One of the men was captured but the other escaped.

Paquette, 36, was taken to hospital with several bruises about the head injuries but his condition was not serious. He told police the kidnap victim showed him identifications in the fight with the gunmen. He was not held for hospital treatment.

GIANT INDUSTRY STILL HELPLESS IN STRIKE GRIP

No Renewal of Negotiations In Ford Walkout Is Scheduled

Detroit, May 6 — (AP)—Ford Motor, a giant of the automobile industry, lay still and helpless today in the grip of a strike of the second day of the United Automobile Workers' (C.I.O.) walkout of 60,000 men protesting a "speed-up."

No renewal of negotiations in the dispute was scheduled.

However, it was felt that both company and union were agreeable to meeting if there was a chance of the strike's critical future effects if it persisted.

Ultimately Ford's entire operation, employing more than 100,000 persons, would be affected.

Already some 65,000 were on strike. The U.A.W. also struck Ford's Lincoln-Mercury plant in Canada on the charge of alleged unfair labor practices in both, the company has made denials.

The International Union has picked up the U.A.W. (C.I.O.) local 600 at the Rouge plant and Local 400 at Lincoln-Mercury in charging the speed to the number of workers has been advanced in the past few years and the normal rate for the auto industry.

U.A.W. President Walter Reuther charged Ford, by "attempting to get from five to 10 per cent more than the average output per worker on the assembly line."

The company denies that any speed-up exists and has sought without avail to have the union submit the issue to arbitration.

The strike's immediate effect was to cut off Ford's main base as a supplier of automobiles and parts.

With Rouge as its nerve centre, Ford has been turning out about 8,400 cars a day, 30 per cent of General Motors Corporation-Canada Ford.

Canadian Plant to Close

The trade paper, Automotive News, said the strike might take Ford cars virtually out of the market for a long time.

Ford itself said that within nine days it will be unable to obtain coke for the steel down, leaving 64,000 more men idle.

As the same time Ford of Canada said it would have to close within three or four days and lay off 10,000 men.

Walter Reuther, U.A.W. president who took part in the last public negotiations in his capacity as the strike would not be a long one, then added: "We are always prepared for the worst."

At a press conference after the decision, Reuther refused to budge from the speed-up charge and said Ford was stepping up rates to secure a competitive advantage."

The company issued a statement Thursday night.

Vernon Ryder, it said, "is the result of arbitrary action by the union, and the company and our employees are the victims.

Ford has insisted on arbitration of the issue which the union refuses to do, it continued. The union has refused to bring the dispute out of the field of negotiation.

Man Who Introduced Trapshooting is 97

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—William McDowell, the man who first introduced trapshooting into Canada, celebrated his 97th birthday today. Interested in the sport for nearly half a century, Mr. McDowell has been the Canadian wing shooting championship in 1907 and 1908. It was from his efforts that the Canadian Trapshooting Association was formed and since that the summit of the Hon. George Brown, founder of the Globe here, purchased his bullets.

POLICE ENFORCE BLOCKADE INSIDE BERLIN WITH GUNS

Raid Secret Meeting Place, Arrest Twenty

Berlin, May 6 (AP)—German police today enforced the Russian blockade inside Berlin with gunfire—six days before the barriers are due to be lifted.

A wild fusillade from German guards on the boundary of east Berlin halted but an automobile racing into the American sector under cover of darkness.

German police in the American sector meanwhile raided a secret "illegal" meeting of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party. They arrested 20 persons, most of them women, and seized a large quantity of Communist literature.

Editorialists in the official Soviet army newspaper, Tagliche Rundschau, meanwhile gave a clearer outline of probable Russian demands in the event of a Paris of the big four.

They indicated Russia will attempt to:

1. Obtain a four-power agreement to exclude Germany permanently from the new council of Europe and Atlantic Security powers and acknowledge Russia's interest in this vital industrial region.

2. Abandon major German political issues, like the Ruhr, the United States and France without Russia's concurrence.

3. Set up a German Republic.

4. Establish a government for the Germans and will continue the measures of "people's democracy" which it has set up in the Soviet zone. These measures have given Communists a dominant influence in the government's "political, economic and cultural organizations."

Magistrate Fines Evader $100

Hamilton, May 6 — (CP) — Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins stressed the seriousness of an employer retaining income tax deducted from his employees for income tax, in fining a Hamilton man today on a breach of the Income Tax Act.

He pointed out to Sinaston that the $3,088 withheld were actually trust funds and that Sinaston could have been in custody for a week, he would have sent him to jail. However, the money has now been paid back.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $100 and costs.

A contractor at Niagara Falls, N. Y., commutes each day from Hamilton to the U. S. A. some months ago and the fine mentioned money and a bench warrant was issued.

Sinaston was picked up last Friday night when he crossed the border and came into Canada to see his aunt who was ill.

HONOR SOCCER VICTIMS

The record for the latest spring frost set in 1946 still stands.

Friday will be hot and humid again over Southern Ontario with cool showery weather over Northern and Eastern Ontario. Saturday's weather will be similar to Friday but the cooler weather will spread over all of Southern Ontario by Saturday evening.

READY FOR VOTE

The forces of the "Axis" and "Allies" on Manitoulin Island, the largest fresh-water island in the world, are girding themselves for a battle. For years the island has been under the Canada Temperance Act which does not stop the sale of liquor or beer but permits complete freedom in its consumption. On May 16, approximately 5,580 residents of the island will vote to sanction the coming into force of the Ontario Liquor Control Act which permits legal sale of beer, wine and liquor. Above, Premier Leslie M. Frost, left, and the voting, W. W. Anglin, K.C., retired minister, is shown here with the ballot boxes he will distribute to the 36 polling sub-divisions in the 6,000-square-mile district.—(CP Photo.)

Economic Prospects Bright For Coming Year Forecast, High Level of Business Seen

Toronto, May 6 (CP)— It is difficult to escape the conclusion that people want more government services but do not want to pay for them, says the annual report of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, released today.

"The report finds economic prospects bright for the coming year.

"There is every indication that consumer and public expenditures will continue large and sustain a high level of business activity.

"But there is danger that Canadians will be lulled into a false sense of security by the prosperous conditions now prevailing.

"One of our main objectives since the end of the war has been the re-establishment of international trade on multilateral basis and one goal is not yet in sight."

Indications, says the report, are that demand for capital funds will continue large.

It notes the estimate by the Department of Trade and Commerce that the value of new capital investment in 1949 will be $3,300,000,000, or $300,000,000 above last year.

Capital investment by business is expected to be somewhat in the '30s.

Cockerell defines his "gift of prophecy" as intuition. For example, he "precognizes" there will be no war in 1950.

During the course of his travels, he has assisted psychologists in 300 cases involving mental and mental illness. He has also lectured to department of psychology and university students in England and South Africa on psychology, perception and "para-psychology, the science of finding explanations for phenomenal."

He will be a push-button atomic war

PURSE BELONGING TO DEAD WOMAN IS DISCOVERED

Renewed Investigation In Pohl Case Expected

Kitchener, May 6 (CP)— Renewed investigation into the mystery death of Mrs. Emma Pohl, Sunnyside housewife who was murdered last September was expected today following discovery of a purse belonging to the missing woman.

The discovery was made some weeks ago by Mrs. Norman Holthauser of Kitchener, aunt of the slain woman, who turned the article over to Chief Hilbert Schedewitz of Waterloo township police.

Schedewitz said that Mrs. Holthauser was showing some friends the spot where the body of her niece was found late in October, when she stumbled on the purse.

It contained a powder puff, rouge, a nail file and one cigaret. There was no sign of money. William Stewart of Galt, believed to have been one of the last to have seen Mrs. Pohl alive, told police that she was carrying.

Verdict of the inquest which followed Mrs. Pohl's death established only that there "might have been killed by some one unknown. Stewart's held for murder charges at public mischief, was freed when the charge was withdrawn.

He said that he had picked up Mrs. Pohl on the afternoon of the last day on which she had been seen alive. She had asked him to accept for the $600, after which he let her off at downtown Kitchener. She said she just wanted to go shopping.

Chief Schedewitz said that the delay in turning over the purse to police was unexplained.

Another group of 50-odd were found in the basement of the Lutheran Church. When police arrested them they continued to sing hymns and refused to give their clothes, coverlets and names.

In Montreal Deputy Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Provincial Police said one or two of the men resisted arrest but they were arrested just the same.

"We had to go into the tents and drag them out. Conditions in the whole strike area was reported under control and there was always no possibility of the necessity of martial law.

Charges against all those arrested will cover such offences as unlawful assembly, intimidation, obstructing police, possession of offensive weapons and resisting officers.

The riot act, which provides a maximum penalty of imprisonment for violators, is expected to remain in force for 30 days, during which brought about yesterday's clash quiets down.

Provincial police were ordered to escort into the Johns Manville asbestos mine a number of workers who began congregating in the square at Asbestos yesterday afternoon and early as 7 a. m. to start the 6 a.m. shift.

Within a few hours crammed with violence, tension and uncertainty came to a temporary halt today at the strike-bound town.

The 8.35 a.m., 8.50 car motorcade with nearly 300 heavily armed provincial police disappeared, relative unmolested into town.

They came quietly by an unfrequented back road, unaware that only a short time before the main body of blockaders had been ordered by strikers who yesterday fought off police and isolated the town.

Under the early-morning urging of Gerard Picard, Asbestos mayor, and padre of the Asbestos Workers' Federation did a complete about-face.

For one hour around midnight the padre, mayor, police chief, riot act and cars were left unmanned while 1,500 blockaders were ordered to man and then attended a meeting called to "instruct and encourage" them.

At the meeting they were told to "hold fast, don't let the police in."

They marched gaily back to the blockades.

Less than two hours later the road blocks were again broken.

Father Camirand told the men: "Go home and stay home until further notice. It is useless to offer physical resistance in the face of so much police strength . . . By the time the meeting ended, at 2 a.m. Thursday, the police cars moved into Asbestos the dark streets were quiet and deserted.

Yesterday's outbreak of violence — most serious since the strike of 5,000 workers began Feb. 13 — marked the police's first forcements here armed with tear gas bombs, Sten guns and the usual service revolvers.

Twelve of Asbestos' detachment of 40 provincial police and 14 of the strikers were reported injured. Many policemen were reported captured by the strikers and held for some time.

Provincial director Hilaire Beauregard is understood to have talked by telephone with Father Camirand late Thursday night, telling him of orders to read the riot act.

Rodolphe Hamel, president of the Asbestos Workers' Federation, said one reason for setting up the road blocks and for yesterday's unexpected outbreak of picketing was the strikers' fear that they would lose their jobs by influx of outsiders.

In Defiance of Order

During the day 800 to 900 pickets threw their lines around the Johns Manville asbestos mill, the only plant which normally produces more than 50 per cent of the asbestos mined in the eastern townships "serpentine belt."

The long strike, declared illegal by the Quebec Labor Department, has been under a wage dispute as the main issue. The men, refusing an arbitration board's offer of a 10-cent raise, left the job at noon an hour in haste pay to bring it to $1.

Full Provisions Canadian Riot Act Now in Effect

200-Odd Provincial Police Moved in to Keep Order

By ADAM RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Asbestos, Que., May 6 (CP)— Flying squadron of Provincial Police rushed about this strike-bound industrial town today picking up miners believed involved in yesterday's violence and inspector-General Noel Laobe said "the total of those now under arrest is over 100."

Laube, in charge of the 200-odd Provincial Police reinforcements who arrived here at 2 a.m. following clashes with police and miners at barricades, said the arrests have been going on since the reading of the riot act early today.

Until the act was read police were unable to arrest anyone without warrants.

Immediately afterwards the flying squads went out to the homes of those they have indicted on strike for nine weeks.

The men were brought into police headquarters here where they were identified by policemen interested in the clashes when miners set up road blockades to keep strike-breakers out of town.

Taken to Sherbrooke

As the strikers were identified they were taken off to groups of 25 or 30 in police patrols to jail in Sherbrooke, 30 miles away.

Among those arrested were several women. Police said that in Parish on Friday night a Parish Newspaper man who were present said police officers were "beating up" girls. Others of the youths were taken into custody when they tried to run away in police cars.

Another group of 50-odd were found in the basement of the Lutheran Church. When police arrested them they continued to sing hymns and refused to give their clothes, coverlets and names.

Average Labor Union Leader Criticized

Toronto, May 6 (CP)— Prof. C. W. M. Hart, University of Wisconsin, today criticized labor on the effect of trade unionism in the United States. Prof. Hart, a senior stirred controversy, says the average labor union leader "comes from the underworld of the city."

Prof. Hart said in his Windsor speech that the average leader of the United Auto Workers (C. I. O.) of the largest union in the automotive field, "is definitely becoming a dominant force.

He gave a description of the Toronto Personnel Association yesterday in which he said he performed the average labor leader.

"He has little education and practically no background," he said. "He has a keen understanding of human relations, a quick ability and intelligence, but, as long as he is not accepted on the right side of the tracks, all that energy is directed to getting an unfair instead of in projects benefiting all society."

Prof. Hart said that if the union man were not given the co-operation of society other results. He was prepared to work things out on his own, his own way and that is not what there would be intensified. The tracks would become a barricade.

Scores "Possible" In Darts Game

Bill Dunning, member of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans darts team scored the first "possible" since the Belleville government for many years. Fraser is a former mayor of Trenton.

Dunning was playing in a league match and flicked the darts for a "triple 20" to get the highest possible score of 180 points.

The Mosaics of the same team was not so lucky — or at least he got an even break. In a wager with Tommy Scadden of the Navy Foss team, Joe lost his necktie. But he was somewhat back when the ANAF's defeated the Navy Foss in the finals matches.

Coal Mine Strike Spreads to 30 Pits

Manchester, Lancashire, England, May 6 — (CP)—Striking Lancashire coal miners today reported new recruits in their ranks. About 35,000 of Britain's 725,000 have joined the walkout.

The new strike, which began Tuesday in the Accrington and Burnley areas, now has spread to 30 pits, a spokesman for the National Board said.

The walkout started when 260 miners refused to work overtime after the Coal Board rejected their demands for continuation of the traditional "free coal" to miners and their families.

Say Russia Holds Key to Settlement In Pacific Area

Washington, May 6 — (AP) — Western diplomats look to the forthcoming meeting of the Big Four on Germany to give a clue to the chances for an early peace treaty with Japan.

Their view is that Russia holds the key to a lasting settlement in the Pacific as well as in Europe. Unless the Soviet stand at the Paris conference may show whether Moscow is willing to go ahead now with a Japanese treaty.

For almost two years a formal Pacific agreement has been blocked privately by Russian and American differences over which powers should draft the treaty.

16,650 Pounds Sunfish Shipped To Camilla, Ga.

Ever eat a sunfishburger The folks down south, love them. It's really not a fishburger but a sunfish. That is the description given them by people who have heard of them but never tasted one.

This is where the Bay of Quinte sunfish are going for fish processors W. Black and Son, wholesale dealers of fresh water fish, are one of the few companies who supply the southerners with sunfish. This morning a heavy refrigerator truck and its Negro driver pulled away from the warehouse with 16,650 pounds of Sunfish headed for Camilla, Georgia. There by with skinless, boneless fillets of sunfish will be sold to other dealers but a good deal of it will be made into sandwiches. Fisheries in Prescville Bay, Picton and Kingston also supply these American companies.

Black's fisheries would be a good spot for boneless fishburgers to stop off at before facing the loyal opposition with shakey alligator pear salads. While talking about every kind of fish that swims in the fresh waters including eels, channel cats, blue gills, and even if the luck is bad they handle the perch.

Fishing Seasons Are Announced By Department

Just a reminder to the Izaak Waltons.

A recently released bulletin from the Department of Lands and Forests, forwarded by the Chamber of Commerce here notes that the pleasure fishing season will open in Bay of Quinte waters on May 14 and will continue through to April 14, 1950. In Northern Ontario it extends from May 14 to April 14, 1950. In parts of Southern Ontario all areas south of and including the Trent River, Lake Nipissing and the Mattawa it closes on December 31st.

Pickerel must be 13 inches long with a daily limit of six. Perch limits are 25 per day. Bass haulm must be six with a minimum length of 10 inches. Muskinonge must be 30 inches long with a daily quota of two and a general take of 14. You can take out lake trout at the rate of five per day any size.

Pan fish such as perch and sreppies may be taken anytime throughout the province.

City Planning Basis of Talk By Tracy LeMay

"It is reasonable to assume that the population of Belleville may reach 45,000 in 30 years and because of this the planning of the city should be scaled on this basis. Think of what has already been done over a period of years."

Tracy D. LeMay conveyed these thoughts to Belleville residents at a special meeting associated with the Chamber of Commerce at the city hall last night. Mr. LeMay is the Commissioner for city planning of Toronto.

"Planning will only succeed on a community basis," said Mr. LeMay. "Suppose we look at the present condition of this city or of any other city. The taxes are too high and we do not seem to be getting our value. Why is a belt of property and money not set aside to pay its share of the services for education, police, fire, etc. Other taxes have to rise due to the lack of planning.

In larger cities whole areas are being demolished and new premises built up. Cities are not static as they must keep changing. Proper planning can lead these changes along the lines to the best advantage for the future. If we can plan for 30 years how many people should we plan for? We can not be guided by growth, but what of immigration — mixed industry and residential areas to urban areas. These factors produce a larger increase in the urban population.

Provide Shopping Centres

Proper planning can guide residential areas to areas where facilities may be readily supplied. To accomplish this the city planning board must set aside shopping areas, a traffic map showing direction of traffic and pressure points at the city, land use map showing the present use of every piece of property in this city.

Providing shopping centres and determines the amount of commercial area on thoroughfares to service the surrounding communities. Do not set aside too much land for industrial, wheries for commercial use and have it grow up waiting for a waiting for a buyer."

A main highway has no place in a residential area. This traffic must be diverted to a marginal thoroughfare. Plans should also be made for development of houses and properties on the main thoroughfares.

Must Have Financial Plan

"Before a plan starts," continued Mr. LeMay, "a complete financial programme should be produced first if it is to succeed. If it is necessary to finance improvements by debenture issue then this should be planned how this can be met over the next 10 or 20 years. If an orderly system can be secured in the city this can be easily arranged.

It is quite impossible to impel already overcrowded city officials to produce a plan. A full time planning consultant should be employed."

Mr. Jack Trudeau, chairman of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board thanked Mr. LeMay for the interesting and informative talk and he pointed out that up to the present time the plan has been kept in abeyance because of lack of finance.

Mr. Trudeau, who had been present, maps showing drainage, traffic, etc., and a start has been made on a master plan. Mr. Trudeau also spoke briefly on the new proposed super highway that would relieve congestion through the city. The planning Board has one main duty, although it has handicapped them and that is the limited funds available. At the present time they are unable to employ a planning consultant.

Preferred Industry

H. J. Allin, Chairman of Industries, spoke briefly on new industries and pointed out that residential districts should have only preferred industries located near them. He also said that the industries of today are not being built the same as they were years ago. The factories of today

Second Offence Brings Heavy Fine To Transient

Inability of a person to make up their mind sometimes costs money.

Such in the case of a transient drunk who appeared in magistrate's court this morning. On information laid this time, or monday, Magistrate F. N. Wills gave the accused his choice.

Over the weekend police were called to the Belleville Waterworks where they found a drunk was making a nuisance of himself. He was taken to police headquarters where Tuesday morning he pleaded not guilty.

Today he thought he would plead guilty and Magistrate Wills called for Crown witnesses and the accused was convicted on the evidence. It was a second offence.

Fifty dollars and $11 costs, or 61 days in jail," stated the magistrate as he passed sentence. "I will give him the extra time to let him think it over," he added.

Three other first offence drunks paid their guilty and were assessed $10 and costs, or ten days in jail.

Riding Double On Bicycles Will Not be Tolerated

Bicycle riders in the city who in the future persist in giving their friends a "lift" are going to run afoul of the law, and summons will be issued to offenders.

This was warned today by Police Chief Walter Probert who stated that riding double on bicycles is a dangerous practice and must be stopped. Two such offenders were issued summons yesterday, it was stated.

"Riding double on bicyles is a very dangerous practice and offenders are only inviting accidents," stated the chief. "Officers are being instructed to check closely and summons will be issued to offenders."

Street Sweeper Not Working Due To Broken Wheel

The rain of Thursday afternoon which for a period of 20 minutes to half an hour flooded the Front basketsful, served so accomplish what the street sweeper has been unable to do during the past week — to clean the city streets.

It seems that the city street sweeper went and broke one of its wheels, thus throwing it completely out of commission. And while it has been out of action there has been considerable comment on just how dirty the streets were getting.

The city engineering department advises, however, that the replacement part for the street sweeper has arrived and that the sweeper will be back into action just as soon as repairs are effected.

Conservatives Meet May 11th At Collegiate

With writs issued for the Federal election on June 27th, two candidates are already in the field for the Hastings South riding and there remains the nomination of the Progressive Conservative — to be chosen.

Frank Follwell, former mayor of this city, will contest the riding for the Liberals, while Arthur Cole, Canadian National Railways engineer, will be nominated by the C.C.F. party. Both candidates have been holding frequent meetings throughout the riding.

The date of the next sitting has been mentioned as coming before the Progressive Conservative riding convention, which will be held in Belleville Collegiate Auditorium on May 11 when their candidate will be selected.

Mr. George H. Stokes, sitting member for the riding since 1940, will definitely stand for nomination. Other names which have been mentioned as possible aspirants are Arthur L. Burley, W. Harry Rollins, former mayor; R. D. Arnott, also former mayor of this city and M.P.P.; Eric R. Peters, Hastings county clerk; Mayor D. L. Storey, T. C. Clarke of Tweed, the president of the Association and Jack Allin, local alderman.

Seeding Advanced In Prince Edward And S. Hastings

Demand for heifer calves exceeds the supply while there is a keen demand for cows and steers, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

In Prince Edward county it is reported that many farmers are showing keen interest in calves sired by the artificial breeding unit bulls.

In spite of changeable weather fair progress is being made with seeding operations and in well under way in South Hastings. In the northern part of the county, however, seeding is just commencing. In Prince Edward and Hastings some farmers with high well drained land have completed seeding.

Pastures and fall wheat have been making good growth with some cattle reported turned out onto pastures.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 6 (CP)— Increasing selling pressure pushed industrial issues fractionally lower on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity was moderately as Western Oils backed down under profit taking. Golds were up in early dealings but began to weaken in mid-session. Base metals were about balanced.

Volume for the first three hours was 513,000 shares, about 50,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Most changes were held to fractions in the industrial list but key issues showed the widest movements. Utilities, refining oils steels and liquors were losing groups. Papers were quiet and mixed.

Western oils showed the largest declines early in the session and began a slow recovery movement at the half-way mark.

Several small gold issues were very active for narrow advances.

Phone Exchange in City One of Most Active in Ontario, C. of C. Told

Supervisors are constantly, and the public could defer some of the calls to another time of the day when a better service would be given until such time as the system could be installed.

Many Staff Changes

Mr. Proctor reminded the directorate that following the recent tourist operators dinner at Bancroft a local association had been formed and elected an executive with the object of promoting tourist facilities in that area.

At a previous meeting of the board, it endorsed a resolution of the Fort William Chamber of Commerce for the production of an educational motion picture film for motorists to encourage safer driving.

Extra Street Cleaning

The directorate's recommendation to the city council for cleaning of streets on Sunday mornings and Wednesday afternoons had met with satisfactory response. With the co-operation of the fire department cleaning of the streets had been started last Sunday. It was hoped this service will continue.

Taking up the question of the cutting down of trees in the city with no replacements, the board was told that the Parks Board had stated that trees could be planted on public boulevards on residential frontages providing the owner requested the serving.

The City Public Works Department will plant the trees in cooperation with the Parks Board.

People requiring this service should make application right away due to the lateness of the season, it was pointed out.

checking switchboard operators in an endeavor to improve the service to the maximum in view of existing facilities, G. W. Proctor, manager of the Bell Telephone Company branch here told directors of the Chamber of Commerce at a meeting yesterday.

Mr. Proctor told the directorate in answer to a complaint forwarded by that body with reference to telephone service. He stated that very few complaints had been received in his office.

Mr. Proctor pointed out that plans had now been completed for a new Bell Telephone building which will be erected on the corner of Bridge and Church Streets and which will house increased switchboard facilities.

2,700 Installations

He said that with the expansion in the city, the exchange here was one of the most active in Ontario and that since 1939, 2,700 new telephones had been installed, which was far in excess of the per capita growth experienced in any other exchange.

At the end of 1947 there were 300 deferred phone installations and during 1948, 250 phones had been installed. "Four hundred applications are now waiting on that with the continued growth and lack of equipment it was difficult to meet the public demand for service," Mr. Proctor said.

He suggested that the public could help improve the service by looking up their own numbers in the directory. In 85 per cent of the calls for information, numbers are listed in the book. The peak periods of the system are in the morning from ten to 12 noon

The Voice of Labor . . .

Most organizations have a weak link somewhere. The Chamber of Commerce is no exception, and this weakness is, that there is no adequate representation from Labor.

In order to serve the people of the Bay of Quinte District in the fullest sense, the Belleville Chamber of Commerce should represent a cross-section of the people.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is working for the benefit of all citizens, not for a privileged few.

The Voice of Labor should be heard in the council of the Chamber as well as the Voice of Management.

The fees for member firms is twenty-five dollars annually, but to encourage representation from Labor, the fee for their employees is only Ten Dollars.

Why not become enrolled among the Builders of Belleville.

Labor is keenly interested in the building of a better Belleville—so is the Chamber of Commerce.

SAFEGUARDS AGAINST FIRE

Heeding upon everyone is a duty to do everything to prevent fire. Loss is tremendous in property and heavy in lives and suffering of men, women and children. The report for the first quarter of the year in Ontario fortunately shows a smaller material loss but still the loss of life was heavy. There were thirty-three deaths. To this toll are added the injuries of 150 more. Children numbered the greatest toll of life, no fewer than 14 compared with 12 men and 7 women. In burns and injuries men suffered most, 103 being injured along with 16 children and 31 women.

The loss in life and property is the dread cost of fire which gets out of control. A glance at the list of material losses indicates a number of very costly fires. Instances were a $212,000 fire in a school, $200,000 loss in a steel plant, $161,947 damage in a milling plant. Others were less but they ran into a heavy total, meaning a distinct loss to the wealth of the Province. The total loss was given as $4,712,001.

In the 3,041 fires the loss hit a great variety of property, 2,143 protected dwellings and 107 unprotected. Farm risks numbered 180, there were fires in 13 churches, six in hospitals, sanitaria and asylums, one in a public hall, 18 in schools, 16 in institutional buildings, and 17 in warehouses. Others were in 161 stores and office buildings, 20 hotels, in contents of retail stores 19, in food and food products plants, breweries and distilleries and bakeries 16, in flour and cereal mills and grain elevators five, sawmill stations and cut of wood 6, cooperage, box and shingle mill cuts, lumber yards, pulpwood and standing timber 11, woodhouses excluding sawmills 11, metal works, garages and foundries 51, mining risks 2, railway and traction properties, power plants and gasworks two, miscellaneous manufacturing 25, miscellaneous manufacturing 61, and sprinkler risks 48.

Smoking of tobacco is still leading in number of causes of fire with 953 instances for a total loss of $330,911. Stoves and furnaces, the cause of the heaviest total losses, were the second largest cause in number banning 432. Matches play no small role with 146 fires causing total loss of $10,421. Electricity was blamed in 356 instances for loss of over half a million dollars.

Man must always be the master of fire. As a servant of man fire is one of the greatest blessings the race has enjoyed. It has made possible the development of civilization and it holds much in the future. In fact man has to be associated with fire at so many points in the pathway of life. Whether he discovers new methods of heating, still he will be brought face to face with the ever urgent fact that he must be on guard against fire which will become a cruel enemy unless eternal vigilance is used.

THAT LEAN AND HAPPY LOOK

Tradition has taken a sharp somersault in the fight on fatness and consternation is gripping victims of middle-age spread.

It used to be fairly simple. The world loved a fat man because he was jolly, uninhibited and generous. For the thin and bony there was only contempt; to be scrawny was to be mean, suspicious and nine parts vinegar. Casatus, Scrooge and such fellows were lean and nasty. But Falstaff, Hudibras and — to clinch it — Santa Claus were well-cushioned, roly-poly characters with good digestions and good will.

All this has been deflated by the stabbing inquisition of psychiatry. A Chicago medical authority is the latest proponent of a theory that fatness and over-eating are due to worry, a sense of insecurity, juvenility, inadequacy and general frustration.

So what do you do now when you worry about being too fat? As far as we can see you can only worry yourself fatter. And the more you worry about getting fatter through worrying, the fatter you will get.

There is always the pleasant alternative of going insane worrying about those forty miles of extra blood vessels that fat gives you — science offers some plausible escapes at least.

But somehow it seems and that the slightest obese can no longer worry in peace, and that the lean and hungry look must signal a serene and happy outlook even on inflation and dandelions. — Hamilton Spectator.

Never forget what a man has said to you when he was angry. If he has charged you with anything, you had better look it up.—Henry Ward Beecher.

To be angry is to revenge the faults of others on ourselves.—Pope.

JUST FOLKS

WAR

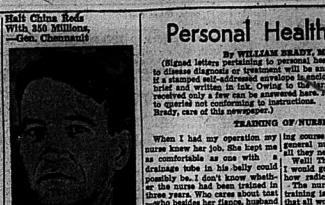
War never grows sweller, or wiser, or cleaner.
The knowledge that gain makes it bitterer,

With every discovery science releases
The terrible horror of warfare increases.

War always grows worse with each man's bettered devices.

The lesser the labor, the greater the price is.
The greater the price is,

by swift methods of dying.
War lengthens the list of the dead and the dying.



By machines all the burdens of men have been lightened;
With leisure their lives have been eased and brightened.
But though searchers for knowledge deny the intention,
War always grows worse with the latest invention.

Mr. Charles N. Sulman is spending today in Kingston.

Several handsome new suites are bouncing about the city streets these days and Cupid is imagine anything which would settle one's dinner better than a set ride in auto upon the "smooth" streets in Belleville.

A large crowd was at the armouries last night to witness a fifteen-mile race in which seven competitors started, but only two went the full distance. Shortly after nine o'clock Lieut. Col. Thomas Stewart started the runners on their long jaunt. The following started: F. Vickers, E. Wallace, C. Wallace, H. Greene, A. Burman and F. Moxam. Eleven laps around the interior of the armouries constituted a mile, at the start all the boys ran fast and Stewart, interested in the pace and took the lead which he maintained to the finish. His time was given as 1 hour and 40 minutes. Charles Wallace was the only other to consistently finish. Pat Jennings was referee.

50 YEARS AGO
May 6th., 1899.

The tug Resolute passed down the bay yesterday afternoon with a large tow of cedar for the Rathbun Company, Deseronto.

The sailing yachts Norah and Iolanthe are being outfitted for the season.

A large crowd assembled in Holloway Street Methodist Church last evening to hear a debate as to the probability of the fall of the British Empire. The speakers for the affirmative were F. O'Flynn and D. Barragar and the negative side was supported by W. Knight and W. B. Northgrave. The vote was compiled by the Rev. Dr. Galbraith. The fortune was F. O. Mikel and F. Fitch Jeffers, and they gave their decision in favor of the negative. Mayor O'Flynn orchestra furnished pleasing music.

FOCAL POINTS OF MALICE

Prejudice is one of the most devastating of the world's vices. The word means prejudging, or judging before one has all the facts. It is bad enough to judge one's fellows unduly any circumstances, but to judge before one has reviewed all the facts involved in the case may be a mistake of tragic proportions.

Someone has said that prejudice is being down on what you are not up on. The more we know about an issue, the more judicious will our attitude probably be. The more we know about a person, the less likely we are to hate that person. The people against whom we nurse the deepest animosities are usually public characters whom we have never even seen.

We are told that the populations of southeastern Europe, people on one side of a river, on one side of a mountain, have for generations carried on the deadliest kind of strife against people living on the other side of the river or mountain. There are many who believe that we can never have peace in the world because of these little pockets of intensified prejudice. But what a crime it would be to forego any such attempt. The way to have world organization is to have a world filled with men of good will. And the best way to die is vigorously to go after the focal points of infection which hate and prejudice flow.

Heifer Falls Into Deep Well But is Rescued

The American farmer whose cow jumped into a well and landed on a Deseronto farmer whose heifer jumped down a well at his farm on Tuesday.

Owner of the cow, Don Whitton, attributed the cow's predicament to have been the result of "plain curiosity." But the heifer was rescued, apparently uninjured.

Mr. Whitton said the cow wandered into the well house and in investigating the well toppled in. The cow, using the pump pipe, escaped a broken leg and being drowned.

Farmer neighbors answered the alarm and after an hour's work with block and tackle attained a hastily erected scaffold, hauled the animal from the well.

The fact that it was a small cow, a heifer, was of considerable assistance in the successful rescue.

Berlin Air Lift Huge Influence In Welding West

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

The heroic air lift which finally broke the blockade of the Russian blockade of Berlin has been a labor of love-and-one but in many respects, but on balance it represents blessings and illegacies for the western Allies.

The air-lift has been an unprecedented achievement from the technical skill, vast resources of organization and determination—all of Allied unity.

Because the air lift represents all these things it is not double as I see it, that it must have huge influence in welding together the countries of western Europe into the Atlantic pact. The air lift has been a mighty builder of morale among the democracies.

Dangerous Task

But that isn't the whole story. This grueling and dangerous task which even has cost lives, has provided Britain, the United States and their Allies with technical knowledge which could have tremendous value in the days which might be invaluable in event of another war.

Fearsome Trip

The biggest six-lift operation in the Berlin drama was the trip "pump" to Singapore to bolster up defenses southeast Asia and China. The journey over the bump was a fearsome one. In peace time there was the ever-present danger of a crash, but the big cargo ships used to lurk in the clouds, waiting to shoot down the Allied transports. But the cargo air lift did a great job with scanty equipment but it was a tremendous feat of the Berlin lift. Now, thanks to the Russian blockade, the Allies have had an unparalleled experience which might have taken years to acquire otherwise.

However, we have gained all the knowledge we need for the time being, thanks. We don't want any further experience.

So we trust Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain is justified in his hope that the forthcoming big-four meeting on the German question will be the basis for a lasting settlement.

TRAINING OF NURSES

When I had my operation my nurse knew how I like kept me as comfortable as one with a drainage tube in his belly could possibly be. I don't know whether or the nurse had been trained in three years. Who cares about that —who besides her fiance, husband or maybe her old man who foots the bills? When I needed a nurse I didn't inquire into her knowledge of the arts or her scholastic career. Her ability to keep me comfortable was all I cared about.

Many years ago I obtained and I still believe that any healthy girl with two years of high school work or its equivalent is qualified for entrance into the hospital training school, and that on satisfactory completion of a two-year course of such training she should be graduated as a competent professional nurse.

Any correspondent writing from a college address reminds me that girls who graduate from high school are usually fifteen year old bobby-soxers. I still honestly entrust my care at a critical time to a bobby-soxer?

No, I would not. I would favor the admission of a bobby-soxer to the hospital training school, but no one could make the grade anyway.

Another correspondent argues that—

"The very fact that human lives are at stake makes it all the more important that nursing be recognized as a profession which calls for the highest possible education that is required in any profession."

Nonsense. That fact kills nursing. The silly notion that nursing is a profession is the curse of the sort. A nurse is a skilled worker, who, if she knows her business, carries out what the physician orders. If she does or tries to do more than obey the doctor's orders she becomes ipso facto a nuisance and a menace.

Nursing is a calling, a noble calling second only to motherhood itself, and when that's let not be silly, girls, nursing be made a profession.

A surgeon who is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons sends a clipping of a newspaper report of an address by an educator, who, it seems, specializes on schools of nursing that educate. Here now is that many of the functions that have been performed by the trained nurse can be taken over by the doctor's only one year's training etc. The surgeon adds in a letter that about the three-years nurse train-

Toronto Models Set Pay Rate

Toronto, May 6 — (CP) — Toronto's professional models have organized in an effort to get higher pay and improve working conditions at their work of fashion-plate clothing.

Some 25 of them met Thursday night and set an objective of a minimum salary of $40 a week. They established a basic minimum scale for models at work of $10 a day and $1.50 an hour for evening work.

They will operate from their own agency to work from. At the meeting John Burnand said he would dissolve his own modelling agency and turn the business over to the girls to operate.

Present weekly pay is as low as $30 and Montreal manufacturers showing recently in Toronto have cut daily rates to $7.50.

Toronto, May 6 — (CP)—Ontario farmers have almost double the use of agricultural limestone for soil improvement in the past year, Ontario Department of Agriculture reported yesterday. Since 1942 the amount of limestone used on the province's farms has increased 120 per cent.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GET SELF-ACQUAINTED

How very little we know about ourselves — but how much we may know if we will do so! Many of our personal happiness depends upon getting along well with ourselves. We know ourselves better than others do, and yet we quarrel with ourselves. Seldom do we ourselves first as your best friend! Every hour of the day and night you are with yourself. Yours, so it follows that you ought to keep on the best of terms with yourself at all times if you would be happier.

A human life needs to be well-organized just as much as a business. Those who succeed life is the most efficient, as well as the healthiest and happiest. Too many folks blame others for the misfortunes that should be scored to themselves.

Get perfectly acquainted and your personal power and influence will mount. Your worries will drop away and you will be surprised at your buoyancy of spirit. Keep on the best terms with yourself. You are your best friend!

It is not surprising that there are so many people who cannot get along with others when they do not seem to know how to get along with themselves. Montaigne retired to his castle for this one purpose — to examine and delve into himself, and from this process the world has famous essays that have lived these hundreds of years. He knew the better we know others, especially those nearest and dearest to us. We, in turn, reveal ourselves to others that they may get a better understanding of themselves.

The most famous statement of Socrates is summarized in the words: "Know thyself!" Get self-acquainted and the problems and problems are sure to be solved. You will then go forward in a manner to a triumphant life experience.

Commissioner Considering Case Of 14 Seamen

Canberra, May 5 — (Reuters) — Kenneth A. Greene, Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, said Thursday he is considering the position of 20 Canadian seamen stranded in Australia after having 14 days in jail.

The seamen are the crew of the Canadian freighter Triberg, convicted on a charge of refusing the captain's order to take the ship to sea.

The crew's action was in support of the Canadian Seamens' Union in its dispute with the rival Seamens' International Union (A. F. L.).

The Australian Seamen's Union had asked the High Commissioner to assist the men while in Australia and to obtain passage home for them. The issue now is whether the men are entitled to be repatriated by the shipping company concerned, or whether they should be assisted by the Canadian government.

DRIVE IS ON—The spring log drive to move pulp cut in Canada's forests during the winter to the mills is one of the characteristics of Canadian life. This drive is now in full swing with the rivers and streams carrying their cargoes as they have since the 17th century. Eighty per cent of the annual harvest is moved this way. This photo by Malak of Ottawa shows the rushing torrent carrying the logs to the mills from the Gatineau district, with the lumberjacks guiding the drive. (CP Photo)

SLOWED BY DAMS—The amount of pulpwood a river or stream can deliver to a paper mill during the spring drive is determined by the amount of water the surrounding area pours into it. This also determines the amount of lumber that can be cut. To increase this stream flow dams are built in many places to add to the waters. This photo by Malak of Ottawa shows the logs moving slowly between two dams on the Tamachie River in the Gatineau district. The lumberjacks shown here are part of the 30,000 who move the logs down the waterways. (CP Photo)

LOG JAM—This graphic photo by Malak of Ottawa illustrates one of the major problems lumbermen face in moving the logs from where they are cut to the big pulp and paper mills. Rushing through a narrow channel on the Tamachie River, these logs have started to pile up and are starting to jam in the river. The logs continue to rush into the jam and the river showers them with spray. Canada's forestry bring wealth to Canada more than $1,900,000 a year, half of which comes from pulp and paper operations. Canadian Wheat Will be Bought By Earned Dollars

London, May 5 — (CP)—Britain will continue to buy Canadian wheat, using earned dollars to finance purchases instead of Marshall Plan funds, Food Minister John Strachey told a press conference today.

"This means a good deal of additional saving," he said, "but we will continue to purchase wheat under our agreement with Canada."

Strachey was replying to a question in a rolling House of Commons that dollars allocated by the Economic Co-operation Administration cannot be used to finance British purchases of food of which there may be a surplus in the United States.

Brighteners

Reno, Nev. — (AP) — Reno gamblers who glory in bright lights, whisky waterfalls and tons of silver dollars, have come up with a new wrinkle.

They're going to pave Douglas Alley with gold.

The city agreed today to allow embedding of 24 quarts ore during the paving process next week.

Douglas Alley runs between Virginia and Center streets in the downtown gambling club district.

But whether the alley will look as alluring as it sounds is a matter for debate.

Some veterans miners contend that a quart ore carrying only $4 a ton in gold is going to look pretty much like ordinary alley concrete.

Prospectors Using Aircraft To Locate Mineral Treasures

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Lake Success, N. Y., May 6 — (CP)—Modern prospectors are dropping their picks to climb into aircraft where a twist of a dial leads them to hidden mineral treasures.

The exploration technique has been revolutionized and a complete change of routine and survey procedure has taken place," says Hans Lundberg, Toronto mining expert.

Cost of the new air-prospecting method is one-tenth to one-twentieth of the outmoded ground surveying, says Lundberg in a paper to be presented at the three-week world science conference scheduled to open here Aug. 17.

The paper, under the geophysical methods is as old in mineral exploration"—was released today by the United Nations which will conduct the conference.

Lundberg explains that surveys of areas possibly bearing oil or ore now are being made with magnetic-measuring instruments in aircraft. Soon, he says, electrical and gravity surveys will be air-borne.

"During the Second World War the astounding developments in aviation and electronics made it possible to realize the prospector's dream of geophysical exploration from the air," he says.

The new routine, tried in Canada, the United States, Sweden, South Africa and Russia, has proved cheaper, faster and more revealing of possibilities than the old ground surveys, he added.

Lundberg emphasized the penniless benefits of using a helicopter which can hover low for taking more accurate recordings on the survey instruments.

He says:

"The cost of geophysical prospecting as compared with the old methods is so low that it has completely revolutionized the attitude towards exploration work and encouraged the greatly expanded prospecting activities which, before the Second World War, resulted in the phenomenal increase in oil and ore reserves."

He says a reconaissance flight using airborne magnetic and electrical equipment for prospecting will make possible quick classification of large areas hitherto inaccessible as to whether they will yield profitable minerals.

Battle Against Colorado Beetle Enters New "More Hopeful" Phase

By NORMAN CREBBENE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, May 6 (CP)—The fight against the Colorado beetle in western Europe has entered on a new and "more hopeful" phase.

Next month a concentrated assault is planned on the beetle in the continent peninsula, where its presence is a continual menace to the potato industry of the Channel Islands.

Last year protective zones along the frontiers of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg and the northern frontier of France were established by repeated spraying of crops. Results have been encouraging.

In May, as soon as the beetle emerges from hibernation, 130,000 acres of potatoes in northern France will be sprayed from helicopters.

In many parts of the continent regulations have been in force since 1947 forbidding import of vegetables after the end of March without a certificate stating there has been "no outbreak of Colorado beetle within 50 kilometres of place of origin" in the previous 12 months.

Never Naturalized

In Britain the Colorado beetle has never succeeded in naturalizing itself, though it has appeared many times since 1933—usually in the neighborhood of seaports or of railway lines connected with them.

"These appearances are certainly due to importation from the continent notably of fresh vegetables," a Ministry of Agriculture official said.

After the Second World War the British Ministry of Agriculture prohibited vegetables from beetle-infested countries.

"This was a serious economic blow to some of our Allies and to Britain, the loss of a valuable food import," the official said.

"Imports of vegetables from Jersey were prohibited in 1946 and 1947.

"But Jersey crops are still threatened by Colorado beetles from France and it costs Jersey men more than £1 ($4) a head each year to repel them.

Mother's Day

MOTHER'S DAY

In these glad days of greening earth and sunshine
Days when you felt the spirit of the spring—
When singing birds and May-time blooming lilacs
Woke in your heart a happy carolling.
When all the joy held in your heart's deep treasure,
Overflowed in love and laughter from your eyes,
We set apart to thee a day most sacred,
Who dwellest now beyond the azure skies.

A time most fitting to thy memory, mother,
When all the earth is throbbing with new life,
Whose days were sweet, sublime, in spite of struggle,
When warring worlds were torn by strain and strife.
Deep in our hearts, thy memory, fresh and fragrant,
Gives us the courage in life's trials to sing,
Trusting and waiting till again we meet you,
In heavenly lands where always it is spring.

Friends Honor Neighbors on Eve of Departure

Shannonville — A large number of old friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murphy on Thursday evening to pay their respects to this well - known couple on their departure to Belleville. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy have recently sold their home and farm to Mr. and Mrs. Revill of Toronto, and are going to reside for the present with their daughter, Mrs. Bolton and Mr. Bolton of Belleville.

Mrs. Murphy came to this farm as a bride some 37 years ago, and was formerly Miss Eva Oliver, a school teacher from Deseronto. She has always taken a very keen interest in the activities of the Shannonville Church, as a member of the choir and past president of the Women's Association. She is also a member of the Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Murphy kindly consented to act as treasurer of the local Blue Cross Hospitalization Plan in connection with the Women's Association. She has also played a prominent part in the Quinte Women's Institute for some years.

Mr. Murphy is also well known in the district and for some years he owned a threshing machine. He has always been a good neighbor, and their home was always open house.

Mrs. Ross Shetler read a very appropriate address to Mr. and Mrs. Murphy, voicing the thoughts and sentiments of all present. Mr. Claude Clark and Mr. Sam Elliott presented Mr. and Mrs. Murphy with a lovely mirror. Mrs. Clarke presented Mrs. Murphy with an automatic electric iron. Mrs. Frank Dorsator presented Mr. Murphy with an electric razor in a handsome leather case, and Mrs. Sam Elliott presented the departing couple each with a cup and saucer.

These beautiful gifts were just small tokens of the esteem of their friends, present for Mr. and Mrs. Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy thanked the friends for the gifts, and for being present on the eve of their departure from their old home, and extended an invitation to all to visit them at anytime in Belleville.

The pastor of their church, Rev. A. W. Loughead mentioned the fact that leaving old friends was always a sad task. He realized citizens such as the Murphys would always be missed in a community, that Shannonville's loss would be Belleville's gain.

"For They are Jolly Good Fellows" was sung and delicious refreshments were served, bringing the evening to a close. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will be leaving this community in the next week, and the good wishes of a host of friends go with them.

Faille Picture Dress

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

SOPHIE took a tulip petal motif for this evening skirt, bordering the skipper blue faille with white French lace to accent the lips of the petals.

With its portrait neckline and slim waistline, the gown is a good entrance dress, more practical than its chic would suggest, as it requires no special under pinnings and can be slipped into gracefully after a quick shower, when time presses toward dinner and after a hectic day.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By Mrs Cornelia Brierley

A Mother's Worry Over Her Daughter

As I have often said before, parents can control or help their children only up to a certain point. Beyond that point they must stand by and allow them to run their own lives.

Where the children have normal normality, the normality works out for the best, in the long run. Where they are abnormal, usually they can help it heartbreak all around.

A worried mother has written me about her thirty-year-old daughter's ill-advised romance with a man, who is separated from his wife and, unless he divorces her, the man's business is one he can't completely go good, and what she tells me of his behavior toward the girl does not indicate he will. He not only fails to support her, but drinks excessively and, when what she was ill and has neither come back to her nor sent her money for life.

"My daughter knows all these things about him," the mother writes, "but says that he made a mistake in his marriage and is very fine, except for drinking. I know his wife and daughter does not honor her and doesn't want to see her. My husband and I have tried every way to break up the relationship, but my daughter threatens to leave home and live her life as she sees fit.

"She has unfortunately hurt one woman and I fear that she will hurt me. Now that I'm ill with the situation?"

I am afraid that this mother's fears are not completely justified, but even so, I doubt if there is anything we can do but wait for the best. The daughter is obviously not going to take our advice, and any less decision, from her parents. If she is not capable of good judgment and, even at decision at 30 years of age, there is nothing that can be done about it.

The mother asks where she has failed and her daughter should have no better standards and no better wisdom. It would be impossible to answer this question without knowing more about how she got where she is today. Some children brought up, and what she had and a charming child.

Maternal success will never be measured by anything in this world. If the mother can keep her head above water and her heart from breaking, and try to be as understanding as possible, she will have done all she can. If her grown daughter finds by condemning and arguing with her.

A cool head built in layers is the inspiration for cosmetics produced by Helena Rubinstein. It would be lovely for covering sunburn and freckles or plotches.

Beautiful Bridal Gown

By ALICE ALDEN

Now is the season of the spring bride, a lovely picture dressed in the traditional white, whether it be satin, lace or taffeta Doris Day of the film poses in an exquisite bridal gown of white lace, modified into a long sleeved, high-throated bodice that tops a many-layered, flowing skirt of tulle. Beneath it all is a whispering slip of white taffeta. Bridal illusion, a lovely sweep of tulle fastened to a headdress cupped of white lace sits snugly to the head, forming an interesting shadow halo. A mass of lilies of the valley is a novel bridal bouquet.

Fashion Flashes

Distinctly a novelty is the collection of fur cardigan "sweaters" shown by a few women fanciers. One is of white American broadtail, with pockets of sleeves, bottom and edged with wide gold galloon.

Doll dressing is a feature of the new spring silk jersey dress now beginning to appear. Navy blue jersey with a full black is used for a handsome dinner gown with an offshoulder sleeveless bodice. Soft folds of the skirt are draped across the front to a soft-curving low line, falling in a full panel in back. Skirt is ankle-length.

Watch out for a new line in coats. The coat is full length, cut on straight, slim lines, with wide, straight tuxedo fronts buttoned back with big, fingerprint leather buttons. Noted here and there this spring it is accepted by register as coats designed for Fall wear.

A strong contender for Summer millinery lament is the well-heeled hat of cotton fabric. A beautiful sailor is fashioned of red and white checked gingham with the underbrim dotted in white piqué, which is an applique of flat flowers in the gingham. A cluster of gingham flowers forms the crown which was shown with a white piqué dress.

Crisp fabrics continue to register. A good-looking afternoon dress is of pale grey jacquard weave taffeta made with a cross-draped bodice and neckline framed by a big collar. The skirt pulls across the front in an interesting line and ends in a big puff at the side.

BEAUTY

Long May The Permanent Wave

This is the season of the year when the hard-working housewife throws her home into a state of confusion—cleaning, scouring, painting. When the chores are done again and the curtains up and she regards her success with a righteous sense of satisfaction, she pays herself a well-earned reward. She beats it to the beauty shop for a permanent and a brand new hair-do. Spring days are ahead. Picnics and summer sports. She's going to have the old head looking trim and neat.

If she is wise, she will condition her natural wool for the new wave. The more relaxed the shafts, the more likely that the condition will be strong. During the home-cleaning ordeal she has many about appearance, can keep her head wrapped up most of the time, for it is not to be hot out at bedtime. Mineral oil serves, is easily removed by the shampoo.

Give the Scalp a Brisk Massage

The hair should have a rousing brushing, be parted at various places, the hot oil applied along the partings. One can use a small brush for the purpose, a large medicine dropper or a pledget of cotton. After an even distribution, place fingers and thumbs on the head, give the scalp a brisk massage, if there are signs of dandruff, this treatment will prove helpful. The longer the oil remains on, the more effective the results.

All permanent wave methods are good these days, even the home ones that say such a joy to the many teen-agers who cannot afford professional attention. The cold process, of course, is more comfortable than the older hard-boiled way, and produces a curl that is closer to the scalp.

The results depend upon the operator. One who is conscientious and well-trained will be able to put a satisfactory undulation in almost any type of hair. Hurried work is bound to be disappointing, and, if you have a date to be turned into a curly girl, arrange to give the perator plenty of time. Every step must be thorough. The slightest sign of soap left in the hair means that the shafts will not contract into pretty ringlets, nor will the wave endure for the customary period.

Permanent waving is a particular, painstaking operation. There are right ways and wrong ways of doing it. If you find an operator who pleases you, stick to him or her. I don't say that all hair will bloom into a glorious crown. Thin, silky hair can be difficult and difficult to arrange after-

GOOD MANNERS

The Correct Use of "Reverend". Always Precede by "The"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our group the other day the discussion arose as to the correct use of the word "Reverend" as related to a minister of religion. Just what constitutes the correct form? As I always find the people are confused about this. Will you please explain the correct use for us? (And please tell us when the term "Reverend Black" is correctly used.)

T. W.

The first thing to remember is: "Reverend" is not a title...like "Doctor," "Governor," "Colonel," "Captain." Therefore to say or write "Reverend Brown" (as one would say or write "Doctor Brown" or "Captain Brown" is incorrect. No theological or any other school awards the title of "Reverend" or a title of "Reverend."

"Reverend" is simply an adjective of courtesy and respect. And because it is an adjective, not a title, it should always be preceded by THE...The Reverend John Brown. The written address for a Protestant minister without scholastic degree is: The Reverend John Brown. If he has a scholastic degree (D.D. for example, or LL. D.), the written address form is: The Reverend John Brown, D.D., or The Reverend Dr. Brown. For Roman Catholic and Greek Orthodox priests and for Anglican priests who are ordained as "Father," the correct form for the written address is: The Reverend Father Samuel J. Sheridan, S. J.

"The Reverend," is correct usage, is exactly like "The Honorable," also an adjective of courtesy and respect, in writing to a clergyman, we say: "The Reverend John Brown," in writing to a senator or representative, for example, "The Honorable John Allen." THE always before "Reverend" or "Honorable."

In speaking to, or introducing a Protestant minister say, "Mr. Brown," or if he hold the degree of Doctor of Divinity or other scholastic degree, say, "Dr. Brown" (Never address him or introduce him as "Reverend Brown," or as "Reverend.") Roman Catholic priests, Greek Orthodox priests and Anglican priests are addressed as "Father."

A Lutheran minister is addressed as "Pastor."

Tip For a Masseuse

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one has an hour's massage given by a masseuse employed in a beauty parlor or in a gymnasium what tip should be given her?

Ellen K.

Fifty cents is the customary tip.

To Say How Long at a Luncheon?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How long is one expected to stay at a luncheon...say a luncheon set for quarter after one o'clock?

E. L. H.

Guests at a quarter-after-one luncheon would usually leave about half-past two, or between that and three o'clock.

On Which Side, Salad Plate?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When salad is served with the main course, on which side of the dinner plate should the salad plate be placed?

W. E.

Either side is correct. It is easier to reach if placed at the right side of the plate, but usually there is more room to place it on the left side. In a restaurant it is fairly standard practice to place the salad plate on the left side of the luncheon or dinner plate...but if you like it would be more convenient to have the plate on the right, you may change it to the right side.

Serves 40 Years As Hospital Maid

Montreal — (CP) — After 40 years as a hospital maid serving meal-trays and cleaning wards, Ward at the Ross Memorial Pavilion of the Royal Victoria Hospital, cheerful Hilda Wren talks of retirement as something that is still a long time coming.

"Perhaps I'll retire sometime," she says, "but I want to work as long as I can."

Miss Wren, better known simply as Hilda by both hospital staff and patients, today still gives about her work with the same energy she displayed in 1910 when she first went to work at the hospital. She was then 20, and had just arrived from her native Surrey, England.

Popular with everyone she met, thoughtful Hilda has almost become a legend. She knows most of the patients in her ward by name and unerringly remembers their favorite and aversions.

Preparing the trays for each meal is part of her job, and her ability to remember how a patient likes his or her eggs, or whether the fruits with their cereals is well-known.

Hilda returned to her home in 1922 but she became lonely for the hospital and returned after six months.

"I had to come back," she says, "I couldn't stand being away."

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

The Reasonableness Of Religion

By ROY L. SMITH

Among the ancient Jews there was a sentence which was of supreme authority. It was inscribed on the breastplate of the high priest (as it is also today); they began their day by saying it, and it was a score of times each day they repeated it in the midst of stress and strain, in the hours of recreation, in seeking their faith and increasing their knowledge.

It was the rock base of all their theology, the moral equivalent of the Euclidean list of Rights and the Constitution of the United States. Somewhat less Global. It had formed the catalyst around which all their religious life had organized itself.

God is One God

One of the scholars among the Temple authorities put the question scientifically to Jesus: What is the most important of all the commandments? And the Master answered quite frankly, and with complete orthodoxy, "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God is one Lord."

Immediately thereafter, however, he did an astounding thing. He added to the sentence (Deuteronomy (6:4) the first form of this great saying is to be found, and Jesus quoted it. If anyone wants to take the trouble to look up the matter up, he will discover that the ancient command required that men should love the Lord with all their "heart," "soul" and "might." To these Jesus added, "with all thy mind."

Clear Thinking and Good Religion

Here is a very close connection between clear thinking and good religion.

We are living in an exact world, every scientist knows. The laws which operate in the chemist's laboratory do not vary according to the convenience or the opinion of the chemist. The laws of engineering do not bend to the preferences of the engineer. What a man thinks about his mental life, or his bloodstream will not change the facts.

Jesus had the human mind in great respect. He believed that accurate reasoning and clear thinking was a following out of the path of truth which had been laid out by God himself. We think straight was to think alongside of God.

It is not the function of man to change God, but to change himself so that he will harmonize with God. Man's opinions concerning God do not alter the divine character. Good religion aims to harmonize man and his thinking with God and his thoughts.

The Sunday School lesson for May 8: "The Clash with Religious Authority," Mark 11:27-12:44.

The best praying, for instance, does not alter God but it does alter man. It does not change the course of the universe; it changes the course of the man who prays while trying to live in harmony with the universe of which he is a part.

No Truth Surprises God

The true Christian is a man who worships a God who cannot be surprised by the revelation of any truth, for He is the author of all truth. If anything is actually true, then God knows it, for He made it true. And if it is true it fits into the total scheme of truth somewhere, for there can be no contradictions inside of truth.

This means that no one group of Christians holds any monopoly on truth. If anything is true — really true—it belongs to all Christians on equal terms.

Good religion is Exact

Good religion is like exact chemistry; it is an effort to reduce the facts and experiences of life to precise terms. It endeavors to discover the laws according to which the spiritual life of man operates, for just as there are laws which govern in the laboratory, so also there are laws which govern in one's spiritual nature. It would be incredible to believe that the body was obedient to law, that the mind was subject to law, and that the spirit was free from all rules or regulations.

With All Thy Mind

There is a sense in which it is true that clear thinking is actually religious as a devout action. No man can really serve a God of truth who is not seeking truth, and to find truth one must serve God with all his mind.

The Mixing Bowl

By ANNE ALLEN

(Hydro Home Economist)

There may be many ways to serve fish, but baked in aluminium foil will suit me anytime. The main reason is perhaps the good flavor we get when we eat it at the table in preference to the menu in the house at bedtime, whenever that may be. The juicy steam cooked when you wrap it in cookery parchment foil or paper so you don't lose the delicacies but we smother it with egg or tomato sauce, gravy, . . .

Leftover fish makes a favorite dish in the form of cakes or loaf. Tell candidates to bring well mashed potatoes well, beating until fluffy and free from lumps. Then chill the mixture until it can be handled easily when shaping into cakes. Use only sufficient fat to cover the bottom of the frying pan. When you look over our recipe you will see that fish cakes are easy to make. And if you make your meal preparations well in advance the patties are better. They may be made in the morning, covered and set in the refrigerator to chill. Then at dinner time they can be cooked in a minutes. Even the sauce is serve with fish may be cooked in advance and reheated while the cakes are browning.

Baked Stuffed Fillets

Dip 3 large fillets in salted milk (1 tablespoon salt to 1 cup milk). Place on oiled aluminum foil in a shallow pan. Cover one-half the fillet with stuffing made as follows: Mix 1 cup soft bread crumbs with 1 cup chopped celery, 3 tablespoons melted butter or shortening, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, half teaspoon savory seasoning and half teaspoon salt.

Dip 3 more fillets in salted milk and place on top of the stuffing. Wrap paper over fish. Bake in very hot electric oven (450 degrees) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 400 degrees and bake 25 minutes longer. Serve with tomato sauce or egg sauce. Yield: about 8 servings.

Egg Sauce

3 tablespoons butter or shortening
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 1-2 cups milk
3 tablespoons flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped

Melt butter and flour fat. In top part of double boiler. Add flour mustard and salt and blend. Add milk and cook over hot water, stirring constantly until thick. Add chopped hard cooked eggs. Serve hot with fish cakes.

Quick Tomato Sauce

2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons chopped green celery
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1-2 cup water
1-4 teaspoon chili powder or a few drops tobasco sauce.

Melt fat in heavy saucepan or frying pan. Add onion and green celery. Cook gently for 3 minutes.

Do not let onion become too brown.

Add water and simmer gently for 5 minutes. Add tomato soup and chili powder or tobasco. Heat and serve.

Fish Cakes

2 cups cooked fish
2 cups mashed potatoes
1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon margarine
salt and pepper
milk

Breakfast Food Can be Interesting

By KAY REID

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa (CP)—Breakfast fell to lurried into the most interesting meal of the day—if the housewife is the kind of person who likes experimenting with new recipes.

For instance, here's an idea to be given a new look—and with little added effort on the part of the cook.

Egg-in-a-Nest: Carefully separate the yolk from the white of one egg. Beat the white until it stands in stiff peaks—and pile on a slice of thinly-buttered toast. Make a hollow in the beaten white and into this drop the yolk of the egg. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Place in oven long enough for the egg white to brown.

Johnny Cake also is a dish which the family will regard as a special breakfast treat.

Ingredients: one cup flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two-thirds cup sugar, one cup cornmeal, one cup sweet milk, one egg, three tablespoons melted butter or shortening.

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt, sugar, several times. Add cornmeal. Add to this a well beaten egg which has been mixed with milk. Stir the liquid gradually into the dry ingredients. Pour mixture into a greased hollow pan. Bake in a hot oven 30 to 30 minutes.

Shredded Wheat Muffins — Ingredients: 1 1-4 cups sifted flour; three teaspoons salt; one-quarter cup brown sugar (firmly packed); four shredded wheat biscuits, finely rolled; one cup milk; one beaten egg; one-quarter cup melted shortening or salad oil.

Sift flour, baking-powder and salt. Add sugar. Mix in the shredded wheat; combine milk, egg and shortening; add to flour mixture; stir only until blended. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven 25 minutes. Makes 12 muffins.

Shredded Wheat Griddle Cakes — Ingredients: 2 1-2 cups sifted flour; three teaspoons baking-powder; two tablespoons sugar; one teaspoon salt; one-quarter cup shortening; three shredded wheat biscuits, finely crumbled; two eggs, beaten; two cups milk.

Sift together flour, baking-powder, sugar and salt. Cut shortening until fine as meal. Add shredded wheat. Combine eggs and milk; pour over dry ingredients and stir only until dampened. Drop batter by spoonfuls, spreading thinly, on lightly greased hot griddle. When cakes puff and bubble, turn and brown. Serve hot with honey or syrup. Make 14 large cakes.

Frozen Fruits And Vegetables Booklet Issued

The garden fresh flavor and attractive appearance of frozen products are now familiar to Canadian consumers. What is not generally known, however is the ease with which these products are prepared. If care is used in selecting high quality products, and good freezing facilities are available, preparation becomes comparatively simple in relation to other methods of preserving, says W. R. Phillips, Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The housewife can save herself many hours of work over a hot stove during the summer. She can also avoid to a great extent, all the trouble and worries of obtaining an air tight seal on preserving jars. For fruits it is just a question of normal cleaning and preparation as you would do for serving fresh. Sugar or syrup is added and the product is frozen and stored at 0 degrees Fahrenheit. The only additional work involved with vegetables is that they have to be blanched. This process consists of a short dip in boiling water.

The commercial processor and locker plant operators apply exactly the same principles. With large scale operations, certain problems do arise which make the process more complex. A recent publication, Frozen Fruits and Vegetables, is now available at the Division of Horticulture, Central Experimental Farm, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. This publication was designed to assist in solving problems in the frozen fruit and vegetable industry.

There are many householders who want to build their own freezing equipment. Experimental units so built have now been satisfactorily operated for several years. Plans and construction details are available in a pamphlet entitled Household Freezer and Storage. This pamphlet can also be obtained from the Division of Horticulture.

Steelworkers Take Lead in Demanding Raise

Pittsburgh, May 6 (CP) — The United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) yesterday took the lead in demanding a fourth-round pay increase, and indications were today that several other big C.I.O. unions would follow the leader.

Thus workers in the "big four" of American industry—steel, coal, automobiles and electrical appliances—want more money now and a guarantee of security in the future.

The coal miners, members of John L. Lewis' unaffiliated United Mine Workers, will concentrate on benefits.

Philip Murray, President of both C.I.O. and the Steelworkers has become more indefinite on pension since Lewis obtained them for his U.M.W. members.

The U.M.W. finances its $100-a-month pensions out of a health and welfare fund financed entirely by 30-cents-a-ton royalty payments by coal operators. There's every indication Lewis will ask the operators to up the royalty 10 cents in the contract expiring June 30.

There's talk, too, about wage raises but the emphasis seems to be on pensions and welfare plans.

The United Automobile Workers, the organization declared pensions the No. 1 objective in forthcoming wage talks.

The electrical industry combines the "big four." This industry too, has a C.I.O. union — the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers. Union executives have predicted a three- to a $500 annual "package" boost. The "package" would include an unspecified wage increase, improvements in pension and health plans and a shorter work week.

ENROLL IN COURSE

Kitchener, May 6 — (CP) — Two hundred students from 12 rural schools in Wilmot township have enrolled in a reforestation program that will eventually plant about 100,000 trees on a new county farm near Petersburg, west of here. A similar job is being done at Shelburne, some 38 miles north of here, where 7,000 "scrubby" acres were recently planted in less than three hours by 120 boys and girls from Shelburne High School.

PRINCIPALS IN ESTATE BATTLE

Two of the four principals engaged in battle over the estate left by the late great comedian, W. C. Fields have a friendly chat in the main court in Los Angeles, Calif. They are William Rexford Fields and Carlotta Monti, who claims to be a "love child" of Fields and Bessie Poole Ziegfeld beauty, and Carlotta Monti, who was left $100,000 by Fields. Miss Monti says she thinks Morris is Field's son and should share in the estate.—Central Press Canadian.

One Safecracker Captured After Club Robbed

Windsor, May 5 — (CP) — One man was captured and two others escaped after a safe cracking early today at a midtown social club. Approximately $500 was taken and another $187 overlooked. Nearly $60 has been recovered.

Credit for the capture of William Kobanek, 36, went to Sgt. Frank Stanley and Constable Bob Stemmler who entered the premises after hearing the sound of muffled hammering inside.

As they investigated an open window at the rear, three men raced down the front stairs. Two left by the front door and the third, Kobanek, ran past the policemen and down an alley.

Stemmler gave chase and fired several warning shots, catching up with Kobanek after the man stumbled.

The officers returned to the club where they found Arthur Munroe, 67, the caretaker, trussed to a chair with a blanket over his head. Munroe said he was aroused after he went to investigate a report that a downstairs door was open.

London (Reuters)—Two seven-year-old boys who crawled in a timber yard here seeking wood for bows and arrows had an argument which caused several thousand of pounds worth of damage, maybe residents of nearby house leave their homes and hold up the hoeing program of the district.

The boys, however, were undamaged.

The argument was about whether the lads got a pile of sawdust wet coal-oil or water. The boys settled the question with a match.

It was coal-oil.

$5,000,000 Fire Razes Hollywood Park Clubhouse

Inglewood, Calif., May 6 (AP) — Hollywood Park one of North America's most lavish race tracks was razed by a $5,000,000 fire early today. One fireman was severely injured.

The flames broke out in the clubhouse section of the multi-million dollar plant and quickly leaped through the grandstand and turf club.

Two hours after the blaze was first reported, the stands appeared to be a total loss.

Nearly 600 thoroughbred horses in the stable area were believed safe from the flying sparks.

The disastrous fire dealt a death blow to Hollywood Park meeting, scheduled to start May 17. Santa Anita Park quickly offered its facilities for the season.

Wants Bd. to 'Get Tough' Over Sale To Minors

Toronto, May 6 (CP)—The Ontario Liquor Licence Board has before it a request to "get tough" with persons selling liquor to minors.

A brief presented yesterday to Judge W. T. Robb, Board Chairman, by a deputation of clergymen and church members urged the Board to cancel licences of liquor outlets where there is any sale of liquor to minors.

The brief gave two examples of court cases in which minors charged with offences claimed that they had been drinking. It said in each case the courts "gave favorable verdicts to the liquor interests" and it added:

"Such privileged circumvention of proven facts must inevitably encourage irresponsibility on the part of the management of liquor outlets and discourage the efforts of the inspectors of the Liquor Licence Board, the provincial and municipal police and even the Crown Attorneys."

The brief mentioned newspaper headlines about crime involving youths and said:

"These young folks are as decent and reasonable as other well-behaved teen-agers until they start imbibing liquor and then they become bestial and a menace to others."

COMMUNIST PUSH FOR SHANGHAI MAY BE STARTED

Two Lancing Operations Virtually Unopposed

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, May 6 (AP)— The big Chinese Communist push for Shanghai may be on.

The Nationalist garrison here said today that strong Communist attacks rolled up on the south-west and north-west fronts.

The Reds knitted deeper into central and southeast China meanwhile. There was little indication of fighting on either of these fronts.

This appeared to be a hint that the two broad operations into Nationalist China's vitals were virtually unopposed.

The garrison commander said several thousand Communist troops were attacking Kashing, 50 miles southwest on the railway, to Hangchow.

The commander said that simultaneously 8,000 Communist troops were attacking Taitsang, 15 miles northwest of Shanghai. It asserted that the attackers withdrew after a two hour fight, leaving 200 dead and wounded.

Meanwhile Communist Sin Wan Pao said Fukien province officials were wavering as Communist vanguards moved into the mountains within 120 miles of the northern border of the southeast province.

Fukien province is opposite Formosa, island and province converted into a Nationalist fortress.

A hundred miles or less to the west, other Communist troops cut the railway line from Kiukiang to Nanchang at a number of places according to reports in Shanghai.

These troops last were reported about 30 miles east of Nanchang.

Nanchang guards the southeast flank of Chiangsu, bastion of central China. It also is about half way between Shanghai and Canton, provincial capital in south China.

Police and garrison authorities in Shanghai began shooting more alleged saboteurs today. Four were shot yesterday for "subversive activities, robbery and the killing of a policeman."

Explosion, Fire Cut Off Power

London, Ont., May 6 (CP) Electric power to hundreds of homes and a few factories in east and northeast sections was restored after a six hour "black-out" a 4 1-2 hour cutoff caused by an explosion and fire in the Hydro Electric Power Commission's transformer station at Adelaide, just south of here, today.

Utilities manager H. V. Buchanan said he believed the cause was the burning out of a transformer bushing. Fire did not set fire to oil, resulting in an explosion.

The fire was brought under control quickly and damage was not extensive.

Force of the blast, which awoke neighbors, blew open the rear door of the sub-station.

Chrysler Plant At Windsor Closed

Windsor, May 6 (CP)—Chrysler of Canada production workers reported for work early today, but shortly thereafter were sent home again.

A work stoppage by 20 jittney drivers made the plant caused management to close the entire production plant, 2 Thursday night. Meetings between Local 195, United Automobile Workers (CIO) representatives and company were held, but no statement has been issued.

About 2,000 men are involved, practically the entire force of the company's main production plant.

LOG DRIVE IS ON

Blind River, Ont., May 6 (CP) — The big drive of 300,000 white and red pine logs down the Mississagi River to Lake Huron is under way today, a crew of 80 log drivers shepherding the logs over sandbars and through rapids. The logs, containing an estimated 50,000,000 board feet of lumber, are owned by the McFadden Company.

When they reach the mouth of the Mississagi at Blind River, they will be boomed and towed to the company's mill at Blind River. Most of the log drivers move out of the river to work for the mill here during the summer.

Many Apply for Management Training Course

London, Ont., May 6 (CP)—Applications already have been received from 42 companies for the 30 vacancies in the second annual management training course, to be held at the University of Western Ontario, Aug. 1 to Sept. 2.

The course for young business executives is sponsored jointly by the U.W.O. School of Business Administration.

This year's roll is expected to be similar to that of 1948 when the course students were those who, by performance with their firms, had shown promise of high level executive ability. They ranged in age from 27 to 56 with a high concentration around 35 years.

During the five-week program there will be 100 class sessions, most of 80 minutes duration. Forty will be devoted to administrative practices.

The remaining 60 sessions involve a series of executive problems in the major functional areas of business—marketing, production, finance—controls, and personnel administration.

MORE IMMIGRANTS FROM U.K. THAN ANY OTHER PLACE

British Sends Canada 40,015 New Residents During Past 12 Months

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—Canada still gets more immigrants from the United Kingdom than from any place else, the Resources Department said in its statistical breakdown of immigration during the last fiscal year.

British and Canada 40,015 new residents during the 12 months ending March 31.

During the year, Canada got an over-all total of 138,803 immigrants, an increase of 58.8 per cent over the 79,194 immigrants in 1947-48.

Immigration from France, Germany, with low countries and Scandinavia was 18,450, compared with 7,340 the year before. From the United States it was 7,885, a drop of 19.1 per cent.

People from iron-curtain countries, many of them displaced refugees, swelled the total. There were 15,420 Poles, compared with 4,269; 11,457 Russians, compared with 1,154; 5,885 Hungarians, compared with 3,585; 2,498 Ruthenians, compared with 3,585.

Most of them—32,953—were men. There were also 44,821 women and 37,289 children under 16. Twenty 22,000 skilled workers were included.

Ontario got the biggest share—62,539—followed by Quebec with 33,743.

Quotas for other provinces: Prince Edward Island 282; Nova Scotia 2,772; New Brunswick 1,382; Manitoba 7,921; Saskatchewan 5,372; Alberta 10,219; British Columbia 11,016; Yukon Territory 63 and the Northwest Territories 12.

One of the biggest jumps was in immigration from the three Baltic Republics of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, overrun by Russia during the war. There were 10,434 former citizens of the tiny countries, who immigrated to Canada during the year, compared with 2,461 the year before.

BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM WILL BE INSTALLED

O.N.R. to Equip 30 Miles Track Each Year

North Bay, May 6 — (CP). Installation of a block signal system is to begin at once on the Ontario Northland Railway.

This was announced today by Col. C. E. Reynolds, chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission, following government approval by order-in-council. The installation will be made at a cost of $175,000 for the 37-mile area between Englehart and Swastika, where the first installation is to be made.

Plans of the commission are that 30 miles of track will be equipped with the system each year, until the whole O.N.R. line is covered.

Col. Reynolds also said a two-way radio service between North Bay and the French River will be operated this year by the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission.

Messages will be transmitted between the line and the telegraph offices in North Bay, and Toronto, using the French River system.

The installation is being made at a cost of $8,000. The equipment will be of a type which can be converted into a home telephone set-up, and if justified, it will be extended to the west end of the upper French, in the vicinity of Sudbury, Casabianca and Longs Lodges.

FOUR TRAPPED IN BURNING MINE ARE FOUND DEAD

Frantic Two-Day Battle by Rescue Squad to Save Men Failed

Clarksville, Pa., May 6 (AP) — Four miners trapped in a burning anthracite mine since last Tuesday were found dead today by a rescue squad which had waged a frantic two-day battle to save them.

Hudson Christ, general manager of the Gilberton Coal Company, said rescue workers found the bodies of the four miners on the second level of the company's No. 9 colliery 750 feet below the surface. Previously it had been thought that the miners were on the fourth level 200 feet further down.

The discovery of the bodies climaxed a 48-hour battle against fire and the shut of smoke and gas which filled the mine after the blaze was still in progress when rescuers reached the scene, but soon were kept air in the blaze clear.

The victims—William Kelly, 46; Joseph Wowsik, 34; Raymond Ryan, 30, and William O'Brien, 53 — apparently died shortly after the fire broke out Tuesday night in the colliery.

Joseph Kupulis, who led the first rescue crew which found the bodies, said there were indications the four miners had walked up a slanting tunnel from the colliery 800-foot level and then collapsed.

The bodies were some distance from the fire, company officials said.

All four bodies were brought to the surface within two hours after discovery, after rescuers had worked for 24 hours.

The mine blaze started while night members of a night force were in the 1,100-foot shaft. Four miners managed to reach the surface.

Expect Russia to Propose Withdrawal From Germany Of All Occupation Troops

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 6 — (AP) — Russia's expected proposal to withdraw all occupation troops from Germany is regarded here as one of the most difficult issues which the Western Powers will have to face at the conference of foreign ministers of the Big Four meeting in Paris late this month.

Indications are that Britain, the United States and France have yet to decide exactly how they will deal with the proposition if the Russians put it forward.

President Truman summed up to the general state of affairs to a press conference yesterday in commenting on the new agreement for ending the Berlin blockade.

Plans already are under way for creation of a western German government, thus far developed jointly by Russian opposition. Those plans will form the basis of western proposals for a government for all Germans.

Economic and political unification of the Russian and Western zones is another objective of the Western Powers.

The Western Powers also are determined that the unification of all Germany must permit true personal freedom and democratic political institutions for the entire country.

The occupation-prop issue is considered explosive for several reasons. If the Russians propose withdrawal and the West does not it outright, German Communists would charge that the West wants to keep the German people subject to their conquerors while Russia desires to restore their freedom.

If on the other hand, the West should accept such a proposal, military and political strategists here believe it would upset the balance of power in Europe at a critical point in Western European recovery.

Korean Battalion Led Into Trap Says President

Seoul, May 6—(AP)—A Korean battalion commander deserted to North Korean Communist forces during two days of border clashes, President Syngman Rhee said today.

The President said 17 South Korean soldiers were killed and 31 wounded in fighting Wednesday and Thursday. He put Red casualties at 400.

A second battalion also was led across the border into the Red-held north and only 96 of its 300 men returned.

The first battalion, Rhee explained at a press conference, was "deliberately" led into a Red trap—with no ammunition for the battalion's weapons.

Rhee placed all blame on the battalion commander, Major Pyo Moo Won. Two officers and 248 men escaped, leaving four officers and 210 men in Red territory.

Major Won refused to surrender his force during night manoeuvres Wednesday, 30 miles northeast of Seoul, Rhee reported. The second battalion moved across the Communist border Thursday, about 30 miles farther east, and may have been pursuing Red troops.

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts

Back in the horse-and-buggy days little girls were supposed up not to speak to strangers, especially men. Mother began drumming this admonition into me, when I was 4, very young children are never stopped to be strangers, and are assigned regular seats with the result that after the first performance or two we all feel at home and amongst friends, seated in the untoward seats and surrounded by the usual faces. At the third concert of our winter season, there were two strange faces sitting next to me — an Air Corps captain and his wife. The captain smiled agreeably, introduced himself, explained that the Websters, who usually occupied those seats, were out of town and had invited him and his wife, whom he now presented, to use their places. I murmured introductions to my husband, conscious of the fact that with only his word for reference, Mother would still have counted Captain Homeless a stranger. Subsequent events proved she would have been right.

"Mrs. Roberts," Captain Homeless said: "I understand you have a larger house than you are living." There was no tattletale gray on the faces of acquaintances sitting next us, and I marveled that a newcomer to town had found out so quickly that Robbie and I had a whole house to ourselves.

One only son was in the Navy and our help was folding parachutes in Texas. The end of the war had brought two air bases, a weather station, and a supply depot to Great Falls. That practically doubled the population and, as I was finding out, created a yet a full-fledged housing shortage. Yet I knew people had been ringing doorbells in their search for a place to live, but it was almost as though I were in a beautiful false resistance of the front door from a long line of spacing with all sorts of peddlers. I'd been warned, too, that it wasn't safe to let the curtains half a mad descend while the windows were bare, thinking we must be about to move out of our house. Nobody thought to tell me I wouldn't be safe at a concert.

The captain continued: "I got leave of absence from my job and a spot commission, but I don't like sitting up that trying to make both ends meet on a cap- tain's pay isn't funny. The hotel rooms were full when we got to find other quarters. Could you let us have a room?"

"Oh, I'm terribly sorry," I said. "Not possibly." Feeling shabby at refusing and trying to make amends, for I knew what it was to be strictly up against it for lodging, I tried to vindicate myself. "You see, I have up help. I cook, Canteen and work at the Sewing Room. One day each week I take a shift as nurse's aide in the hospital." I babbled on — he looked so interested. "What with one thing and another, my hands is a mess. The silver never gets polished. The corners never get dusted. I'd feel so ashamed to have your wife see it." I included her with a smile. "Now if you were a lone man," I led with my chin, "that might be different. Men aren't observant. I've heard." I signed off with a you-see-how-it-is look of resignation. Too late I realized I'd stepped on a verbal banana peel.

Captain Homeless let me have my moment. Then he said, "I have just the right setup for you, Mrs. Roberts. A sergeant. He's quite a gentleman, I think. He's living at the hotel, too, and there's oughly unable to afford it. It would be a Christian charity for you to take him in and I'd even forgive you for not asking us."

Rob, though he'd been kissed in the cradle of the air, I could not reach him with my Frankie $ O K; he was impervious to the pressure of my foot. I struggled weakly to retract and was forced to admit that I'd be able to put up a lone man. Captain Homeless had heard me the first time.

Driving home from the concert, I waited for Rob to ask me the effect of the boomer. When we were nearly in our corner and he had not said a word about it, I prodded him. A doctor once diagnosed me as a bit distrait. A non-cylinder engine, whereas he found Rob to be as alert as his concertina, unglven to hard work, but with a wealth of power in reserve. Therefore I wasn't surprised when Rob said, "I think we're doing enough for the war effort, being air raid warden is no cinch, and you're up to your ears in Red Cross activities, Sandies," he added plaintively, "we gave Bill," he didn't. He gave him-self. We couldn't have kept him out."

Rob nodded slowly. Like many another man with a young son, Rob wished with all his soul that he, having had a taste of life, might be the one to serve his country and Bill be left an opportunity to try his hand at living. But Bill wasn't a career enlist; Bill, at 19, was what the Navy wanted.

We rode along in silence for another block or two. Then I tried again to clear with a three-leg "What do you think about renting a room?" I repeated.

Rob and I had been talking when you should have been listening. You had talked yourself into something. Now let's see you talk yourself out."

I remember that of the time we landed in New Orleans from — Caribbean cruise with a three-day interval before sailing on another liner to New York — and found every hotel jammed. How we faced the prospect of sitting up all night in a lobby daily, maybe for three nights. How he finally, through a clerk in a book store who half knew him because he often loaded up on reading mat- ter before a sailing, found us a room with a widow who didn't mind "making a little easy money — $10 a night looked to me like easy money, but at that time I never had to budget it. Riley even sent up tray break- fast — "Now it's our turn to be Good Samaritans," I said.

"What are you talking about?" Rob interrupted my flow of reminiscence. "This guy has a place in mind."

I'd had 20-odd years experience with Rob's gruff beginnings, but I asked, "Yes, I suppose I agreed, "but somehow, under the circumstances it doesn't quite equate decent for us to maintain a 10-room house just for ourselves." Truth was, I had learned there was some fun to running an establishment. Bill's crowd had raised our house "Grand Central Station," we were used to having gangs mill through with the gay abandon of picnickers. Without them we were only a shade stop. I missed the confusion. I missed it so much that I was warming to the idea of adopting this unseen son.

Rob wasn't. He looked at me in disgust. He said with overemphasis, as one speaks to a backward child or a foreigner learning English, "Get this: (a) It isn't our fault there is a housing shortage. (b) If those fools in Washington were half as smart as they think they are, we wouldn't have a housing shortage, (c) You're out of your mind if you think I'll let you turn our house into a hotel. (d) Taxes and rationing I have to live with, I suppose, I don't, (e) It's a helluva note when a man's made to feel guilty because he occupies his own house."

Sensing how he felt, I consid- ered the subject closed and myself safe from my inclinations. But a few days later Rob next day asked over the telephone if I were the Mrs. Roberts of whom Captain Homeless had spoken. I couldn't deny it. The voice said he was Sergeant Phillips. Could it be true that I had generously said I would permit a poor soldier to have a room with us? With an eye on Robbie, who was concentrating on a book we only he can concentrate when I'm in a spot, I admitted I had said something of the sort. Would it be convenient for the voice to call and after that meeting decide whether or not we would still be willing to let him live at our house?

"Oh!" I exclaimed, "I'm up to my ears in Red Cross activities." I distinctly heard Bill's snack.

"I'm an hour late!"

"Yes, an hour should be all right."

"Roger," he barked in most clipped and military syllables.

Full on the first Monday after taking the cookies, changed out of the house dress, and was flapping powder in my red, hot cheeks, my face when the front door chimes rang. "I'll get it!" Bob called. He and a fire horse had something in common in the matter of being first to answer the last stroke, I saw the door thrown open to a tall figure in khaki, whose patient leather hair, sideburns, and little black mustache completely transformed his dark uniform.

He greeted me heartily and, I must say, made me feel very welcome. I have had a bad habit of humming when I'm nervous or excited, I caught myself breathing into snatches of The Skate of Joy.

Rob, having hung up the army coat and cap, led us toward the garden room; made signs to me to open the bar and officiate. A couple of highballs later, the subject of the room raised its head. "What!" exclaimed the champion of Robert's house for breath. "You mean you're having to choose between a room in the lean- ing tower of Pisa, or a hotel room at your own expense? Not enough bar- racks on the Field? What kind of an army is this? I don't see how a soldier can afford to put himself up in town."

"It can't," the sergeant said. "At least, I can't."

With my own two ears I heard Rob say, "Dear, I think you ought to offer Phillips either Bill's room or the guest room."

Not only did I offer him either Bill's room or the guest room, but also, acting like an infuri- ating puppy who offers his mas- ter a not very good bone and then is surprised and affronted if he makes up for it, I told him that our maid's apartment in the base- ment was empty. In another skir- mish around the circle, I added that I thought twenty-five dol- lars a month would be nutritional- ly fair to it. I had suggested thirty dollars as the price of either Bill's room or the guest room with con- necting bath.

M. Maeterlinck, Belgian Dramatist Dies at Nice

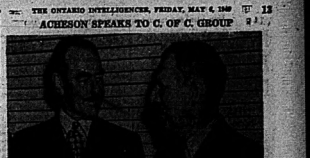
Nice, France, May 6 — (CP)— Count Maurice Maeterlinck, world-famed playwright sometimes known as "the Belgian Shakespeare," died in his villa here today. He was 88.

He was a Nobel Prize winner for literature.

His death followed a heart attack which lasted for three hours. His wife, his former secretary, was at his bedside when he died.

Count Maeterlinck recovered from a fractured ankle two months ago and had been in good health recently. He spent yesterday afternoon gardening.

The funeral is tomorrow.



Maeterlinck's genius showed itself in delicate, fairy-like lines. His style, whether in French or English, abounded in rose — lies' artificiality and romantic medievalism.

He was born at Ghent in 1862, of humble parentage. On his 70th birthday the late King Albert of Belgium, whose close friend he was, made him a count for his services to Belgian literature.

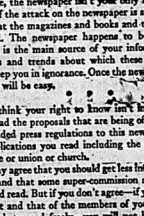
ACHESON SPEAKS TO C. OF C. GROUP

Shown chatting at a session of the 37th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in Washington, are, left to right, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and Henry G. Bilks, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Acheson, the chief speaker, told the group that the U.S. military aid program for western Europe must not be conducted at the expense of recovery among Marshall-Plan Nations.—Central Press Canadian.

There oughta be a law!

When you pick up a copy of a newspaper you retain your belief in fair play. You express your willingness to let the other fellow get a hearing for his opinion. For opinion is as much a part of the newspaper as fact. Not just the editor's opinion but the opinions of business men and labor leaders, farmers and housewives, public officials and candidates for office—everyone whose opinions make news.

Some men and women think you should not have this freedom. They believe you should read only one set of opinions—theirs. They think there should be a law limiting what a newspaper can print.



Those whose freedom these self-constituted leaders are aiming to limit are not so much the editors and publishers of newspapers as the readers. They claim that newspapers have too much freedom but what they mean is that you are too free. They don't talk about thought control but that is what they have in mind. They don't trust you with the knowledge of what is going on in the world—even what is happening in your own government.

They know that if they can control what you read, they can control what you know. And when they control what you know, they can control your mind. Under the claim of knowing what is good for you, they want to take over your thinking. Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin used the same technique.

Of course, the newspaper isn't your only source of information. But if the attack on the newspaper is successful, you can be sure that the magazines and books and the radio won't be overlooked. The newspaper happens to be the first target, because it is the main source of your information regarding the events and trends about which these men and women want to keep you in ignorance. Once the newspaper is muzzled, the others will be easy.

If you think your right to know isn't in danger, take the time to read the proposals that are being offered. Apply these recommendedd press regulations to this newspaper and to the other publications you read including the ones published by your lodge or union or church.

You may agree that you should get less information than you now get and that some super-commission should decide what you should read. But if you don't agree—if you want to protect your right and that of the members of your lodge and union and church to read freely—you will not be taken in by the high sounding resolutions and other adroit devices now being used as the first step towards control. You will refuse to give them your support. You will speak out against them and against those who ask you to help put public knowledge and public opinion in chains.

Your right to know is the key to all your liberties

Many Players Being Imported For Guelph Leafs

By RICK MACLEOD
Canadian Press Correspondent

GUELPH, May 8 (CP)—While the other seven teams in the Intercounty Baseball League senior series, Guelph Maple Leafs have done extensive importing in the hope of improving the team that finished a poor sixth in the seven-team loop last season.

In rookie Lionsdale Leafs have a freshman coach who is a big favorite with the fans. A handsome, Frankie joined the club last year as a utility infielder.

One of Lead's weak spots for the past few seasons—catching—appears to be strengthened by the signing of Art O'Connor, ex-Pony League player from Brockville. O'Connor retired from pro ball last season. He hit .299 with his home town Brockville team in the Ontario Baseball Association last year.

Other imports who have signed with Leafs include Jerry Lewis, Cobalt Boy from Nova Scotia, Martin Phillip of Toronto, Les Feral and Johnny Cochrane of Hamilton; infielders Walt Gobeaut of Kingston, John Nowlcon of Toronto; Walter Unrau of Windsor, Harold Macdonald from Nova Scotia and Frank Cairo of Toronto; outfielders Frank Redmond from Nova Scotia and two others who are expected to come in terms this week.

Holdovers from last year are Hap Lawson, Les McGrath, Lew Bourdon, Ralph Hammond, Alfie King, Jack Hough, Frankie Lisconbe, Bob Lyle, Bill Leader, Red Binstadtler, and Herb McNamara. Four Students Sign

Four college students from the United States have signed Maple Leaf certificates and will likely report at the conclusion of their term around June 1. Jack Lentz of Hamilton may join the batting staff after convalescing from a kidney operation.

Of the pitching newcomers Roy Hough looked most impressive in spring training. He has had experience in the Border Provincial League. Bill Leader and Lefty Hammond both showed up well in pre-scheduled workouts.

Gubernatat, a former shortstop with Kingston Frontac in the Border League, a Class D circuit, will replace Waldo Fazio as manager. He accepted an offer to coach Woodstock Pirates.

MacDonald may clinch the first base job. A hard-hitting player he has had experience with the Provincial League. John Nowicon, Toronto boy who played baseball in California, is another candidate for the initial sack.

Two regulars with the Leafs last season, Buster Georgs (Lefty) Leader and first baseman Lloyd Fickbelcer are still unsigned but there is hope to have their certificates in by the end of the week.

Second base is still a headache but this position will be filled if and when Bill Yorston, of Hamilton, is released by Galt when Yorston played with Galt last season but has expressed a desire to play for Guelph this year.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Don't you often hear fellows say "I dropped my right shoulder when they have hit behind a ball"?

These boys are figuring their fault wrong about by one cent of the dime. What really happened . . . you can almost bet your last dollar that the right knee went too much at the wrong time and the failure to be sure to bet into the ground behind his ball.

The right shoulder should drop as the left shoulder is rising. That is the only thing you can hit the ball about in the same path your right hand will follow if you were throwing a baseball underhand.

All the top of the backswing a lot of the best players are sort of sitting down slightly to the ball. This seems to help them straighten their legs properly, without locking them at the knees on the way down and through.

Ben Hogan, Clubhead, gets the hitting zone you will see that the left legs of all these players straighten as it almost looks like they are pushing the swing from the ball. (© The Golf Digest, Co.)

Gehringer Joins Hall of Fame

New York, May 8 — Charley Gehringer, one of the quietest, least colorful—and greatest — players the game ever has seen, was given a place today in baseball's hall of fame.

The one-time mechanical man of the Detroit Tigers' infield was named to the shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., by the baseball Writers' Association of America. He received 139 votes out of a possible 167 in a special run-off ballot on which Hall Of of the New York Giants missed out by 13 votes.

The special election was held because in earlier ballot this year failed to elect a single player. This time the top 30 in the early ballot were voted upon.

In picking Gehringer, the writers paid tribute to a second baseman whose fielding has been rated by many as the best they ever saw. His hitting spoke for itself—a lifetime mark of .321, a world series batting mark of .323 and records of .300 for five all-star games.

Gehringer, who was 49 years old in the Detroit organization, 18 of them as the Tigers' regular second baseman, and came as close to being overlooked as a star player could.

He made the tough ones look easy in the field, and he also seemed never to have a difficult play. At bat he kept spanking out base hits. He was a fast runner, but quiet that his brilliance came to be accepted and expected.

In full view of thousands of fans, he seldom was noticed. On them were hung names as the Mechanical Man, The Robot, and the Gliding Ghost.

Gehringer never attracted either. In 1937—the year he won the American League batting championship with a mark of .371 and was named the "most valuable player"—he told a questioner he didn't even know his batting average.

"I never look at the averages," he said. When told his mark was .371 that year, he said: "Is that down there where I belong."

In the special election, each writer was allowed to vote for five players. Ott was 13 votes short of the record 76 per cent at 126. Then came Jimmy Foxx, 86; Dizzy Dean, 81; Al Simmons, 76; Paul Waner, 63; Harry Hellmann, 58; Bill Terry, 46; Hank Greenberg, 41; Bill Dickey 39, and Rabbit Maranville, 39.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

dear boss—

Lookin' through the column writ by the guy perdee in the peterborough review the other day, I saw where he asked you quote, when did belleville stop being peterboro in any basketball sport I noticed you didn't have an answer so yet for that one, but I'll be glad to answer; it he was around. It was them days and not playin' hockey or crape with the kids in the back lot.

ask him he remembers or heard of the time we had a table basketball team with such guys as the Indian, pansy millin, Marty millin, the blackbird, cleo, Sharpeen, sonny AVOY, very well, all matchup and the rest of the hard-hitting baseball guys which threw the fear of bloodcurdled into all and sundry in these necks of the forests?

and like it he usually the game where the poles beat us right here in belleville; we beat 'em in peterborough and then went to cobourg where pansy millin et al walloped the gosh-awfully daylights out of hassle, no-nassium team?

ask him if he remembers that memorable year when the teams were again tied in the playoffs and the third game was played on Oshawa, wuat 'a here, that I recall had a sort of echo to it (the game, not oshawa), said otter coming from the back-ay ou thwaat for a change we were the home team?

that day saw the potent peterborough righthander at heckman make a bid for immortality by striking out umpire in entire, pried against our indian jack williams; that was the day when Bobby Gerrie made a pretend as a joke outfield catch an gin in it; the belleville bats played a symphony and we manny home runs rattled off their way clubs that the oshawa hatbrick pitcher, the late Bill Hamilton, suffered a record as many fast balls past the poor batters that it seemed their bats were glued to their shoulders. Yeah, I almost forgot, the score was 12-0.

and not bit but how about last year? what's got the matter borough basketball team in the disease, and who beat whose mistrel hockey teams twice in a row?

If I wasn't busy writing out damning letters to the guys who have not kicked in with our pyramid club bonuses, I'd fill up a lot more such events for you however that should do for the present.

Jacobs is Out of Garden, Chicago Interests Move in

New York May 6 (CP)— Mike Jacobs, the man who parlayed shrewdness, promotional savvy and a pre-depression flair for the picker Second Joe Louis into the world's greatest fistic empire, has retired from boxing today.

But he will be head of his once powerful 20th Century Sporting Club, which controlled most of the world's boxing activities since 1937, a new and probably bigger dynasty was being formed, with Louis one of the key figures.

Gen. John Reed Kilpatrick, president of Madison Square Garden, announced that on June 1, the Garden was taking over all of 20th Century's promotional duties and that the Garden would combine with the newly organized International Boxing Club of Chicago to run boxing in the country over.

Louis is one of the IBC backers who will merge with the new Garden corporation. Other members are Arthur M. Wirtz and James C. Norris who, between them, control the Chicago Stadium and Olympia Stadium at Detroit, two of the fore-most boxing arenas. The other, Yankee Stadium in New York, also will be part of the new corporation, Kilpatrick said.

The Garden, as a corporation, does not plan to buy stock in the new fistic corporation, Kilpatrick said, but several of the Garden's stockholders will purchase stock separately. Kilpatrick said the Garden would rather continue on a "handiest-meanest basis" with the new corporation.

The heavyweight title probably will remain "wrapped up" tightly as the IBC will have control of both Joe Louis and Rocky Marciano who meet at Chicago June 23 for Louis' vacated heavyweight title.

N.Y. Yankees Riding High Winning 13 of First 16 Games To Hold 3-Game Edge on Field

By BEN FELDGAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Only a couple of weeks ago everybody would have given you odds that a dozen gilt-edged reasons why New York Yankees would be lucky to finish in first division of the American League.

So what happened? The Yanks jumped away to their fastest start in ages. They have won 13 of their first 16 games. That gives them a three - game edge over Cleveland and a six - game bulge over Boston. And these are the clubs that are supposed to fight it out for the pennant.

At Chicago the Yanks got a lustiness circuit clout off reliable Tommy Henrich and whipped the Sox 7-3.

Allie Reynolds wobbled to his second victory although he was aided in favor of Joe Page at the start of the seventh inning.

In other action in the American League Cleveland Whipped Boston 7-3 as Bobby Feller won his first game; Detroit edged Philadelphia A's, 6-5 and Washington handed St. Louis Browns a 7-3 sixth straight loss, 8-3 in a night game.

Three games were decided at three of the contests in the National League. New York Giants edged Pittsburgh, 3-2 in 10 innings; St. Louis bested Philadelphia 5-3; and Brooklyn powered by four circuit 7-5.

Ron Northy picked the ninth inning of a game at Philadelphia to hit his first home run of the year for the Cardinals.

Four of the 10 men in the Cincinnati - Brooklyn home - run derby went all the way but Duke Snider that made the final difference was poled by the Dodgers' Carl Furillo two on in the seventh innings.

Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves were not scheduled in the National.

Montreal Royals Hold Game Lead Over Brandon

Winnipeg, May 6 (CP)—Thanks to Bob Frampton and goalkeeper Bobby Bleau, Montreal Royals today hold a one-game lead in their best-of-seven Memorial Cup hockey final against Brandon Wheat Kings after four games.

Frampton Thursday night scored all his team's only goal in the second period while Bleau was blanking the Wheat Kings to give Royals a 1-0 win and their second triumph of the series. Brandon has won one game and a third contest was tied 3-3.

The cup-matched final now moves to Brandon for the remainder of the series. Next game is scheduled for tomorrow night.

Closeness of the four games so far is revealed in the statistics, which show Royals have scored only one goal more than their opponents with the first two games split on identical 3-2 scores.

As in the previous games, play before Thursday night's crowd of more than 8,000 was fast and rugged. Royals outshot their opponents 33-25, but erratic shooting or accurate work in the statistics kept them off the score sheet.

At the other end, Ray Frenchie, who has starred in each game, again turned in a sensational performance as Brandon were fortunate to gain a scoreless first period.

After being outplayed in the first session, Brandon came back strongly in the second period but found themselves on the short end of a 1-0 score.

On a smart passing play which saw Bert Hirschfeld and Neil Langill to beat Frederick Young, Don took the pass right in front of the Brandon goal and made no mistake with his drive to the lower corner.

Led by Angus Jurkes, Red Abbott—back in the lineup for the first time since suffering a knee injury in the opening game — and Brian Roche, Wheat Kings swarmed all over the Royals in the third most of the last period but could not get the puck into the net.

Ottawa Will be Scene of Next Allan Cup Game

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—The next Allan Cup game is going to be played in Ottawa.

Officially, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association still is considering the question and its decision will be made public today. But it now is a foregone decision.

There may be some more squabbling about the sixth and seventh games if they're needed. But just about everybody is agreed that the fifth game will be here Saturday.

That's where Al Pickard, the C.A.H.A. President, went in Ottawa Senators—who have a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series for the Eastern Hockey championship—say they won't play anywhere else. The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association says it won't let Senators play anywhere else.

Regina Capitals say they'll play in Ottawa—if the rest of the games are in Montreal.

Pickard has asked the C.A.H.A. executive to rule on his recommendation that the fifth game be in Ottawa and any more games in Montreal.

Senators won the first three games here. Regina won the fourth in Toronto, playing in Toronto.

Manager Tommy Gorman brought his Senators back to Ottawa after the fourth game and said they wouldn't play another game in Toronto this year. Manager Cliff Kirste kept his Capitals in Toronto and asked the C.A.H.A. to shift the series because he said it wasn't fair to play all the games on Ottawa ice.

President Azarie Choquet of the C.A.H.A.—to which Senators belong—said the venue of the series had been fixed at the C.A.H.A. semi-annual meeting during the winter and ordered Senators to pay the rest of the games in Ottawa and "not to play elsewhere."

JUDGMENT RESERVED

Sturgeon Falls, May 6 — (CP) — Magistrate M. C. Gould yesterday reserved judgment until next Thursday on a charge against Lester Kierstead, Sturgeon Falls weekly newspaper publisher, of keeping slanderous matter in his home in Sturgeon Falls is 15 miles west of North Bay.

Conducting his own defence, Kierstead said the charge was aimed to stifle "freedom of the press." He told police officers had behaved themselves in parts of their evidence.

Jersey Giants In First Place Of Int. League

By The Associated Press

A young band of opportunists from Jersey City was clutched alone atop the International League standings today.

The Little Giants pulled a full game ahead of Montreal Royals by whipping Rochester 9-3 in one of two games played Thursday.

Montreal defeated Baltimore 4-2 in the other contest. The remainder of four clubs were not scheduled.

Wes Westrum hit a home run with the bases empty in the second inning for Jersey City's first score. Steve Billko connected for one aboard in the home half of the same frame to give Rochester a temporary lead and Hank Thompson hit for the circuit with one on during a five-run Jersey City uprising in the ninth.

Montreal's victory came on a double by heavy-hitting Bob Mengas with two men on base in the fourth inning. The drive brought home two runs to break a 2-2 tie.

Clyde King, the young right-hander who pitched only one complete game last year, went all the way for the Royals to post his first victory.

Louisville, Ky., May 6—It's the week of the two-minute thrill. The thrill that will bring 100,000 sports fans to the land of the blue grass, and thrill the sexpot's lifetime—the Kentucky Derby.

They'll come by plane and by chartered. They'll come with hundreds, with bottles and with bucks.

Less than 25,000 persons hit the track actually will see the two-minute event, but the Kentucky Derby isn't just the first leg of the most colorful entertainment and sporting spectacle.

Those who can't see the race will pay the bill for the visit, the clubhouse and the grandstand areas sit sprawling Churchill Downs just for the thrill of being there, of taking part in Kentucky's big day.

Millions more will hear the race on the radio and other millions will see it over television, screens, for the Derby this year will be televised to be presented later to video audiences.

And for only this year is of especial significance. It's the 75th Derby, the Diamond Derby.

And once again it will mark a personal triumph for Col. Matt Winn, "Colonel" Derby himself, who saw that first Kentucky Derby in 1875 as a boy of 14. From his father's buggy is the infield.

The Derby crowd can hardly be matched at any other sports event. You'll find the rich and the poor, movie stars and bums, governors and ex-convicts, jockeys and housewives, touts and trainers, some lovers and some drunks.

The Derby is the shortest sports spectacle of any year, two minutes, but for the crowd it's a three-day show, counting the before-and-after-tracks.

When the bugle brings the three-year-olds out on the track shortly after 5 p.m. and the band strikes up "My Old Kentucky Home" the chills pass up and down your spine, no matter how many Derbies you've been to.

As the beautiful-coated thoroughbreds come parading out on the track, the veteran Derby goer recalls the past greats of the Derby...Twenty Grand...Zev ... Whirlaway...Citation... and the thrills they provided it only for a couple of minutes.

The Kentucky Derby, steeped in tradition and blown up to spectacular proportions, never always will remain one of this continent's greatest sporting events, though some critics have tried to tear it down in recent years.

Actually, of course, the Derby is just another horse race.

It's for three-year-olds at a mile and a quarter. Many of the top three-year-olds don't even run in the Derby and some trainers say that a mile and a quarter test won't in the year is too far for their colts to run.

While many of the Derby winners have been standouts, both as racers and in stud, some have forgotten overnight.

It's the crowd, the blue grass, the promptness, the mint juleps, the hot dogs, the hawkers, the spirit that makes the Kentucky Derby the entertainment feature that it is.

This, then, is the 75th Derby. The first was run as the same race at old Churchill Downs on May 17, 1875. Aristides, carrying 100 pounds and owned by H. P. McGrath, a Kentucky horseman, won the race by a length with Volcano second. A crowd of 10,000 saw this race with the total stakes and purse $2,850.

Last year Citation, the great money - winning thoroughbred, won the race by three and one-half length to pick up $53,400, as 100,000 persons jammed the course.

The favorite for the 1949 Derby is Olympia, owned by Fred W. Hooper. Olympia will be ridden by Eddie Arcaro, who always has won four Derbies, more than any other jockey.

Fourteen Horses Will go to Post In Run for Roses

Louisville, Ky., May 6 (AP)—They have 13 horses and Olympia primed and ready for Col. Matt Winn's 75th Kentucky Derby on Saturday and the chances are the list there has to be a colt with the initials OH to run out and run with Fred Hooper's favorite or it just won't be a race.

Olympia has been grabbing the big ones this year by the simple formula of blasting out of the gate and whistling around the track ahead of the pack all the way. Olympia with Arcaro up undoubtedly will be the odds-on favorite. And it was the general opinion that the Greentree pair of Capot and Wine List would rule second in the mutual department.

Ted Atkinson the former Toronto boy will ride Capot and Doug Dodson will be aboard Wine List with both shooting for first money and the $61,600 which goes to the winning horses owner.

Former Enemy, 'Human Torpedo' Studies in England

London, May 6 — (CP) — In London to study British treatment of nervous diseases is a former enemy whose own nerves were thoroughly tested during the war.

He is Dr. Giorgio Spaccarelli, 36, one of the first Italian "human torpedoes" to attack British shipping in the Mediterranean.

With only his head above water, he directed torpedoes against H. M. S. Queen Elizabeth at Alexandria and H. M. S. Valiant at Gibraltar. Both were damaged. Just before the torpedoes struck, he jumped off and swam to safety.

On his third mission, something went wrong with the mechanism and he spent the rest of the war in prisoners' camp.

Now he is studying at the National Hospital for nervous diseases with a $1,500 scholarship from the British Council.

Months of Trouble Capped by Theft

Vancouver, May 6 (CP)—Three months of trouble have been capped as far as 8-year-old Alexander Knox and his family is concerned.

The sorry tale began when Knox lost his right arm and leg in an accident.

Then his mother-in-law and three-year-old daughter barely survived an accidental gassing.

The latest was the loss yesterday by robbery of $106 saved for hospital expenses when Mrs. Knox bore a baby in July.

Mrs. Knox awakened in time to see the thief escaping through the window.

"I think if she realizes what he has done he might return the money," she said.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge experts hand me many a laugh. The biggest laugh is when they try to disprove my Horse Sense count for no-trump tricks. Some cartoonist should use their efforts for a series in the funnies.

In Horse Sense one trick is counted for each high card; that is, each ace or king or queen. Give my partner and me nine highs, I tell them, and we can make three no-trump.

Why? Highs are the most likely no-trump trick takers. Only 13 are in a pack. If a pair has nine, opponents can have only three. Even those aces will only take three of the 13 tricks in a deal.

Maybe now your partner will have this pair of hands:

SOUTH
♠A Q 7
♥A 4
♦K 9 5 3
♣A 10 6 5

NORTH
♠J 8 6 3
♥A J 4 3
♦Q 10 2
♣K J 3

In South is a count of six highs. North counts three. Nine between you should reach and make a no-trump game. Something very unusual must happen to prevent it.

You and I know, of course, that every correctly bid pair of hands will not make the contract that is reached. It goes down. It may develop a trick more than expected.

This uncertainty comes from not knowing in advance exactly how opponent cards will be split. All that the Horse Sense count can claim is that it is more accurate than other systems.

But you should see the efforts a bridge mate forth to find a hand that will not work with this count. He finally comes up with one. It is A K Q J 10 in one suit held by the opening leader.

Out of all the 35,013,599,600 different hands he triumphantly shows this hand will defeat three no-trump. So I ask him: "Does your system make every bid?" And he says: "We make 75 per cent of them."

Shall I tell him we are satisfied with only 99 per cent—Would it accomplish any good purpose? No. It would only make him mad. Bridge players are funny that way.

Hollywood, May 6 (AP)— It will be sodas but no Scotch for Cary Grant for the next three to five years.

The star is back at work following his serious attack of jaundice while picture-acting in Britain. His doctor has ordered a diet without alcohol, eggs or fried food for a long time to come.

He said he's feeling fine, and he looks it. He has gained back the 30 pounds he lost. He had different testimony from his co-star, Ann Sheridan, who has opined that film making abroad is strictly for the birds.

Weather Fine

"Just one thing I regret," said Grant. "The English say their winters are too hard for Americans. Why, the weather was wonderful. It was just this epidemic that took us.

"Except for the Illnesses, we had a wonderful time over there.

"And I couldn't have been more pleased with the trip back if they had delivered me to my door. The doctor said I couldn't fly; and the Queen Mary has too many people. So I took a Dutch boat the long way home through the canal. I soaked up the sun on the top deck for a month. It was wonderful."

Rest Fellows

Grant has four or five more weeks of shooting on "I Was a Male War Bride" which was to have been filmed entirely in Europe. He won't make another film until December. His medic has advised him to take things easy.

The conversation shifted to his much-noted romance with Betsy Drake. Grant cleared his throat and grabbed a newspaper.

Mother Jumps Into Well and Saves Child

Courage on the part of Mrs. N. C. Dimmell, Deseronto, was credited with saving the life of her three-year-old son Peter when he fell into a well as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Joyce.

The mother jumped into the well after her son and held him above water until help arrived.

Mrs. Dimmell and her two children were visiting Mrs. Joyce when the boy wandered close to the well and fell through the loose board covering. The mother realized her son was missing and when she found him in the well she jumped in after him.

Blake Moore, working nearby, and a neighbor, Sandy Harvey, rushed to the rescue. They took the boy from the mother's upstretched arms and then threw a rope to help Mrs. Dimmell from the well.

NEW DEAL FOR INDIANS

A new deal for Indians on the Blood Reservation, near Lethbridge, Alta., looms with the signing of leases under which a vast block of fertile lands will be taken over for a 10-year period by large-scale mechanized farmers for development. Under the leases, the Blood tribe will receive 40 cents an acre annually as a cash bonus and a portion of the crop production during the period. Here Head Chief Shot-On-Both-Sides, centre, places his "X" on the leases, embracing some 23,000 acres, while Minor Chief Albert Many Fingers, left, and Harold Moore, assistant superintendent of the reservation, watch.—(CP Photo.)

STRESSES FAITH IN E.R.P. OUTCOME

General Omar N. Bradley, U.S. army chief of staff, is shown as he testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The general pleaded for ratification of the North Atlantic Defence Treaty and pointed out that the defence frontier of the United States now lies "in the heart of Europe." The general testified that it is his belief that if the countries of western Europe "are given sufficient time for economic recovery and for building their defences," those western countries can stop Russia. The general refused to make an estimate of Russian strength or to say whether he believes Russia has an atom bomb.—Central Press Canadian.

CONSERVATIVES TO OBJECT

London—Winston Churchill and other Conservative party leaders gave notice today that they will move rejection of the government's bill to nationalize the iron and steel industry when it is debated on its final stage in the House of Commons Monday.

The bill was expected to pass through the Commons without difficulty in view of the government's big majority.

After that it will go to the House of Lords where, with the Conservatives in the majority, it is likely to have a rough passage.

AT THE CAPITOL — Cowboy star Jimmy Wakely comes to Virginia Belmont's protection in Monogram's outdoor thriller, "Oklahoma Blues". On the same program "Strike It Rich," starring Red Cameron and Bonita Granville. Both hits are now showing at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

Little Benny's Note Book

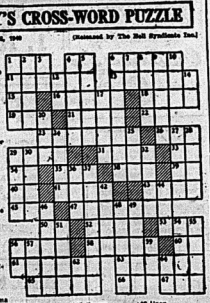
Pop was yawning at breakfast this morning and listening to the news on the radio, saying to me, For Pete sake what's wrong with me? I feel as though I hadn't had any sleep. Are you sure I went to bed last night he said.

Do you want my humble diagnosis, you insisted on smoking an easter cigar before you went to bed, ma said. You probably tossed and turned all nite like a log rolling, she said, and pop said, I wish I could stop yawning. I can't drink my coffee and yawn at the same time. I heard of a chap that you feel loggy, lax and listless when you get up in the morning?

I'll say I do, pop said. I also feel lumpy, lethargic and lugubrious, he said, and the announcer said, Do you seem only half alive, are you waxed down and overcome by a general sensation of lassitude?

How well he knows me, pop said. Yes gods, I feel as though there was a fog in the room. I'm getting out of here, he said.

And he folded up his newspaper, and then said, Now William, wait a minute. If he knows you that well, he may be just the person with the answer to your problem, ma said, and pop said, Nothing doing, he'll tell me to take a combination of vitamins and there's no examination left that I haven't taken.



Why, that's the very brand it with pep by switching to Glasglow coffee.

Jessup First Man in United States To Hold Title Ambassador-at-Large

By GEORGE RONALD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, May 6 (CP)— Dr. Philip. C. Jessup, a soft-spoken, book-loving university professor, was one of the master thinkers in the behind-the-scenes negotiations which led to the unconditional lifting of Berlin blockade it was lifted.

He is the first man in United States history to hold officially the title of ambassador-at-large. Few men know better than his immediate bosses, President Truman and State Secretary Dean Acheson—the board responsibilities it entails.

His latest assignment, to find with Jakob Malik, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, a formula for settlement of east-west differences in Germany, was one affecting the whole world. A less capable and experienced statesman might have shied at the very thought of so far-reaching a job.

Jessup, at 57, brings a wealth of international knowledge to the key post of ambassador-at-large. His biggest job prior to that appointment lately this year was as deputy United States representative on the United Nations Security Council.

He won early recognition as a scholar but, despite his love of books, was never a book-worm. He served as an intelligence man in 1917 and served in France and Belgium.

Jessup went back to college, got his bachelor of arts degree, worked in a bank for two years and went on to Columbia and Yale before taking his first government job—as assistant solicitor in the Department of State.

International Law Authority

He returned to New York in 1925 as a lecturer in international law at Columbia. He became a full professor in 1939 and has written as an authority on that subject, still holds the position.

Top-flight assignments came thick and fast for Jessup during the Second World War. He witnessed the birth of the international monetary fund and international bank, saw the United Nations organized at San Francisco in 1945 and was chief of personnel and training for the United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

He likes the idea of a world government and thinks chances are good for a lasting peace. Peace is the ultimate target of his efforts to help resolve the Berlin situation.

False Information Charges Dropped

St. Catharines, May 6 (CP)—Charges of giving false information to police were dropped yesterday against William Hendry, 23, when no evidence was offered against him.

Hendry was charged last Saturday during police investigations into the disappearance of Joyce Patterson, 20, whose body was found Sunday in the Welland canal.

Police said throughout the time Hendry was held that he was not considered a suspect in the girl's disappearance but that they considered he had given a conflicting story of his actions on the night of the girl's disappearance.

Inquest is scheduling into Miss Patterson's death.

YUGOSLAV HUSBAND JAILED, WIFE SAYS

Fears for the personal safety of Branko Vukelic, former counsellor for the Yugoslav legation in Ottawa are held by his wife, Nada, shown with their two children, Slobodan and Mira, of Kirkland Lake, Ont. Mrs. Vukelic was recalled to Yugoslavia some months ago and told his wife he would return soon. Last word from him was received in September, 1948, and Mrs. Vukelic fears he has been arrested, though this is denied by the Yugoslav legation in Ottawa.—Central Press Canadian.

Canada's Junior Army Officers To Take Course

Ottawa, May 6 (CP)—An army officer from Montreal will be given the task of teaching Canada's junior army officers of the future something about everything.

He is Maj. C. A. Roberts, Military Cross winner of the Second World War, presently in the directorate of military training at army headquarters.

Selected by a staff of four Majors and a Captain, he will start this summer giving all newly-appointed Lieutenants of the active army a seven-week common-to-all-arms course.

That means they will get to know something about tanks, artillery, armor, guns and other weapons and equipment.

Maj. Gen. Howard Graham, former Commanding Officer of the 22nd Armoured Regiment, will have to touch on all phases of army activity, army headquarters said in announcing the course. To start June 13, it is designed "to broaden the knowledge of newly-qualified junior officers and familiarize them with the problems and working machinery of corps other than their own."

The course will be held annually and the present plan is to send the Lieutenants to the best as soon as possible after they are accepted for active commissions.

Graham, senior staff army headquarters, "will be placed on physical training and other duties first." But there'll also be emphasis on such subjects as how to manage men, field strategy and army administration.

There will be lectures periodically by various corps directors.

Maj. Roberts will be assisted by Maj. D. R. Sharpe of the army's Western Command and Majors F. D. S. Lafferty, R. D. Watson, F. G. Stebbens and Capt. P. E. Cochran of army headquarters.

CRASH SURVIVORS BEING SOUGHT BY PARA-RESCUE MEN

Two Persons Sighted Are Believed to be Not Badly Injured

Vancouver, May 7 (CP)— Three avenues of rescue were considered possible today for two persons believed survivors of a mountain crash last Monday night on the last leg of a plane flight from Alberta to British Columbia.

In the expectation that two persons sighted by search planes are Bill Grant, veteran Vancouver pilot, and Stella Lee, 20-year-old student nurse, these preparations were made:

1. A U.S. coast guard Helicopter was moved to Hope, B.C., possibly to attempt evacuation.

2. Three R.C.A.F. para-rescue men jumped and landed near the spot on snow-capped Mount Hozomeen in Washington State where Grant's plane crashed. They will meet Miss Lee and Miss Olive Clare, who have been dropped clothing, food and medical supplies.

3. A party of loggers from a camp at Ruby Creek, near the wreck scene has set out to reach the two persons who were spotted yesterday from the air.

Earlier, a plane had been sighted at 5,000 feet on Hozomeen, four miles south of the Canadian border and about 100 miles from Vancouver. The plane apparently was not badly damaged. It was abandoned in the up and right attitude and its wings were discernible.

Great apprehension was felt over the while flying in a snowstorm through Manning Provincial Park last Monday. He and Miss Clare had been travelling from Calgary to Vancouver when Miss Clare had been visiting her parents.

Times Stresses Importance of Quebec Vote

London, May 7 — (CP)—The Times today stresses in an editorial the importance of the Quebec vote in the forthcoming general elections in Canada.

"It is as much as the attitude of French Canada that the election is likely to turn," the newspaper says.

George Drew, leader of the Progressive Conservatives and Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec "have in common their principles."

"One is strengthening of provincial rights and the other is acting in opposition to the spread of communism.

"There is also much, perhaps more, to hold them apart. Mr. Duplessis is a racial nationalist and isolationist who opposed Canada's participation in the war in 1939. Mr. Drew is an uncompromising imperialist, an advocate of Commonwealth co-operation and believer in thorough preparation against the danger of another world war.

"It would be a leading much of Mr. Duplessis to expect him to use his full rank — his leadership of Quebec in order to invite French Canada to support such a man as any prime minister who is the most distinguished Canadian since Laurier.

"If Mr. Duplessis' stands on his own, the Liberals enter the election with better chance."

Shanghai, May 7 (CP)—Chinese Communists are concentrating on Shanghai today blasted a gap in the city's strongly-fortified outer defence perimeter, official and press reports said.

Communist troops also struck against the northern approaches to the port of Tsingtao where warships of the United States west Pacific fleet are based, these reports added.

The Nationalist garrison, after battling against numerically-superior Communist forces, evacuated Pingpo, railroad, highway and inland river communications centre, 30 miles southeast of Shanghai.

At the same time details of the defence are—Taichang, 20 miles northwest of Shanghai, and Kunsan, 33 miles south—the National-ist defence stood firm.

In a pitched battle, of more than eight hours, some 10,000 Communist troops were driven off, the Nationalist garrison communique claimed.

The communique said 15,000 Reds in two groups attacked on two sectors 7 miles west and 5 miles northwest of Shanghai.

Another report still swirled about a third anchor in Shanghai's defence arc—Kunsing, 18 miles to the southwest.

Red Spearheads, however, appeared to be thrusting nearer the city into South China along a notched front of more than 200 miles, the fighting southwestward from the Shanghai area to Nanchang.

Press reports said that Nanchang, the city on the Yangtze Easter approaches to the vital Hankow-Canton railroad, was in a state of siege.

Chinese Communist columns, already more than 100 miles south of their Yangtze bridgehead, were reported pressing on.

The two persons were spotted by R.C.A.F. Flight Lt. Ray Mercer, flying pose photographer for the Vancouver Province, on a day off. Mercer said he spotted the couple in a valley beside a lake.

Earlier, a plane had been sighted at 5,000 feet on Hozomeen, four miles south of the Canadian border and about 100 miles from Vancouver. The plane apparently was not badly damaged. It was abandoned in the up and right attitude and its wings were discernible.

Great apprehension was felt over the while flying in a snowstorm through Manning Provincial Park last Monday. He and Miss Clare had been travelling from Calgary to Vancouver when Miss Clare had been visiting her parents.

WEST GERMANY SAYS NO TO PLEAS OF COMMUNISTS

Won't Halt Formation Of Proposed New State

Bonn, Germany, May 7 (AP)— Western Germany has said "no" to Communist pleas to halt formation of its proposed new state.

Political leaders scheduled the last step of adoption of a west German constitution for tomorrow, the fourth anniversary of Germany's surrender in the last war.

The constitutional convention clearly was speeding its work to beat the Wednesday midnight deadline for lifting the German blockades under the New York agreement announced Thursday by Russia and the western powers.

The western occupation powers want the west German government to be the law for all Germany if there is an eventual union of the Soviet zone with the British, French and U.S. zones.

The developments came as Russia and the western Allies worked at top speed to lift their blockades. The first lifting order will be done by German transportation experts.

The task involves complex technical problems, and the complicating threat of a rail workers' strike. Employees who live in the Soviet zone, and have a Russian-controlled rail lines in the western sector, threatened to strike unless they are paid west marks.

Forest Travel Banned in Quebec Except by Permit

Quebec, May 7 — (CP)—Henri Kletter, chief of Quebec forest protection service, announced today that all persons entering in Quebec woodlands due to a dry spring and forest travel, except by permit, is banned until further notice.

Mr. Kletter said about 20 outbreaks of fire have been reported so far and all were brought under control quickly.

The fires occurred in Continued district and in the north centre of Montreal, as well as in St. Maurice, Chicoutimi and Lotbiniere regions.

A fire in Rawdon township in Chicoutimi region burned through 200 acres and was fought by 250 men. A fire in Cap De La Madeleine Seigniory also burned 250 acres before it was brought under control.

V-E DAY COMMEMORATED

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 7 — (CP)— Plans are complete for commemorating V-E Day and the end of hostilities four years ago is being announced today. Included in the parade will be the Lincoln Welland Regiment and band, the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, veterans groups from Ontario and New York State bands.

Guerrillas, Bandits Almost Hem in 'New Territories' Leased by UK Near Hong Kong

Hong Kong, May 7 (Reuters) — Chinese Communist guerillas and professional bandits have almost hemmed in Britain's 350-square-mile leased "new territories", on the China mainland opposite Hong Kong, authoritative sources in the Colony police force said today.

Three Chinese police have been killed on duty in the last three months in addition to the two British marine police officers murdered yesterday in a bandit raid on Hong Kong.

All available police resources here were working today to track down the murderers of the two British police officers.

Police believe the culprits may be connected with Communist territory.

Discovery of the full motive for the crime, police said, might be important in determining whether or not Communist pressure on Hong Kong Colony was operating on the Malayan pattern.

Observers said a gradually-developing wave of violence is possible. They expressed belief that much of Hong Kong's Chinese population has a Nationalist outlook.

As the Communists drove southward in China, Hong Kong was flooded with refugees "fleeing the worst." But Sir Alexander Grantham, Hong Kong's governor, said there was no danger of revolt and asked the Colony's citizens to remain calm.

The Governor said he did not know how the Chinese Reds would regard their external affairs but he expressed hope they will be "friendly with foreign countries, especially Hong Kong."

Britain and U.S. Attempt to Smash Noise Blockade

Washington, May 7 — (AP) — Britain and the United States, in an attempt to smash through a Soviet noise blockade, plan to use a battery of 61 transmitters, all blasting at once, to flood a barrage of Russian - language broadcasts in the direction of Moscow.

George V. Allen, United States assistant Secretary of State, said the State Department's voice of America programme would carry an announcement charging Russia with "deliberate interference" which "follows a pattern similar to the systematic jamming of shortwave broadcasts conducted by the Nazis during the war."

The Soviet jamming started in earnest on March 1 — just before the first news of negotiations" to end the Berlin blockade," the State Department charged that the jamming was deliberately designed to keep the Russian people from hearing the west's version of the negotiations.

Trying to slip some of its programs through the Russian wall of noise, the Voice of America went on a 24-hour schedule a few days ago. Officials said it has helped.

Yesterday's announcement said the United States and Britain were beaming Russian broadcasts overseas on a round-the-clock schedule.

In addition, both the Voice and the BBC will increase their programs into the campaign, using their whole array of transmitters on a variety of frequencies.

Robbery Charge Laid Against Windsor Man

Windsor, May 7 — (CP) — William Kohanek, 25, Canadaway was arraigned in city court on a charge of robbery with violence as an aftermath to the safe cracking job at a southwestern Ontario Hydro-Electric electoral trial in higher court and was returned to custody.

Kohanek is alleged to have taken slightly more than $500 from the club safe after first striking Clerk Norman Arthur Monroe, 67, over the head and tying him to a chair in the office where his safe was located.

No money was found on Kohanek but when he was held for trial and change was found in an alley through which he allegedly had gone after leaving the club.

Two other men are alleged to be involved in the safe cracking but no trace of them has yet been found.

TRAVELLERS STRANDED

Paris, May 7 — (Reuters) — Travellers who had booked passages from Paris to Prague hoping on air-France planes were stranded at Le Bourget airfield by a strike of Air France pilots which started at midnight, despite a government ban.

The strike was called for three days — Saturday to Monday — to back wage claims.

The government issued a decree yesterday ordering Air-France crews to serve international lines under pain of legal penalty.

O.B.A. to Notify Trenton on Status Batawa Players

Hamilton, May 7 (CP) — The Ontario Baseball Association held a regular meeting of the executive at the Wentworth Arms Hotel Friday night to discuss several items of important business relative to the 1949 baseball season, now in full season.

The following members were in attendance: Garrett Frankland and S. H. Armstrong, Toronto; Cy Chalmers, Brantford; Jack Fi Wilkie, Stratford; Fred Young, Kitchener-Waterloo; Jack Sharkey, London; Tony Gregg, Windsor; Arnold Sidlofsky, Oshawa; Robert Robinson, Windsor; Fred Bradley, W. J. Snyder, Ven Clark and Harry Sullivan, all of Hamilton.

Seventy-three applications for change of residence were passed by the executive with only one being refused, that of Walter Gunn, Batawa, which was turned down by the Toronto Baseball Association.

All applications for re-instatement were approved.

Teams in the Bruce County League and the Western Ontario League will play in the same league as they did last year with official opening Rule being left together to decide new boundaries.

Oakville representative was appointed to the league to represent Oakville in the intermediate "A" baseball series, a place vacated by Trenton when it was eliminated in the Senior Vladuck League.

Ottawa seniors, and junior teams from Windsor, Port Colborne and Kingston for the O.B.A. was denied. The executive ruled that they must affiliate through the Ontario Amateur Baseball Association.

Cambray and Lindsay were granted Intermediate "C" classification.

DETROIT'S MAYOR MAKING EFFORT TO END STRIKE

Wants Meeting Between Ford Company, Union

Detroit, May 7 (AP)— Dearborn's mayor Orville L. Hubbard today proposed a meeting of Ford and United Automobile Workers (CIO), officials at his office next Thursday for a "supreme civic effort" to end the strike of 65,000 workers.

Since noon Thursday Ford's great Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn and its Lincoln-Mercury factory in Detroit have been idle.

Meanwhile resentment of strikers toward management was observed on the picket lines at Rouge.

This followed Ford's announcement yesterday that a fire early in the connection with wildcat strikes which preceded the union-sanctioned walkout.

Union sound trucks blared out the word of the disharmes, and scatcals came from pickets. There was no trouble however.

Prior to Mayor Hubbard's peace meeting proposal, neither the U. A.W. nor Henry Ford II, young president of the company, would consider. U.A.W. president and Thomas Thompson Walter P. Reuther, U.A.W. Ford local 600. A cop was sent to Governor C. Mennen Williams of Michigan.

The strike's effects were extending to other cities. Small plants in Michigan were closing.

Applications Must be in By May 15th

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP) — At least as many houses will be built in Canada this year as in 1948 when construction reached the record total of 61,000, Major-Gen. H. A. Young, vice-president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said Friday.

He predicted in an interview that despite availability of all building materials, prices would still not decrease.

Gen. Young said that Toronto will continue to be the worst cities in Canada from the standpoint of housing shortage.

Gen. Young said it is too early to forecast the number of government-assisted housing that will be built. Applications for the line for applications by municipalities for veterans' rental housing would be reached until May 15 when this year's program will be mapped out by the government.

Provincial Police Gain Upper Hand In Stiff Fight

Arrested Strikers Taken To Montreal, Sherbrooke

Asbestos, Que., May 7 (CP) — An aftermath of bitterness and recrimination seeped through this strike torn asbestos mining town today in the wake of disturbances Thursday which brought in scores of heavily armed provincial police and resulted in the reading of the Riot Act.

Between 116 and 181 persons have been arrested. With no jails in this eastern townships region big enough to hold them all, they were taken to Montreal and a large number to Sherbrooke, some 35 miles away.

And while uneasy pace has been established union leaders have charged police with brutality and company officials have declared the strike which touched off Thursday's incidents is against the entire social structure.

Roads Barricaded

Thursday's explosive situation —one of the most dangerous in recent Canadian labor history — started when striking miners barricaded all roads but one leading into Asbestos, a town of 6,000 which is the centre of the world's asbestos mining industry.

Canadian Catholic Federation of labor officials said the road blocks were put up to prevent the companies' from bringing in outside, non-union workers.

Large gangs of pickets patrolled the road blocks armed with clubs and when several cars full of plain clothes provincial police attempted to run the gauntlet, a melee broke out in which a dozen policemen were beaten, charmed Thursday's violence in perish ball. There they were released.

Friends Believe 'Soapy' Williams May Some Day Dwell in White House

By HAL BOYLE

Lansing, Mich.,May 7 — (AP) Soapy Williams, who scrubs dirty works 'a day at a wide desk here in the limewash statehouse, is the 36-year-old G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, whose friends believe he will some day dwell in the White House.

There are those who think Williams became "the miracle man of Michigan politics" last November when he soundly bashed by Labor, he defeated Kim Sigler by 183,854 votes. Democrats now are ready to think his victory merely reflected a trend. He is unopposed for Sigler, seeking re-election.

Both men governors have both class and mass appeal He has been a politics protege of Supreme Court justice, Frank Murphy, and he is an heir to the Mennen shaving soap fortune.

Williams is 6 feet, 3½ inches tall, friendly and easy going.

The governor is personally popular with Republican legislators, who regard him tolerantly as "a well-intentioned young man." But he is acutely aware of the fact that in the last five months they have jettisoned most of his new-deal programs.

One thing Williams feels, will be adopted in time is a four-per-cent corporation franchise tax he has pressed for without result.

Michigan has a three-per-cent state sales tax but no personal income tax.

The governor's term in office is two years in Michigan, and Williams is expected to run again. He will run again.

Observers feel that the 1950 election will provide the key test of Williams' popularity in the state — and probably also determine whether he'll emerge as a national political figure in his party.

Right now the young governor just laughs at talk of any national ambitions in his life.

"That's way in the background," he grinned. "I think I'll stick around here a long time."

SWIMMING SEASON OFFICIALLY OPENED

The current swimming season was officially opened Friday when several boys were initiated swimming in the old stone quarry two miles north of the city on the Foxboro highway. It is believed to be one of the earliest dates when the swimming season commenced in the Belleville area.

Less than two months ago skating was the order of the day on the smooth ice surface of the water filled quarry, and evening the boys were having an equally good time, but instead of gilding over the surface of the ice they were giving good demonstrations of the Australian crawl.

WILD PLUMS ADD BEAUTY OF BLOOM TO SPRING PICTURE

"Spring is getting out all over" with wild plums and marigolds.

Shrubbery, sprouting new life, the lush of the new grass, budding trees, are only colorful witnesses to the glad season.

Adding their bright beauty are the pretty blooms of the wild plum trees, who are the standouts the fruit is now coming into full blossom, in great profusion. A sight, indeed, to gladden the heart of winter-weary humans.

WAGON GOT TOO CLOSE TO C.N.R. SWITCHER

A local bread wagon had a bit of paint scraped off with its horse being a bit scared as the wagon got a bit too close to a C. N. R. freight car which was being shunted down the Pinnacle Street siding this morning.

The freight cars were being shunted down the siding ahead of the engine when the horse's wagon happened to be a bit too close to the switch. A few cents of bread were spilled onto the pavement but the driver was able to control the frightened horse before further damage resulted.

Two Dunked In Quinte Bay, Boat Upsets

They weren't trying to establish any early record for opening the swimming season, but nevertheless two local men received a ducking Friday evening when they decided to sailboat in the Belleville harbor a short distance south of the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge.

Bob Allen and Lorne Sanford were cruising the harbor in a duck boat when in some manner the craft upset, precipitating the two men into the water. They swam ashore once the scare for their ducking, while another party rowing in a boat nearby brought their overturned craft ashore.

An alarm was turned in to the city fire department but the "rescue" had been effected on their arrival.

MINISTERS WILL

British officials said yesterday the ministers will have an open agenda. Observers said it is likely the representatives of the United States, Russia, Britain and France hope to avoid reopening old quarrels.

Meanwhile, British, American and French experts have begun to work on a new statement of political and economic principles which they feel should govern any German settlement, official sources said.

Take Into Account

In this they are taking into account developments since the last four-power conference in London in December, 1947.

These include the three veteran powers' agreements to:

1. Merge the western occupation zones into Trizonia.

2. Put Germany's industrially rich Ruhr valley under control of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

3. Raise the level of German industrial production and reduced drastically the program of dismantling German industries.

4. Give The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg portions of Germany's border territory.

5. Set up a west German Federal Republic by July 1.

Another development to be faced in Byrnes's call for withdrawal of all occupation forces one year after the signing of an all-German peace settlement.

Junior Farmers Of Thurlow Twp. Hold Meeting

Assistant Agricultural Representative Jim Montgomery gave a brief talk on calf club work after which 11 boys joined the club. Gerald Langdon, president, presided over the meeting.

President Harold Ross opened the girls' session during which it was decided that some of the girls friends and relatives near and far would be asked to attend the district conference "Personality and Dress," which is being held in Melrose on May 9th. Work project for the evening was making handkerchief sprons, while softball was also discussed.

Russia Reported Ready to Make Three Concessions

Berlin, May 7 — (Reuters) — The American-licensed Berlin paper Abend said it was learned yesterday from Soviet military government circles that Russian Minister Andrei Vishinsky was prepared to make three concessions on Germany:

1. Establishment of a federal republic without any Soviet stipulation on precisely when it would be set up.

2. Soviet Union to work for a German unified currency under any conditions, "to put the collapsed Soviet mark on its feet again."

3. Russia readiness to withdraw completely from Eastern Germany, even if Big-Four negotiations in Paris fail.

Material for the four-power conference in Paris was already "complete and ready," it was hoped that the Soviet Union would respond to initiative, they carry through in Paris its plan for "unity and just peace."

NOVEL ARGUMENT

Denham, Bucks., England (CP) — As long as tuberculin-tested cows do not graze on the same pasture as accordion players they can "kiss" one another over a wire fence as much as they like, ruler Denham council. The council was discussing the building of a fence to prevent one herd of cows feeding 4th others.

PRESERVE BLITZ GARDEN

London, England (CP) — A city garden laid out by firewatchers during the off-spells in the 1940 bombing of London, will become a permanent war memorial. The garden was made by firewatchers from the Goldsmith's Company, whose hall is nearby.

Choose Hedges to Suit Conditions

Ottawa—Trying to answer the question "what is the best plant to use as a hedge?" is about as satisfactory as naming one medicine as the best for all illnesses. Varying tastes and different conditions make a single choice impossible.

But two things are important. The plant must be hardy enough to come through the winter without killing back and it must be able to stand clipping. Clipping is important today, as the new type of "functional" architecture, calls for simple horizontal lines in the planting, which, are well carried out by neatly trimmed low hedges. This architecture is even bringing back the simple forms of topiary work so popular in hedge trimming in Britain one hundred years or more ago, says R. W. Oliver, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Special Selections

Hedges are now being used with thickened buttresses and high points to mark corners and to emphasize doorways. Such hedges can only be formed of plants with small leaves and firm growth such as Korean box, Japanese yew, alpine currant or privet.

If a low hedge is needed, Korean box as the evergreen, and dwarf barberry as a deciduous hedge, are probably the best. For a hedge up to four feet high, the best evergreen is Japanese yew, while alpine currant, and in mild districts, privet, are the best deciduous plants. If the need is to keep out the neighbours' dog, thorny hedges such as barberry or honey locust are useful; and as tall hedges for privacy, Norway Spruce, or Chinese Elm should be used.

For Shady Areas

In shady places where the ground is moist, laurel will flourish or the wayfaring tree are good tall hedges, though nothing can grow successfully beneath the deep shade of thick trees. On dry banks, ceragnus is as reliable as anything. Where bright color is desired, red barberry or golden leaved mockorange can be used, though such hedges are not usually attractive and should only be used where an unusual effect is wanted.

As background for the bright color of annual or perennial flowers the soft mid green of red pine or chinese elm is most suitable.

There are good hedge plants for each situation. The best method is to visualize the requirements and choose a plant to meet them.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

SONS AND DAUGHTERS

Parents in Birdland are encumbered with many children. Sons as Hummingbird and Nighthawks, just have twins each-year but the average for Jack Sparrow is nearer five. Cardinals might always own three or four youngsters a few weeks old when three or four others break out of their shells. Sparrows and Starlings sometimes bring up three broods of five, while Wrens often lay two clutches of six to eleven in a season. A long billed Marsh Wren frequently lays thirteen, and the American ornithologist Job once found a nest with sixteen eggs. Mrs. Ruffed Grouse occasionally has fifteen children all the same age.

The average number of eggs for water birds is considerably higher than for song birds. Ducks usually lay a dozen eggs, and Mrs. Wood Duck prefers fourteen or fifteen. Perhaps Rails deserve first prize. A Sora Rail is quite accustomed to have sixteen children of approximately the same age. But Mrs. Sora does not attempt to do all the upbringing. She arranges it so that her eggs hatch one a day. When half the children are old enough to be moved, her husband leads them to another nest, which the pair had prepared earlier in the year, and there takes charge of them while the infants are being attended to by their mother.

Some birds parents are sensible enough to get older sons and daughters to help with the work. Viscount Grey has told of Moorhens, born in mid-May, assisting in the feeding of younger brothers and sisters that hatched in mid-July.

An American ornithologist, Skutch, has been observing Golden-naped Woodpeckers. He reports on a family that was evicted, intruders brought twigs and leaves to the home where the pair lived with three children. Mother and father Woodpecker started overtime excavating a new dwelling before they wanted to be entirely crowded out of the old one. At last a son, still very young, began chiseling too; but finding that difficult, he and a brother took to throwing the twigs and leaves out of their one time dormitory.

We cannot tell apart the sons and daughters of most bird families; however, some are easily distinguished even by a novice at bird watching. Note how Mother Nature, thoughtful as ever, has put two little boys and two little girls in the Robin's nest, that there may be an equal number of each to pair, and the species be carried on.

WILL VISIT CANADA

The Rt. Hon. Harold Wilson, O.B.E., M.P., President of the Board of Trade in the United Kingdom Government, will arrive in Canada next week on a tour of the Dominion. His main purpose will be to see for-himself at first-hand the progress being made in this vital export market for British goods. Problems will be discussed with Canadian businessmen and with the United Kingdom Trade Commissioners. It is his hope that as a result of his personal experience he will be able to speak with more knowledge and authority to business men in the United Kingdom on his return. He does not intend to enter into any formal conclusions or discussions with the Canadian Government, but he looks forward to renewing contacts with members of the Government and Canadian officials. The President's party will travel across the country in a Department of Transport aircraft placed at his disposal by the Canadian Government.

Mr. Wilson has a post which is equivalent to that of Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Canadian Government. He assumed the office at the age of 31 in 1947 and became at the same time Privy Councillor and a member of the Cabinet. He has had a distinguished career. He became lecturer in economics at New College, Oxford, in 1937 at the age of 21. He worked with Lord Beveridge on world food planning in relation to trade depressions and at the outbreak of war joined the War Cabinet Secretariat in London as economic assistant dealing with food problems. He later became director of economic section in the Ministry of Fuel and Power. He is a fellow of the Royal Economic Society and the Royal Statistical Society.

Trade is of paramount importance at this time for the British people in the light of the efforts which are being made to solve their economic problems.

SPRING WORK

Progress of agriculture across Canada attracts much attention and at this time the weather is playing an important role as seeding goes forward.

In the countryside this is a time of intense activity and interest and every dweller in the urban centres is also concerned as he realizes that weather conditions play a principal role in the growth of the harvests to be in this important grain, fruit and dairy country.

In Ontario operations compare well with the average season, except in certain eastern districts where adverse weather conditions have retarded work on the land. Seeding of spring grains is well advanced in central, southern and western districts and has been completed in a few localities. Orchards and small fruits in Ontario are reported to have come through well. Pastures are stated to be in fairly good condition, trees are well budded, but growth has been slow in a number of sections by reason of cool weather and not many cattle have been turned out there. While farm labor is reported scarce, the situation has eased from last year, says the Bank of Montreal report.

The cold trees withstood the severe winter well in British Columbia and reports state that most trees are in bloom and that apples should be in bloom within two weeks.

CURE FOR LONELINESS

Loneliness sniffs its way into dances and parties where gay companions suddenly find themselves staring at skeletal strangers. The stiff, sniff invades the privacy of friends by a warm hearth, so that they shiver and poke up the fire.

There is no escape from loneliness. There is a cure, but it is not by trying to escape. The sniffing at the heels stops if the heels stop their flight. Loneliness cannot be run away from. It is the run of the premises.

Loneliness is not a matter of the Portage Avenue crowds, or roistering companions - or quiet friends or estrangement on the empty prairie. The fight against loneliness dredges deep into character. The need is not for crowding more people but to come as near as one can to be to the meaning and purpose of life. The answer to loneliness is in each person himself. It is required that there be close application to hard work that will help other people. None of this is easy, so the self-lovers will never be free of sniffings at their heels. But the face of a truly good person will not be a lonely face.—The Printed Word.

Money spent on ourselves may be a moonstone about the neck; spent on others it may give us wings like eagles. R. D. Hitchcock.

The greatest pleasure I know is to do a good action by stealth and to have it found out by accident.—Charles Lamb

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1949, Edgar A. Guest)

HEREDITY

My grandfather's fingers were skilful with things.
They could pry into watches and regulate springs.
They could tighten or loosen or fashion anew
And whatever was needed my grandpa could do.

My grandfather's mind, as his fingers, was skilled.
With knowledge most useful, he'd say, it was filled.
When in trouble the neighbors for grandpa would send,
For whatever was broken he knew how to mend.

They say that heredity follows in line,
But skill didn't pass to these fingers of mine.
Machines which my grandfather well understood
I can't understand, though I wish that I could.

There's nothing that's broken that I can repair.
If grandpa left skill, I was robbed of my share.
And often I've wondered, regretting it, too
Why I've never known what my grandfather knew.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

All across Canada, this week the warblers have commenced to arrive. These are the absolute jewels of the bird world. In most parts of the Dominion, the migration reaches its peak about the 17th of May. Provided that date, you might be lucky enough to see twenty or more different species of these incomparable atoms of wild nature on one perfect afternoon.

There are fifty-five species of warblers in North America; but of the men who have seen them all are mighty few and far between. In Ontario, for example, only thirty-five species have been reported over the years; and to see that full number, even in a life-time, an amateur naturalist has to be a fanatic. I am rather stuck-up over having seen twenty-six species in fifty years.

Through field glasses, many of them are black-throatian, the Chestnut-Sided, the Parula — are fabulous to behold. They are not much larger than your thumb. They gleam and glitter with vivid and pure color, predominantly blue and orange, on soft greens, with spectacular markings in black and white. Though they are called warblers, their songs are small, shrill and feeble or brief and rather briefer notes, zipped rather than whistled.

The place to see them is preferably on a wooded hillside along a creek or pond. Parks in or on the edge of cities are often as good places as any in the country; for the warblers are on the move, and, when they alight, their swarms take no account of cities in their path.

On a soft sunny day, sit down on the hillside, where you have a fair view amid the upper branches and tops of the trees and simply wait for these jewels of the Madonna to pass by. Once they have passed you on their nesting regions, you might have to travel two thousand miles to see what you may see in an afternoon, sitting quiet about the migration.

Chief Electoral Officer Given Election Tip Weeks in Advance

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, May 7 (CP)— Jules Castonguay is a 58-year-old civil servant living in Ottawa's Glebe district and bosses the spending of $4,000,000 so Canadians can vote. But he won't be able to vote himself for probably another seven years.

Like Ballantyne, politicians and judges, the Chief Electoral Officer is disfranchised and the Bishop, Jolly Mr. Castonguay has been Chief Officer for 22 years. By law, he'll keep on going until he's 75 unless sickness prevents.

From his headquarters in an Ottawa bank building, Mr. Castonguay masterminds the machine that projects its tentacles into 260 ridings, pours forth enumerators and broken manuals of letters and phone calls and telegrams, takes down the names of 10,000,000 eligible voters, lets them vote and results in the parliament of their choosing.

Advance Tip

In the months of siege—he gets the election tip at least 10 days or two weeks in advance—he and three key men work from 9 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week. Now they have 30 or so helpers working in two shifts and, near election time, all is going well —just so long as he leaves a clean desk when he trudges—past the door each night.

On a special schedule there are 21 different days between the day he's told to returning officers, running 1,000 copies of one item to 20,000,000 of another.

Headaches

As voting day draws nearer, the post office complains that mailbags are so heavily loaded. Planes and boats and dog teams get the necessary documents into remote northern settlements. In back areas, polling divisions turn up where no one is capable of acting as an official; someone has to be sent in from outside. Because this is the great period of organization, by far the busiest, there must always be an eye to excess spending.

As for these fevered periods, like an old warhorse in battle he becomes calm. Then they exhaust and fray him.

Mackenzie's Column:
Lowered Morale Great Weakness Of Nationalists

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Your columnist has encountered an unusual analysis of China's crisis, by an international authority, Dr. Hu Shih, Chinese philosopher, educationist and diplomat who was ambassador to Washington in 1938-42.

Dr. Hu has just arrived in New York from his homeland on a tour to study the world situation. I asked him what he thought of the testimony before the United States Senate Armed Services Committee by Gen. Claire Chennault, who declared that we still could save China (and Asia) from Communist control by assistance costing about $1,000,000,000.

"I'm not a military expert," replied Dr. Hu, "and I am not qualified to pass judgment on the estimate. Of course material aid would help, but I am inclined to the exact amount of help matters less than the will to resist, and the moral support of America.

"The greatest weakness of Nationalist China now is lowered morale due to the belief that she has lost American support.

I pointed to the grave military situation of the Communists and in face of the Great Communist drive, and asked Dr. Hu if he felt the Nationalists still had a chance to win. He nodded, and said:

"As I see it, our position today is not hopeless. We have that of say France and Belgium after they were involved in the Germans' early in the late war. Both those countries were overrun by the Nazis. Because they knew the Allied joining would return with them in due course the Germans were retired.

"I believe the Nationalist troops will fight when they can.

I asked Dr. Hu if he subscribed to the idea that Chiang Kai-shek's Generals had booked directly with Moscow.

"Of course they are," he exclaimed, and raced into an absorbing recital of Chennault's copy of the Chinese Communist Party constitution. He failed to extract which committed the party to the Moscow line.

"Moscow is the leader," said the doctor, "the fate of all Asia is involved. The Russians know that if China should be taken over, the rest of the countries would fall under control of Russia."

GARDENS AMID SQUALOR

Some time ago I sat with a group of friends and heard a man read a very beautiful paper on European gardens. Was it written by a man who had gardens of his own, one who lives amid beautiful things? Not at all. It was written by a minister who for almost fifty years has lived in the poorest and most degraded section of a great city. There is squalor on all sides. The house he is now nestled down among the tall trees in which he lives. There is not a blade of grass within squares of his doorstep. There is not a single tree to be seen but that whole section of the city.

Yet his paper on gardens was one of the most beautiful things this group of friends had ever listened to. One could see the flowers nodding in the breeze, as he read, could feel their fragrance as he led his friends along the paths of memory.

But how could all this be? The reader of the paper was a sacrificial servant of the Lord, who had lived his life among the poor and had daily partaken of the resources of his rich heart in their relief. But there was another part of him which lived far beyond the squalor of the city — in beautiful gardens beautiful things. In the midst of the city streets, this man who went from house to house, armed with the tree he loved, as a token of good cheer, carried the vision of the gardens in his heart and cherished them in his heart.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE ACHE OF THE HEART

Most of us, sooner or later—because life has its own sort of ache — in our muscles, bones, ears or teeth. But the most disturbing ache of all is that which we all experience in life — the ache in the heart.

This is an ache that many people carry with them all their days for some reason or other. Mere medicine cannot cure it. Surgery cannot reach it. But it can be cured — at least alleviated — by faith, by courage, and by it the proper diagnosis. Then it is up to the patient to handle it.

The ache in the heart may come from disappointment, from the loss of a beloved one, from failure to appraise life's values, from the loss of hope or faith, or from a confused mind. Perhaps the reason is the fact that the heart than anything else.

A good man has often relieved this ache in the heart, but it's only a temporary remedy. What we need most is a reconstructed attitude of mind, a careful appraisal of values, and a return to the fundamental guide-posts of life that are to be found in an unfaltering faith in the universal religion. God in us will wipe out the heart-ache, cure the heart, and point us to the lights just beyond the hills.

We have but to look into the revelations and miracles of Nature to find evidence of this truth in human life that carry one into the path of peace and joy within ourselves. This human frame of ours is wrapped in mystery. Higher laws than those of our hearts and mind control our destiny. Be not afraid.

Often, by seeking to relieve the ache in the heart, we only have our ache somehow miraculously disappear. Then, unexpectedly, we find we have met it all with those of others, and encountered the reason for our heart-ache. We suddenly realize that the ache we had wasn't real at all but what we needed was to share ourselves with someone else.

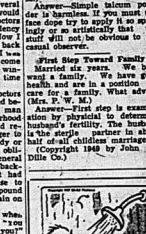
THROMBO-ANGIITIS OBLITERANS

Having had Buerger's disease over eight years and gone through the usual routine of doctors, specialists, trips to— and clinics and a four months hospital stay I gained nothing except weight.

That was my lot. No amputations. Tried — for nearly two years, and finally the prima donna told me to go elsewhere, thank God. (In general practice he "sees" as many as 60 patients a day, gives a prescription "about" you know the type.) (D. T. S.)

Yes, I know the type. But from the letters people write me I gather that most laymen get a lot of satisfaction from running to such "specialists," clinic rackets or medicine mountebanks for "shots", and some of them keep it up for a year or more before you did, sir.

So I went to a doctor who didn't have so glamorous a background or rather such an imposing façade. He examined me carefully and gave me this laconic advice: "Reduce."



I swapped the two quarts of milk I was taking daily for skim milk, cut out sweets and other fats. That was last fall.-Soon I felt like a balloon without ballast. I hadn't been able to walk more than a short distance for several years, because my heart would give out—from EKG's two doctors had diagnosed angina pectoris and suspicion of coronary. Now I walk a mile to my office and back with as light a step as when I was twenty. My weight has come down from 172 to 145 pounds, and for I was warm for the first time in years.

Not one of the many doctors and specialists had consulted me before I found the obscure man right in our own neighborhood who suggested that I try his diet. They were all too eager to flutter their fees over my head or method for thrombo-angiitis obliterans. This general practitioner without any "back-ground" or imposing front had enough common sense to realize that the twenty-pound handicap I carried was a strain on my heart and blood vessels.

As for "shots" of any kind, when I asked him about it he said "you can still swallow, can't you?" Yes, I was all.

Man, you haven't told us the full story of the patient evil in making people afraid of the medical profession. (D. T. S.)

Well, I wouldn't. You can't say I haven't warned you about the drabbiness in which you indulged. The trouble is, Mister, that you are too lazy to heed good advice when you get it. You reflect it because it doesn't jibe readily with your present concepts or with the ways of all your neighbors. That's why you are such easy marks for the brass specialists and the clinic racketeers. That's why Mr. and Mrs. Yankee Wiseacre pass up the or-

Company 2, Girl Guides.
Mrs. Margaret Govier, Captain

The last regular meeting of Company No. 2 took the form of a hike at which the Guides were the hostesses of Boy Scout Troop No. 2 under Scoutmaster Ken Smith. During the winter Troop No. 2 had entertained Company 2 at a sleigh-riding party. Our Troop winter being as it was, there was no snow, so the party consisted of Guide and Scout games and contests, after which the Scouts served a delicious lunch.

On Wednesday the Guide Company and Scout Troop hiked to Bell's Creek where campfires were built and a delicious supper consisting of hot dogs, buns and cocoa was enjoyed by all.

During the evening all joined in a treasure hunt and several of the Guides found the clue, a number of First and Second Class Tests.

On Saturday last the Company held a very successful house-warming in their new quarters building. The Company wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who gave donations to this sale.

A short time ago the Company became "An International Friendship Company" and will very soon be linked with a Company in a foreign country.

The girls are working hard for their proficiency badges and several are hoping to also receive their First and Second Class.

Commissioner's Notes

Once more we draw your attention to the Annual Girl Guide and Scout Rally, which is to be held at the home of Mrs. A. S. Lewis, 24 Bleecker Ave., Friday, May 13th. This is the only effort made by the Association during the year to raise funds for the insurance, assessments and expenses of conducting the Guide Companies and Brownie Packs. The Guide, Scout, Guide and Brownies will be contacted in connection with the rally during the coming week, and it is hoped all those who receive a little work will accept this invitation to attend the Girl Guide Association Tea.

Rev. H. O. Eastman of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church has very kindly invited the Guides, Scouts, Brownies and Cubs to hold their annual church service with the Rector Mr. Clinton. The service will be held at 11 a.m. on May 15th., and all Guides, Scouts, Brownies and Cubs are asked to meet with their leaders on the Collegiate Campus at 10.30 a.m. in full uniform. The Roman Catholic Guides, Scouts, Brownies and Cubs will proceed from the campus to St. Michael's Church for service. All other denominations will attend the Baptist Church. Attendance at the church service is not compulsory, and all children must have the consent of their parents to attend the service. Come, boys and girls, if possible, and join in this great youth service of thanksgiving and praise to God. Next week the information will appear in next week's paper.

WEST GERMANY

Such a strike would cripple Berlin's power plants, as well as railway traffic into and out of the city.

Will Elect Parliament

An early step after adoption of the constitution will be the election of a parliament to the West in July.

The people will elect 400 deputies to the parliament's lower house or Bundestag. The 11 state legislatures will choose the members of the upper house, or Bundesrat. Each state will have at least three members. Some will have five, depending on population.

The convention passed the proposed constitution by a vote of 65 to 2, overriding the contention of Communists that it was to lith the decade call also for setting up an "all-German" government which would include the Russian and western zones.

The two negative votes were cast by Communists. Fifteen delegates refrained from voting. Three of these were Socialists, who contend the constitution does not give their party enough separatist and enough local rights.

DETROIT'S MAYOR

Ford announced that starting next week 8,000 men would be laid off at assembly plants in St. Louis, Metuchen N.J., Los Angeles, Minneapolis-St. Paul, and Ionon Mountain Mfch.

Employees Vote to Strike

Flint, Mich. — Union employees of the Chevrolet assembly plant here yesterday voted 516 to 17 to go on strike over an alleged "speed-up."

The plant employs 1,500.

A strike of the assembly plant could make idle 10,000 other Chevrolet employees.

Colburn Walker, president of Local 659, U. A. W. charged that the company had stepped up production from 58 units an hour to 66 without a corresponding increase in manpower.

Union spokesmen expressed confidence the dispute would be "negotiated at the plant level."

Officials of Chrysler's Plymouth plant at Detroit announced that 10,000 production workers would be recalled next Monday. They were laid off Thursday night when Plymouth announced a complete shutdown.

Chrysler attributed the closing to a body shortage stemming from a now - settled labor dispute at the Briggs Manufacturing Company.

NATIONALISTS SAY

Aimed at Kashing

The garrison communique said the main Red drive which took Hangchow, 100 miles southwest of Shanghai, appeared to be moving south. Some Communists last were reported about 35 miles south of Hangchow.

The major Red attack seemed to be aimed at Kashing, on the railway 50 miles southwest of Shanghai.

While the garrison left the impression the Reds made little progress here, it admitted the Communists had taken Pingwang, 17 miles northeast.

The communique said 10,000 Reds attacked on the Kunshan sector 35 miles west of Shanghai. It claimed 1,000 Reds were killed or wounded and several hundred were taken prisoner.

A third attack was reported launched by 5,000 Communist troops at Taichang, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

New Type of Plane Seen

Central News Agency said meanwhile that pilots raiding Manchuria reported meeting two unknown-type" Communist fighter planes in North China.

("Unknown type" planes might be the agency's way of saying planes of Russian make. The Communists say their planes are American-built down over Nationalist descrters.)

So far, no Communist aircraft have participated in the civil war.

The Chinese air force said a "big formation" of its bombers struck military installations and factories Tuesday and Thursday at Mukden, Peiping and at Taiyuan, Chiha's "Pittsburgh."

PROVINCIAL POLICE

When director Hilaire Beauregard of the provincial police learned of the incident, he rushed some 200 armed police to Sherbrooke vowing that the strikers would go through the blockades, come what might.

But by nightfall yesterday, there was no sign of any disorder in the area as the long, drawn-out strike has frayed tempers and nerves to the breaking point.

The strike itself started Feb. 13 when some 5,000 miners working for five asbestos companies walked out demanding an increase of 15 cents in the basic wage of 85 cents an hour.

The Provincial Labor Department termed the strike illegal.

Negotiations broke down when the workers representative said the question of possible sympathy action by the Canadian Johns-Manville Company against the union and men could not be clarified.

When the companies decided to open the mines and bring in strike side workers, the striking miners started picketing despite a court injunction prohibiting action until May 21.

Today, the bitterness following Thursday's incidents was in full swing.

Mary to Appear

Jean Marchand, secretary-general of the Catholic Confederation of Catholic Labor, said in Quebec that the union plans to investigate the conduct of the Provincial Police.

Marchand said the police acted like "agents of provocation and with avid brutality" during yesterday's shooting of strikers.

On the other hand, George X. Foster, vice-president and mine manager of Canadian Johns-Manville, biggest of the asbestos companies, said radical union groups and imported agitators are supporting the strike.

Many of the strikers arrested yesterday still have to come up in court, charged with various offences from vagrancy to unlawful assembly.

Nineteen who appeared in a Sherbrooke court yesterday were fined $15 each and costs for vagrancy.

Twenty-eight others, unable to raise $500 bail, are held in the Sherbrooke jail awaiting hearing May 13 on unlawful assembly charges.

Charge Against Leo Durocher To be Withdrawn

(By The Canadian Press)

The case of the Brooklyn baseball fan vs. Leo Durocher collapsed completely Friday.

The fan's lawyer, Benjamin H. Chasin, announced he would ask Court Magistrate Monday to withdraw a simple assault summons against the manager of the New York Giants.

Chasin obtained the summons last Monday on behalf of Fred Boysen, 22-year-old Puerto Rican who charged Durocher assaulted him following a Giant-Dodger game at the Polo Grounds April 29.

Durocher was suspended by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler but an investigation cleared the Giants' manager and the suspension was lifted.

Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Friday night trounced Winnipeg Light Infantry 65-47 to win their fourth straight game in the Canadian junior basketball championship in two straight games.

The Toronto five dominated the passing and shooting play throughout. Its manager seemed to find all the holes they missed in the Winnipeg defence last night when they took a hard-fought 61-41 decision over the Westerners.

At Cleveland, Walter Dropo powerful rookie first baseman, Friday was purchased by Sacramento Solons of the Pacific Coast League by Boston Red Sox. Dropo batted .354 so far for the Sox through spring training and the first two weeks of the season. He was benched for light hitting last Saturday. The New York and Billy Goodman was assigned to first base.

Gilfird Benacek, the Czechoslovak basketball player who has been missing from Genia since Thursday, turned up Friday in the displaced persons camp of the International Refugee Organization at Bagnoli, near Naples. Benacek said he preferred not to return to his country "for many reasons." He said he was a student of economics and wanted to live and work in Italy.

From Mexico City comes word that Mexico may have to forfeit its prospective Davis Cup match against Australia because it cannot afford to send the Mexican team to Canada as a result of the devaluation of the peso. If Mexico defeats Cuba in the first round of the Davis Cup, and Australia defeats Canada, Montreal is slated to be the scene of the Mexico-Australia match.

At London, Max Faulkner, whose father bought a golf course for him last year, won the Dunlop professional tournament Friday with a 72-hole total of 287 strokes. Leading by three strokes after 545 holes, he carded a safe 74 in the fourth round on the 6,701-yard Wentworth course to land the £350 ($1,400) first prize.

A six-under-par 4 carded beneath a blazing sun sent Mr. Cary Middlecoff six strokes ahead of the field Friday at the half-way mark of the $10,000 Greenbrier open at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. The competitors were round by the slender Memphis, Tenn., dentist came on top of a brilliant 66 Thursday to finish him with a 10-under-par 130 after 36 holes.

St. Thomas' Parochial Guild Holds Delightful Afternoon Tea

Cloudless skies and bright sunshine were the harbingers of the exceptionally attractive afternoon tea, and sale of home cooking, held on Friday afternoon, under the auspices of the Parochial Guild, at St. Thomas' rectory.

Mrs. Arthur Smith, Mrs. A. H. Ketchesen, Mrs. E. Hawkins, and Mrs. N. Edwards received the guests.

Tucked away in a strategic position midway between the home-cooking room, and the tea room, was the treasurer, Mrs. J. Watson.

Mrs. J. H. Forrester was the convener of the tea room, and those who served the delectable sandwiches and cakes were representatives of the five different groups composing the Parochial Guild.

Presiding over the charmingly appointed tea table with its dainty Italian lace cloth, centered by a crystal bowl of fragrant sweetpeas, and flanked by tall ivory candles in silver holders, and gleaming tea services, were Mrs. F. W. Potter, Mrs. A. E. MacColl, Mrs. Austin Smith and Mrs. J. Chant, while Mrs. F. Wilson and Mrs. E. Hawkins graciously invited the guests to the tea room.

Mrs. J. E. McKenna brewed the tea, her committee refilled the cups and replenished the trays of creamlike sandwiches and tiny cakes.

Home-Cooking Table

Presiding over the home-cooking table, with its snowy-white damask cloth garlanded with graceful loops of blue and red, was Mrs. B. VanTassel with her committee from group B. Here were dainty tartlets, tiny hermits, red-centered sugar cookies, lemon pies piled high with golden tinted meringue, layer cakes, loaf cakes, white ones dotted with nuts, and brown ones covered with white cocoanut and nuts as well, maple cream candies, spice cakes, butterscotch pies making one's mouth water, three bunches of tender, crisp, tarty rhubarb to put a 'zip' in the morning meal, and a number of chocolate angel cakes, piled high with luscious chocolate icing, and last but not least, the ever-satisfying date squares, and golden tipped macaroons.

Just across the room was the table of fancy work, presided over by Mrs. C. Fisher, assisted by her committee from group E. The first article here to catch the eye was a lovely little baby sacque in pink wool knitted in a shell pattern, and tied with pink satin ribbon, a dream of a little garment, and requiring no stretch of the imagination to picture a sweet, baby face with blue eyes and dimpled chin, above it. Then next came little sun suits, some in grit green, some in yellow with brace effect, and one in blue. There were little bootees in white, pink and blue, with sockets in pale pastel tints, finely knit, in white, fawn, yellow and pink. A dainty needle and thimble holder was done in pink and white crochet; glorified dust mitts in green and white string, and one in pink, boudoir slippers in white, quilted satin, some in red corduroy trimmed with black, while others were in mauve and black, shell jewellery, consisting of flower bunches for earrings, and one beautiful rose set with earrings to match. There were aprons, too, dainty and useful, made from tiny flowered prints on shaded grounds and nicely finished. A yellow terry-sucker house-coat trimmed with tiny white lace edging, and a little pink angelskin bib for a tiny toddler about completed the display of tastefully arranged, dainty garments.

A delightful tea, and sale, charmingly arranged, and as sparkling as the sunny afternoon on which it was held.

White Pique Duster

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE GIRLS in the Stanley Steamers wore dusters, but they looked like cocoons rather than fashion models in their baggy lengths of fabric, usually depressing pongee.

This new-fangled duster is a day or night bandbox fresh accessory, to give an overall lingerie crispness to any spring or summer outfit. Wear it flowing or belted, with the neckline closed or open in a deep V, or just thrown loosely open in practically peignoir manner for a dashing casual effect.

Colorful New Gloves

By ALICE ALDEN

BEAUTIFUL, colorful gloves are in the vanguard of the spring fashion parade, with our fine American made leather gloves winning popular approval. Sleek doeskins and glaces in such colors as Wedgwood blue, Caribb green, lime, rose lustre and sun copper, herald a bright season. For the new short-sleeved afternoon frock, a good selection would be an exquisite glove of doeskin in eight-button length. Six self-covered buttons down the back add a novel and pretty touch.

CHOKED TO DEATH

The plow handles fell across her throat, choking the child to death.

Durham, May 7 (CP)— Albert Koesieg won King's Medal during the Second World War by helping allied airmen escape from The Netherlands. Now living here he will receive the medal Sunday when Lieutenant Governor Ray Lawson makes an official visit to this Grey County town.

Women's Activities

ELDORADO W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Albert Empey with their May meeting, the president, Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, opened the meeting with a poem entitled "Perfection, and What We Want." The roll call was answered by 13 members "With a Flower From the Bible." Secretary's and treasurer's reports were given. One new member was received into the society. Letters were read by the literary secretary. A card of thanks was received by the president from Mrs. Henry Shaw. Mrs. Albert Empey gave the highlights of the branch meeting at Smiths Falls. It was decided to collect for social funds, with Mrs. Albert Empey, Mrs. Childley and Mrs. Leonard Blackburn as collectors, also that a layette be sent for supply work. Mrs. H. Barker then gave the highlights of the Presbytery at Trenton.

Mrs. Arthur Robinson presided over the worship service, and Mrs. Gerald Blackburn took charge of the program, reading a paper of a girl's story entitled "I Am a Displaced Person", and a poem, "Imibery", a reading was given by Mrs. H. Barker.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants and a social half hour was much enjoyed.

WEST HUNTINGDON DAISY MISSION BAND

West Huntingdon—The Daisy Mission Band of the West Huntingdon United Church held its regular April meeting recently with a good attendance. The meeting opened in the usual manner.

Don McCurdy gave a reading and Marilyn Filchett sang a lovely solo "Jesus The Children's Friend." The roll call was taken and minutes of the last meeting given.

Mrs. Hammond gave the Bible story, and scripture, after which Joan McCurdy gave a delightful solo "Children Can Tell Me why Jesus Came to Live and Die." and Shiela Wilson gave a reading.

A story of Dik, the little Wild Man of Borneo was heard from the study book and was much enjoyed by the children.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Canniftom W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. D. Brenton with the president, Mrs. H. Twiddy, presiding. Mrs. D. Brenton, group leader then took charge, and introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. E. Reed from the National Employment Bureau, who gave an interesting talk on Displaced Persons, or "the New Comers to Our Country," who have come, and are still coming.

Mr. Reed told of the problems confronting these newcomers in a strange country; the differences in the languages, and the customs, and stressed the point that much patience should be shown them, adding that the D.P's are anxious to learn the language and the new ways of living, and are pleased to be called New Canadians," instead of the term, "Displaced Persons."

In closing, Mr. Reid gave several illustrations of how easily these new citizens are hurt through misunderstandings, both on their side and on that of the native peoples.

Mrs. H. Twiddy and Mrs. D. Brenton rendered a pleasing duet, followed by a resume of the recent W.M.S. Presbyterial held in Trenton, in April, by Mrs. W. Brenton, which, in turn, was followed by a short business-period.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

BEAUTY

Lip Tinting is Cosmetic Art

Three clowns and a couple of whoops for the little artist pencil that puts the high lights on the face of millions of women. Used carelessly it may mess up some feminine faces but, as a rule, it makes the countenance infinitely vivid and interesting. It was accepted as a beauty institution more than twenty years ago, has been going strong ever since. Other institutions fads have had their day and retired, but not the lipstick. Why now.

The mistake in application are many. Women remodeling too casually. It is a girl, getting the red glow in perspective and exactly as it should be applied. There are a few simple rules that must be kept in mind. One must consider the lips in relation to the other features. If lips are made too prominent, a "gale of lovely eyes may be overshadowed. That's not playing fair to intriguing eyes which, after all, compose the most interesting feature.

Do your lip tinting before a mirror that is placed in a strong light. It is the touch-up with a small purse mirror that is usually untidy.

Color must consider the lips in relation to the other features.

Hollywood make-up artists have their profession highly developed, so well they must if they are to keep the lovelies of the silver screen looking their best.

They tell us that a girl should regard her chin, especially when putting on cosmetic decorations. If it is pointed, the face thin and cheeks inclined to be hollow, a narrow line of pigment on the lips will add to the appearance of emaciation. The lips should be widened and a suggestion of a Cupid's bow drawn in. They suggest that an indelible pencil be used, since it provides a heavy coat; that the white flesh is not apparent if one tints beyond the border lines.

They say that Nature sometimes makes facial compositions. For instance, the square-jawed woman with large features may have a small mouth. She must be careful to extend the pigment to the very corners of her lips, not skimp it on anywhere.

If the upper lip is full and the lower one narrow, use more color on the lower one.

Selecting a flattering tint is no simple matter. The brunette with brown eyes usually looks well when a deep, rich wine shde is used. Girls with sallow skins must avoid tones, find an orange-red that blends with a complexion that has a golden cast.

Clothes fit better and your figure will look neat and trim if you wear the proper foundation garment. Be sure it fits just right, feels comfortable

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE'S an old saying to the effect that a horse and a woman should be well harnessed. It applied especially in the days or the steel-riveted corset, but it also has meaning to the woman who is a bit rotund and must wear a girdle or foundation garment. It isn't enough to have the frock perfectly fitted. The undertops also must be smooth, correctly cut. Bellevue it or not, but there are women who have their panties made to order so there will be no folds at the waistline.

A foundation garment is an inspiration to carry oneself beautifully and fine posture is the making of a woman. It gives her style. The sloppy woman, who toddles along with her chest caved in, tummy out, shoulders forward, could wear the finest clothes ever stitched together and she wouldn't look like anything. Poor posture i sthe commonest of all good-looks mistakes; it is a great pity, because it can so easily be corrected by exercise.

Slouching is an attitude of discouragement, lack of spirit. Plod and you'll feel inert, listless, without ambition. How you look and act have a lot to do with the way you feel. Self respect should make a girl pull up her backbone and step prettily.

Stand with your back to the wall, shoulders heels and buttocks touching it. Hhen walk away from the wall. Is that the way you usually feel? Ask yourself that question and, if the answer is no, it is time that you were doing something about it.

Stand tall, feet close together, arms down at the sides. Lift the hands high above the head, at the same time come up on your toes. Stretch your arms and the entire body while you take a deep inhalation. Down with your hands, down on your heels, exhale. Repeat exercises at that stunt night and morning and you'll see improvement in your figure in great pity, because it can so easily be many ways.

Different Size Paper For Wedding Invitations and Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having a formal church wedding, to which we are going to invite between three and four hundred guests. But because my father is a public official and my prospective groom and I have important professional and social positions, we are planning to send many marriage announcements. I have always wanted to have the large sheets (the ones that fold) for my wedding invitations... I think they have special dignity and impressiveness... but, for the marriage announcements I am wondering if I might send the smaller type, the ones that fit unfolded into the envelopes. Never never seem this done, however. Would it be correct, in your opinion?

Anne S.

This is not customary... usually the invitations and announcements are engraved on identical size paper... but it is occasionally done, and is considered proper. There is no difference in the cost, for the large sheets of wedding paper and the smaller sheets are exactly the same price. But there does seem to be somewhat of a difference in the degree of formality (the larger sheet giving more formal appearance)... and perhaps this might be more according to the mood you wish to create by the announcements engraved on the smaller sheets. (And 'tis said that busy people like the smaller size better because this is smaller to take out of the envelope and read!)

Mass Cards May be Sent by Non-Catholics as Well as Catholics

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a Presbyterian, but several of my dearest friends are Roman Catholics, and I often leave them speaking of sending a Mass card at the time of a death in the family of one of their friends. I gather that sometimes these Mass cards are sent instead of flowers, and this idea also appeals to me because I don't like flowers at funerals. Would you please explain to me the idea of Mass cards, when they are sent and their meaning? And please tell me if they may be sent by a non-Catholic, or are they to be sent only by Catholics to a Catholic?

Mary S.

Although Mass cards are Roman Catholic in origin, they are very often sent by non-Catholics, at the time of a death, or often on the anniversary of a death, to a member of a Catholic family, generally to the member of the family most related to the deceased. A Mass card, usually signed by a priest, is a statement that a Mass will be said for the repose of a soul; and a non-Catholic, as well as a Catholic, may ask that a Mass be said for anyone who has died. To get a Mass card, you need merely ask a priest for one; and it is customary to make an offering to the church at the time you ask for the card. And among Catholics Mass cards replace flowers, as the Roman Catholic Church considers flowers as symbols of happiness.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

Letters and Answers

A "Two-Faced Flirt"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

This is one of those "pass" catching-up-with you" problems I have always been careless of other people's feelings, leading boys on and double-crossing them, playing around with their affections and in general being a two-faced flirt.

But recently I went with a boy I liked very much, and for once I really played it straight. However, I found out he got in trouble with his friends because he wouldn't listen when they told him not to go steady with me. They said I would only make a fool of him and hurt him.

I thought it would be better for us to break up, but I didn't have the nerve to tell him the real reason, so I just said I didn't care for him any more. Now that it's too late, I realize that instead of clearing up the situation, this would only seem to confirm the opinion his friends have of me. What really hurts is that he believes it now, too. How can I make him understand the truth and gain his respect and his friends' trust?

"Confused"

Dear "Confused":

When any situation gets as mixed up as this one, I always think the direct approach is the only sensible thing. In other words, if I were you I would get hold of this boy and make an honest confession. If he is a good guy, you should be able to make him understand. If because of the current confusion, you are not able to get him alone in person, there is always the mail. But whatever way you choose, tell him your story.

She Was Right to Get Angry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 21 years old and have been going out with a fellow 30.

A couple of weeks ago we were baby sitting, and we told each other of our love. But during the evening he got fresh, and I got mad. He said I didn't love him or I wouldn't have got mad, and I haven't heard from him since.

Did I do right by getting mad? Or should I just forget it and call him up?

"A Loyal Reader"

Dear "Loyal Reader":

I think you did exactly right to get mad, and if that's the way he cared anything for you, he wouldn't have gotten fresh. Certainly if he were the right sort he would have been apologetic instead of angry when you showed him you didn't like his behavior.

Don't make the mistake of calling him up. The next move should definitely come from him, and unless he gets in touch with you to apologize, you should have nothing to do with him.

Spring Brides

"Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed, Something Blue."

These sayings have become traditional and one of the more recent ideas that has become a tradition is preserving a faithful photographic record of your wedding. A record you can cherish in later years or a faihful reproduction of the events on one of the greatest days of your life.

Plan now for your individual and candid photos to be taken at the home, church or reception. . . . Your inquiries are welcomed.

Sain and Spahn, Braves' Two-Man Staff Back in Business in National Loop

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn, Boston Braves' two-man pitching staff, are back in business as a winning combination.

Last year, manager Billy Southworth's success formula was the familiar, "Sain, Spahn and rain." It may be the same story all over again.

After a shaky start in which both Sain and Spahn, his left-handed partner, failed to win their first two outings, the boys are back in stride.

Spahn twirled a fine four-hitter against Cincinnati Reds Friday night to win his third straight. The 6-1 decision cemented the Braves' hold on the National League lead.

Spahn had a shutout going until the ninth when Hank Sauer belted his third homer of the season.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Reds on their eastern trip.

Johnny Schmitz' old jinx on Brooklyn Dodgers showed as he ruined their home night opening before 30,041 fans with a 6-2 Chicago win. The classy southpaw defeated the Brooks six times last year.

Monte Kennedy of the New York Giants turned in a fine workmanlike effort against St. Louis Cards as the Giants bunched up their first victory 7-5 on Johnny Mize helped topple Jim Hearn with a two-run homer in the sixth inning. It was his fourth of the year and second in two days.

Russ Meyer of Philadelphia Phillies got home safely after stumbling Pirates 4-3 on the strength of an early Phil barrage against Elmer Riddle. The Phils chased Elmer with four runs in the first three innings. A double by Eddie Miller and a triple by Bill Nicholson were the big blows.

Hero of the day in the American League was Bobby Shantz, the half pint rookie of the Philadelphia Athletics' staff. Connie Mack sent him to Buffalo Monday and recalled him Tuesday when he found himself short staffed because of injuries.

Shantz took over in the fourth as relief for Carl Scheib. He pitched no-hit, no-run ball for nine relief innings. He allowed only two hits in his full 10-inning stint for a 2-1 decision over Detroit in the 12th.

The New York Yankees' victory parade was halted by an old teammate, Bill Wight, the southpaw who went to Chicago in February, 1948 in the Eddie Lopat deal. Wight worked a seven-hitter to end the Yanks' streak at three games.

Washington's Senators outclobbered St. Louis Browns 8-7. It was the seventh successive loss for the Brownies and the fourth straight triumph for Joe Kuhel's Senators on their first western swing. Paul Calvert, the Montreal fireballer, won his third game against two losses.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

Nobody's got any more license than I have to tell any golfer to use his head and, don't try to play a tough shot. I once took a chance in a million with an almost impossible shot with a flat-faced club in a close lie in a hazard. It cost me a 5 in a match play round. But it made me a lot of friends among fellows who also took an 8 at the wrong time. So I am not crying.

When you learn and make friends at the same time, you're sure not out of luck.

Study where you want the ball to go and where you have a reasonable chance of putting it. Think it out ahead because you may have to risk a trap that will have to be carried by a shot that must bite and hold a green, unless you have started a simple course for yourself.

I know plenty of elderly men who can't hit a ball much longer than 160 yards but they score very well because they use their heads where other fellows just use strong backs and weak minds. Hit away from trouble instead of just hoping yourself away from it.—(Copyright 1949, John F. Dille Co.)

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARYER, Sports Editor

NOT SETTLED YET

It is hoped that the 1949 baseball season will get underway officially here on May 21st with the Northern Electric and Trenton teams of Belleville and District Baseball League supplying the actors for the initial diamond drama. However, President Malcolm Robb informed us today that nothing is definite regarding the date as it has not been cleared as yet with the City Parks Board. Better get busy, boys. Time's awastin'. May 21 is but two short weeks away if our calendar is correct.

• • •

At a recent meeting of the executive tentative opening dates were named with Picton opening on May 24th with the 1948 champion Napanee Athletics as their guests. The Point Anne team will inaugurate their season, if present plans materialize on May 28th, with Picton providing the opposition. These dates were set at the request of those teams who wanted opening games on their own diamonds on favorable dates. Ratification will be made shortly. The general schedule will be drawn up in the near future.

FLOOR FAME

The fame of the new plastic-mastic floor in Memorial Arena bids fair to becoming far-reaching. Already five delegations from all parts of the province which are building or contemplating building new arenas have been here to investigate the floor, been extremely well satisfied and have gone their different ways.

• • •

The other night when Manager Walter Gerow arrived home from the arena he found a one-man delegation awaiting him. He wanted to see the floor of the arena, he said after introducing himself, and would Walter mind. The affable arena manager gladly consented to show his visitor around the arena which he did.

• • •

"Down where I come from we have no floor at all in the arena" the delegate informed Mr. Gerow. "There is nothing but sand over the pipes and it makes for a terrible mess. We have wrestling and other events in the summer season and the condition of the floor is very unsatisfactory not only to us but to the sports public as well."

• • •

"We have heard of the floor in your Belleville arena so I made a special trip up here to see it." The visitor said he was more than satisfied with the floor as he saw it and he congratulated Manager Gerow and the city on the fine appearance of the arena.

"There is only one thing wrong with it," he said, "that is if you don't mind a little criticism."

"I think I know what you mean," replied Gerow. "The steel posts?"

"That's right" agreed the visitor, "take those posts out, although I think it is impossible, and you would have one of the best arenas for a city of this size that I have seen. We have a little trouble in my city along the same lines and daily we get letters from fans protesting about the posts which are directly or near a post. But there's nothing much we can do about it."

The visitor after being escorted throughout arena, the artificial ice plant rooms and other spots of interest, cordially expressed his appreciation of the courtesy extended him by Manager Gerow. "If you ever come down my way, I'll try and reciprocate," he smiled as he drove away in a powerful car.

Oh yes, lest we forget. His name? Frank Solee, manager of the Montreal Forum.

PREENING FOR PETERBOROUGH

Vern Gordon and Harry Thibeault are gradually rounding their Belleville softball squad into shape for the forthcoming May 24 semi-ball melange being arranged by the Peterborough Junior Board of Trade. The practices are being well attended with approximately 25 turning out each night in an effort to catch the squad. About 30 players will be taken on the Peterborough junket, 'tis reported.

Goyer's squad should be well fortified in the flinging department with such well-known hurlers as Jim Hunter, Pat Marsele, Don Boyle, Lum-Carson and young Bob Hunter making up the strike squad. Graydon Rogers and Roger Mallory will take care of the receiving duties, while others to include Vern, himself, Ted Henn, Mac Carson, Jack Wardhaugh, Red Calkin, Art Genereaux, Jack Hurrle, Harry Pratt, Ray Nolan, Morris Rollins, Johnny Ronsky and others.

• • •

Scouts report that Marse Jack Hurrie, a member of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment here, formerly of the Oshawa police force is turning in exceptional performances at practice. The limb o' the law, they tell us toies a mean hickory and can drive the unearthed blob further than a lot of baseball players can propel their particular ball. Harry Pratt is another John Law luring out for the team.

Also showing up in mid-season style are Jackie Wardhaugh at third and Red Calkin in the field. Jackie is filled to-out the other night the most powerful combination appeared to be Carson at first, 2nd, Carson short and Wardhaugh on third. All players are rounding into form and the village should be able to send a powerful squad in search of that Peterborough maximus come May 24th. First prize is $100 and prize $200 and third prize $100. The radio which will be offered in a draw is now on display in the window of Booth and Son shop, Front Street.

There's been a near-flood of mail arriving at this desk during the past few days, not to mention a few phone calls regarding the disappointment of fans in this city not fielding either a senior or intermediate baseball team this year. We'll deal with that question tomorrow, perhaps.

Ottawa, Regina Hockey Squads Battle in Capital

Ottawa, May 7 — (CP)—They gave the Allan Cup final back to the players tonight — for a little while at least.

The executives who've been doing all the talking for most of the week take a back seat while Regina Capitals and Ottawa Senators fight it out in the fifth game for the Canadian senior hockey championship.

A decision by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association Executive Friday settled — for the time being — the thorny question of where the game will be played. The executive ordered the fifth game here and any more games in Montreal.

Senators hold a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

If Regina comes through tonight — and there's plenty of 3 to 1 money in Ottawa that says they won't — the squabble over rinks may start all over again.

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Thursday ordered Senators to finish the series in Ottawa and "not to play elsewhere." President Azaric Choquet had nothing to say Friday night when told of the C. A. H. A. decision.

Manager Tommy Gorman of the Senators said he'll obey instructions "issued by the C. A. H. A. officials or that organization having been advised of the C. A. H. A. ruling."

But he added he thinks Senators will settle everything by winning tonight.

Resting for the game in Toronto, Capt. Cliff Thrale said they'll be ready with the C. A. H. A. ruling.

The Ottawa rink — egg-shaped they call it — started the trouble. Caps were thrown for a loop by the unusual shape and dropped the first three games.

Their difficulty has been shared with plenty of other teams during the season — Senators have dropped only five of their 43 games on home ice this year.

After the third game, Thrale asked the C. A. H. A. to change the venue and Capt. Wallingford Senators 6-3 in Toronto. His club stayed there, claiming that's where they were going to play the rest of the series. Senators came home and said they were going to play in Ottawa.

The heat might have had something to do with the general tenseness. With temperatures setting new records here May all over Ontario, more people are thinking of a weekend at the beach than a night at the hockey game.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 7 — (AP) — About a dozen horses will parade to the post at Churchill Downs late today with their backers fervently hoping that something will happen to bring Olympia back to the field and make a real race out of the 75th Kentucky Derby. . . . Chances are that nothing can happen that will be quite as strange as the way Ned Ned's a great horse in his own right but just ordinary when it was fast and owner John Troxler entered him overnight in the hope that it would be muddy on Derby day. . . . At two o'clock Saturday afternoon, the sun was shining and the track fast as Troxler scratched King Nadi to save the $500 entry fee. . . . Then just as the horses came on the track for the big race, a veritable cloudburst swept over the Downs. . . . The track was as sloppy as it ever seen when the race was run and an outsider, Flying Ebony, splashed home in front. . . . Even today you'll find guys around the Downs who'll tell you regretfully it would have been a cinch for King Nadi.

Red Sox Want Browns' Ace

Boston, May 7 — (AP) — Weakling Connie Mack, who has given St. Louis Browns about $500,000 in less than two years, appears very eager to give the Dewitt brothers (Brownie owners) $100,000 to $150,000 along with Sluggin Spence, for outfielder Al Zarilla. Now, with the Red Sox pitching staff in dire straights Yawkey is bidding very high for Ned Garver, the Browns' 23-year-old righthand ace.

The Zarilla deal is believed to be the groundwork for the Garver purchase before the June 15 deadline.

Stream Clearance Ruins Trout Fishing

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author And Conservationist Salmar Tables It

No doubt about it, old John Henry Public certainly is the boy who can take it. There seems to be no limit to his casualty for punishment taken over the hurdles. Once in a while he gets riled up and fights back, but his indignation is short-lived, largely because he has a living to earn and his own personal problems to solve.

The boys on the receiving end know this and when John gets his back up they wisely move out of range and lay low until he cools off. Then they're back at it once more, selling him a new bill of goods.

This latest package is a villainous bit of plunder all nicely wrapped up in pretty verbiage and labeled "Flood Control." Magic words, those. They promise relief from disaster and the elimination of property loss from excessive rainfall and high waters.

Of course, there is no guarantee, but merely the implication of relief from flood damage is enough. Johnny digs down into his pocket and foots the bill. Not until it is too late will he realize that once again he has been had.

Sound Plan Beneficial

Before we go any further, let's understand each other. No fair-minded man could take exception to a comprehensive, sound plan for the control of excessive rainfall. Flood control, if properly engineered, is a wonderfully beneficial project. However, some of the cockeyed schemes the boys have cooked up for spending the public funds, all masquerading under the magic label, "Flood Control," not only are ineffectual but in many cases downright dangerous and capable of doing everlasting injury.

In the mountainous portions of our United States, where we are blessed with those loveliest of God's gifts—trout streams — the powers-that-be have instituted an abominable innovation known as "stream clearance." With steam shovels, drag buckets and bulldozers they invade a chosen section of a trout stream. There they level out the stream bottom, fill in the deep "winter holes," and, with small rocks and rubble form the bed of the stream, create wide sloping banks, slightly higher than the original ones. When the job is finished they have converted a mile or so of beautiful trout stream into a second-class drainage ditch.

In so doing they render that section of the stream, at least for the time being, an unsuitable habitat for trout. In the construction work all bottom life, on which the fish feed, is ground into extinction.

Whipper Billy Watson does not give all his sports attention to wrestling. He sponsored a kids' hockey team last season called "Whipper's Pack" which won the East York PeeWee League championship. Pictured above is the popular "Whip" presenting the Steedman Trophy, emblematic of league title to Jack Mills (left) and Bruce Doidge, two of his pee wee champions. Incidentally, Whipper defeated John Katan in a rip-roaring wrestling match at Memorial Arena last night before a capacity crowd.

All semblance of natural cover is removed. As a source of recreation that portion of the stream no longer serves its purpose and temporarily can be forgotten about in terms of trout fishing.

Time passes, the bulldozers are gone, and, eventually, come heavy rains and high waters. There being no hinder in the new sloping banks, the rushing waters pick up the loose sand, gravel and small rocks and move this rubble downstream.

In some cases all traces of the "improvements" are eradicated in as short a time as three or four years. But the bulldozers have rendered the stream bottom unstable, and floods have their work with material that is easily moved. Islands are formed and new channels cross.

New Hazards Created

The wider, slower waters of the lower streams are filled and choked with debris so that bottom levels are raised, thus creating new hazards during the floods that are bound to come.

Throughout the past five years far too many million — and I mean exactly that, millions—have been spent in the financing of needless, unwise destruction of our trout streams, in the completion of projects which at best are impermanent makeshifts. In reality we are buying a source of future compound difficulties which, in turn, will require extensive refinancing to correct.

Even the eventual correction is problematical at best. Meanwhile we are allowing future generations to be robbed of a heritage which is rightfully theirs.

How long, I wonder, will it take us to learn to leave things as God made them?

Zaduk to Attempt To Dethrone Ross As Titleholder

Halifax, May 7 — (CP) — A lethal - poking /battler from Guelph, handicapped by a shiner, will attempt to wrest the Canadian middleweight boxing title from George Ross here tonight.

Challenger Pete Zaduk popped out of nowhere into the No. 1 contender spot last fall at Glace Bay, N. S., in the second round of a non-title 10-round scrap. Zaduk floored Ross for a nine-count with a right and claimed he was "robbed" in getting a draw.

It was only the third time the Wet Bay Island, N. S., farm boy had been knocked down in his three years of pro fighting. Ross has had 36 fights without a loss.

Tonight's 12-rounder has all the making of a thriller. Victory means a lot to either one, particularly to Ross. Besides avenging the only mark on his unblemished record, he would bolster his confidence for a proposed 12-round title defence against the man who stopped Zaduk in six rounds.

If he comes through in good condition, Ross has been offered $5,000 to meet Johnny Greco, Canadian welterweight champ, at Montreal May 16.

Ross, expected to weigh 154, three pounds less than Zaduk, likely will be a 6-5 favorite.

A capacity crowd of more than 6,000 is expected to pay a gross gate of $12,000 — a Maritime high. Ross will get $2,500 or 30 per cent of the gate for the second defence of the title he won here last July from aging Len Wadsworth of Hamilton, Zaduk will get $2,000 or 20 per cent.

Zaduk was given an extra week to heal a cut over his left eyelid, received in a fight less than three weeks ago.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 7 (AP)—Here is one maker of a film on a Negro theme who expects no trouble from its showing in the south.

He is film veteran Clarence Brown, who directed "The Yearling," "National Velvet," "The Human Comedy," "Idiot's Delight," and many of the Garbo pictures. He has just returned from Oxford, Miss., where he filmed "Intruder in The Dust", about a near-lynching of a Negro in the south.

One of Four

Brown's film is one of four on Negro themes soon to reach the public. But he minimizes reports of a "race" between the four competitors.

"Our picture is merely a good whodunit," he said. "It concerns three people who save a man from a lynching. The man could be Negro or he could be white; it makes no difference to the story." Massachusetts-born but educated in the south, Brown said he didn't expect southerners to object to the film.

The director shot only three days of "Intruder in The Dust" at M.G.M. studios. The cast acted out most of the story in the streets, homes, streets and fields of Oxford, Brown is enthused about this method.

New Lift

"I was ready to retire from pictures," he said, "but this picture has given me a terrific lift. I'd like to shoot all my pictures this way."

"Since the war, the public demands reality in pictures, Hollywood thought it could take any story and cover it up by beautiful photography and a big production. The public is too smart for that now."

I would certainly hesitate to film a war picture on a Hollywood stage. Movie goers have seen too much of the real thing to go for anything phony."

Notable Stage Show Will be Presented Here

An attraction of unusual interest is the forthcoming stage production of George M. Cohan's famous Broadway stage comedy hit "It Pays to Advertise." This outstanding stage attraction will be brought to Belleville by the Retail Food Merchants who have arranged with Eric Greenwood, of Toronto and New York producer of stage plays to include Belleville in this current Canadian tour. The play will be given here for two nights, May 10th and 11th in the Belleville Collegiate.

Eric Greenwood was associated with the Sam Harris Theatrical firm in New York City for a number of years. Sam Harris was the partner of the late George M. Cohan and one of their greatest successes was "It Pays to Advertise." Mr. Greenwood has recently been able to arrange with the representatives of the estate of Geo. M. Cohan for the Canadian rights of the play. The first rehearsal and will be given here—for the first time.

Imported Many Stars

During the war, and for the Red Cross, Mr. Greenwood brought to Canada 14 big stars of the British and American stages for the first war benefit in Canada, among them: Gladys Cooper, Kitty Carlisle, Eddie Davis, Ralph Forbes, Dennis King, Ferde Grofe and Ila Greenberg, Everett Marshall and Ronald Coleman.

For three consecutive drives the Toronto producer was engaged by the Ontario Victory Loan Committee to stage several of their important stage presentations which included such 'greats' of show business as Judith Evelyn, Ralph Bellamy, Patsy Kelly, Macdonald Carey, Barry Wood, Ingrid Bergman and Herbert Marshall... also responsible for the personal appearances in Canada of Victor Borge and the celebrated colored dancer and entertainer, Bill Robinson.

Now established in Boston, New York and on tour he was personal press representative for the personal appearance tours of John Wayne, Joan Caulfield, Guy Madison, Sylvia Sidney, Signe Hasso, Kay Francis and Larry Parks.

"It Pays to Advertise" is a laughs show that is considered to be one of the greatest ever written and from indications it looks like a complete sell-out for the entire engagement.

In Manhattan: Millionaire Backer of Revue 'All for Love' Throws in Towel

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 7 — (CP) — Broadway's biggest angel threw in the towel today.

Anthony B. Farrell, millionaire backer of the revue "All for Love," announced that the production, which has been running since January at a steady loss, will close this Saturday.

"All for Love" cost $208,000 to produce, its losses since it opened at the Mark Hellinger Theatre Jan. 22 are estimated at more than $210,000, making the total bite out of Farrell's pocket at least $418,000.

The production was panned by New York critics and despite extensive exploitation of the script since the opening it failed to pay its way in any week.

Farrell purchased the Mark Hellinger Theatre at an estimated cost of $1,300,000 to provide a showcase for "All for Love."

Owner of a cable company and heir to a traction and utilities fortune, Farrell called "hold it!" That venture cost him $300,000.

Medea Revived

Judith Anderson's outstanding performance in the title role of Robinson Jeffers' adaptation of Euripides' "Medea" was welcomed back on Broadway for another Miss Anderson now has played the part more than 500 times since the play first appeared on Broadway. The Australian-born actress of immeasurable talents is brilliant in the ancient drama.

"Medea" is the story of the tearful sorceress who employed her knowledge of magic and poisons to break a terrible vengeance on her former husband, Jason.

It is a most exhausting role, both physically and artistically, but Miss Anderson carries it through to the triumph demanded—but seldom received—by Greek classical tragedy.

Fragile Comedy

A comedy, sometimes fragile, sometimes rollicking, is "Bruno and Sidney," produced by New Stages Incorporated. The latest production of this experimental group is the story of two misfits who upset a tenement house in New York's Greenwich Village.

Billy Redfield, Peggy Allenby, Salem Ludwig and Lester Lonergan, Jr., head a first-rate cast.

Lure for Play-Goers

The show train is the newest dodge for luring the out-of-town theatre-goer to Manhattan shows. Once a month the New Haven Railroad operates a train specially for theatre-goers. It runs from New Haven, Conn., arriving in New York in time for the evening performance curtain and leaving after the finale. The first such train carried 600 patrons. Each train is aimed at a different Broadway production and tickets for the chosen play are sold at stations along the line.

AT THE CAPITOL — Skipper Lionel Barrymore lays down the law to his mate, Richard Widmark and his grandson, Dean Stockwell, in this scene from the new whaling epic, "Down to the Sea In Ships." The 20th Century-Fox production, which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre was directed by Henry Hathaway. The screen play, "The Three Stooges," is "Shivering Sherlocks." Matinee daily at 2.00.

AT THE BELLE — Celeste Holm and Dan Dailey are cutting a rug, Victorian style, in a daring number called the "Crinoline Bear," in 20th. Century-Fox's "Chicken Every Sunday," a lively, laughable treat, due today at the Belle Theatre.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty said, There has been intirely too mutch yawning going on in this class. On a bewtiful Spring day like this we should all be feeling lite and gay instead of dull and drowsy. Who can tell me what Spring should make us think of? she said.

Sammy Polland waving his hand and saying, Berds and flowers.

That's rite, Miss Kitty said. Spring is the most poetic of the seasons and that's why poets love it the best of all. They know it is a proof that Nature is everlasting. For Spring is like the dawn of a new year, just as the rising sun represents the dawn of a new day, and so on indefinitely. And the same is true of people. Each young men generation represents another spring of mankind, and each new generation has more and more to be thankful for as men become more and more enlightened, r at least it is nopeful to think so, she said.

Which just then I yawned sutch a fierce loud yawn it made everybody laff, and Miss Kitty said, Well, how poetic. Benny Potts ma y remain after class to give ferther expression to his poetic nature by writing a little poem about Spring, she pon my remarks on the subject, she said.

Which I did, the poem being:

And making some poetic
SPRING
A bran new Spring is here agin
Making another year dawn,
And making others yawn.

There's a new generation of flowers
And a new generation of men.
And if they put away their atom bombs
They'll be many more new ones again.

Victim of Post-Bout Attack Referee Loses Shirt, Dignity But Whipper Wins Main Event

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

"Three Men in a Bout" could well headline the story of the action-packed, knockout main bout on the Memorial Arena wrestling card last night.

The boys most concerned were Whipper Billy Watson, John Katan and Referee Bert Maxwell. The third man unintentionally was shanghaied into action and came out of the vortex of excitement ruing his temper, his dignity and his shirt. Katan emerged minus the victory but plus some satisfaction when he not only ripped the green wool sweater off Maxwell's upper "undies" but laid a few well-placed punches on the Maxwellian jowls after that gent had awarded Whipper the third fall and the match.

The Whipper who danced, slammed and generally had his way through to victory, albeit he laid a husky bunch of knuckles on the official jaw and another occasion nearly drop - kicked the umps to hyper-space, willingly went to his aid when Katan in post - match fury flew to the attack on His Ritzy Ref and laid a flying punch at the mat with several pile-driver slams, while fifteen hundred howling fullmild mildewed that the way enclosure.

Never a Dull Moment

There wasn't a dull moment from the time the gong rang for the preliminary until Whipper ruined his victorious way to the dressing room at the finale. By way of inter - bout diversion, a pair of qualified local starlets did fight at one stage of the card, and that event nearly ate some attention as the bout inside the ring.

There was a wild flurry of excitement at the end of the third fall. The Whip after being subjected to heavy punishment suddenly went berserk. He danced up and down on his heels like a spring - heeled Jack and tore into the villainous Katan. He "tried to 'ead underneath 'is arm" and when that tactic misfired he tried to dislodge the ring post with the Katanian noggin.

This seemed an effective method of treatment until the rotund equatorial region of Referee Maxwell was pressed into action as a buffer between Katan's head and the ring post. Max's charging Whipper raced across the ring. The wind was ruffled from the Maxwellian mid-section with a roar that was heard for blocks. The podgy ump fell with the force of a vase, while the Whipper promptly piloted Katan to the fall.

The Whip Was Fooled

When Maxwell came to, the Whip was putting on his robe under the impression the bout and match was over. But Maxwell ordered the resumption of hostilities and the fun started all over again.

The boys slugged it out with no quarter being asked or given. The Whip applied the sitting arm stretch and the villainous Katan replied in trouble. Later Katan used all his bag of villainous tricks in an effort to stem the tide of victory and was repeatedly warned by the official.

The gong sounded the end of the match—and then the fun started. Maxwell grabbed Watson's arm as if to raise it in token of victory when Katan swung at him like a maddened bull suddenly sprang at Max. He landed several solid elbow smashes on the official's jaw and ripped half the official shirt from the stocky torso of that worthy. Watson sprang to his defence and quelled the raging Katan into submission. Katan however had the last word. He reached over the ropes as Watson and Maxwell were leavin, grabbed the remaining remnant of the Maxwell shirt and ripped it to ribbons. The ump smiled sweetly in the ring, and it was some minutes before Katan could leave.

Good to The Last Drop

Maxwell, who pulled out more warnings than Joe Stalin's boys have votes, was the victim of a three-man set-to in the first fall. He became pinned under Katan in a ring corner, with Watson on top of Katan doing a war dance. The breath left his body in short order, whereupon Max set to work with red pounds of pachydermic best pounded him into submission. When he came out of his coma he immediately awarded the fall to Katan.

Katan was warned repeatedly in the second fall for his flying on the Watsonian jugular vein. Wrapping an arm around Watson's throat he applied gentle taps like those of a jack-hammer to the back of Watson's neck and every fan in the house shuddered. Then the Whip sprang into action. He ruffled his hair, stepped into Katan with pile-driving elbow smashes and wound up with his arm-twisting hold to win the fall.

Toughie big Sandy O'Donnell proved too much for speedy Jay Villmer in the semi-final and subdued the clever Missourian after eighteen minutes of slam-bang rough-and-tumble wrestling.

Frank Valois, Montreal, proved the arch-villain of the piece in the preliminary and used everything but the rink rafters, the Queen's Hotel and the Bay Bridge in an effort to make pasture Pat Flanagan say "uncle". But that versatile gale gent met hold with hold and was awarded the decision by Referee Cliff Hall after thirty minutes of furious milling.

Sports Diary

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Call Toronto "Hogtown" will you?

Let's quote Montreal's Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International Baseball League who had this to say before an audience of 700 at a dinner of the Kiwanis-Timers' Baseball Association:—

"I think the city of Toronto is the best sporting town in North America in a million ways." Shag didn't cite one of his "million ways" but Torontonians were entitled to be proud that praise should come from a "foreigner."

Attention Halifax, Montreal, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, and Vancouver—and others, but points: Hold your fire, fellows, until you see the white of Shag's eye.

Peculiar Breed

As a point of interest, though, Toronto's sports-going breed are a peculiar gang. They're as unpredictable as a flighty filly and as hog-towish in some respects as the rest of Canada charges.

Toronto had a home-towner out of its sacred precincts, particularly Lefty Lee has a right to fancy-ll idolize another hog-towner to an unbelievable degree and if a couple of neutral athletes or teams come to Toronto to show their wares they'll be lucky if they rah to the athlete or team whose home town is farthest from the city.

Stamps Were Tops

At the Grey Cup final last fall, Torontonians went crazy over Calgary Stampeders when they defeated Ottawa Rough Riders 7-0, Varsity Stadium's 20,000-odd crowd included thousands of transplanted Westerners but born-and-bred Torontonians were almost as happy.

What would happen if a Toronto club played the Stamps? You can bet if Calgary would be the under-dogs and they would be accorded a great sympathy from the fans.

In this year's Eastern Canada senior hockey semi-final between Sydney Millionaires and Toronto Marlboros, the crowd was decidedly for the Maritimes club.

Toronto's love affair is seen at a National Hockey League games. Maple Leafs can't do wrong and do a thing of others Conny Smythe's players can't do a bunch of bums. And still the crowd is unpredictable.

Take the final Detroit-Toronto Stanley Cup game, for instance, a goal-mouth shot nicked Detroit goalkeeper Harry Lumley's ear. Big Lum skated to the bench for repairs amid a thundering chorus of boos and when he returned in less than two minutes, the house was rocked by cheers.

It's hard to figure, isn't it?

Nine New Men Chosen to Play With Brantford

By AL ROSE
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Brantford, May 7 — (CP) — Nine new men, all of proven ability, will don uniforms for the Brantford Red Sox this season of 1949 when they hope to finish better than fifth, the spot they occupied last season in the International Baseball Association's senior race. The Sox went on to win the Dominion Baseball Association's Senior "B" title.

Coach Normie Hann feels the nine newcomers are top-grade stuff with three pitchers, a catcher, two outfielders and three infielders registered.

The new pitchers are: George Flaher, a reformed Pony League thrower, Hamilton; Billy Gibbs, a former pro, who pitched the local juniors to the intermediate league title last season; Alf. Gavey, another reformed pro, is obtaining his voluntary retirement from Winston-Salem where he threw a one-hitter recently.

Ross (Lefty) Wilson, a first baseman, is another new man. Art Hillman, a utility man from Kirkland Lake, will be handy to have around. Stan Lipka, Toronto, another man released from the Toronto Maple Leafs, will play.

Johnny Lockington, a local boy, is one of the fastest outfielders in the circuit. He played with London Majors two years ago and last year with Strathroy. A new catcher is here in Clayton Cooper, of Northern Ontario league who has a fine arm and much experience.

Missing from last year will be Able Scott, Negro boy from Chatham who it is reported, has gone to the Quebec loop; George Hann, Jr., who has also played or are not known and Benny Lustay, Toronto righthand hurler.

Ted Gray, last year as the coach, who plays second base; Jack Dougherty, veteran outfielder; Doug Bradshaw, infielder; Bob Gray, Jr., veteran shortstop; Robin Hewson, third base; Tommy McGrattan, left field and Gordon Hann, centre field. Pitchers "Nig" Parker and Tom Yorke, local boy who ... od last season, are ready ... pring camp.

Jim Northwick, catcher, is another dependable from last year. The ball park is being rebuilt and will seat 2,500 fans. It will be ready for opening day in May when Stratford comes here.

A new lighting system now being installed will be the best in the circuit. With 33,000 candle power, the club hopes to start use of the lighting system May 24, with London Majors here.

Rocky Graziano Back in Graces Of Commission

New York, May 7 — (AP) —A chastened Rocky Graziano is back in the good graces of New York State Athletic Commission.

The former middleweight champion, who had his New York license revoked in February, 1947 for failure to report an alleged bribe offer, was unexpectedly reinstated by the Commission yesterday.

Thus Rocky, who was boxing's "Golden Boy" when he won a record $100,000 gates at Madison Square Garden with a murderous shot nicked Detroit goalkeeper Harry Lumley's ear. Big Lum skated to the bench for repairs amid a thundering chorus of boos and when he returned in less than two minutes, the house was rocked by cheers.

Toronto, May 7 — (CP) — Baseball players call the minor leagues the training leagues. Soon big-league star, reminiscing about his days in the triple "A" circuits, will say that the baseball is the "up and at 'em" league.

Up in the morning for a practice and at 'em at night for the game.

They're playing all their games during the week at night the minor leagues are forgetting the commercial value of Sunday sunshine — says Ralph (Toronto Telegram) Allen.

Ralph suggests that the minors go in for some mid-week afternoon games and bring the pale-owl-eyed customer back into the bright sunlight.

Allen admits that without night ball the minors would soon starve. But he wonders if the uninterrupted diet of night games offered fans is the best thing for the game and the club's pocketbook.

"Isn't it possible that an occasional week day afternoon game might draw at least as many people as the same game played at night and moreover serve the purpose of getting people into the park who don't come now at all."

He believes that there are a lot of business men who would be only too happy to knock off one afternoon a week to sit in the sun, eat hot dogs and purple pop.

Ralph admits that afternoon games would be aimed at a minority "but we're a long-limbed minority — who grew up to believe that baseball without sunshine is like fried eggs without salt."

Flying Start

He thinks that 1949 could be the ebst season in 10 years so far as attendance and player production are concerned.

There are any number of fine prospects scattered about leagues in all classifications — the training camps were bigger and better than ever, causing coaching staffs more headaches because of the necessity of sorting and placing of prospects."

Brandon Wheat Kings on Spot Against Royals

Winnipeg, May 7 (CP)—Everybody seems to love a hockey game in a different light. That's the only explanation to the general run the current Memorial Cup series between Brandon Wheat Kings and Montreal Royals.

It's difficult to find two fans who express opinions alike on happenings to date. The only cold, hard fact is that Brandon has a grand edge in the best-of-seven series.

After four contests, two of which have gone to Royals, and two to Wheat Kings, and one a tie, there are some of the shrewd who have supplied fodder for the argumentation of the fans and sports reporters:

Some observers feel Royals have had a decided edge in the play; others are just as certain that Wheat Kings have had a wide margin. These two diametrically-opposed opinions were partially clouded last night's Brandon 1-0 victory here Thursday night in the sense that first was supposed to be a Brandon walkaway that turned into a nail-biting battle. Even the bettors found they'd been given the business. Exer Brandon fans found they couldn't get down any money on the Wheat Kings after the first part of the series because Wheat Kings were considered a "cinch". Now, nobody is betting because the series is too touch to predict.

Even in the matter of skating, the clube have upset custom. In the past, western junior clubs have been the speed demons; eastern clubs generally have been slower afoot. The latter boast of who have mercury-winged skater, Jack Gelineau, but the two clubs move into tonight's fifth contest at Brandon where the remainder of the series will be staged.

Fourteen Colts Ready for Derby, Olympia Favored

Louisville, Ky., May 7 (AP) — Fourteen three-year-old colts have the biggest date of their frisky lives ahead of them this afternoon with the starter in the 75th running of the great Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

It is the biggest field since Assault beat 16 others for the big jackpot in 1946.

Most people think 13 of them will be having a good stern view of the favored Olympia and jockey Eddie Arcaro in the fields of the 1 1-4-mile gallop.

The Fred Hooper star has copped five straight since he produced a decision to Old Rosebud in the Flamingo Derby Feb. 19. Olympia is in top form, as he demonstrated in winning the one-mile derby trial here Tuesday in a sparkling 1:34 2-5 clip.

Still, 13 rivals think enough of their chances to risk $1,000—the starting fee—on a long chance to drag down the winner's share of $81,000. With 14 starters, the race would grow $119,650.

Chief topic of conversation was whether it would rain by derby post time. And, if so, if there'd be enough to make it a muddy track.

Olympia proved he could win in the sloppy going when he took the Wood Memorial at Jamaica last year by 6c—by that Hooper hot-shot almost didn't start. Eddie Arcaro's Palestinian came surging up in the stretch and then faded at the last moment as Olympia grabbed the verdict by a neck.

Needs Off Track

Palestinian, trained by shrewd Horace Greentree, will win it again. An off track wouldn't do Palestinian any harm.

A muddy track also could affect the size of the field with late scratches.

The crowd, expected to be around 100,000, will wait in conditions at racetime to decide the second choice in the mutuels. Olympia was quoted at 6 to 5 in the latest line, with Palestinian next at 5 to 1.

Capot and Wine List, the Greentree stable pair and the only entry in the field, are pegged at 6 to 1 now, bet could be second choice by post time at 4:30 p.m. (6:30 p.m. EDT).

Halt, from the Woodvale farm of Mrs. Joyce C. Martin, will get a lot of support on the strength of his near victory over Johns Joy in the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland last week.

Considerable cash support will be back of Old Rockport, too.

They're Kentucky Calumet Farm out entirely. Ben Jones, veteran trainer, who has saddled four derby winners, will try this time with three stable mates to second to Olympia in the derby trial.

Eddie Arcaro, will be aboard Olympia in quest of a fifth derby victory. Arcaro, the only rider with four scores in the big classic, rode Lawrin in 1938, Whirlaway in 1941, and the great Citation last year.

Sanicki Hits Seventh Home Run of Season

(By The Associated Press)
Monk Sanicki set the London League on fire last winter with his home-run hitting. Friday night at Rochester he showed why.

The 28-year-old Negro, now playing with Jersey City Giants, came up in the first inning and hit one over the right field fence. When he came up in the sixth inning he poled one over the centre-field fence. And when he took his last turn at bat in the eighth inning he hit one over the left field fence.

That made it four for the season. He's well up among the leaders in hitting with a .366 average.

His slugging Friday night helped the Little Giants to a 9-2 victory which strengthened their hold on first place.

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts

On the tour of inspection the sergeant noted the bath in the maid's bathroom, said the shower upstairs would be wasted on him since he preferred to soak. "There's a tub, too," I said, thinking he might have overlooked it and being unable to imagine so slip a gentleman content in a basement.

"All in all," he said, "this apartment suits me. I like having a sitting room." With a bow to us, he went on. "I'm a homebody, yet I couldn't think of inflicting myself on your gracious hospitality. Yes, a sitting room, bedroom and bath of my own will make me very comfortable indeed and I shall feel that I have not invaded your privacy as I might were I to move into your upstairs."

"Don't let that hold you back," Robbie urged. "In a Colonial house with center halls, it's easy to shinny on your own side. Lee and I have our suite on the west side. It wouldn't bother us a bit to have you on the east side."

"Thank you," the sergeant said. "I still think I shall refuse to permit myself to risk becoming a nuisance . . ."

"As you wish."

"Roger."

Twenty minutes later, in a borrowed car, the sergeant moved in—foot locker, valpac, and musette bag.

Robbie and I were at a loss to know what, if any, our next move should be. Remembering those tray breakfasts in-New Orleans, first off I apologized for having no cook. "Think nothing of it," the sergeant said, "I take only black coffee and orange juice in the mornings, anyway."

"Oh, I could manage that. I'll fix you a tray to keep in your room. Could you work a silex?"

"Roger."

"With an orange squeezer and a glass and a cup and saucer and a knife and spoon—oh, and a strainer—you can get your breakfast any time you want it." I also added the oranges and coffee to the array.

It was a Saturday afternoon and five-thirty. Rob said, "The poor devil must feel pretty strange moving in on, you, Mother. He's such a social fellow. Call down, dear, and ask him up for a drink."

"We're going out to dinner—" "Sure. But we've got to break the ice."

"Whoo-hoo, Sergeant!" I dutifully called. Regretfully, too. I was now a rooming-house keeper and I knew my place.

A split second later—it's a short flight of stairs from the basement to the side entry, which also leads to the garden room—he stretched out in comfortable chairs, we began to get acquainted.

"You're married," Robbie said, though it was more of a question.

"Yes," with a sigh. We were impressed by the weight of his responsibilities. "I have two children. Twins."

"Where is your family?" I asked, trying to show proper interest yet not sound nosy, as I had heard rooming-house keepers reputed to be.

"Baltimore."

"Oh, Baltimore's your home?"

"No, Trenton is our home." He smiled a wry smile. "Our family's there. Mother and Dad was a pause while he reflected on that. Then he added, "Mary's visiting friends."

In spite of myself I exclaimed, "Visiting! And with two little children!"

The sergeant shrugged his shoulders. "C'est la guerre," he said.

"If I should hear of a little house or apartment—" I began.

"Not for a little," he interrupted. "Remember, there are four of us."

"Couldn't you double up and manage? A place of your own where you could all be together seems so much more desirable to me," I went on, bound to be helpful. "I might hear of something like that."

The sergeant smiled at me indulgently. "We aren't used to doubling up," he said. "If you could find me a house like this one, I'd settle for that."

The absurdity of an army sergeant who was unable to afford even a room in a hotel announcing that he would settle for a house like ours must have penetrated Phillips' consciousness, too, for he quickly dropped his highflung phrases and, with embarrassingly uninhibited candor, told us something of his background. He'd always wanted to live in an attractive house, he told us, but he never had.

His father had been an unsuccessful promoter, his mother proud and ambitious. Periodically they had searched for a place to live that would be both cheap and yet in a good neighborhood. If they found such a house, it meant that it needed paint, or the big basement leaked, or that the furnace was inadequate. Yet they would move in, laughingly explaining to their friends that at any sacrifice they had to have a house where the sun shone in the children's rooms, or one which was located in such and such a school district, or, if the house happened to be a dingy bungalow, that the doctor wanted his mother to avoid stairs for a while. They offered their excuses for taking such an obviously run - down place, and then moved in their worn and shabby furnishings, explaining again that there was no use to buy new until they found the really ideal house.

They usually remained in a house, no matter how poor it was, until the landlord despaired of collecting his overdue rent and ordered them out.

"Refined poverty," he said, "that's what I grew up in. And there's nothing tougher to carry off. Father hung around his prosperous friends, always on the lookout for a lead that would earn him a commission. He belonged to a club, a good club, and sponged every drink he drank and every meal he ate there. As a kid I hated to go swimming in the club pool with the gang because Dad was always posted for delinquent dues and they rubbed me about it. But he was confident he'd strike it rich some day and then things would be different. Mother never got nearer the club than to mention it in her conversation and to remark constantly how she regretted her inability to take in all the literations it offered. She always added plaintively that little Bob needed her now and that when they were gone from the nest, she would reap the benefit of maintaining the membership of those years she had been unable to appear with the country club crowd. Meanwhile we kids learned to cadge a ride, a meal. If it was a choice of walking to school or of borrowing a bike, a fresher, pretty smart on the borrowing angle." The sergeant moved his hands deftly over the arms of the chair, in a caressing sort of way. "You have a pretty home here," he said. "Mighty pretty. I wish Mother and Dad could see me living in it. And Mary. She likes pretty things, too."

He got up and studied the books on the shelves that lined the room. "Think of owning this many books!" he said. "Why, we didn't even subscribe to magazines!" He flipped the pages of Fortune, lying on the table. "If we wanted to read, we borrowed from our friends or the public library."

He sank down again in his chair. "And we've been sick, sicker, sickest. I'll tell you. Mother couldn't be sick in bed without out of a fee because most of their wives knew her, but Father said it was unimportant when they paid them or not since they had to keep in practice and it might as well be on us as anyone."

The conversation was rapidly approaching the Department of Dirty Linen, and Rob, who when embarrassed directs his attention to the floor, was assiduously studying the toe of his shoe. Even I, fancy for taking too much, could think of nothing to say. It was an instance of the evening who broke the uncomfortable silence. She phoned to say she had had a last-minute disappointment. We didn't know of a single man who might fit in, did we?

Her voice was of the carrying type; every word she spoke to me was plainly audible in the room. The sergeant, I noticed, heard the news with a glad, expectant smile. Rob sat nodding his head importantly, like a big-time realtor closing a deal. "Tell her," he said. "we'll bring the extra man."

When I relished the rum, Phillips whistled softly, "Pretty!" he said. "Mighty pretty."

In my youth a nice little girl, dressed in their best and heading for children's parties, were kissed by their mothers and told how pretty they looked. Time after time I called for a little friend and her mother, perking up her hair ribbon, putting out her sleeves, say, "Dear, you look very pretty. Have a good time at the party." Finally, I could bear it no longer. Having called for my little friend and heard her mother admire her usual, I swept by my own house en route to the party and on the pretext of picking up a forgotten handkerchief, skipped in for a parade in front of the mirror.

I perked up the tiny hair ribbon tied to my two braids — braids so tight they lifted my eyebrows in a perpetual expression of inquiry—puffed out my sleeves, even wiped the dust from each Mary Jane sandal onto the back of the other leg, twirled slowly before my mother's appreciative gaze, and when she had said nothing and I couldn't stand it another minute, rocked my head wishfully and breathed—

"How do I look?"

"Handsome is as handsome does," she said.

I didn't fare any better at the hands of my friends. Tradesmen in the next school, in exchange for "Georgie says you're pretty," produced "Teacher says you're obedient." It got no better in high school. There a big compliment was that he was "not long for tightly braided, was nice, or that he was allotted second elbow . . . But this boy, practically at sight, said 'I was pretty. I wasn't going to forget that.

The party was unusually large for a wartime affair, even so, before we arrived the word had spread that the Robert's had a lodger, and he was greeted as Roger the Lodger. The sergeant was addressed as plain "Roger," even though he was not a pilot but was attached to Headquarters Company. In the terms that followed we had two Rogers, both lawfully baptized so, but they were never known to us by that name. Our one Roger was Roger, our first, and to the end.

I was a little anxious for Roger, especially for the midst of a roomful of strangers, middle-aged people of moderate means in homes that were not very young but impeccunious and non-commissioned as well. He seemed to feel the contrast, for he went elegant up again, holding himself stiffly, wearing a lofty expression, bowing from the waist as he was presented to the ladies, shaking hands with the gentlemen (more than one immediately after the clasp of fellowship examining his fingers surreptitiously), and between introductions maintaining a watchful silence.

Simultaneously, with the advent of refreshments, he snapped to. He manned a tray of canapes, and, with the warmest cordiality, begged the hostess to help themselves. When supper was placed on the buffet, he asked our hostess whether she would prefer to have him carve the turkey or the ham, explaining that he was equally good at either. He carved the turkey.

When our host, whose accepted prerogative had always been the Pope's nose and both oysters, had finished serving the ham and all of the guests were seated, he approached the turkey hesitantly. Daintily he turned the bird over; a little more cautiously he prodded through the scraps on the platter; finally he laid down the carving knife and fork and went from table to table, ostensibly to inquire whether every guest were amply served; but we knew well enough what he was looking for. As he slunched search, I heard him mutter, "Gad, I don't see where they went." I'd seen where they went; Roger had polished off those tidbits in the twinkling of an eye.

Next morning Roger appeared upstairs a little before church time, knocking lightly on the kitchen door beyond which I was preparing cook breakfast. He inquired which would—be easier for me: to have him drive me to church and return with a nice warm car—he'd keep it in a heated garage — or to have him drive me to church and wait at home until time to pick me up again.

I expostulated that it wouldn't be necessary for him to do either, that I was accustomed to managing all by myself, but he cut me off with a lordly gesture. The question, he said, was: which would be easier for me, to have him drive me to church and return with a nice warm car or for him merely to drive me to church and wait at home until time to pick me up again. I chose the novelty of a warm car.

ENUMERATORS TO START PREPARING VOTERS LISTS

Conservative Leader to Start Election Campaign in the Maritimes

(By Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 9 (CP)— Hundreds of enumerators today began the mammoth task of preparing voters in 262 federal riding across the Dominion for the June 27 federal election. They finish the enumeration May 19.

That's just one of the signs that the election campaign is on in earnest.

George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader, speaks today in Chatrolettown, opening a two weeks tour of Liberal-held four eastern provinces. Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent remains east tomorrow, to be followed May 16 by M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the C.C.F.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, plans to start his campaign in the west.

Mr. Drew's Charlottetown speech is the first of 15 public meetings he'll attend between now and June 6 when he returns to Ottawa for two meetings in Carleton, his own riding.

Drew Celebrates Birthday

He celebrated his 55th birthday Saturday by being unanimously nominated to contest Carleton. Elsewhere he was elected to the Commons in a by-election last fall after resigning from the Ontario premiership to take over the party's national leadership.

The Prime Minister, as Liberal chief, fires his opening guns tonight in two broadcasts, one in French and one in English, over CBC networks.

Mr. Drew told his nominating convention the Progressive Conservatives believed they could govern themselves through their elected representatives. Of the opposing parties, the Liberals were "Socialists in low gear;" the CCF was a party of "Liberals in a hurry," and the Labor Progressive party was not "serving Canada in any way."

Mr. St. Laurent, Mr. Drew and Mr. Coldwell probably will do some campaigning as well for provincial candidates in Prince Edwardland May 27 and in Nova Scotia June 2 that precede the Federal election.

Both Mr. Drew and Mr. Coldwell have indicated visits by them foundland in their tour and the Prime Minister may decide to go there later in the campaign. The CCF is not contesting the Newfoundland elections.

While the leaders take to the road, party headquarters in the 262 federal ridings are lining up their local campaigns or preparing for nominating conventions. Nomination day is June 13 in all but five Newfoundland ridings and the single Yukon riding where actual nominations are made May 30.

From Charlottetown, Mr. Drew moves on to Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and New Brunswick.

Mr. St. Laurent tomorrow visits Compton, his hold hometown Quebec's eastern townships. From there he goes to Ottawa for weeks tour of the Maritimes with major speeches scheduled in eight cities. Mr. Coldwell opens his campaign June 16 in Summerside, P.E.I. He is due to return to Montreal a week later.

BIG-FOUR MEET 'HOPES TO PLAN PEACE OF WORLD'

Bevin Says U.K. Strives For German Democracy

Berlin, May 9 (AP)— Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain said today that at the forthcoming Big Four Conference in Paris "we hope to plan the peace of the world."

He made the comment at brief ceremonies at the United States Air Lift terminal, Tempelhof, where Gen. Lucius Clay saw him off for the British zone of Germany.

Bevin said yesterday Britain would strive for German freedom and democracy at the conference.

He told the city parliament members Berlin he "would not agree to anything on behalf of Great Britain which will take away the freedom of the German people — or spoil their chances of establishing an unfettered democracy."

Operation Columbus UK Step To Recover Markets in U.S.

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 9 (CP)—Britain's dollar drive has a new name and a new personality.

The personality is Herbert Somerville Smith, an Ottawa-born Rhodes Scholar.

Today, from a third-floor office in the City, he presided over "operation Columbus." This is Whitehall's latest caten--nurse for Britain's attempt to recapture the North American markets which Christopher Columbus opened 4½ centuries ago.

As head of the government's Export Credits Guarantee Department, he will underwrite British exporters up to a maximum of £500,000,000 ($2,000,000,000) on sterling considered helpful to Britain's dollar position. An extra £100,000,000 may be extended for exports "in the general interest."

Somerville Smith brings vast energies to his new task.

Earlier in the war he acted as chief civil liaison officer between the British government and Gen. Charles De Gaulle. When he came back to London after the war, he was asked, as an invitation to act as head of the treasury branch concerned with financial relations with Canada, the Balkans, the Middle East and Latin America.

Eventually he had 31 countries under his wing.

A graduate of Ottawa's Lisgar Collegiate and Queen's University in Kingston, Somerville Smith wanted to go back to Queen's as a classics professor. But after the First World War, in which he was "wounded once a year" and would up by getting gassed on Armistice Day, he joined the research department in Paris interested.

Somerville Smith believes in the direct approach. When he first came to London in 1912 he had no letters of intro- duction. So he went to Oxford Street — and walked from there to the university, refreshing himself with ginger beer in a pastry a pint and sleeping one night under a hedge.

Court Ruling Given on Payment Of Trustees

Toronto, May 9 (CP)—A court ruling handed down Saturday cleared up some of the problems concerning payment of trustees of the estate of John Ross Robertson, founder of the Toronto Telegram.

The ruling restricted original trustees and executors to the small amounts specified in the will. But it left executors free to seek larger amounts of compensation for their services to the estate.

A five-person board of trustees manages the newspaper from the time of Mr. Robertson's death in 1918 until it was sold to George McCullagh last December.

The remaining original trustees are Senator S. Robertson and Alfred T. Chadwick. Successor trustees, appointed during the death of the other original trustees, are C. G. Bowerman, C. H. J. Snider and C. P. McTague.

Robertson Will

The Robertson will provided that each executor and trustee should be paid $5,000 but Mr. Chadwick, the treasurer, was to receive $500 yearly.

The two remaining original trustees are the executors' successor trustees asked Mr. Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario Supreme Court to give directions as to what others who had been executors and trustees of the estate were entitled to compensation for what they termed "extra" duties, time and trouble expended in and about the estate." The court was asked to decide on the amount of compensation to which any trustees were entitled.

Also represented in the motion were the estates of four other trustees who died within a part of the 30 years: Mrs. Jessie Cameron Ross, Mrs. Christina Robinson and Judge James Parker.

Mr. Justice Gale found that so far as the original trustees and executors were concerned, the language of clause three of the will and of the Supreme act prevent the sanction of any allowance of compensation in excess of those specifically mentioned in clause three."

But successor trustees were in a more fortunate position. The amounts of their allowances were not fixed by the will and they were entitled to receive compensation for services as successor trustees.

REFUSES TO GO TO HOSPITAL

Pall Mall, Tex., May 9 (AP)— Sgt. Alvin C. York, Medal of Honor hero of the First World War, is in serious condition but refuses to go to a hospital, Doctors said York suffered a recurrence of high blood pressure. Members of the family said he also suffered a slight stroke. "We have tried to get him to go to a hospital," his doctors said, "but he insists on staying at home."

FULLED INTO CAGE

Neparult, Transvala, May 9 — (Reuters) — Marie Van Der Merwe, 11, on vacation with her parents in Kruger National Park, died yesterday after being mauled by a lion which pulled her through the bars of its cage at a miniature zoo near here.

Constitution for West Germany Republic Adopted

Bonn, Germany, May 9 — (AP) — Germany's leaders have the constitution for a new West German republic — democratic, unarmed and pledged to peace.

Today it was in the hands of the western zone military governors for final approval. The 11 West German state legislatures also must ratify it. The German constitutional convention — in progress for 12, Sunday night.

German democracy was reborn after more than four years to the day after Nazi Germany hopelessly conceded defeat.

The constitution leaves the door open for the Russian zone to join the German Federal Republic if conditions take place in Soviet-controlled East Germany.

The four-power council of foreign ministers will discuss the German question generally in Paris May 23.

The constitutional convention took eight months to draft the basic governing document.

Not mentioned in the final document are the agreements which Britain, the United States and France made at a Washington conference April 8 when they agreed to the proposed republic. Theories are that it will include control as well as security against Soviet Russia's expansion.

Each of the three Western Powers retains supreme military government and appoint a high commissioner. The three high commissioners would be the top authority in Germany.

The New Law

The new fundamental law of west Germany:

1. Calls for a democratic, federal republic with a population of 'some' 46,000,000 inhabitants until a government can be formed for all Germany.

2. Paves the way for general elections in the three western zones. It is hoped the new government can take office July 15.

3. Makes the plotting of aggression by anyone punishable. There is no provision for an army.

4. Bans the right to strike in political, lingual and religious equality. Freedom of press, religion and assembly is pledged. Censorship is forbidden.

5. The death penalty is forbidden.

To Have President

The west German Republic would have a President with limited power.

Chief administrative authority would be vested in the Chancellor. He would be chosen by a bund (parliament) of two houses. These would be a bundestag (lower house) and bundesrat (upper house).

Dr. Konrad Adenauer, 73-year-old president of the convention, predicted the new West German republic would be used as pawns at the forthcoming Big Four meeting.

"We do not want a Paris agreement which would adapt conditions to the eastern zone to those of the eastern zone. We wish, instead, that the eastern zone would attain the same conditions under which we live today," Dr. Adenauer said.

Then — as he looked at the happy faces of the west Germans around him — Adenauer forgot his usual reserve.

"This is the first day of joy since Jan. 30, 1933."

That was the day Hitler came to power.

LIFT RIOT ACT IN STRIKE-BOUND MINING CENTRE

Strikers Get Financial Aid From Other Unions

Asbestos, Que., May 9 (CP) — The riot act has been lifted from this strike-troubled asbestos mining centre but the provincial police still patrol its streets today.

The act was read to the townspeople here early Friday morning following an outburst of violence the previous day.

The incidents Thursday, in reports to Quebec City Provincial police officers were beaten, grew out of the bitter, long-grawnous strike of 5,000 miners in Quebec's rich asbestos area. It started Feb. 13 when the men walked out seeking union security and an increase of 15 cents in their basic pay of 85 cents an hour.

Yesterday hundreds of subdued residents of the town attended mass in the Roman Catholic church and heard their union padre, Father Philippe Camirand, deplore last week's violence. He spoke about the 2,100 strikers in Asbestos were "men of great piety and obedience."

A strong detachment of police watched the proceedings. Shortly afterwards, it was announced that provisions of the riot act had been lifted. The atmosphere was regarded quietly, with no demonstrations.

Over the town of 6,000 still hung the shadow of the mass arrests made Friday — when police took over Asbestos. About 700 men were arrested and the greater part of them held and are in jail awaiting court appearance on various charges.

Police Charge With Brutality

Union leaders claimed police had used unwarranted brutality in making the arrests. Rodolphe Hamel, president of the Asbestos Workers Federation, an affiliate right from Whitehorse, Yukon to the Canadian Congress of Labor, said the conciliation board chairman had been vestigated by the union.

Meanwhile, the strikers are receiving financial aid for their families from other unions and from Canadian Johns-Manville Company, biggest of five affected asbestos companies, has announced that it is opening its picnic grounds and would bring in outside workers.

It was this announcement which caused the strikers last Thursday to blockade all roads leading into Asbestos and man the barricades with pick handles and clubs.

Provincial police headquarters in Montreal announced that further reinforcements into the area. However, by the time the police arrived, the back of the strike leadership had persuaded the strikers to abandon their barricades and submit peacefully to police orders.

Believed Woman Shot Husband With .22 Revolver

Reported to Have Said To Man "I Shot Him"

Sarnia, May 9 (CP)—Jean Mary Ange, 37-year-old mother of three children was charged today with the murder of her 39-year-old husband, Thomas, in their small house beside the Ohio Hotel in Port Lambton late Sunday night.

Following discovery of the body Mrs. Ange was brought to St. Joseph's hospital in Sarnia where she is under police custody, suffering from a nervous collapse. The charge was read at the hospital.

Inspector Thomas Wright, Criminal Investigation Branch of Ontario Provincial Police, Toronto, who happened to be in Sarnia on other official business, conducted the investigation into the death.

Shot With Own Revolver

The inspector said it is believed the woman shot her husband with his own .22 calibre revolver following a domestic argument which had lasted the greater part of the day.

Time of the shooting has been estimated at around 11.30 o'clock.

Conversion of Coal to Oil and 'Gas' To Eke Out Oil Supply Will be Tested

Louisiana, Mo., May 9. (AP)— The government-sponsor for a new United States industry—the conversion of coal to oil and gasoline—was laid here yesterday with the dedication of two big demonstration plants.

About 500 persons, including government officials, military officers, members of Congress and industrial leaders, attended the ceremonies at the plants, located on a special train from St. Louis, 80 miles away by rail to the south.

The plants were developed by the United States Bureau of Mines as an answer to the dwindling supply of gasoline and an ever-swelling demand.

Some of the visiting industrialists, especially oil men, commended adversely on the project. They relied double as to whether any serious shortage of petroleum is likely for many years to come, but in view of their position as guests refused to be quoted.

One of the plants cost $10,000,000 and the other $7,000,000 for amount. The buildings are spread out over industrial acres, with miles and miles of exposed pipe.

The plants will produce not only Diesel oil and automobile fuel, but aviation gasoline and a variety of by-products including alcohols and phenol for plastics. Phenol is the manufacturer's prospective merits of two basic processes for converting coal to oil. The two processes are called "coal by-progression" and "gas synthesis". By the former, coal is turned into oil by forcing hydrogen into it, under great heat and pressure. By the other, coal is first turned into gas.

Louisiana was selected as the site for the plants because of its central location with respect to major coal fields.

Business Firms Asked to Evacuate Trucks, Jeeps for Military Purposes

Shanghai, May 9 (AP)—Fighting around Kaiting today brought the Chinese civil war to ar area 17 miles northwest of the heart of Shanghai.

Far to the southwest, Communist armies pressed a twin-pronged offensive along an irregular 230-mile front from the seaport of Hangchow on the east to Lake Poyang on the west. At some places the Red drive had carried 200 miles south of Yangtze.

At Shanghai, curfew command communique seemed to indicate the fighting closest to Shanghai was on a small scale. Kaiting is on the Shanghai-Nanking highway served neither ends of the railway between the two cities. Red troops thrusting along the rail line were within 25 miles of Shanghai.

Inside this largest Chinese city, Chinese and foreign business firms the Nationalist garrison ordered all motor vehicles seized. They turn over 950 trucks and 300 jeeps for "military purposes."

Standardization Might Slow Down Production

Washington, May 9 (AP)—United States military men advise caution in attempting to apply any broad program for quick standardization of weapons used by the Atlantic pact countries.

It was explained, the need to provide weapons to meet their calibres or fittings, to the western European countries now is the more urgent matter than the eventual, long-range objective of complete standardization.

The feeling of some United States military leaders is that if arms standardization is pressed too hard by the American military air progra mit might slow down production and distribution and Monday and Tuesday will see and Monday and Tuesday will see temperatures a little lower than those of Sunday in all parts of the province.

A disturbance over Missouri moving slowly eastward will cause increasing cloudiness in Southern Ontario today and showers in Southwestern Ontario tonight and Tuesday.

Princess May be Received Tuesday By Pope Pius

Rome, May 9 (AP)—Princess Margaret probably will be received tomorrow by Pope Pius, a Vatican source told the British legation to the Holy See said today.

The spokesman, John Sebastian Scott-Hopkins, First Secretary of the Legation, said "final details have not been completed, but the audience probably will take place tomorrow."

The unofficial Vatican news agency said the audience has been fixed for 5:30 p.m. Rome time, tomorrow.

Reports that the Princess would visit the Pope have aroused protests in Britain but in London an authoritative source said today, however, this the King will not object if his daughter calls on the Pope during her holiday in Italy.

Sidewalks of Shanghai Largest Merchandise Counters in World

Shanghai, May 9 (AP)—The sidewalks of New York are celebrated in song, but you ought to see the sidewalks of Shanghai.

Always teeming with peddlers, they have become the largest merchandise "counter" in the world as normally subject wine-ners try to sell the goods they've received as wages.

Due to collapse of the Nationalist currency, few bosses had been able to get gold in which they could get.

Imagine a cannery forker being paid in Canned peaches or a textile worker hand being paid in cloth. Then imagine these workers spreading these wares on the sidewalks of the busy city streets to try to sell enough to feed their families.

That's the sort of thing that is going on in Shanghai on a tremendous scale.

A typical case is a rather seasoned, embarrassed old woman who has taken her stand in front of a section of the once-swank Yates Road. She is trying to sell four cheap bedspreads—her month's wages. She stretches a little more attention than the linen shop window. Neither venture is doing much business.

Along Tibet Road and other junction with avenue King Edward VII, there are thousands of such new merchants. They now include such diverse items as bicycles, radios, typewriters, housestraps, pots, shoglaces, spoons and toothpaste.

Even Shanghai's Bund Well Kept this correspondent saw a bigeye frightened boy of about 10 in His month's wages—a dozen handkerchiefs—were spread on the bare shade of a parked truck. When asked the price of his goods he whispered tremendously and gulped as a loud-mouthed prosperous hawker tried to muscle in.

Making the sale, the boy grinned his gratitude and toilet away. He was luckier than most.

Business is not good, generally speaking. Most people haven't the money to spend on new handkerchiefs, shoes or bedspreads. They are fortunate if they have enough to buy rice.

Travel-Talk Short On Province Good Publicity

The Province of Ontario as a tourist attraction centre is going to get a lot of good publicity in the United States as result of a Travel-Talk movie short, "Ontario, Land of Lakes," now being shown in theatres south of the border.

The technical Travel-Talk short was shown at the Belle Theatre over the weekend and amazed even many local residents that their own province of Ontario could be so beautiful.

The movie short starts out with lovely views of Canada's capital city, Ottawa, showing the majestic Houses of Parliament, the Chateau Laurier and many of the city's beautiful park scenes.

Then a historic touch is added by picturesque views of Jesuit shrines and stately churches.

Sky-blue lakes and wooded shores of the Muskoka Lakes district and the Algonquin Park are seen from the deck of a fast moving motorboat, then roll past in all their natural beauty. A fishing party is seen enjoying lunch beneath a stately pine on the shore of a northern lake and casting fish caught a few moments previously.

The many lagoons of Toronto's Island Park and the Toronto Yacht Club are shown and lastly the imposing beauty of Niagara Falls, mecca for thousands of tourists each year.

All in all the short is well worth seeing, and, more important, will probably make Americans south of the border anxious to see Ontario at first hand.

Oak Tree, 115 Years Old, On Wood Homestead in Huntingdon Twp. Destroyed

After 115 years standing as a landmark of the original homestead campsite of a band of Hastings pioneer, the old oak tree on "Oakwood Farm," owned and operated by Arthur Wood in the Ivanhoe district has fallen victim to the elements.

During an electric storm which swept the Ivanhoe district last week, the old tree was struck and marked the camping site of John Wood, who in 1832 staked the property as his homestead, was destroyed. A bolt of lightning struck the landmark and completely shattered it.

Six generations of the Wood family have lived on the homestead in the 8th concession of Huntingdon township. George Wood, the present owner, is married and has four children, Jean and Judy, making the sixth generation.

Following is the history of the old Oak Tree on "Oakwood Farm" which was printed last in Farmers' Advocate in September, 1940.

Associated With Family

"There are historical trees all across Canada and many are linked with stories of war, peace, accident, happiness, romance, and tragedy. The Old Oak at "Oakwood Farm" in Hastings county is associated most intimately with the Wood family on the 8th concession of Huntingdon, where five generations have guarded this stately oak as it still understands as a memorial to the perseverance and integrity of John Wood who staked a farm in 1832 and proceeded to hew a home out of the wilderness.

This is the story the Old Oak tells: In 1832 John Wood walked from Kingston to Toronto to secure possession of a parcel of land in Huntingdon township. When he reached the land office in the capital he was informed that the land in question was already claimed by another. But there was still plenty of land in Huntingdon though not in the township along the front. Wood chose John Wood returned to Kingston or stopped in Belleville on the way home is not clear in the sketchy records regarding his pioneer adventures but he did not proceed farther north in Hastings and located on the lot where the home farm in the 8th concession of Huntingdon.

When he had located this land and had established identification marks it was nightfall so he camped on the property for the night.

When he returned to the site he observed a young oak where he had previously camped and decided to adopt it as a landmark of his first night spent on the tract of land that was to become his home and the home of his family.

The young oak eventually became a tradition in the family and each child was taught to look it carefully and passed the command on to his son Arthur, the present proprietor of "Oakwood Farm." George is the next generation. He is now 22 but he was far away from home when a "Farmer's Advocate" editor called yesterday, as we could not ask him if he intended to marry and pass on to succeeding generations the traditions of Oakwood.

Five Generations

When the original John Wood had built a home he brought his father, William Wood, over from Scotland, so altogether five generations have lived on the property with this old Oak tree during the years it has stood near. It is majestically alone in the front field of the road, marking the camp site of a pioneer.

It is a splendid stick of timber still and although under natural conditions it would, no doubt stand for another century, it is quite alone in the front field and exposed to wind and lightning. Its fate seems to be yet judging by the healthy condition sent it appears now that several generations may continue to look out upon it as something peculiar and kind guardian of family traditions.

Has Crown Deed

Arthur Wood, the present occupant has the Crown Deed issued in 1837 and this can be said regarding the property that not been allowed to deteriorate or become down at the heels. The house and barns are these days. The home is beautifully kept and the buildings denote that the progressive spirit Oakwood is in good hands and that the Woods have inherited perseverance, thrift and courage, these outstanding attributes of the pioneers, who founded a home in unbroken land into one of the best agricultural districts in the world. The Old Oak is a constant reminder of our debt to the past.

With Legs Severed Lies by Tracks For Five Hours

Thorold, May 9 — (CP) — Gordon Holland, 38, lay on railway tracks yesterday for five hours with both legs severed and shouted himself hoarse before help reached him.

Holland who was struck by a northbound Canadian National Railways train was removed to hospital at nearby St. Catharines where his condition today was described as favorable.

He said he had been to a dance and was walking home at about 2 a.m. along the tracks. He heard the sound of the train approaching and thinking it was on the southbound track jumped into the path of the northbound train. He was carried for 18 feet until his body was jammed against a switch. He was rolled over and both legs severed.

Conductor Hears Cry

Conductor Thomas Shuttleworth who was riding in the caboose said he heard a cry in the darkness as the train passed and thinking it was a dog informed the dispatcher at Merriton. Police found Holland lying on the tracks at 6 a.m.

"It is simply astounding that he lived as long as he did," Shuttleworth said, "and he was without attention for five hours," said Dr. A. M. Anderson who attended Holland at the scene of the accident. "The shock to his system was so severe that he had a lowering of blood pressure and there was little or no bleeding at all."

"I shouted myself hoarse all night," Holland said. "Two trains roared past me only inches away but I couldn't attract attention. I saw several ships go through the Welland Canal and I shouted until I could hardly make a sound. But no one heard me.

Engineer Stops Train, Sees Tie Across Track

Sturgeon Falls, May 9 (CP) — Quick thinking on the part of engineer John McFarlane, of North Bay, prevented what might have been a serious derailment Sunday night.

As the train was coming into Sturgeon Falls, McFarlane noticed that a railway tie had been placed across the tracks. He immediately stopped the train and removed the tie before proceeding. The train was heading east towards North Bay.

The tie had been placed over the tracks at a point about 200 yards from the bridge which spans the Sturgeon River.

An investigation is in progress.

She told the authorities that she was chained and locked in her room without food or drink for a number of days by her brother-in-law, William H. Legionnaires Hold Successful Zone Rally at Picton Legion Hall

Members of zone 3 of District F of the Canadian Legion met in the Legion Hall in Picton on Sunday with Everett Liddle, Zone Commander presiding and it was one of the best meetings in years. There were more than 40 in attendance with representatives from Belleville, Stirling, Marmora, Deseronto, Madoc, Wellington and Picton in attendance. Those from Belleville included Aid. Everett Liddle, Aid. Angus Duffy, H. N. Becker, Edward Smith, Zone Secretary and Aid. Claude D. Tice.

The administration department at Kingston was represented by Lieut.-Col. Reg Abraham, D.V.A. administrator, W. Cunningham Pensions Advocate, Cliff Lowe, Bureau Officer, Dr. C. VanLeuven, Treatment Physician, and W. Powell, Treatment Administrator and Reg Wiseman, Welfare Administrator. Also on hand was Gordon Millar, of Brighton, the deputy zone commander. During the proceedings each one addressed the gathering with respect to veterans' affairs and many in the audience sought information on certain subjects. Each administrative officer stated he was in Kingston for the express purpose of looking after the needs of the veterans and all that was needed was a call and either a man would be sent or the veteran would be asked to come to Kingston.

New Zone Commander

In the election of officers there were eleven voting delegates and W. Mumby was elected zone commander with Edward Smith of Belleville as deputy and Percy Gray of Marmora as zone officer. After the colors were declared by Angus Duffy and color party, two minutes silence was observed and the meeting was opened by the zone expressed by Lance Nethery president of the Picton Legion branch and this was heartily endorsed by Harry Henley, Mayor of the county town. It was intimated that the town and county contributed and co-operated in establishing the beautiful new home of the legion in Picton.

Delegates from the several branches reported on their work during the year and each one expressed the view that the Legion was on the march and was becoming a force in any community in which they were active.

Committee Report

Angus Duffy reported on the Planning and Development committee of Provincial Command hoping that younger men would take an active part in the affairs of the veterans. In the report submitted by the Zone Commander, Everett Liddle, he recommended that the ritual be used at all times to open and close the meetings, that the veterans observe two memorial days a year and that all Legion members wear their button on all occasions and keep the Legion clothed and able at all times, sponsor scholarships for the sons and daughters of veterans and have social evenings at which non members of the legion are invited. He also recommended that branches offer their services to the community for all projects and have a sports officer so that the members can get better acquainted through recreation. He spoke at length on the Poppy Day fund and showed what Belleville had accomplished by concentrated effort.

Breaking off for lunch the Ladies Auxiliary of the Picton branch served a most delicious dinner and the thanks of the veterans was ably expressed by the Zone Commander and others. Mr. H. N. Becker expressed the thanks of the delegates to the several speakers and the representative remarks and hoped that the Legion would go on to greater things in this district. The manager of the Bank of Montreal in Belleville is an ardent Legionnaire and has served as president of an eastern branch. An excellent program was provided by the Picton branch, consisting of solos, violin solos and sleight of hand. The members were well received and heartily encored.

Many Resolutions Submitted

A number of resolutions were submitted by the various branches but some were not approved. One from the Picton branch respecting Count De Bernonville was turned down because it was shown that no war was illegally in Canada. It was approved that World War veterans who did not get to France be entitled to war allowances, and that Imperial veterans, who have been residents in Canada for 20 years also receive allowance. It was also approved that widows and dependents of ex-men stationed in Canada be also given the Canadian allowance. The meeting agreed that rentals on veterans' homes were too high and asked for a reduction. All these resolutions will be forwarded to the District Rally at Oshawa and if approved there sent on to the Provincial Command for their action. The next meeting closed shortly after four o'clock after which a social time was spent before the comrades departed for their homes.

Training Centre Canteen Burns

Kingston, May 9 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the wet canteen, library and games room of the R.C.E.M.E. training centre, Barriefield early today. Six members of the Kingston fire department under Fire Chief V. C. Brigham and Vimy barrack fire department fought the fire for two hours confining the fire to one building.

The fire is thought to have started in the south entrance and spread through the entire building. A military court of inquiry will be held today to determine the cause of the fire.

BELIEVED WOMAN

Following the shooting, Ojanlasa did what Mrs. Ojanlasa refused to have run into the Ohio Hotel and told Vicky Douglas, an employee, that "I shot him."

The body was found in their spacious bungalow living room by Jack Reddick, an hotel resident who lives in the Ojanlasa flat. He said he loaned his automobile to Mrs. Ange and Mrs. Marion Grant who went to a late afternoon movie at Marine City, Mich., yesterday afternoon.

Reddick told police after the women left, Ange seemed upset and asked him where they had gone.

Apparently Crossed River

"Apparently Ange crossed the river to Robert's Landing where he met Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Ange told her everything," said Reddick. "I did not see him—return, but about 10:30 p.m. I was sitting downstairs in the hotel when the women returned. When I saw Mrs. Grant was upset. I told her she had better come upstairs and rest. She told me Ange had struck his wife in front of scores of people at Robert's Landing."

Reddick said he was in his apartment when he heard screams coming from the Ojanlasa home which is near the hotel.

"I heard someone say 'I've done it, I've shot him,'" he said.

He ran to the home and met Mrs. Ange running out. He found the body lying on the floor with 13-year-old Tommy Ange kneeling over the body and screaming.

The garrison did not give details of the Communist operations southwest of Shanghai but said the communists were continuing their drive in Kiangsi and Chekiang provinces.

Two Drives On

One drive, the communique said, was toward Kiangsi's capital; provincial capital 283 air miles southwest of Shanghai. The other was pointed for Fukien Province on the southeast coast just north of Kiangsi.

(Fukien fronts on the big island province of Formosa which Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is reported to have moved into a fortress for a last Nationalist stand.)

The Communist radio at Peiping claimed capture of Kashing Sunday night.

Communists also said the Communists held 130 miles of the railway between Hangchow and Nanchang.

Changsha and Klangshan, 125 and 145 miles southwest of Hangchow, were in Comm mist hands.

RESCUE WORKERS AT PENNSYLVANIA MINE

With goggled eyes and headlighted helmets these gas-mask equipped rescue workers descended into the smoky shaft of No. 3 colliery of the Gilbertson Mine Company at Girardville, Pa., to try to reach the four miner, who were trapped 1,000 feet below ground by mine fire. It was a hopeless 50-hour rescue effort. The four men died, before rescue workers could reach them.—Central Press Canadian.

Apples—The United Kingdom has agreed to make a token purchase of Canadian apples. "This," Mr. Howe said, "will provide some measure of assistance to the Nova Scotia apple producer."

Fresh pulp—The United Kingdom have offered to buy a small quantity of fruit pulp now held by the Canadian government.

Mr. Howe added: "I found on all sides the desire to purchase Canadian products. The difficulty is to find the means of payment. Any real solution toward providing the means for greater purchase in Canada must depend upon greater purchases of British goods by dollar countries . . .

"Despite their serious dollar difficulties the United Kingdom are planning additional purchases, provided agreement can be reached on prices. I have told the United Kingdom that there need be no doubt of the ability of Canadian suppliers to meet competition from any part of the world."

COMPLETE CONTRACTS FOR WIDOW

Kingston, Ont., May 9 — (CP) — Thirty Kingston area contractors Saturday completed contracts which a fellow contractor left unfinished when he died two weeks ago.

The group drove to Seeley's Bay, near here, to put the final touches on the work undertaken by Vernon Tye. Under the terms of the contractors, no payment could be made until the work was completed. Tye's widow had been left $2,000 in insurance on surrendering the uncompleted work to another contractor.

Electricians from nearby Athens and Seeley's Bay assisted the 30 men members of the Kingston Electrical Contractors' Association.

FIRE BURNING OUT

Kingston, May 9 (CP)—Provincial police are investigating a bush fire in the Depot Lake district near Lavden, 40 miles northwest of here.

The blaze was first noticed by the pilot of the T.C.A. Montreal-Toronto plane. Provincial Constable J. W. Heath, Shanbot Lake who made his way to a point within one mile of the fire said he thought the fire which was burning its way out had travelled about three miles through the bushlands.

CROWDED HIGHWAYS

Spring's height is nearing. With the first flowers and the greening of the grass has come the urge for men and women to enjoy the great outdoors and at this season there is no more enjoyable manner in which to do so than by motoring to catch the full importance of spring in its infinite appeal to people everywhere. The urge to drive cannot be resisted, for it is a natural consequence of the invention man has had put at his service, the motorcar.

With the thickening of the crowds of motorists on the roads, one essential is ever facing the drivers and pedestrians using the roads — the need to be careful, for errors or lack of care may precipitate a crash with injuries or possibly tragedy.

Spring has an infinite appeal and the attractions which she furnishes to the eye of the driver may be enough to distract attention by its beauty, but he or she must not allow the attention to driving to be diverted from the main task — to drive carefully and without injuring oneself or others. But some one may have his gaze attracted in a direction in which it should not be attracted since he is a driver and so he may cause a mishap to himself and also others.

So it becomes every driver not only to drive carefully himself or herself but to take no chances on what the other driver may do. Every driver owes it to himself and everyone in his car and to every other driver and the occupants of other cars to give the proper signals of his intention, so that he may not cause a disaster.

With the heavy traffic season upon the highways, drivers must see to it that they obey all the rules which they and others are expected to obey and also to drive in such a way that if the man ahead makes an error of judgment, the one behind may not be precipitated into a crash with that other driver. One cannot always tell what the other man will do.

Ontario Highways Minister has a good motto for Ontario drivers to drive so that the visitor may be assured of an accident-free holiday. He said that "we should let those from other countries know that we want them to have a safe visit and that we are doing everything to make this possible."

Safe highways depend upon all the drivers and the closest adherence to the rules of the road by everyone and every driver should drive according to these directions and also be alert in making sure that others will not force him into an accident.

Everyone a safe driver and the highways safe for everyone is the only possible motto that spells security for many who travel the roads in increasing numbers.

AVOID WASTE OF VITAMINS

In an age which has had the value of vitamins impressed upon it, there still remain possibilities that much of the value of canned food may be lost by discarding the liquid part of canned vegetables. This is a grave error, according to Miss Margaret E. Smith, director of the Nutrition Division of the Health League of Canada.

"Liquid portions of canned vitamins generally contain approximately one third of the water soluble vitamins such as vitamin C and vitamins B1 and B2. Besides about one third of the minerals are found in the liquid," says Miss Smith.

Modern canning results in the conservation of the extractable vitamins and minerals for the use of the consumers. To avoid wastage of any part of this valuable content, if the liquid in the can cannot be served with the solid portion, it should be used in soups, stews or gravies.

These are the facts and advice as given by the nutritionist: "Don't discard that valuable liquid. For instance in the case of canned green beans, 36 per cent of the ascorbic acid is found in the liquid, 33 per cent of the thiamine and 24 yr cent of the riboflavin content. Canned asparagus liquid holds 40 per cent of the ascorbic acid.

Since ascorbic acid, or Vitamin C, goes to make strong blood vessels, bones and teeth, we certainly don't want to knowingly discard any of it. Thiamine, or vitamin B1, is essential for metabolism of the protein and for growth in general, while riboflavin, vitamin B2, has much to do with proper chemical changes of foods in body cells.

Anger is the most impotent of passions. It effects nothing it goes about and hurts the one who is possessed by it more than the one against whom it is directed.—Clarendon.

ARITHMETIC

I suppose that countless parents have been bothered by a lad
Who didn't like to multiply, divide, subtract and add.
Such a blunderer with figures when so accurate was he.
He seemed greatly disappointed when my sums I couldn't see.
And together at my problems we would sit the evening through,
But at figures in a column, as a boy, I'd sit and stare,
Seldom adding them correctly, but what's worse I didn't care.
Now there sits a little fellow who in much resembles me,
Trying vainly to remember what's the sum of nine and three.
And his father and his mother wonder by what art or trick
They can get him to stop saying: "I don't like arithmetic."

"With the home cooked breakfast, Sir, I sit across the table from you read your paper."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 9th., 1929

Our city fathers went out after industries in a big way forty years ago. Here is an advertisements which appear... in the year 1889 in several leading newspapers: "BONUSES TO MANUFACTURERS. The city of Belleville offers splendid inducements to manufacturers seeking a location. Besides its situation on the Bay of Quinte, in the centre of the wealthiest agricultural district in Ontario and possessing superior facilities for shipping by water, it is the principal terminus of the Midland Railway System, which extends its branches to several points on the Georgian Bay and gives the lumber country in and beyond the Muskoka district. It is also the most important station between Montreal and Toronto on the main line of the Grand Trunk Railway. Besides the natural advantages for manufacturing operations, the city offers inducements to parties seeking location, such as exemption from taxation, free site for building and money aid on certain conditions. Communications received by the undersigned, P. B. Robertson, City Clerk."

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 9th., 1919

At a meeting of the city council last night considerable business was transacted. Mayor Platt and all the aldermen were present. One of the object of the meeting was to consider new tenders for the collection of garbage for a term of one year. Recommendation that Thomas Hendy be given the contract at a cost of $5,000.00 was unanimously adopted. A petition prevailed that asphaltic concrete walks be constructed on the Campbell, Dundas and Front and Pinnacle streets and on portions of Bursaman, Ann, William and Coleman Streets. The Board of Education was requested by motion to convey to the city the old school building and grounds on Pinnacle St. C. I. White and P. G. Denike were appointed to act on the Housing Commission together with His Worship and a bylaw will be prepared for that purpose.

40 YEARS AGO

MAY 9th., 1909

Recently a branch of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers was formed in this city and last evening the newly elected. officers were installed by W. H. McGhie, of Toronto, who is chairman of the Board of Examiners for the Ontario Government. The officers are as follows: Past President, W. Malloch; president, S. H. Chesbro; vice-president, C. J. Pepin; financial secretary, W. Cook; treasurer, P Davies; conductor, J. Ferguson and guard, B. Ketcheson. At the close of the meeting the members adjourned to Wallace's restaurant where a banquet was served and a programme of speeches and songs was enjoyed.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Three of my friends are well-enough off to have spent the late winter and the most disagreeable part of early spring in one or other of the Bermuda refuges — Bermuda, Nassau. The invalid of the family, their holiday is that not one of the six of them ever took his wife as the slightest note of envy about their holiday.

They might all have been asleep the whole time they were away. Even their own friends make a trip to Britain, or even to New York or San Francisco, there is enough conversational fodder brought home to last four or five evenings about their cronies. But there must be something vapid about the holiday south. It must be colorless, dull, possibly slightly anaesthetic. When they arrive back home from these golden and turquoise lands of changeless summer, the travellers have a slightly dopey expression; and all they can say is that they had a lovely time.

My belief is that the weather is to blame for this with my character of a day, and the life that one experiences in that day, than any other factor. Down in the southern climes, in winter, the days are not days at all. Every day is like the day before. On my way south to the Bahamas, I was so heartily sick of stupid, featureless weather, I began to the third day that I began to see the facial expression of the natives as the sort of stunned expression a gold fish wears.

One of the reasons for Canada's zest is its weather. Rarely are two days alike. There seems to be an eager pressure of weather, year in and year out, across the broad Dominion; and fortunately, the weather men are not very good at predicting what really comes next on the show. Of all the months, May is the most zestful, because not a month can show so many changes between late winter and full summer. May is like a festive companion, full of tricks.

Curiosity got the better of Lieut. Charles Borgeson of Dallas, Tex., today. He piloted 57 round trips to Berlin in the air lift and never left the field. On his last trip today he came here as a passenger just to have a look around.

Air Lift Flier Goes as Passenger To See Berlin

Berlin, May 9 (AP)—Hundreds of British and American airmen have flown the air lift to Berlin without actually visiting the city. Their turn-around at the airport usually is 30 minutes which does not give them time to leave the field.

Christian's Column: East and West To Start Struggle For All Germany

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst

Ernst Reuter, the hard-boiled anti-Communist Mayor of West-Berlin, has made the New York agreement among the big four to lift the blockade of the German capital marks the "real beginning" of a tug-of-war between the east and west."

Reuter means, I take it, that we should start to see the start of great struggle between Russia and the Western Allies for control of all Germany.

Wes Gallagher, Associated Press Chief of Bureau in Germany, reports that many international observers there believe victory for the west would shatter the iron curtain. The reason is that eastern Europe traditionally has depended heavily on the Reich for manufactures which it is doubtful Russia alone can provide.

When Hitler launched the Second World War he actually was Czar of the whole of eastern Europe up to the Russian border, because of his economic stranglehold.

Loaded Dice

Of course the whole area just before Munich, and still is a matter of amusement that Hitler should have acted so much on a throw of the dice.

Hitler ruled eastern Europe and the Balkans in the iichtal palm of his hand. Why? Because industrially that area for a long period had built up an economic interdependence with the highly agricultural countries with manufactured articles, and took from them in return the agricultural products whicH the Reich didn't itself grow.

Hitler was master of the rolling stock of Europe and heads of its satellites. They had no alternative but to do what he said. Recently I met a man who had journeyed to Wallace's restaurant where a banquet was served and a program of speeches and songs was enjoyed.

Nesse Tjelstheim

The Soviet chief constantly drove the nut tighter until just before the war he actually was telling the small countries what they had to buy from the Reich.

Now the Soviet satellites now are under Russia's control. Thus the question arises as to how far the Soviet will go in forcing industrial necessities.

If Moscow could gain control of Germany through communization, the problem potentially would be solved for the Soviets.

Charges Union Member Paid Agent of RCMP

London, Ont., May 9 — (CP) — Charges that a union member was a "paid agent of the R.C.M.P." working inside the union to "disrupt" it exploded for the second time on the floor of the annual convention of District 26, United Electrical Workers Union, here Sunday night.

The charge was levelled first Saturday in the opening sessions by William Mahoney, Toronto, Canadian and international director for the union in Canada. Passing of the report was blocked because of the statement.

Edmiston Defiant

Our leader from an extremely reliable source that one of the leader of the disruptors is a paid agent for the R.C.M.P. and since the inception of the trade union movement such stool-pigeons have been despised, hated and kicked out of bona-fide workers organization."

"Wait and See" Attitude Taken By Danish Govt.

Copenhagen, May 9 (Reuters)— The Danish government has decided to maintain its "wait and see" attitude for the time pending question of the national allegiance of South Schleswig.

No further move is to be made by Denmark pending some statement on the future of the German province following the Riel talks between British, German and South Schleswig authorities.

Growing agitation here for possible action in South Schleswig by the Danish government culminated last month in a determination to attack by the opposition from both inside and outside the house.

The question arises, mainly, from the German-Danish frontier drawn after the First World War. This border could be outlawed, leaving Germany with the large Danish minority over a long period had built up an economic interdependence with the highly agricultural countries with manufactured articles, and took from them in return the agricultural products whicH the Reich didn't itself grow.

Hitler was master of the rolling stock of Europe and heads of its satellites. They had no alternative but to do what he said. Recently I met a man who had journeyed to Wallace's restaurant where a banquet was served and a program of speeches and songs was enjoyed.

Nesse Tjelstheim

The Soviet chief constantly drove the nut tighter until just before the war he actually was telling the small countries what they had to buy from the Reich.

Now the Soviet satellites now are under Russia's control. Thus the question arises as to how far the Soviet will go in forcing industrial necessities.

If Moscow could gain control of Germany through communization, the problem potentially would be solved for the Soviets.

Ole Bjorn Krafft, expressed his party's opinion that the government had not attempted to obtain Danish representation at the conference of big powers relative to the future of Germany. His party, Krafft declared, is in favor of a campaign in the West German occupation zone to be executed in South Schleswegian the right of self-determination when conditions make this possible.

Pittsburgh (AP)—John Dwulit explained himself to police here yesterday—$300 worth and all because a burglar had butter fingers.

John has been filling a five-gallon bucket with pennies, nickels dimes and quarters for years. Then a burglar snatched the bottle and ran to the street.

The jug slipped from his finger with a crash and the coins rolled in all directions. The thief ran. John got down on the floor of the store, a broom and a dustpan.

Dwulit has all his money back in the bucket now. He's going to count it. Today he's going to be home.

CAN YOU DISCARD THAT SPLINT?

This morning I rolled six somersaults on the floor, a performance of the Last Brady Symphony as described and illustrated in The 7 Keys to Vite. It is the first time I have had the courage to remove my morning rolls since my arm has been out of the cast, three long months.

You folks who roll your own know how good it makes one feel. The old stiffness has thrown even of itself, without my having tried to roll somersaults since you were kids can hardly realize what you are missing. If you are satisfied with your fake dignity, don't let me bother you. But if you are a little curious to know what I am serious about this, just send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask in writing (if you use a clipping you will receive no reply) for pamphlet on somersaulting — invitation to the Somersaultogua.

But one who has worn a splint or cast or brace or supporter of a longer time, is, no matter what, whether constantly or only during the waking hours or part of the time is bound to experience considerable difficulty in discarding the crutch, the splint, the supporting strophy and impaired confidence that after the artificial supporter has been removed.

No girdle or other supporter a girl or woman can wear has the beneficial effect, and for developing and keeping a good figure.

The purpose is to overplay up or concealing blemishes, defects or abnormalities a woman should not have, and sometimes does not suffice she prefers. Be it lip stick, powder or rouge, the important thing is that she use it artistically so that it will not be so obvious that she is made up. This is a matter of taste—which the modern girl, and lipstick, rouge and nail paint naturally.

What kind of exercise should a girl take to keep in trim, physically, in good condition, firm instead of flabby, without resorting to the strenuous exercise only the blind? Walking is the best of all exercises for this purpose—walking at least a few miles every day—an average of 2—month for three times a day; two miles of oxygen on the hoof, that is.

This prescription, I would, i. d. is especially good for a woman students, stenographers, secretaries, clerks, housewives or sedentary workers in general who do not know what to do not ride if you can possibly afford to walk.

In my files—which never give up anything once they get hold of it—is a report from a young woman who had some kind of illness about five miles from her home. She had accumulated you know what and on the suggestion of a friend who owned a motor car for the winter, walked to and from the shop daily, ranged about 20 pounds and became young and happy again.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Goat's Milk For Baby

We have Been Told goat's milk is as good as breast 'milk for our baby who is not breast fed, also buttermilk. Is buttermilk or goat's milk will make the baby allergic to anything. E. G. D.

Answer—Goat's milk is fine for the baby. It will not make the baby allergic to anything. I do not mention the age or general condition of the baby because probably other items should be added to the basic diet. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the Baby Booklet.

Injection Treatment

In your pamphlet you say injection treatment is used for internal conditions and not as a rule for external ones. In your column you say injection treatment is used for both inward and outward piles. Can't you make up your mind? Which is it? E. G.

Answer—If you can show me in print that I said that, I'll pay the doctor's bill for your injection treatment. The fact is the treatment the doctor may use for internal hemorrhoids, provided he is competent to do the work, like this column recently was that a hemorrhoid treated by the injection method can usually treat external piles painlessly (under local anesthesia) by subcutaneous injection, for instance, without hospitalization. Ask the doctor whom you ask for it in writing and not by telephone. Send for my free pamphlet It Is Stupid to Suffer from Piles—inclose stamped, self addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ALONE

We formulate our life philosophy mostly alone, for we are temperamentally alone. We are impressive of us and colors all our decisions. It is entirely personal. Our friendships, love relationships, and our very success are affected by it.

We are dependent upon this personal philosophy of ours so that all through life we are quite lonely creatures. We are misjudged, misunderstood and misidentified. We are often neglected because we refuse to float down the popular current, or develop of which no one can predict. Like it or not, we are alone.

There are times in life when individual thought is more than mass thought, than physical hunger. Satisfy the former and, the latter will take care of itself. Marvin Lowenthal, in commenting upon Montaigne, says: "The essential of life is not what we believe about it, but how we live it. The way to live it is upon its own terms."

If we get too busy with material things we begin to lose sight of the preciousness of life. We forget about that daily analysis of self which is so important to a triumphant life. In the midst of too much to do we forget that our senses become dulled. Only in solitude is prayer effective, and it is just opposite to solitude that gained. We ought to "Pilgrim's Progress."

Had there been no jails we might never have had Don Quixote or "Pilgrim's Progress." But even at a great a loss I would much want to have the single jail more! Alone, however, many of the world's great books of history have been conceived. Thoreau left Walden Pond, John Muir his Mountains of California, and R. M. Ballantyne had his vast Argentine pampas.

We can but glory in the arms of Nature — alone? Thereby we find

CONCERNING INTERIOR DECORATING

Almost everyone is familiar with the story of the experience by by John Quincy Adams who, at the age of eighty, was asked by a friend who met him on the street, "How is John Quincy Adams?" This was the reply: "John Quincy Adams himself is very well. But there lately seems to be in is sadly dilapidated. The building trembles with every wind, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it before long." But he himself is very well.

A noted American preacher quoted this incident in a sermon the next day and on the following week received through the mail from one of his listeners the following: "This is an old lady who is writing you. Or at least the house I live in is eighty-two years old. Considering if age, the house is in fairly good repair, though I don't think it is safe to live in as well as it did fifty years ago. I have neglected to keep it painted, as for many of the reasons I do. To tell the truth, I have been afraid to call in a painter and have painting. The windows I look out of are dirty. I have been afraid to tell you that I have a reliable man in the upper story of my life.

There are people who take life that way, and to use an expression of Jesus, they have lost the salt of the earth. Old age is largely a matter of interiors. If we forget about the condition of the outside of the house in which we live and give enough attention to interior decorating, the passing years make little difference.

'Elevator' Credit To Magazine Staff Of Collegiate

Representing months of hard work on the part of the magazine staff, the annual edition of the B.C.I.V.S. "Elevator" is again out of the press.

But, as is the case each year, the 1946-47 edition of the "Elevator" is a credit to the magazine staff and to its many contributors Within its pages are literary efforts well worthy of favorable comment, while school news, extra-curricular and social activities, dramatics and athletics are given their customary full coverage.

Apparently firm believers in the old Chinese saying that "A picture is worth a thousand words", the Elevator staff have given liberal space to pictures of the staff, group pictures of members of various athletic teams, while the character studies of the many candid "shots" are too numerous to mention.

Message From Principal

The message of Principal G. E. Currie brings attention to the fact that this year's Elevator is commemorating the centenary celebration of the achievement of responsible government in Upper Canada. He goes on to stress the importance of schools in developing responsible citizenry which must provide a supplement to the measure of true responsible government.

The current edition of the "Elevator" is also dedicated to the memory of the late P.C. MacLaurin, who was principal of B.C.I.V.S. from 1912 until 1942. Mr. MacLaurin died in January 1946.

Miss Donna Ferguson as editor-in-chief of the magazine, with the assistance of of an efficient staff, has maintained the calibre of the current edition of the "Elevator" in comparison with previous editions. Staff adviser to the business staff was Mr. A. D. Archibald, while N. P. Merry and L. D. Read acted as consulting directors.

The "Elevator" was printed in the job printing department of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Street Not Proper Place to Try to Sell Overcoat

That the street is not the proper place to try to sell a winter overcoat with the temperature ranging in the 70s was learned yesterday by two men who found themselves in the grasp of the law charged on vagrancy counts.

The two men were attempting to sell the overcoat, which they said had been purchased in Napanee to a third party when the law appeared.

The offenders were promptly marched off to the police station where vagrancy counts were laid. Later it was learned one of the men was out on bail in Trenton for breaking and entering and he was taken in that centre to answer the charge.

London — Artist John Minton had a $2,000 cheque today, and maybe the last word, in his feud over modern art with Sir Alfred Munnings, president of the Royal Academy.

Sir Alfred doesn't like modern art much. Minton paints it.

Yesterday the painting was sold to the Trinity Mansions Hotel in swank Eastbourne for $1,000.

Said Minton smugly: "Sir Alfred may know a lot about horses, but the last thing he knows about is pictures."

Flagg, Derbyshire, England — The locals set on high-explosive bombs in lanes around this village and nearby Monyash —and they couldn't care less.

The air ministry dumped the bombs on the roadsides years ago.

Farmer Joe Crosby said:

"The bombs have no detonators. I've even seen courting couples sitting on bombs on moonlight nights — they're as good as a bench in the park."

For two years the parish council has been asking the air ministry to move the bombs but nothing has been done.

Most of the "Danger, no smoking, no loitering" notices that dotted the lanes when the bombs were first dumped have disappeared.

Service Club Fined For Selling Draws on Car

Ottawa — apparently looks askance on outside service clubs selling tickets for draws on car.

The other day two representatives of the Kingston Optimist Club were arrested $50 and costs each for selling the tickets in Ottawa. Deputy Magistrate Saurre ordered confiscation of the funds, $22.

Explaining the penalty the bench said, "I have great sympathy for service clubs such as yours. You are doing a great work especially in helping disabled children."

"However," the bench added, "you should know that we cannot allow outside clubs to sell lottery tickets in Ottawa in spite of the good cause to which the proceeds go."

The magistrate said he would not order confiscation of the car.

Communist Infiltration Into Austrian Societies More Dangerous Than That of Nazis

By HUBERT HARRISON

Vienna, May 3 (Reuters) — Communist infiltration into Austrian organizations and administrations is far more thorough and dangerous than was that of the Nazis 'n pre-Anschluss Austria.

This is the opinion of a high Austrian police official.

"If there were a war or a Communist putsch," he said, "neither the Red army nor the Communist party would lose any time in replacing the Austrian by a Communist administration — they have people waiting to take over the moment the time is ripe."

This police official expressed concern that foreign governments in the west do not appear to realize the extent of the danger— just as western democracies failed to realize, until it was too late, the danger of what was happening from 1934 to 1938.

It is well known here that the Communists have members or "sympathizers" placed in all Austrian ministries and in the police force.

This was done when the Russians first came in and also during the period when the Communists were still one of the three government parties and had the right to a share in all key positions.

Attending to the police official the process of infiltration has become more intense and more cunning in recent months.

Fill With Sympathizers

"The new policy is to fill important posts with 'sympathizers' who are not openly Communists," he said.

Many examples could be given illustrating how far this infiltration has gone. For instance, the Communist-dominated "Waltrs' Union" recently decided to institute immediately a 48-hour week without waiting for a government sanctioned change of working conditions in the hotel and restaurant industry.

One concern made a voluntary agreement with its waiters not to demand this 48-hour week and to continue to work their former hours.

Now an oil company has refused to supply any more heating oil to the restaurant and the transport workers have refused to deliver such oil because the restaurant does not give its workers a 48-hour week.

In all trade union and workers' movements, co-operatives and similar organizations, the Communists, although greatly in the minority, have managed to obtain a vastly disproportionate share of power. This is due, the police official said, to the fact that no one dares make the first move of opposition.

If one person opposed them, the opposition would grow like an avalanche. "but just as in 1938 (when Hitler marched in) that one person does not exist."

Shell Exploded In Ship's Cordite Handling Room

Hong Kong, May 9 (Reuters)— One of the Chinese Communist shells fired into the British cruiser London during last month's "Yangtze Incident" exploded in her cordite handling room, killing two of the crew and starting a dangerous fire, it was disclosed when the ship docked here.

Lt.-Cmdr. C. G. Scott said: "Undoubtedly we had a narrow squeak. It would be difficult to say what might have happened, but ten yards made all the difference."

Shortly after the London's arrival, with the crew patching up her damaged superstructure, a burial party went on board the destroyer Consort to attend the burial at sea of two more of the cruiser's crew who died in hospital here.

The deaths brought total casualties to 44, 15 of them from London.

Toronto, May 7 (CP)— On the eve of Mother's Day, Alfred Shirin has been amed father of the year by the Brotherhood of Beth Hamidrash Hagadol, Synagogue Ere. Mr. Shirin, father of two boys, was given a scroll as "the man who in his service to the synagogue and the community makes the greatest contribution to the welfare of youth."

SENTENCE COMMUTED

Paris, May 7 — (Reuters)— The death sentence of Mathilde Carre, known as "The Cat," for betraying 48 of her Maquis comrades to the Germans, yesterday was commuted to hard labor for life. Mlle. Carre was said to have become the mistress of Hugh Bleicher, German military intelligence officer, after he arrested her in 1941.

Windsor Plant Of Ford Company Not to Shut Down

Windsor, Ont., May 9 (CP) The Windsor plant of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., will not shut down at midnight Tuesday, as had been expected, but will carry on limited production as long as necessary parts and materials are available.

It had been announced Thursday, following the walkout of employees of United States Ford plants, that the stoppage of deliveries of parts and materials from the Ford Rouge plant would halt operations in the Canadian factory within three or four days.

Hays M. Sale, executive vicepresident, issued the following statement this morning:

"We realize what a serious thing it is for our employees and the whole community, as well as for our own company, if our plant closes for a prolonged period. After a careful check of our inventories, and with the special cooperation of several major suppliers, we have reached that we can carry on a partial operation for that long period.

"Beginning next week, our daily production schedule will be cut to about 250 vehicles. The reduced schedule naturally means that we could keep laying off some of our men and putting most of the plant on short time, but we will do our best to keep as many employed as possible on our payrolls during this difficult period, for which feither our company nor our employees have been responsible in any way. If the strike across the river is prolonged, it may be necessary for us to shut down, but we will keep going for as many days as we possibly can."

MADOC JUNCTION Y.P.U. Societies Entertained by Local Congregation

The address for the evening was given by Rev. Lloyd Shorter of Foxboro.

The presidents of the visiting societies were called to the platform, and each expressed their thanks for the invitation and then presented their part of the program as follows: duet by Lea and Gerald Thompson with Lois Emerson, pianist.

Reading by Mrs. Bumstead, humorous skit by Messrs. Beverley Foster and Douglas Thompson; a melodeon duet by members from Thomasburg, Rev. H. Burgess as narrator; a piano solo by Mrs. George Ashley; vocal solo "Fill My Cup, My Spirit Lord" by Miss Joan McCurdy, West Huntingdon; vocal duet "The Church by the Side of the Road" by Misses Donna Stapley and Grace Clarke, of Eggleton; "God be With You Till We Meet Again", was sung, then Rev. Mr. Burgess took charge of the community singing, and recreation, assisted by Mrs. Bell.

Dainty refreshments were served. Rev. Mr. Burgess moved a very hearty vote of thanks to Rev. and Mrs. Shorter for their most inspiring address and this was further endorsed by rounds of applause. Singing of "Taps" brought the meeting to a close.

Batting Power of Washington In Winning Seven Straight Surprise of American Loop

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Its not official yet, but there is a strong movement that American League clubs are planning to ask for investigation of Washington Senators.

They simply can't believe that the allegedly weak-hitting Senators, riding high on an amazing seven-game winning streak, have been using natural batting power.

Washington's double win over the Indians in Cleveland yesterday was the most amazing stunt of the young season. The Senators whipped the world champions in the opener 7-3 and shut them out in the nightcap 5-0 before 69,734 stunned fans.

Ran Scarborough went all the way to chalk up his second victory in the opener. The Nats clubbed Gene Bearden and three successors for 13 hits to hang the season's first defeat on the Tribe southpaw.

Benton The Loser

Sid Hudson pitched four-hit ball in the second game to register his first victory. Al Benton was the loser.

New York Giants humbled Chicago Cubs 10-1 for their sixth consecutive victory. Johnny Mize gave the Giants undisputed possession of first place, as Pittsburgh Pirates socked the Braves twice in Boston 8-3 and 11-8.

The Giants backed Larry Jansen's steady pitching with a 14-hit attack that included Bobby Thomson's three-run homer.

The Bucs clubbed Johnny Salvo out of the Braves box at first game with a five-hit four-run attack in the opening frame. Ralph Kiner collected three hits in each game including his fourth home run of the season.

Brooklyn scored four runs in a wild seventh inning to defeat St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 at Ebbets Field. The Dodgers made only two hits in that inning, but received three walks and benefited by Ed Nazak's error. The defeat dropped the Cards into a last-place tie with the Cubs.

Phillies Divide

Cincinnati and the Phillies divided a doubleheader in Philadelphia. The Reds won the opener 16-7 with a seven-run 12th inning. The Phils grabbed the nightcap 8-1. Bill Nicholson batted in five runs for the Phils in the nightcap with two singles and a home run.

Cliff Chambers belted in five runs for the Phils in the nightcap with two singles and a home run.

Cliff Chambers allowed only two hits pitching the American League leading New York Yankees to a 12-0 victory over the Tigers before more than 32,000 fans in Detroit. The Yankees got 17 hits including four by Tommy Henrich and Virgil Trucks's four-game winning streak.

Vic Wertz's two-run 5th ends de a doubleheader from the lowly Browns in St. Louis 10-8 and 4-3. The first game went 12 innings and the second only eight because of the curfew. The double defeat in extended the Brown's losing string to 10 in a row.

The Athletics split a twin bill with the White Sox in Chicago, winning the second 3-2 after Chicago had walked off with an 11-3 victory in the first. Bill McCahan notched his first success for the A's in the nightcap. Hank Majeski, after batting safely in Philadelphia's first 19 games, was stopped by winning pitcher Randy Gumpert.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Spring is "busting out all over." The annual lull in sports at this time of the year is about over, and all over the district preparations are being made for another season of baseball, softball, golf, lawn bowling, fishing, tennis, yachting and other popular summer athletics.

Hockey sticks, skates and other paraphernalia of the great winter sport have been put back in the mothballs. True the Allan Cup and Memorial Cup finals still hold the interest of all hockey fans, but locally, its another season. Golfers are polishing up their drivers, irons and other clubs; Corner lots and playgrounds are the scenes for softball and baseball minded youngsters. Senior, intermediate and junior diamond squads are starting to get in serious practice licks. Lawn bowling greens are being readied. The fishermen are with us on their way as far as the trout season goes and the boys who have a yen for the pickerel will get their big opportunity on May 14th.

Along the waterfront, owners of skiff, rowboat, yacht and motorboat are sprucing up their craft in preparation for a glorious season on the white-capped Bay of Quinte. Owners of cottage and cabin are readying their summer homes on timber-fringed lake and stream. Warm weather brings visions of vacation. Even now plant, factory, office and shop are scheduling dates for that glorious two or three weeks, according to how lucky they are, and planning for the annual trip or just lazy loafing. Yep, kiddies, looks like "Spring" has come.

But to sports departments of newspaper and radio, Spring has another meaning than fishing, vacations, yachting and other warm weather attractions. Scarcely recovered from the hockey season with its long-drawn out schedules, road trips, and "every-night" games, the boys of the typewriter and microphone are beginning to assemble material for the certain athletic activity. Night baseball, a boon to the average fan, is merely a workaday headache for the scribes and announcers. So also is golf, tennis, bowling, all are home at a reasonable hour. With modern floodlighting systems sprouting up all over the country, it means an additional sentence to the daily toil.

Many times we have heard the envious remark of fans and others, "What a pipe. What a cinch those guys have. They go to every night hockey game, baseball game, golf match, tournament, golf tourney, and it don't cost 'em a nickel. They get passes to everything while we guys have to dig down into the family purse and pay for everything we see. All they've gotta do is to go to the office, scrawl down a few words, and earn so be hard for the rest of the day, and until the next afternoon at least, if there is a game scheduled."

Simple, ain't it? Just like that. Yep, all the "lucky" guys do is just that, plus a little work. Printant, this summer there will be three or four baseball leagues in town and three softball leagues operating here. That means not only one game every night, but at times two or three. In the emergency of all these events will be made has not been figured out, unless there is some co-operation coming from representatives of certain of these leagues.

As a matter of fact, even with an augmented sports staff it will be humanly impossible to cover all events. Naturally the senior and intermediate baseball leagues and the senior softball league will be taken care of personally—and this in itself will keep the sports staff busy six nights a week, with the occasional Wednesday and Saturday afternoon added for good measure.

During the winter months when hockey, skating and bowling held the sports spotlight, we received excellent cooperation from industrial and other hockey and bowling leagues. And for that we are exceedingly grateful. Publication of these events would not have been possible if we were not for this co-operation. Some leagues, we understand, did not have their results written in print. That was simply because, it was not possible for this department to cover them, and officials did not bother forwarding accounts of the games or sports functions to the press.

This department wants to have as full a coverage of all sports events as is possible. But as we mentioned before. It must have the co-operation of all. We'll gladly publish accounts, not in excess of all minor league events in each realm of sport, if it is received within a reasonable time after the game, match or event. Whatever it is, has taken place or telephone the results, scores, etc., as soon after your league game and we'll be grateful beauties be ended. We'll gladly co-operate with you fellows, if the compliment is returned.

The Central Ontario Baseball League ironed out a lot of wrinkles at an executive meeting held here yesterday. Batawa, Oshawa, Smiths Falls, Peterborough and Brockville were represented with OBA executive member "Cy" Whatley, Peterborough representing his association. While there was plenty of discussion there was little argument, and the meeting ran off as smoothly as a spinsters' convention. Opening dates were named although the reserve schedule will not be drawn up until a later date after the Kingston entry has been received.

Brockville and Smiths Falls representatives were amiable bombers, and provided a number of workable suggestions. They readily fell in line with articles of the loop constitutions and were willing to co-operate in every way. Baseball, it appears, has been in the doldrums down thataway and their entry into the COBL is the first step towards rejuvenation. It appears the St. Lawrence Baseball League in which these teams played last year, has folded up.

President Don Thomas formally welcomed the new entries. Kingston was not represented although it is rumored either the former Locos team or one from the Kingston Athletic Association will enter. The Locos sponsors recently withdrew their interest, financial and otherwise in baseball but the executive felt there was little doubt that a Kingston entry would be forthcoming. With that in mind they named opening and other dates.

It seems to be the secret ambition of Peterborough's Ed. Murphy to have a team from the COBL strong enough, perhaps not this year but within the next few years, to challenge the hejabbers out of the strong Western Ontario aggregations. Murphy made no bones about it and stated he was working along those lines. He was not concerned as to which team it was as long as it represented the COBL. He urged well-dressed umpires, good equipment, smartly uniformed teams and wholehearted league co-operation. Only by these factors can the COBL hope to attain its former proud position in senior baseball ranks, he said.

Ottawa Senators Win Allan Cup Beating Regina

Ottawa, May 9 (CP)—Ottawa Senators have the Allan Cup. The big silver mug was handed to Dave Bentley right after they beat Regina Capitals 5-2 in the fifth game of the 1949 Canadian senior hockey finals.

Senators out-skated, out-checked and out-shot the western champions before 7,892 fans who dressed more like baseball than hockey fans played in the warm May weather. The temperature was past 60 degrees in the refrigerated rink, but players said the ice was "fair."

Ottawa jumped into the lead within three minutes of the first period. Twice Regina tied—but never passed—them. There was little doubt of the outcome from the start, as Capitals seemed lost in the end-zones of the confident Ottawa rink—subject of bitter debate throughout the series. Ottawa lost only two games this year this season.

Tremblay Top Scorer

Tremblay, 24-year-old centre from Quebec, came out as top scorer for the finals series with three goals and six assists for nine points. Right behind him were his mates—Jim Robinson with four goals and four assists and Hill Palmer with four goals and two assists. Ab McDougall, with three goals and two assists, was high scorer for Regina. Check got his marker, unassisted, a short time midway after the game started. He picked up the puck as Regina tried to clear it from the goal-mouth and beat Bentley on a screened shot. Brown scored for Regina minutes later on a rush with Slasseon and Tilson only to have Ray Trainor score on another screened shot.

Cape tied it up early in the second period as Hauck scored at the end of a rush with Gus and Bill Kyle. . . . Eddie Emberg shoved the puck passed Bentley after the latter had left the nephew of Max and Doug Bentley of the National Hockey League trapped it with his stick. Dagenais got the clincher less than two minutes before the game ended on a rush with Hellyer.

Saturday night's victory put an end to the possibility of any further dispute about Ottawa ice this year. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had ordered the rest of the series to be played in Montreal after Caps had protested against the oil-shaped Ottawa rink. But the Senior Ontario Hockey Association had ordered the Senators to play in Ottawa and nowhere else.

It was the first time a civilian Ottawa team won the trophy in 41 years. Ottawa R.C.A.F. won it in 1943 and Senators, the Edmonton Flyers in the cup finals out west last year.

Better Golf

By Sam Snead

High up in the list of the ten most important rules for good golf I would place this one: Play your own game. I have seen too many golfers of all classes defeat themselves by attempting to imitate, in some respects, the style or play of opponents. Think the shots out for yourself. Then make them. Every golfer at some time or other has had the temptation of trying to imitate his style of his driving with the long, powerful drive of some opponent. Don't do that. Play your game. And you'll score far better. Now for the picture. In the effort to apply more power than can be controlled with rhythm too many players start down fast from the top. The picture shows you the slow arm. Up there start hands down slowly. You should "gather" your strokes as the clubhead moves with ever accelerating speed from the top down through the hitting area into the ball. Start slow, gather speed as the pivot arms and hands flow into the stroke. I prefer, always, rhythm to power.

Pitching—Tommy Byrne, Yankees, pitched two hit, shutout ball as New York Yankees walloped the Tigers in Detroit 12-0.

Montreal Royals Need Only Tie To Win Trophy

Brandon, Man., May 9.—(CP) A quietly confident band of Montreal Royals figure they can end their best-of-seven Memorial Cup final against Brandon Wheat Kings tomorrow night when the series moves to the sixth contest.

Needing only a tie to capture the Canadian Junior Hockey title, the Royals will go onto the ice with a two-game lead, result of their impressive 7-4 victory over the Wheat Kings here Saturday night. The Eastern champions now have won three contests and dropped one. Another game was tied 3-3 in overtime.

Brandon Wheat Kings, however, feel they have been playing up to scratch and still can take the Royals four out of five and their most ardent fans believe beating Montreal three times is not too tough a row to hoe.

Going the series as favorites, the Wheat Kings turned in one of their worst displays of the season Saturday night.

Follow Same Pattern . . . . . .

The first period alone followed the pattern of the first four games, with Royals walking off with a 1-0 margin—ie piping intact their record of having scored the first goal of each game. But Brandon willed in the last two frames to bag doubles 3-2 in each.

Gordie Knutson and Bob Brampton, with two goals apiece, headed the Royal scoring, while Bert Herschfeld, Neal Langill and Dick Moore tallied the remainder.

Ralph Kiner, Brandon captain, again paced the Wheat Kings, with two goals and an assist. Mac Bealan and Reggie Abbott accounted for the others.

With their team behind at all stages, the 4,700 fans—mostly Brandon supporters—had little to cheer about until in the middle session when most of the players were engaged in a free-for-all. It wound up with the referee sending five players to the penalty box for five minutes apiece, and awarding Brandon a penalty shot.

Reggie Abbott and Brian Roche of Brandon and Jill Ramsay of Royals each drew majors along with Montreal goalkeeper Bobby Bleau, who did not have to sit out as King scored on the penalty shot.

COBL Expects to Operate Six Team, Two-Division League; Executive Lowers Import Bars

The Central Ontario Baseball League executive in session here yesterday threw down the import bars and opened everything wide open for unendorsed to their former four-import ruling.

Brockville and Smiths Falls were admitted to the league which will be a two-division circuit. Other teams are Oshawa, Peterborough, Batawa and Kingston. Kingston was not represented at the meeting but it is assumed that an entry will be forthcoming. It was learned that the Kingston Locomotive Works has withdrawn its support from baseball, but it is expected the Kingston Athletic Association whose application for a bye into senior playdowns was refused by the OBA will assume the franchise, if the Locos fail to operate.

Assuming that a Kingston entry will be forthcoming the executive arranged opening and special playing dates, and adopted a quadruple and double schedule. Kingston, Brockville and Smiths Falls will operate in the Eastern division, with Batawa, Oshawa and Peterborough playing in the western section. Interlocking games will be played with double headers arranged between Peterborough and Smiths Falls and Brockville and Oshawa and the two eastern teams.

First and second teams in each division will participate in the playoffs, but length of series and other playoff arrangements were laid over to a mid-season meeting. Central teams will pay a rain guarantee of $35 while outside teams on losing box will be guaranteed $50.

Opening and other dates were left open to be filled in by the former schedule. Batawa opens at Peterborough May 31st while Oshawa will be guests of Brockville in a twin bill on May 26th. Kingston will visit Peterborough on the holiday. Smiths Falls will play Batawa in Belleville on May 24th in a doubleheader. On May 30th Batawa goes to Oshawa with Brockville at Smiths Falls on the same date.

The league champions will play in the OBA senior "A" playdown and the runners-up in Senior "B".

"C" Whatley, OBA Peterborough executive member was present at the meeting.

Buffalo Bisons In First Place Of Int. League

(By The Associated Press)

Tom Poholsky, 19-year-old righthander of Rochester Red Wings, is one of the better rookie pitching prospects in the International Baseball League.

Poholsky turned in his fourth straight victory Sunday in pitching the Wings to a 3-2 10-inning victory over Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game of a doubleheader.

Poholsky allowed the Leafs only six hits while fanning five and walking three. One of the safeties was a homer to Ed Sanicki.

The Wings also took the night-cap 6-1 scoring all of their runs in the first inning against veteran Oscar Judd. Rookie Dick Bokleman allowed three hits, one a homer by Bill Glynn in the second inning.

Buffalo Bisons also took a twin bill, beating Jersey City Giants 9-7 and 1-0 to take over first place from the Giants by 12 percentage points.

The Bisons won the first game in 10 innings when a pop fly fell in front of third-sacker Len Schulte for a base hit that allowed Lav Clemman to romp home.

Clem Hausmann, making his first start since returning to the Bisons from Philadelphia Athletics, outdueled Negro Ford Smith in the nightcap. Both pitchers yielded two hits but the Bisons bunched their two along with a walk in the fourth inning to score.

Frankie Drews belted three homers as Syracuse Chiefs divided a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles. Drews socked two in the Chiefs' 4-3 10-inning first-game victory and one in their 7-4 nightcap loss.

Newark Bears and the defending champion Montreal Royals also split a doubleheader with the Royals grabbing the first game, 7-5 and the Bears the second 6-5.

Chiefs Divide

Trailing 3-2 going into the eighth inning of the opener, the Royals made whoopee at the expense of Bill Wight and scored five runs to win.

The Bears pulled the second game out of the seventh and final inning, scoring four times against submariner-ballist Frank Lagg. Hank Workman supplied the punch of the rally with a three-run four-bagger.

Plunge Into River To Escape Arrest

Peterboro, May 7 (CP)—When Peterboro city constables interrupted a drinking party Friday night on the banks of the Otonabee River two men jumped into the river to avoid arrest. Police reinforcements were sent to the other side of the river to rescue one of the swimmers and City Alderman H. Robbs, whose house is beside the river, piloted two constables across the river in a boat.

Derby Winner, Ponder, Will go In Preakness

Louisville, Ky., May 9 — (AP) — Crafty old Ben Jones, the wiliest scurrier in the racing game, sent Ponder in the Kentucky Derby, ready to take a lot from Calumet more today with his latest pride and joy on a crack at the $75,000-added Preakness.

This second "jewel" in racing's triple crown is set for Pimlico Saturday.

Ponder, Calumet Farm colt, cooled off 13 rivals in the Diamond Jubilee derby, including the heavily-favored Olympia. Now the big question is whether the young upstart, who never has did anything until May 7, 1949, can help keep that well away from owner Warren Wright's door from here on.

That $91,600 Ponder collected for his Derby romp helped, of course, and the grand value of the famed Preakness already is more than $100,000. Four or five other Derby horses are heading Pimlico-ward, several others dubbed are waiting for Maryland's big event to start.

But Olympia won't be one of them. His trainer, Ivan Parke, said Olympia will be flown to New York instead. "We just decided to pass it (the Preakness) up," he said.

Around the barns at Churchill Downs there is a general opinion that Capot will be a large number in the Preakness.

Capot, Greentree stable's ace, was the one which went out with the fast-stepping Olympia in the closing early race. Ponder there isn't much doubt that Capot cooked Olympia's goose, for he went out and won with him from the start.

Olympia Chilled Off

Of course, it also chilled off Capot and gave the horse with the most left at the finish. Ponder — Col. Matt Winn's diamond-studded gold cup. Ponder paid $34, $11.80 and $6.20.

John Gaver, the Greentree stable trainer, said he decided someone had to go out and run Olympia down, or at least try it, and that's what Jockey Ted Atkinson did.

One strong vote for Capot in the Preakness came from Hirsch Jacobs, trainer of Palestinian, which wound up third in the Derby.

"Capot looks like the one to beat there," Jacobs said.

As for Ben Jones, Calumet Farm trainer:

"We're in no hurry to get there but we'll be there," said the man who has saddled five Derby winners, more than any other trainer.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, May 9. (AP)—On the first day after it was announced that the 1949 United States Collegiate baseball finals would be played in Wichita, Kans. $900 worth of ticket orders were received. They may take the tournament out of the red yet and why not? Last year's finals had such players as Frank Quinn, now with the Boston Braves; Hank Workman and Wally Hood, who are going well with Newark Bears in the minors; Bobby Young, who is with the Cincinnati Reds and Ed Mickelson, who is with the Cleveland Indians. The all-star football coaches association is giving awards this year for the best stories on college baseball by working newspaper men. Why did they have to use that word "working"?

Unsolicited Comment

The New York public library's "boxing" exhibition, which opened today, includes a 1744 copy of "The Gymnasiad, a very short but very curious epic poem". . . . Wait. From that description, it might have been written about Bill Veeck.

Monday Matinee

Last word on the Kentucky Derby was supplied by the Herald-Tribune's Red Smith, who reported that Ben Jones' pre-race moaning sounded exactly like Frank Leahy the night before a Notre Dame-Army game.

Story from South Australia says that crowds have acquired the habit of swiping golf balls on a course there, sometimes even picking them up before they stop rolling.

Kitchener Squad May Find Going Tough in Loop

By DAN ODETTE

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Kitchener, May 9 — (CP) — Kitchener Panthers, who defied Father Time in the senior intercounty senior baseball race last year, are off to a fast start this year. They can be tough "if" their new players can produce.

The panthers — who open the season at London May 14 — have a classy infield in Bob Bloxam at first, John Bain, most valuable player in the circuit last year, at second, manager Bobby Schnurr plugging short and either Howie Meeker of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League or Shorty Miller at third.

Meeker, who suffered a broken foot during the hockey season, hasn't been out to practice yet but is expected to be taken over.

One of the club's noted imports is Jim Bivin, veteran Philadelphia American League pitcher. Pitcher believes he can go well and the Panthers will depend on the southpaw as the one man who can "go" every starts.

Ace Hurler Back

Pat Boehmer, the club's ace hurled last year, is back. Joe Malone, Cleveland Indians farmhand, Jerome's College here, is a newcomer. Malone is known for his work on the mound and in the outfield again.

Three American imports are due here June 1, but their worth isn't known as "if". They are Don Cline of Colgate University, a southpaw; Jerry Dehr catcher, Michigan State College, and Paul Mudlin, Canisus College, Buffalo, a catcher.

Sam Kennedy and Alex Silverstein, both outfield-outfielders. Sam Mulholland, 19-year-old junior from Kingston, is also an outfield candidate. Mulholland is a brother of Jimmy Foxx's pet who chased a short time ago by the Detroit Red Wings from Philadelphia Rockets.

Ross Dusts off Pete Zaduk In Title Bout

Halifax, May 9 (CP)—George Ross, still Canadian middleweight champion after dusting off challenger Pete Zaduk, today faced the biggest test of his career, a June 2 title defence against Johnny Green, Canadian welterweight king.

Ross was signed to a $5,000 contract immediately after he won a 12-round decision over Zaduk Saturday night. Montreal promoter Raoul Godbout flew in for the fight and the signing which hinged on the outcome.

Ross showed a lethal, puzzling left under Zaduk's nose and kept it there for 12 rounds. It rattled the 20-year-old Calgary challenger and the champion ran his victory string to 37 without a defeat.

The win soothed a wound opened in the Ross pride fall when he and Zaduk fought a draw in Montreal.

A crowd of 4,500, smaller than anticipated, contributed $3,000 to the $9,000—a Maritime record. Ross' share was $2,500, Zaduk's $2,000.

The champion took a 2-1 favorite, gave away 4 1-4 pounds by weighing in at 161 1-2 and Zaduk had a slight advantage in height and reach.

Referee Jack MacKenna scored it 9-2-1, referee Roy Chisolm 8-4-3 and Judge Lou Lewerling 5-4-1. The Canadian Press scorecard had it 8-4 for Ross.

There were no knockdowns but Ross had his opponent in serious trouble in the fifth, ninth and 11th rounds and Zaduk slowed noticeably. For the most part, the champion set the pace.

Patton Breaks World's Record For 220 Yards

(By The Canadian Press)

Sprinter Mal Patton of the University of Southern California went on a world-record-breaking spree Saturday at Los Angeles. He ran the 220-yard dash in 20.2 seconds, bettering the 20.3 world record hung up by Jesse Owens in 1935. He also clipped off a sensational 9.1 for the 100-yard dash —but that won't count.

Leading his teammates to a 90½-10-40½ triumph over the University of California at Los Angeles in a Pacific Coast conference meet, Patton had too much of a wind behind him in the 100-yard dash. But the prize was under legal limits 45 minutes later in the 220-yard sprint.

The executive of the modern-men's Benevolent and Protective Association have decided to contest against a recent ruling that would deny a referee's licence to a trainer with only one horse.

A meeting Saturday night in Toronto of the Ontario Racing Association executive passed a motion asking the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations, which passed the ruling, to withdraw it by January 1st. If the ruling is not withdrawn, the horsemen plan a special Wednesday night to decide on their future action.

At New York, the Board of Governors of American Hockey League Saturday night gave Cliff Washington from the league and sold Cincinnati, the Ohio club will have a working agreement with Montreal of the National Hockey League. The latter's board, meeting here in annual business session, also shifted Buffalo from the western to the eastern division of the 11-team circuit.

At Albany, Calif., breaking on top and landing firm wire to wire, Solidarity won an upset victory Saturday in the featured race of the $50,000-added golden Gate Handicap. Ridden by Ralph Neves, Solidarity toured the 1¼ miles in two minutes flat. Stephan Lodigen, with Jimmy Longden aboard, finished three-quarters of a length behind for second place and Roman In was third.

Detroit Tigers Saturday sent outfielder Earl Rapp to Chicago White Sox in a straight player trade for infielder Don Kolloway. Rapp came to the Tigers from Buffalo when the International League in 1946. He was farmed out to Seattle in 1946 and rejoined Detroit this spring. Golloway, 30, will be used as a utility infielder.

At St. Louis Frank Burton (Burt) Whitman, sports editor of the Boston Herald, collapsed from a cerebral hemorrhage in the first Red Sox-St. Louis Browns baseball game yesterday and died later in hospital. He was 52.

At New York, the New York American Soccer League All Stars and the Hakoah All Stars battled to a half yesterday to gath a surprising 2-2 tie with the Irish League All Stars in Randall's Island. The match which drew 15,000 spectators to Triborough stadium, was the first of a 10-game North American tour for the Irish club.

Mordecai Peter (Three-Finger) Brown and Charles A. (Kid) Nichols, two great pitchers of the Gay Nineties, joined 16 other baseball immortals in the game's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y. The two right-handed hurlers were elected by the permanent baseball writers' committee for baseball's highest honor—Brown with 204 pitchers to earn the distinction.

Montreal, May 9 (CP) —Sports columnists are the pundits of the athletic world but beyond these parts there's a chap who can deliver just as powerful an editorial wallop with the stroke of a pencil.

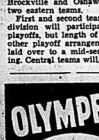
John Collins, sports cartoonist for The Gazette, casts a friendly, searching, pictorial eye on all local sporting contests. He has a neat way of making his points.

When the Royals beat Baltimore by lop-sided scores in their first two home games, John pictured the Royals' allegedly weak pitching staff as a ballplayer holding a pair of scissors. The ballplayer had just sheared off practically all the Orioles' feathers—and the scissors were entitled "Three Runs in Two Games."

Jealousy in Jane

While the baseballers are enjoying warm, balmy weather, Montreal hockey fans have been kept enthusiastic by the showing of the Junior Royals in the Memorial Cup finals against Brandon . . . but the temperature causes some confusion. As Jane (Montreal Star) O'Meara puts it:

"Which is the more important: The Royals here, or the Royals there? Toss a coin to decide, or peek at the thermometer . . . well; the baseball Royals are here, do-ing well so are the young (hockey) Royals out Winnipeg way . . . do seasons count any more?



Is a home run by Jethroe of more importance than a winning goal by Frampton? Ah, there's the rub."

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson divides his attention between hockey and racing — with a little baseball talk thrown in — but Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll is sticking to baseball— and avoiding a headache.

Anybody doing any skiing lately?

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 9 (AP)— Now that the storm over Stromboli seems to have calmed, we have time to analyze the romantic and career problems of Ingrid Bergman.

I have no lowdown on the Bergman – Rossellini – Lindstrom tangle. But I can supply some facts which may help you understand the situation.

Here are two points to remember about Ingrid Bergman: 1. She is a European; 2. She is extremely serious about her work as an actress.

Let's go back a few years into film history.

Had Quick Success

She became the highest-paid most-sought female star. She won an Academy Award for "Gaslight" in 1940. Of the top 23 moneymaking films of all time, four are hers.

Bells of St. Mary's," $9,000,000; "For Whom The Bell Tolls," $6,500,000; "Spellbound," $5,000,000; "Notorious," $4,800,000.

To add to this, she became the toast of Broadway in "Joan of Lorraine." Critics agreed she outshone the Maxwell Anderson play.

In 1948, the tide turned. She made the mistake of miscasting herself as another Joan—Joan Madou, a Romanian of loose morals in "Arch to Triumph."

It was a sordid, sorry mess, one of the costliest flops in film history.

Bergman shouldered the disappointment—and her own financial loss. She wrapped herself up in a project she had long dreamed of: Playing Joan of Arc in a film epic.

She became lost in the role. She almost seemed like Joan herself. She expected "Joan of Arc" to be her greatest triumph.

Another Disappointment

Again she was disappointed. She went to New York for the opening, expected to be hailed. But critics generally frowned on the film.

Although the picture is doing well at the box-office, it was far from a triumph.

Now enters Roberto Rossellini. If there had been a romance between her and Rossellini, it wouldn't be the first time an actress had fallen in love with her director.

The rest of the story is up to husband, wife and friend. Tune in next week, same station, and see what happens.

Lightning Strikes Tree, Killing Man

Kitchener, May 9 (CP) — Sidney Dunn, 57, of Freeport, was killed Friday night when, lightning struck a tree beneath which he was standing during a storm. Mr. Dunn had gone fishing with his two sons, Donald and Edward. The three were fishing at the new Dundee dam when the second storm broke about 7 p.m. Mr. Dunn sought refuge under the tree which was struck by lightning.

THOUSANDS VIEW BLOSSOMS

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 9 — (CP) — This was Blossom Sunday throughout the Niagara Peninsula and thousands of motorists viewed acre upon acre of delicate blooms in this rich fruit belt. Police and service station operators reported traffic the heaviest they could recall. There were no serious mishaps.

Blossom Sunday usually falls about mid-May. But warm weather of the last few days, continuing during the weekend, advanced fall's date.

Beatrice Demerling, 22-year-old telephone company employee from Grimsby was chosen Blossom Queen of the peninsula.

Electrics Defeat Bata Team 4-3 In Soccer Game

Soccer football made an auspicious debut in the district on Saturday when the Northern Electric team defeated the Batas, we eleven in an exhibition game 4-3. Both teams are member clubs of the newly formed Bay of Quinte Association Football League.

Play opened strongly with Bata combining and after 15 minutes Kravacek, their inside left, scored a lucky goal, the ball barely crossing the line. Though Northern protested strongly it was over-ruled. At the seventeen minute mark Jones, centre forward for Northern, got the equalizer after a pass from Leech, the inside left. Five minutes later Jones again scored from Leech but the play was called back for off-side.

Second Half

It opened with Northern pressing and at the twelve-minute mark Ruppie, Northern outside right, scored from a corner kick, the ball going in off one of the Bata defenders. At the eighteen mark Carter scored for Northern on a beautiful passing effort, the ball going from Leech to Jones to Ruppie who put Carter in the clear to score in the far side of the net, fooling the Bata goalie completely.

After the kick-off Longhurst, Northern's right back, brought Bata's centre forward down in the penalty area, the referee awarding a penalty kick and Cuehle of Bata making it good.

At the thirty-five minute mark Leech took a long pass from Cathcart to Bata goal before the Bata goalie in the far corner. N. E. 4, Bata 3. At the eighteen yard line Broughton for Bata handled the ball, giving Carter for Northern an open kick and he missed the net.

With two minutes remaining Walton, Bata's right wing, crossed the ball to Ross who headed it past Murphy for the prettiest goal of the game. The final score N. E. 4, Bata 3.

Jerry Lanthier donated $2 to the Northern player who scored the first goal and the honor went to Jack Jones. A full-sized crowd was present to witness the game and at the conclusion the Bata team were hosts to Northern at a cold plate lunch in their cafeteria.

LATEST NEWS — Color Cartoon

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Experts always seem to revel in the mash they make from mish, complicating like the devil what should be a simple dish.

You could dispense with all the fancy methods that have been tried for deciding no-trump bids. Simply count one for each high card (ace or king or queen), know the basis number for each hand, show another high card by each voluntary no-trump bid.

When a pair has a total of nine high cards they have a game in no-trump. When either partner of a pair secs enough high cards for a game, he can show it by a one-jump.

Among other things, an opener of one in a suit promises four high cards; responding partner is assumed to have two. With these as basics do not announce their number of no-trump tricks.

South opened with a bid of one heart when north held this hand:

♠K 4
♥J 6 3
♦Q 6
♣A 9 4 2

Having no biddable suit, north has no takeout. Support for a suit bid only once is queen with two small, or any four, or better. Lacking adequate heart support, north should not assist.

This tells north his first response should be no-trump. It is only a matter of deciding how many no-trump. Without enough for a game he should not jump. With enough for game he should jump.

Here the correct first reply by north is two no-trump. It is a jump that is forcing to game in no-trump. It is the method used for, showing enough high cards for a no-trump game.

How does north know they have a game in no-trump? It is very simple. He merely adds up the number of high cards he holds. He combines them with the high cards held by south.

South has admitted holding four high cards among the items required for an opening of one in a suit. North has five for a total of nine. What could be sweeter?

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

I was going out for a Sunday walk with pop and ma, and me was in her room putting on her new little round hat in front of the mirrer, saying, Now that's what I call a chick hat, if I do say so myself.

G, med, do you mean you're going to leave it that way? I said, and pop said, Well naturally, since that's precisely the way it's supposed to be by all the laws of fashion.

Do you mean it's suppose to look funny sticking down over one eye, prity near? I said, and ma said, it's suppose to look smart and modish, exactly the way it looks.

But jimminies, ma, I mean G wizzickers, gosh, I said and me said, Thank you for your kind intrist, I'm sure, but never mind.

Meaning that was enough, and we went downstairs and pop was wailing to start, saying to ma, For Feet sake, my dear, you seem to of given that hat one push too many.

For land sakes what is this, a plot? ma said, and pop said, Oh, it can't be anything as serious as that it's just a trifling matter of a hat over one eye, as far as I can see, he said.

Now William, really, I mean really, I must criticize the way you wear your hat, and goodness knows you pick it on your head at some strange and senseless angles, ma said, and pop said, You win, my dear.

And he stuck his hat down over his nose and went out, and ma wouldn't follow him till he put it strate again, and we took a walk on the Avenue and nobody looked as if they'd thawt there was anything unusual about the way ma's hat was on.

Proving maybe she was rite.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

Two Back Safe After Dramatic Plane Crash

By GEORGE BENNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vancouver, May 9 (CP) — A lumbering silver R.C.A.F. Lancaster Sunday night brought Bill Grant and Sheila Cure back from a dramatic escape from death after a plane crash in the mountains of northern Washington State.

Canadian and United States fliers had braved countless dangers in six days of search and rescue.

But Miss Cure had another explanation for their safe return:

"I'm sure there was someone upstairs looking after us."

Grant perched his plane fifty feet from the snow-capped peak of 8,085-foot Mount Hozomeen, three miles south of the international border and 135 miles east of here. The crash came Monday afternoon in a blinding snowstorm on a flight from Miss Cure's Carlston, Alta., home to Vancouver. Two were unhurt.

Tuesday the R.C.A.F. started its intensive search for the couple. In all, 11 aircraft flew more than 25,000 miles, burned more than 17,000 gallons of fuel. All aircrew —162 men—and all ground crew —43 men—participated in the operation.

Friday morning the plane was sighted by L.A.C. Fred Hillyer, 27, of Vancouver, flying in an R. C. A.F. Canso piloted by F/O J.M. MacLeod, of Prince Rupert.

That afternoon, three R.C.A.F. para-rescue men—L.A.C. Ted Breidner, of Chilliwack, Cpl. L. H. Binnette and Sgt. G. B. Leckie, both of Vancouver—plummetted into the craggy gorge to the couple's aid.

A ground party of lumbermen set out from a lumber camp, 11 miles from the survivors. The three parties—the survivors, the para-rescue men and the ground party—met Saturday morning.

Throughout the jungle-like country they sleashed their way back to civilization, yesterday and a United States coast guard helicopter, which has assisted the operation since Wednesday, brought the survivors out to the waiting Lancaster at Abbotsford.

During their six-day ordeal, Grant, 28-year-old Vancouver draughtsman, and Miss Cure, 28-year-old student nurse, survived on five chocolate bars and water.

They wore only light clothing and kept warm by wrapping themselves in a curtain Miss Cure's mother had made for her room. They had one book of matches and enough paper to build a fire each night.

20 Fatalities During Weekend In East Canada

By The Canadian Press

A father's decision to draw in one more catch of herring brought death to him and his son in the choppy waters of the St. Lawrence River at Baie Des Sables, in Quebec's Gaspe district.

George Berube, 47, and his son Aurelien, 19, were drowned when their fishing craft, overloaded with herring, capsized as the nets were thrown out again. A younger Berube boy, clinging to the overturned boat, was rescued. Bodies of the two have not been recovered.

Their deaths were among 20 reported during the week-end in Eastern Canada by The Canadian Press.

Seven persons, six of them pedestrians, were killed in traffic mishaps and seven others were injured.

Another double drowning was reported in Quebec. Oscar Brosseau, 40, and Leon Perrault, 16, both of Rawdon, Que., were drowned when their canoe upset in a lake near their homes.

Lionel Gauthier of Sennetere, Que., was drowned at Val D'Or, Que., when the Chochocouane River washed out a section of highway. Gauthier's truck plunged into the river. The body of Polydore Pire, 48, of Lauzon, Que., was taken from the harbor at Quebec City and at Montreal the body of Edward Pfeifer, 19, of Verdun, Que., was found in the Back River. Pfeifer was drowned several months ago.

Fatally Injured

Mary Arnold, 12, was fatally injured at Stellarton, N.S., when she was hit by an automobile and police have charged George B. Fraser, identified as the driver of the car, with manslaughter. Others fatally injured by vehicles were Mrs. Ann Eldridge, 50, of Chester, N.S.; George Dugas, 72, of Ste. Anne Des Monts, Que., and Gerard Pare, 7-year- Rull, Que.; Michelle Paquin, six, of Sorel, Que; Donald Joseph Ladoucer, five of Sudbury, and John Thomas Falkiner, three, of Woodstock.

Sidney Dunn, 57, of Freeport, Ont., was killed by a bolt of lightning while fishing at New Dunbarton, Nash Bowman, 73, of Listowel, was killed in the only fatal highway collision reported during the week-end.

Two-year-old Danny Sugarman died in a Toronto hospital of burns suffered when he fell into a tub of hot water Wednesday and in Montreal, Mrs. R. Brown, died of injuries from a fall in her bathtub.

Two men died as the summer sports season got under way. William John Osborne, 37, was stricken while playing golf at Hamilton and Mason Wilson of Toronto collapsed and died at the opening of the racing season at Dufferin Park.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa:
Potentialities of Atomic Energy Being Pursued at Chalk River

(By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, May 9 — (CP) — Canada's atomic scientists in Chalk River are pursuing the potentialities of atomic energy as a fuel and power, government officials report in Ottawa.

It is known, they say, that consumption of one pound a day of uranium 235 in fission generates heat at a rate equivalent to about 450,000 kilowatts per day, the amount of heat which would be generated from burning 1,300 tons of coal a day.

The translation of this information into a workable, economic principle is the objective of one of the major research programs at Chalk River.

Energy from its radioactive pile emerges as heat. In its "low temperature" pile and others of the present atomic era, the heat is removed by cooling liquids and gases at temperatures too low to be valuable as useful power. Behind the "high temperature" piles are within grasp a "great deal" of information must be obtained.

The "high temperature" piles are to be particularly suited to this task and new methods of using materials used in it and of processing nuclear fuel are being developed there.

In time, officials say, atomic energy will be an additional and alternative source of power and heat. It shouldn't be expected to replace entirely the present sources.

Trade

Rt. Hon. Harold Wilson, president of the British Board of Trade, will visit every province except Newfoundland after he arrives in Canada next week to study ways of increasing trade with this country.

Wherever he goes, he is scheduled to pay official calls on representatives of the various Canadian governments.

At each stop, he will meet with officials of boards of trade, chambers of commerce and men whose livelihood largely depends on trade.

From Halifax, he will go to Saint John, N.B., and to Ottawa. He will spend May 14, 15 and 16 in the Capital and then will spend a day in Toronto. He is due to make a brief stop-over in Fort William on May 18 and then go to Winnipeg. From there, Edmonton, Vancouver, Montreal and Quebec. PICTON
Child Rescued From Deep Spring By Companion

Picton—Six-year-old Carol Brown rescued her friend Rhonda Hinemen same age, when she fell into a spring filled with eight feet of water. As the girl came to the top after sinking to the bottom of the well, Carol grabbed her hand and pulled her out.

The children were wading in water in a lane on the farm Rhonda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hinemen, live near Milford. They did not know this was overflow from a spring which fills the water bid. "Rhonda suddenly disappeared and I called her name. She came to the top and I grabbed her hand and pulled her out," Carol related.

Rhonda recalled "I swam and swam, N. A."

Shivering and cold the girls walked a quarter mile to home of Carol's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth. Brown, as the Hinemans were away from home.

Carol is being commended on her presence of mind in not leaving Rhonda alone for help. She act saved the life of her companion.

CATCHER TAKES OVER

Saginaw, Mich., May 9 (AP)— Catcher manager Bob Finley of Saginaw Bears put in five pitchers in a row yesterday against Grand Rapids Jets.

None of them could stop the opposition.

Finley, in the last inning, with the bases loaded, Finley blew up. He ripped off his catcher's mask stalked to the mound and grabbed the pitcher's glove, in quicky order he put on the battery and retired the side.

It was a futile gesture, however. The Bears couldn't tally in the bottom half and the game ended with the score still 15-14.

4th Anniversary Of V-E. Day Is Observed

London, May 9 —(CP)— Western Europe observed the fourth anniversary of V-E Day Sunday, a little more hopeful that a stable pace may be established at last on the continent.

In Russia and other Eastern European countries the anniversary will be observed today in commemoration of Primb Minister Stalin's announcement to the Slav world that the fighting in Europe was over.

Eastern editorials and speeches Sunday contained much of the usual ratification of the people countries, but the emphasis of many declarations was on work.

One of the most significant events occurred at Bonn where German political leaders approved a new federal constitution of Western Germany. The constitution they had drafted contained a bill of rights and was spoken opposition to war.

In France the anniversary coincided with Joan of Arc Day. President Vincent Auriol watched the Paris parades, one in the Tuileries Gardens and the other in the Champs Elysees.

Britain paid little attention to the anniversary. One ceremony took place in Christ Church, in London's Chelsea district, where tablets bearing the names of persons killed in the blitz were unveiled.

Former inmates of Nazi concentration camps marched to a cemetery in Hamburg to place wreaths.

The Russians unveiled a Soviet war memorial in Berlin it was made of marble from Adolf Hitler's chancellery.

In Moscow, Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, observed the anniversary with an editorial declaring that Russia is "not forgetting the danger of a new war being prepared by American imperialists."

A special order of the day issued by Marshal A. M. Vasilevesky, Soviet minister of the armed forces, gave sole credit for defeating Nazi Germany to the Russian people "and their armed forces."

Terrible Winter Has Turned Out To be Blessing

By BEN FUNK

Denver, May 9 (CP) — The most terrible winter in western United States history has turned out to be a blessing in disguise.

Soil in the blizzard belt is packed with moisture. Crop prospects are fine in most areas. Enough snow is piled in mountain ranges to assure ample irrigation water through the summer.

For seven straight weeks, a terrifying cataract of snow enveloped the plains and mountains of eight states. Snow drifted 30 feet deep.

On the ranges, cattle and sheep perished by thousands. Whole herds of deer and antelope died of freezing and starvation. More than 100 persons died.

But ranchers can count their blessings now.

In the first place, they got a great break when flood threats, caused by the rapid emergence of 68 years, failed to materialize. The soil absorbed much of the water as the snow melted gradually.

The weather warmed up in orderly fashion from south to north. Ice on the Missouri River moved out first from the lower reaches and then, by successive steps, from upstream.

The last blizzards struck the first of January. They continued into February, covering Nebraska, the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and Utah, and even reached into sunny Arizona and New Mexico.

Military planes, augmented by civilian craft, dropped food and fodder to isolated humans and animals. Army bulldozers opened thousands of miles of drifted roads. Behind them went trucks carrying food and medicine to people in snowy exile.

It took until mid-March to break the paralyzing hold of the storm.

UNARMED MAN SAVES FARMER ATTACKED BY ENRAGED BULL

1. Quickly Marsel pulled the badly gored farmer from the field, saving the man's life . . . and took him across the road to the house. He gave him first aid and summoned a doctor.

2. Before Frenette, who is quite deaf, knew what was happening . . . the bull had tossed him brutally into the air. He landed on his back.

2. From his truck, Georges Marsel saw what was happening and rushed to the rescue. Unarmed, he somehow managed to turn the bull away from its victim.

WINS DOW AWARD

GEORGES MARTEL
of Pontmain, Que.,
puts 78 years of cool to salary

Edouard Frenette, 78, was walking through the yard when a bull charged and tossed him into the air. Landing on his back he was again being attacked when Georges Martel, passing in his truck, stopped and raced to the scene.

Without thinking of his own safety, Marsel rushed at the bull on shouting at it with his big arms. The trick worked . . . and the animal turned away . . . giving Martel time to drag the farmer out of the field.

We are proud to present Georges Martel with The Dow Award.

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts

I walked to the garage with Roger. Robbie's car was parked next to mine. "You know," opined Roger, "a sedan is elegant, but a roadster is wank. Yes, sir. Particularly a convertible."

I dashed Roger's hopes, and climbed into the sedan.

Later that day the canteen called to tell me that an unusually large crowd had depleted supplies. Though wholesalers would sell butter and cream and bread on Sunday, they were unable to deliver it, which meant that I had to pick up the items. Scarcely had I hung up the receiver from giving the order to the bakery and creamery when Roger came up the stairs on the run, zipper-ing his jacket as he took the steps two at a time.

He held out his hand for the car keys. To my questioning look, he replied that the snow was thawing, he wouldn't feel easy until I was sitting me out on the slippery street alone. I was beginning to catch on that I was a frail little flower, no longer equal to heasting unaided, the hazards of a Montana winter. Or that what I thought was a lodger had turned out to be chauffeur. I smiled over pleasantly the possibility of being able to make heeded remarks re speed, parking spaces — even on the loaf of bread I'd forgotten.

After we delivered the groceries to the canteen, Roger asked whether I wouldn't be interested in driving to the base and seeing how its development was progressing. We drove to the base.

Gore Field was built upon a bench which rises 500 feet above the level of Great Falls. The road which led to it was a right-angle turn off the main highway. Army roads were built high with deep drainage ditches on each side and when snow covered the ground, black flags placed on either side of the road at frequent intervals marked its course. We drove front and center between the black flag markers down the Army road until we came to large parking lot near Headquarters Company. Here Roger negotiated the narrow earthwork which bridged the ditch and joined the parking lot to the road. He sprang out of the car, not before he had given the horn a tap that brought heads to my question: what is there you would like? He made three highballs and he kept on making highballs until the balance of our quota of rationed whisky for that week was gone. Then he lent me a hand in the kitchen, and he later helped with the dishes. No reference was made to the antics of the afternoon. I waited for Roger to tell on himself, but he didn't seem to consider it a subject for conversation.

Monday Roger asked for the keys of my car. As my eyebrows went up, he reminded me gently that he couldn't allow the misadventure of the day before to go unerased. A wash job was in order. "I'm afraid I must insist, dear lady. The fault is mine." I told Roger that in Montana we were used to dirty cars, that almost no one bothered to keep a car shined up. I listened patiently, with his hand outstretched, and his only comment was to wiggle his fingers in a come-on motion. I gave him the keys.

About 5 o'clock that afternoon I was telephoned from a downtown cocktail lounge to inquire what we were having for dinner. I was cooking a roast of beef, a lovely thing for which I had given all our hard-earned points. We'd got past buying meat with a thought for size or price; it was the number of points required that determined whether we bought or not.

"But good," Roger exclaimed. "I've run into a couple of friends and we'll be right along."

I heard the phone on his end click. As fast as one myopic eye and one farsighted eye could do it, I looked up the number of the cocktail lounge from which he said he was calling, and rang the phone there. I asked to have Roger paged. In a few minutes word came back that he did not answer.

Long before I had got over wringing my hands and arguing with myself over whether I should simply lock all the doors, turn off the lights, and pull down the shades, or I should get out a linen duster and begin to set the table for five, the sedan, shiny as new, drew to a stop before our house. Out jumped Roger and, like a footman for a prince, he held the door open. A general in the United States Army stepped out of the car, followed by his aide.

Time for debate was over. I whipped off my apron, ran frenzied hands through my hair.

The front door opened and Roger boomed, "Lee, I want you to meet General Brown and Major Smith. They flew in this noon and are leaving in the morning. I couldn't have them pass through and not be exposed to western hospitality." General Brown and Major Smith both looked as surprise as I did. Roger hung up their caps and coats in the vestibule closet, herded them through the living room, toeing a lighted match into the newly laid wood in the grate as he passed the fireplace, and on into the garden room. Settling them comfortably, he opened the panel to the bar and said, "Gentlemen, what'll it be?"

I was curious myself as to what it would be, since last week's bottle had been emptied Sunday and Robbie was not yet home. But Lady Luck was smiling high on Roger's shoulder. No sooner had he asked the question and received the reply, "Whisky and soda," than the horn of the hunter was heard on the front and slammed the garage door and came in with a quart.

Roger too charge of the bottle and turned to the bar.

Over our coffee and cigarettes and benedictine, General Brown said, "I shall never forget this town. It will always stand out in my memory as a unique city. In the course of my career I have visited many cities in the country but never until today did I experience anything like this. When we stood at the hotel desk, a gentleman came over beside us. As soon as we had finished registering, he looked at the room, called me by name and said, 'I've never had the pleasure of buying a general a drink.' With that, he reached into his pocket and pulled out a $10 bill. 'You'd oblige me very much if you'd drink this up.'" General Brown laughed. "We had quite a time returning the money without offending the old fellow. Later, in the bar, another man stepped between Smith and me. Placed an arm around each of us, literally piloting our steps to our sides. Then he browbeat the bartender into giving him our checks." The General Brown looked at Roger. "You saw him, Sergeant. He was buying your drinks, too. Thought you were part of our party. It was scarcely any time after that that we were kidnapped for dinner. No," repeated, "I'll never forget this place."

I felt that the Chamber of Commerce should hear about us. And about the lunch with the $10.

Tuesday morning I was good and tired and good and mad. Roger had driven the visiting army back to their hotel and forgotten to return until very late. The dishes were still on the sink. At 2 o'clock that afternoon I had a canteen corps meeting to attend, and at 7.30 that night a new class in nutrition to launch. I was in no frame of mind to have a third for dinner. Just in case, and to make absolutely sure, I telephoned Roger to tell him to get his dinner before he came home.

"You're going out?" he said.

"No. But we're having hash." I had managed to salvage enough meat for hash and bones for soup. The balance of the week we would be eating non-rationed chicken, eggs and fish.

"Just you and The Little Man?" Roger had taken to calling Rob The Little Man, and though Rob squirmed, he did nothing to stop it.

"Yes."

"That's the good company I mean. I'd rather eat hash with you two than sit up alone to a feast.

MEN CONFIDENT OF HOLDING OUT FIVE MONTHS

May Seek Affiliation With Powerful Congress of Industrial Organizations

Asbestos, Que., May 10 (CP)—An official of the Federation of Asbestos Workers whose 5,000 members already have been on strike for almost three months said yesterday the union is confident of being able to hold out another five months at least.

Rodolphe Hamel, Federation president, said that if and when the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, with which the Federation is affiliated, finds itself no longer able to lend financial support, the strikers will seek affiliation with the powerful Congress of Industrial Organizations.

He made it clear, however, that the possibility of a switch in affiliation from the C.C.C.L., which has strongly supported the strike so far, is merely a look into the future.

The striking employees of five companies, for which the Canadian Johns - Manville Company is the largest, are holding out for an increase of 15 cents on hour which would raise their basic hourly pay to $1. They went on strike Feb. 13, tying up production in an area which produces between 80 and 90 per cent of the world's asbestos supply.

Probe Timber Cutting Concession in N. Guinea

Sydney Australia, May 10 (CP)—A Royal Commission appointed by the Australian government is trying to determine whether a cabinet minister was given a bribe to swing a timber-cutting concession in New Guinea.

Edward J. Ward, External Territories Minister, had urged Prime Minister J. B. Chifeley last year to set up the commission to clear Ward's name.

These had been charges that Ward received $10,000 in connection with an attempt to defraud the Brisbane timber firm out of $160,000 by selling them the timber lease of Bulolo Valley, New Guinea.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Tuesday May 10 (CP)— Synopsis: Polar air covered Canada from Manitoba to the Maritimes this morning. Skies are partly cloudy, temperatures fell to below freezing in northern Quebec, and in Ontario as far south as the Georgian Bay and Haliburton regions. Frost is forecast for these regions tonight, and there is a risk of below freezing temperatures before morning in the Lake Ontario and northern Lake Huron regions especially in low lying areas. Today and Wednesday promise to be sunny over most of the province with slightly warmer weather anticipated on Wednesday.

BERLIN BLOCKADE THING OF PAST AFTER THURSDAY

Trains, Traffic to Move Freely Between Zones

Berlin, May 10 — (AP) — At one minute past midnight Thursday (6.01 p.m. EDT Wednesday), flag - bedecked traffic will end the epic of blockaded Berlin.

Things will revert back to the way they were March 1, 1948, when the blockade began.

Sixteen freight trains will move into the city daily. Highway will be open. The Russians won't — or at least they say won't — demand travel permits. They also say they won't try to search allied baggage.

While most of the world hailed the end of the blockade as a Soviet diplomatic defeat, the official Soviet Army newspaper, The Gliche Rundschau, today called it an "unthinkable success of the policy of unity which was always pursued by the Soviet Union and the German forces of Germany."

The paper said that now that the Berlin blockade was ending, "we-ourselves would make new efforts to split Germany. It claimed approval of the new West German constitution marked such an attempt.

But throughout the border area there was excitement in the air as willing workers flocked with tool and telephone equipment.

The British zone expected to have the first train into the city.

Western Berlin's mayor, Ernest Reuter, expected to cut the gold-and-gold flag of the new West German state, with its hammer-and-sickle-and-corn.

The first day, 50 trainloads of fuel, food and others of fresh potatoes and consumer goods are scheduled to move into the city, which has been supplied by the air lift for 13 months.

Twelve thousand tons of supplies are to go into the city daily — about the same figure the air lift reached on its best day.

Believe Bush Fire Started by Match Or by Cigarette

Mattawa, May 10 — (CP) — Firefighters who brought a bush fire under control Sunday night at the Ontario limits of Mattawa said they believed the blaze was started by a person carelessly dropped cigaret or match.

The fire broke out Sunday afternoon and threatened to sweep the thickly-wooded hillside into the town. Seven large dally and second-growth timber were destroyed. Firefighters said the blaze jumped 60 feet during one violent gust of wind.

Houses standing at the foot of the hill were soaked by water from pumpers from the nearby Ottawa River.

New Set of Practices Evolved In Conducting Training in Arctic

Churchill, Man., May 10 (Reuters)—Nobody — not Churchill talks about "Operation" warfare.

These men of the Canadian, United States and British armies have been getting acquainted with a type of warfare as far from the "classical" variety as they could get.

They are learning the lessons of the Arctic, towards the day when it may be necessary to wage war in these wastes.

None is more aware of the difficulties of Arctic war than the Canadian infantry who, in plain-clothes strength, were put through winter tests from which they emerged with a new confidence, all backed by the Arctic winter.

Their troubles began almost as soon as they left the heated huts of Churchill. They found that previous field army manuals had not place in this type of warfare. It became a question of improvising and evolving a new set of practices for the "foot slogger."

About 90 per cent of their training was devoted to the business of moving and keeping alive, leaving only 10 per cent for the business of fighting.

The aim of further research will be to adjust these percentages, so that more of the Arctic soldier's time is available for combat.

The infantry's main enemy, in the absence of hostile troops, is frostbite.

Three years' research into Arctic clothing has taught military authorities what the fighting knows all along: That the problem is to contain body heat and enable it to circulate inside the clothing. The current army-issue clothing is the best the white man has been able to devise, but it still is only about half as good as the caribou make-up of the Canadian Eskimo or the Eskimo. There aren't enough caribou to clothe an army.

Special mitts are being devised to leave trigger fingers reasonably free. Another possible solution is to equip rifles and machine-guns with electrical devices.

Many other difficulties confront the Arctic soldier.

The wind blows constantly, and the "wind-chill factor" more than enough to cause all humans to say so. Even the Eskimo, used to it, is driven indoors.

U.N. Action Is Deferred Until Autumn

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N. Y., May 10 — (CP) — The special political committee today approved a proposal to defer action by the United Nations General Assembly on Indonesia until the fall session of the Assembly.

The vote was 42 to 6 with four abstentions. The Russian - bloc countries alone opposed the plan which will go before the main Assembly for final acceptance. Canada supported the proposal.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton told the 55S - member special political committee that debate now on the subject would jeopardize the agreement between the Netherlands and Indonesian Republic reported this week from Batavia.

"I feel sure that all men of good will will join with us in taking satisfaction in the substantial progress which has been made toward agreement in Indonesia and that the hope of every possible help and encouragement will be given in the period to pursue the hopeful course on which they now have embarked," McNaughton said.

McNaughton spoke after Russian - bloc delegates bitterly assailed the committee chairman, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines who supported the deferment move.

Australia and India as well as the Philippines, have supported the Indonesian Republic in all United Nations debates since the case came before the World Organization.

McNaughton made the original proposal that the commission for Indonesia bring the Netherlands and Indonesians representatives together at Batavia for the peace talks.

Jakob A. Malik of Russia demanded that L. N. Palar, Indonesian representative at the United Nations, be heard by the committee.

Romulo countered that Palar had told him personally he did not wish to make a statement before the committee at the present time.

The Russian delegate snapped that Palar had advised him no information was available from the Indonesian government. Malik said the Indonesian leaders were held prisoner on the island of Bangka.

The move for deferment, he said, appealed to be a manoeuvre directed by The Netherlands.

Nehru Answers Indian Critics Of Decision

He said his critics—most of whom belong to the India Socialist party—that he associated himself with Thmas Mcintyre and his "arte" decisions fa the full belief that they were right for India and the world.

He had the impression that the vast majority of Indians considered the London decision.

During a long career in India's service, he had often been accused of mistakes but had never considered himself guilty of anything against the honor and self respect of India. Even her people, he said.

"It is a serious matter, therefore, if even a few persons whose opinions I value should consider that I have committed an outrage."

I wish to say that nothing has been done in secrecy and that no commitment of any kind limiting our sovereignty or our internal or external policy have been made, whether in the political or economic or military sphere," he said.

BATTLE IS BEGUN FOR DEFENCE OF CITY OF HANKOW

Nationalist Garrison Claims Victory at Liuho

By FRED HAMPSON

Shanghai, May 10 (AP)—A Central News Agency dispatch from Hankow today said the battle for the "defence" of that mid-Yangtze industrial city started yesterday.

The agency said 600 Communists drove into Liangkouw about 20 miles south of Hankow.

Another dispatch from Hankow quoted a government source as saying a movement for a regrouping of peace forces in the area was "in full swing."

The army source told Central News Agency that some of the leading Hankow residents have formed a "peace maintaining committee." Committees of this nature usually are formed to effect a truce between the time the Nationalists withdraw and the rebels arrive.

Earlier a Nationalist garrison communique claimed victory in "decisive victory" at Liuho, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

A government counter-offensive was started in that area yesterday.

Liuho has not been mentioned in recent communiques. It is a key point on the line running entering the Yangtze from the south. It is a short distance from Kunshan. The northern fork of a two-pronged Communist drive from Soochow has been pointed at Kunshan for a week.

Nationalist sources also counter-attacked west of Kunshan yesterday, driving back a Communist force.

Reds Beaten at Taichang

While these actions were going on, 1,000 Communists were beaten back by four miles north of Kunshan. The communique said this attack was beaten back.

The communique did not mention Liuho, 30 miles from where the Communist southern prong is moving toward Shanghai. The Communists are reported pushing today.

Nothing was said in the communique about the central and southern China front, where the Communists have been driving westward and southward into Kiangsi Province and Hupeh and Hunan to Changsha and toward Fuchien Province.

Newspapers here said an "underground peacemovement was formed in Changsha to negotiate with Yangtze, where Communist forces have been just within 60 miles of the city.

Another paper said Communist forces have intensified attacks on the outer edge of Tsingtao, where the Nationalist army has had a naval base for some time.

American sources here have given steam up and are ready to sail the minute the Communists occupy the city.

NEW RATES WILL BE IN EFFECT AFTER MIDNIGHT

Transport Board Approves Raising First-Class Fares Up to 15 P.C.

Montreal, May 10 — (CP) — The Railway Association of Canada today announced that the Transport Board has approved increases ranging up to 15 per cent in first-class fares in Canada and the new rates will come into effect after midnight tonight.

The increase is equal to the federal transportation tax repealed by the federal budget in April.

A month ago the railways automatically increased all first-class fares 15 per cent. Because coach-class fares had been sub-standard the transport Board approval was needed to raise them.

Pending approval by the Transport Board of the latest increase, coach - class and first - class fares in Canada and across the former were raised effective April 10.

A railway spokesman said that although the Transport Board authority covers increases up to 15 per cent, full advantage of this will not be taken in all cases, depending on certain complicating factors such as competition.

"As cases where the boost would be considerably lower than 15 per cent," he said, "in one-way first-class fare from Montreal to Vancouver. The present profit is $161.40 and our mindpoint it will be increased by only $2."

Railway officials said the increase, because it applies only in Canada, would have no effect on the practice of Americans buying railway tickets between United States stations at Canadian border points.

Preserve Spring On Albert St. If Board Agrees

Providing the approval of the Board of Health is granted the Albert Street spring which for many years has been used by many city residents as drinking water will be retained for that purpose.

Future of the spring for some weeks has remained in doubt owing to the fact that the building lot on which the spring is located being sold. The new owner is constructing a house on the property and this would block off the spring.

However, the owner has no objection if the city wishes to pipe the spring to the street where the water will still be available to the residents who prefer it for drinking purposes. Alderman Lloyd brought the matter to the attention of council members who approved of the move if the Board of Health approves.

Alderman Clarke stated "In many cases under similar conditions became unfit for use. He did not know whether the Albert Spring would pass the required test but asked that the approval of the Health Board be asked.
